Eckert, Dakin, Westberg win

By Mary Whitel

Neil Eckert won re-election as mayor of Carbondale Tuesday and former police chief Joseph Dakin and incumbent Helen Westberg won seats on the Carbondale City Council.

Eckert polled 2,253 votes and carried all but one precinct by a wide margin. His strongest support came from precincts 12, 13 and 14. His closest challenger, Irene Abschützer, received 901 votes.

Dakin received 2,513 votes and carried all but three precincts. Westberg polled 2,121 votes, but failed to carry any precinct. John Hardt, an SIU student, carried one precinct and Walter Robinson, Jr. carried two.

Earl Pressey, SIU student and write-in candidate, picked up the one mayoral precinct that Eckert failed to carry. Preston carried precinct 23 which has a high student population. Preston polled 331 votes and John Hamilton, who also waged a write-in campaign, received 35 votes.

Two SIU students running for city council as write-in candidates finished far behind the four SIU Daily poll 256 votes, and John Hardi got 406 votes.

Elmer C. Brandhorst, who finished third in the council race polled 2,218 votes, and Robinson received 929 votes.

Eckert said after the election that he does not consider the margin of victory a mandate, but he was "very pleased with the support" voters gave him. He attributed his won mostly to luck and the fact that he hasn't "done anything bad yet."

Eckert, 36, was first elected mayor in 1971 when he defeated Councilman Hans Fischer by 98 votes.

Eckert has supported downtown redevelopment and construction of a new city hall complex and federal funding. He also has worked to receive federal approval for the railroad relocation project.

Joseph Dakin said he does not feel the election is a mandate but and the vote indicates: "people are tired of the governed they have and are looking for a common sense approach to city government."

Dakin attributed part of his victory to the endorsement of the Daily Egyptian. He said that a number of students voted for him because of the Daily Egyptian endorsement and said that "students have more say-so than we think."

Dakin, 37, 109 S. Parrish St., said he ran for city council because he was "interested in seeing the city go forward and not backwards."

In his campaign, he criticized the present council as having acted as a rubber stamp in the past, and said that he would like to see city government responsive to the wishes of the people.

Westberg was the only incumbent running in the election for council. She said her victory was "in large a part due to the fact that I served for 20 months on the city council and people like the way I served. People feel I've exercised good judgement on most issues," she said.

Westberg, 57, 706 Cherry St., has served on the council since September, 1973, when she was appointed to fill a vacancy.

She campaigned against a new city hall and said that the No. 1 problem facing Carbondale is finding new jobs.

City Clerk and Election Commission Commissioner Elizabeth Leipshy said the voter turnout was not heavy but indicated it was hard to compare this years turnout with the past because precincts in wards 13 and 14, where votes were decided by fewer than two to one against the candidates, were not polled.

In the mayoral race 3,902 votes were cast. The last mayors race was held in 1971 - 4,306 votes were cast.

Eckert, Dakin, and Westberg will begin their terms May 1.

Massages approved, 'locals' disapproved

By Bruce Hackel

Carbondale voters, in a two-part non-binding referendum Tuesday, favored allowing persons of one sex to massage the bodies of persons of the opposite sex, but rejected allowing persons to massage the genital parts of the body.

The first question was approved by a vote of 1,670 to 1,740; while the second question was defeated by 2,056 to 1,897.

In predominantly student wards 2, 10, 21, 22, 23, 25, and 36, the first question was approved by a vote of 842 to 273, while the second question was defeated by a vote of 821 to 479.

However, in Carbondale wards 7, 8, 12, 13, 14, and 15, the second question was defeated by a relatively large margin, especially in wards 13 and 15, where votes were decided by more than two to one against the proposal.

The first portion of the referendum received favorable support throughout much of the community. The second portion remained close, finally meeting defeat by the large opposition in wards 7, 8, 12, 14 and 15.

The two massage parlors operating in Carbondale, Deja Vu and New York, first came under attack after stories in the Daily Egyptian and Southern Illinoisan revealed that sexual stimulation or "locals" were given to massage patrons.

Carbondale Citizens for Decency, a local group of citizens and businessmen, was formed in late November in opposition to massage parlors.

Carbondale Citizens for Decency, a local group of citizens and businessmen, was formed in late November in opposition to massage parlors.

The issue erupted on Dec. 16 when spokesmen for both sides presented evidence for a Carbondale City Council meeting. At issue was a proposal to ban "locals" by licensing the city's massage parlors.

Following the heated council meeting, the Carbondale Citizens for Decency began circulating a petition throughout the community objecting to massage parlors, the public sale of sexual stimulation, masturbation and shows of sexually explicit films. The petition advocated regulated ordinances prohibiting these activities. At the Jan. 10 council meeting the council decided to test public opinion with a non-binding referendum. The referendum would serve only as a poll. The council has the authority to accept or reject the results of the vote.

SIU Foundation considering purchase of Midlands Golf Club

By Ross Becker

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Duffers who have always wished that the University owned a golf course may see their wish come true.

The SIU Foundation has been approached by representatives of T and J Enterprises with a plan that would practically give SIU a golf course, said George Mace, vice president for administration and campus treasurer.

The plan requires that the foundation assume control of all golf course equipment at the Midland Hills Country Club located on U.S. 51 about five miles south of Carbondale. The foundation would also be required to pay off any debts remaining on the equipment, said John Huffman, University legal counsel.

"About $30,000" is owed on the equipment by T and J, he said.

In addition, the foundation would be required to give a "gift certificate" to T and J equal to the assessed value of the equipment involved, Mace said.

The golf course property includes a club house and all equipment at the nine-hole course. T and J does not own enough land that the course is located on.

The land, exclusive of all equipment and development, is owned by Midland Hills Country Club, Inc., said Dean Isbell, Special Trustees Treasurer and Midland Hills secretary.

The terms of the lease require a $1,000 yearly rental fee. T and J must also pay seven per cent of gross sales from $20,000 to $30,000 and 10 per cent on sales over $30,000 to Midland, Inc.

The $1,000 base rent is deducted from the sales percentages, Isbell said.

The current lease arrangement, in effect since April 1, 1962, ends in 2003. The agreement can then be renegotiated for a 25-year period, Isbell said. Rent during the second part of the lease cannot exceed 25 per cent of gross sales, Isbell said.

Gross sales include membership fees, green fees and any events unrelated to golf that take place at the course, he said.

The current lease stipulates that before the lease can be transferred by T and J Enterprises to a different organization, Midland must approve the transfer, Issell said. Midland has not been contacted by any of the parties in the proposed deal, he said.

The foundation has not accepted the T and J offer, said Joseph Goodmen, University Foundation manager.

"We won't accept the offer unless the University would maintain and operate the golf course," he said.

The University has not reached a decision about the golf course, Brandt said. "We're going to take a pretty good look at it," he said.

Jack Mager, vice president for development and services, is studying the proposal for the University. Mager declined to discuss the proposal. He said he thought publicity about it could cause the offer to be withdrawn.

The University Foundation of Southern Illinois has not reached a decision about the golf course, said Brandt, vice president for development and services. Vasectomy provides male birth control

Editors' note: This is the second of a series on the availability of birth control, sterilization and abortion services for Carbondale area citizens.

BY SCOTT G. BANDLE
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If a couple's family is as large as they want, the man can have a vasectomy, a surgical procedure that permanently prevents the man from having children.

A vasectomy is a minor surgical operation that cuts the "vas deferens" (vas), the tubes through which sperm travel from the testicles to the urethra, near the base of the penis. The vas is cut from both testicles, and the loose ends are tied with silk knots. Sperm, unable to travel through the interrupted vas, remains in the testicles and is absorbed by the body.

Taking about 20 minutes, a vasectomy is a one-time procedure and usually performed under local anesthesia. Regular activity, other than heavy work, may be resumed at the discretion of the physician after the operation. After six weeks, the patient is asked to come back for sperm tests. If the tests prove negative, the man is considered sterile.

Because there is a slight chance that the vas may grow back together, the crotch area is checked every six months for sperm production. If sperm are found, a repeat vasectomy can be done in the doctor's office.

The Graduate Student Council (GSC) is "urgently" challenging the results of Wednesday's trustee election, detailing another record low below 5,000 nominations to an essential minimum.

Bradley said the GSC has never previously appeared before the government constitution by the Student Senate. He charged that without GSC approval, Wednesday's trustee election would be "illegal."

In response to Bradley's claim, election commissioners Rob LeChien and Mike Jenkins said the student trustee election would proceed as scheduled "in the interest of saving time and effort."

Along with the charge by Bradley that the GSC is "urgently" challenging the results of Wednesday's trustee election would be "illegal."

The election commission shall consist of two undergraduates and two graduate students appointed by the Student Senate and GSC. Both LeChien and Jenkins are law students nominated by Sullivan and approved by the Student Senate. Bradley and Jones both said Monday that Sullivan requested the GSC to appoint undergraduate students to the student trustee election commission.

Jones said that instead of the Student Senate, the election commission made the decision. Bradley said he intends to take the issue to the Campus and Judicial Board.

"Our contention is that an election involving both undergraduate and graduate students is illegal if the election laws have not been ratified," Bradley said. In response to the GSC claims, Sullivan said student government would not act on another election.

"In the trustee election," Sullivan said, "we have in no way unilaterally overturned the Student Senate election."

"I feel that it's a little bit irresponsible on their part (GSC) to go out and make their challenges behind our back," Sullivan said.

Students go to polls to elect new leaders

SIU students will go to the polls Wednesday to elect a new student president, vice president, student trustee and 12 student representatives.

The ballot lists 11 candidates for president, 10 for vice president, four for student trustee and 25 student representatives. The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Student Center, Grimm, Thomas Hall, Lentz Hall, the north entrance of Morris Library and the Student Services Center.

In addition, polls will be open at the Woody Hall cafeteria from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., the Center for Technical Careers, Student Center from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and the Aviation Technology Building of the College of Engineering.

"Any discussions I've had with the president is a matter for the President to talk about and not me," he said.

Tabulations may delay student election results

Daily Egyptian readers may have to wait until Friday for the results of Wednesday's student government elections. Election commissioner Paul Sullivan said Tuesday that the counting process will begin until 9 a.m. Monday, two days after the polls officially close.

All ballots will be counted by hand, instead of by computer as has been done in the past, he said. LeChien said it will take one hour to collect the ballots and another hour "so we can eat supper."

Survey polling faculty on collective bargaining

The SIU chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) will conduct a survey soliciting University faculty opinions on collective bargaining.

John Howe, associate professor of philosophy and president of SIU's AAUP chapter, said Tuesday he has personally distributed about 700 questionnaires and the remainder will be distributed later this week.

The survey, probes faculty sentiment on formation of a collective bargaining unit on campus and opinions on what role the AAUP should play in such a unit.

"The Faculty Senate had plans for conducting a similar survey, but we held off to see what they did," Howe said.

"They planned to do now so we're doing our own survey," Howe said.

SIU AAUP volunteers will tally the survey by hand and results would be ready Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Brandt to speak at faculty again

For the second time since taking office in December, SIU President Kenneth Brandt will address the faculty at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in Davis Auditorium.

He has not released details of his speech.

"The meeting is just to bring the faculty up to date on what's going on on the campus and administratively," E. Earle Sibbit, president of the Faculty Senate said. He added that Brandt will answer questions following his talk.

American evacuation from Vietnam continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger acknowledged Tuesday that the U.S. embassy in Saigon was evacuating "high-ranking" American diplomats to reduce the number of Americans in South Vietnam to an essential minimum.

Privately, U.S. officials said the pullout could be extended to 30,000, even as Kissinger told the Senate Appropriations Committee there would be below 5,000 diplomats in Saigon at any time, the beleaguered country and no "super-numeraries" would remain.

Connally on trial

For anyone still believing in the American ethic of "equal justice under the law," an examination of the Washington affair brings to mind a former Secretary of Treasury John B. Connally should provide invaluable enlightenment.

The three-time Texas governor is on trial for allegedly accepting about a $10,000 payoff (the exact amount is in dispute) from former San Antonio oil industry attorney Jake Jacobsen for Connally's alleged help in raising milk prices. In 1973, the Treasury Department dismissed Jacobsen's charge that Connally's administration had illegally colluded with industry to raise milk prices.

Jacobsen's case in these pages would be unfair and ludicrous but, to consider the conditions of his trial is to understand justice in this country.

By virtue of his wealth and great sphere of influence, Connally has been more certain to gain acquittal. He has Edward Bennett Williams, one of the nation's top lawyers, defending him. He has also had the advantage of an all-star cast of character witnesses, including Billy Graham and Lady Bird Johnson, to tell the court and jury that "Mr. Connally is a man of integrity."

Williams has crafted destroy the credibility of the witness upon whose testimony the prosecution's case is based. Under intense cross-examination by Williams, Jacobsen's integrity and memory have been effectively attacked, leaving the jury little other than to remain unconvinced of the prosecution's case.

The shadow of the charges against Connally will follow him for a long time, regardless of the result of his trial and his political future—once bright enough to be considered a presidential candidate—has probably been destroyed.

As even more important point, however, is the illustration this case gives to the growing and eventually hypocritical state of American justice. The rich and influential have the finest legal minds to defend themselves. Those of lesser economic stature do not. While Connally may indeed be innocent of all charges, he cannot wonder why his overwhelming success his defense would be without the benefit of his tremendous wealth and influential friends.

Press should emphasize good in life—Brandt

Bicyclists and safety

To the Daily Egyptian:

No matter how thick-skinned, how hardhearted, all weather bicyclists, I like countless others, will be pumping-up the tires on my bike, pedaling more and driving less in the warmer weather ahead. But accompanying more two-wheeler drivers will also be an influx in the number of accidents involving motor vehicles and bicycles. If recent statistics for our area hold true, more than half of all such incidents will be directly or indirectly the fault of the bicyclists.

With this in mind, I would like to caution automobilists, and especially bicyclists, to be more aware of what is happening around them on the road. It was had enough this past winter with few bicyclists in use to almost hit a darkly clothed bicyclist without reflectors or lights one evening on South Wall, and to barely miss broadening another making a U-turn on a one-way street. Luckily though, nothing outside of a temporary increase in my heartbeat and a few muttered words transpired.

Nobility needed

To the Daily Egyptian:

For many years the reasons the White House gave us for our military efforts in Indo China were supposedly noble reasons. Our money and our troops were sent there to stop the spread of Communism, we were told. The United States was there to aid and protect freedom-loving nations. Recently, however, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger gave us another reason for our continued involvement in Cambodia, which seems to me to be Washington's real reason for the whole Indo China mess. His reason is found in the March 26th issue of Newsweek: "We have a responsibility toward a nation that we partly brought into this situation. I for one do not want to pull the plug out on people whom we supplied with weapons so that we could save our necks (in Indo China)."

For years we have been wasting money and lives in Indo China for selfish, not noble, reasons. It is time to forget about its ugliness (most of which we've created), and concern ourselves with ways of truly doing noble things to help mankind.

Amnesty now

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is written in hopes of terminating another American injustice. After having had our country governed by a policy of despotism, and now, by a President and Vice-President not even elected by the people, I would think that national awareness in this country would increase. At this moment the hundreds of Americans are being persecuted for actions committed by their own government.

No one will ever fully comprehend the horrendous destruction perpetrated upon the people, animals, vegetation, and land of South East Asia by this country for twelve years. After eighteen months in Vietnam and three years of listening sessions, which I now consider a waste of time and effort, I must repeat the truth. The truth withers out the existence, and the hope that they will be reunited with their families.

Refugee help

To the Daily Egyptian:

The present situation in South Vietnam is indeed one of extreme gravity. A situation of this type is always filled with intense political feelings, and large amounts of destruction from the war. To lessen the importance of these facets of the situation, we would however, like to bring to your attention the very precarious position of the refugees in South Vietnam. They have been displaced from their homes, and are now in strange places caught in fear stricken panic. Most have nothing, but what they were able to carry with them. For many this little bit has either been lost or stolen. It is a time of hope for them, hope to find the means of existence, and hope that they will be reunited with their families.

The Daily Egyptian editors along with a smattering of journalism professors, Professor Warren Brandt offer their simplistic views of the press. During the Brandt speech, the editors, both promising and unpromising, watched the president discuss the media and the differences many persons perceive between them.

More commonly known as the generation gap, Brandt related how he had discovered, by questioning reporters, that the Daily Egyptian had determined that knowing the editorial minds wasn't important enough to cover.

Even Presidents ask such questions. But then the best part of the evening started. What an English teacher, instructing freshmen students who probably don't listen anyway, might call "the body of the letter.

Brandt echoed the corporate statement of many persons who mistrust and disregard the press. The press should not report the rotten events occurring in the country, he said. It should look at the positive and emphasize the good. Brandt explained.

Not every politician is crooked, he said positively. Things were not the same when "I" was a boy. We listened to the radio. Brandt informed the audience.

Noborder generation. I grew up with don't understand the "college student" of today, the president informed students and editors. Brand's thoughts offer personal insight into the president of SIU.

Perhaps the most important statement of the evening was that the press should emphasize the positive aspects of American life.

Or, maybe the most important statement was that the press should not mistrust all public servants. But establishing trust on the part of the press requires more than d'terparatory "no comment." When non-

Forestry Club jubilee open to all Saturday

A “Foresters’ Jubilee” presented by the SIU Forestry Club will be held Saturday at Touch of Nature’s “Upper Forty” starting at 8 a.m.

The jubilee is open to everyone and will include competition in old-type logger’s skill, including log-rolling, one- and two-man bucking, crosscut sawing, tobacco spitting, a bolt throw and others. Winners are eligible to compete in the Midwest Foresters’ Convention in October.

A hamburger fry will follow the competition, expected to end around 5:30 p.m.

Anyone wishing to compete should sign up by Thursday so the club can have an idea of how many people will be involved. A sign-up sheet is posted on a bulletin board across from the Forestry Department office in the Agriculture Building. Police arrest two youths for illegal restraint

By Mark Kaznowski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
Two Carbondale youths were arrested Monday and charged with unlawful restraint of a 13-year-old Carbondale girl, it was reported.

Joe W. Brown, 18, 507A Lake Heights Avenue, was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor in addition to the unlawful restraint charge. Walter McDade, 17, of E. Birk Rd., was charged with unlawful restraint. Both have been charged as adults.

Assistant State's Attorney Larry Rippe said:

Brown posted $1,000 bond Tuesday, but McDade had not posted his $1,000 as of Tuesday afternoon.

Rippe said that Brown and McDade picked up the girl Saturday night at Martin's, 315 S. Illinois Ave., took her to Brown's apartment and held her there over the weekend.

The girl and Brown went to Penney's in University Mall Monday, Rippe said. The girl left Brown, went to a security guard and told the guard she had been kidnaped. Rippe continued:

Carbondale Police arrested Brown at Penney's about 12:30 p.m. Monday. McDade was arrested about 8 p.m. Monday in Brown's apartment.

McDade is a high school student, and Brown is unemployed, Rippe said. A return date of May 5 has been set for Brown and McDade.

Initiation, dinner head agenda for business society

The national honor society of business teaching education, Pi Omega Pi, will hold its spring initiation Sunday.

Twenty teaching business education students who were pledged for initiation will be admitted to the national organization. Members of Pi Omega Pi will hold a dinner in honor of the new initiates in Ballroom B of the Student Center before the ceremony. Bruce Swinburn, of the president of Student Affairs, will speak after the ceremony.

The purposes of Pi Omega Pi, which originated in 1923, are to recognize high scholastic attainments by teaching business education students and to provide an opportunity for students to improve through group activities provided by the chapter.

Members of Pi Omega Pi are required to have a high scholastic average, an interest in becoming a business teacher, a major in business education and 10 hours credit in business education or education.

Dear Faculty and Students:

The Campus Red Cross Blood Drive is being held in the Student Center and is from April 15 - 18. The drive is co-sponsored by Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight. Your help is needed! We would like to urge all students and faculty to participate as a donor or as a volunteer to assist the Red Cross workers. To qualify as a donor a person must be 17 years or older, must be in general good health and must weigh 110 pounds or more.

The goal this year is 1,000 pints of blood which is 250 pints per day. A pint of blood and 45 minutes of your time may mean a life to someone else. When you give one pint of blood through the Campus Red Cross Blood Drive, you and the members of your immediate family become eligible for all blood needs for an entire year from the date of your donation.

Students may sign up to be donors or to be volunteers by calling 453-2481. Let's make this blood drive a successful one!

Lack of funds stops cutting non-resident voting rolls

By Pal Corporation
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Purging names of voters who have moved from county registration books depends on funding from the Jackson County Board. Robert Harrell, county clerk, said.

Of the estimated 38,000 registered voters in the county, many names belong to students who no longer live in the area.

"I wouldn't be surprised if it ran as high as 50 percent of inactive names in some precincts," Harrell said.

Student precincts, especially Carbondale 21 that includes Church Towers poses the highest problem, he said.

In purging, Harrell said, his office workers remove lists and non-persons who have not voted recently.

Nonforwardable letters are sent to the person's registered address informing them to purger. If the person still lives there, he may come to the clerk's office within five days and register again.

Harrell said the purging of a voter's name involves not only purging his card from the master file but removing his name from the precinct voting lists.

When Harrell said when one name is removed, the whole book must be reprinted.

An alternate plan to handle purging was sent by Harrell to the State Board of Elections. He wanted precinct commissioners to create lists of names to be purged. The board said this plan would be neither legal or illegal.

The precinct commissioners would list people, who, to the best of their knowledge, no longer live in the area. Then clerks would send the letters, Harrell said.

Harrell added this had been done in five precincts already but his office did not have enough money to make the mailing.

"If we get funds, we cannot go ahead with the purging of the rolls," Harrell said.

The problem is worse in Jackson County than in other counties that have universities. Harrell cited for the purging in Carbondale as an example and said their county clerk's office is larger and they have more funds.

Director to speak in Student Center on environment

Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) director Richard B. Briceland will be the featured speaker at a meeting 7:30 p.m. April 21 in Student Center Ballroom A.

The public meeting presented by the League of Women Voters and the Student Environmental Center, offered informal talk by Briceland, followed by a question and answer period.

Briceland, appointed IEPA head early in 1974, sees one of his primary concerns as head of the 450-person agency, "has been to promote a spirit of openness and cooperation between the IEPA and the people of the state."

Towards that end, Briceland says he has established "Project Listen," a series of informal meetings across the state in which he discusses local environmental concerns with citizens and their attitudes toward the work of the IEPA.

Couple report $1300 in goods taken by burglar

Stereo equipment, a clock radio and two tennis rackets, all valued at $1,300, were stolen about 10 p.m., Monday night from Edward Sladeck and Donna M. Turkowski, 909 Eastgate, Apartment 8, Carbondale.

The police report said Sladeck left the residence about 7 p.m. to visit friends. When Turkowski returned to the apartment about 12 1/2 a.m. Tuesday, she discovered the larth on the front door had been broken and the goods stolen from the apartment.

Students sought to help develop overseas towns

John Borden, recruitment coordinator for American Friends Service Committee will talk with students on campus Thursday interested in positions abroad.

He is seeking potential candidates for community development positions in Guatamala, Chile, Mali and Benin.

Anyone interested may sign up for an interview at the Community Development Department, room 2SD, Facer, 403-2901.

Farmers' opinions

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin farmers, a rural magazine, says one of its recent polls indicates that many farmers feel food and gasoline shortages are falsely created, to raise prices.

It says 63 per cent of Wisconsin farmers polled say that shortages are probably artificially created so that companies can charge more.

Twenty-one per cent feel shortages will be as there from same sources in one year, that 33 per cent think they will last one year and that 17 per cent are undecided.

CONTINUITY & ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Some of the items which have either been initiated or being worked on by the TEA PARTY NOW administration and will be continued are:

- The Musician's Directory
- The Student's Attorney Program
- The Student-to-Student Grant
- Change in Student Center Policy, which now allows students to rent student-center rooms at a lower rate than non-students
- Everclear — A Student Government Newspaper to increase the visibility of Student Government. Visibility is the first step toward accountability
- Better Programming

Barry Commer — Environmentalist

Paul Kuhn — Illinois Coordinator, NORML

Narcohill Stopped

Due to the prodacting of the present administration an experimental program has begun in which students are "not held" until various lines are paid

City Investment

Student Government is now playing an active role in local issues which affect students, Zoning, Liquor Policy, $81 million Grant. Police Policy, etc.

Marijuana

High level support for NORML and decriminalization

PLANS & PROGRAMS

Besides continuation of programs started under the present TEA PARTY NOW administration, Diggle-Sullivan will work toward the following:

- Incorporation of Student Government
- Transform Student Government into a Student Association independent of Administration control
- Ability to allocate student fees — which are collected from students — instead of just making recommendations to the Administration for allocation
- More student involvement — due to increased control over student fees
- Provide a setting for the Student Artists
- Establishment of a Student Foundation to provide seed money for student operated cooperatives, food, books, record etc.
- Provide low cost tutoring services
- Attempt to get grant money for environmental, educational and other projects
- Renovation of Big Muddy Room

Diggie-Sullivan will work for acoustic and aesthetic improvements in the Big Muddy Room to make it more useful to students.

- Better Student-City Relations
- Doug Diggie has been active in Carbondale affairs and knows the people to talk to to get things done
- Improve the image of Student Government

Denis Sullivan will work for the widening of existing bicycle paths on campus and the establishment of more bike-ways

- Concern for General Student Welfare
- Doug Diggie and Dennis Sullivan will continue the present policy of directing Student Government's energies toward those policies and programs which affect the student body as a whole research and writing briefs are basic tools in law school," said Mattis.

Financial aid has prevented many minority students from considering law school. Mattis mentions Whitfield's several programs designed to help minorities or "disadvantaged" students finance their law school education.

The Council on Legal Education Opportunity (CLEO) is a one such program. The program is funded by federal dollars from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. CLEO, Mattis says, gives minority students with less than satisfactory credentials for admission into law school an opportunity to attend an accredited school.

A pamphlet published by CLEO states that it operates "in cooperation with several accredited schools" including SIU. Students participating in CLEO, attended a six-week summer session which helps them to "identify their capacity for law study and an opportunity to acclimate to that process."

"Any person, from a low income or economically disadvantaged background, who will have graduated from college at the beginning of the summer of 1975, may apply," according to the pamphlet.

Matiss invites any student interested in law school and the CLEO program to visit SIU's School of Law. She is presently attempting to encourage minority students to enroll.

"I'll consider my years work a failure if I don't get more black students to enroll," she said.
Systems expert sees peril, calls for world cooperation

By Kenneth Johnson
Student Writer

Dramatic changes in individual values are required to prevent nuclear sabotage in the Northern Hemisphere, says Ervin Laszlo, a systems scientist special.

So significant is the concentration of wealth in the Northern Hemisphere and poverty in the Southern Hemisphere that the concept of "Third World" is out of date, Laszlo said. He was discussing the application of systems theory to modern world modeling, sponsored by SIU's Systems Science program.

With the relative ease of preparing simple nuclear devices, the measurement of developed, underdeveloped and less-developed nations loses meaning, since the world's balance of power has shifted from the traditional powers of the north and south hemispheres, Laszlo, philosophy professor at New York State University at Geneseo, said.

"Industrial nations cannot live in security while such a disparity in wealth exists," Laszlo said. He said something must be done in five or six years.

He said the danger will become acute when Southern nations, plagued with starvation and disease, bring in saboteurs, armed with nuclear devices, to threaten industrial nations.

In September the United Nations will meet to discuss easing northern-south tensions, said Laszlo, who is experimenting with world models on SIU's IBM 709 computer and working with the U.N.

He said trade flows of multinational corporations have made developed and underdeveloped nations interdependent. He expects the United Nations programs on world food, population, climate and other problems will act as catalysts to correct wealth disparity.

Through a systems view of society, Laszlo said society acts on the individual more than the individual acts on society. He suggests that individual values be replaced by communal values and that "people should get back to living on the land."

He said Americans spend about three times the $6 billion needed annually for fertilizers in underdeveloped countries on alcohol, about twice as much on cigarettes and almost as much on cosmetics.

Laszlo credited German philosopher Karl Marx with organizing the first system for studying the individual in the whole context of society.

Dimmer bulbs cut Evergreen Terrace costs

Evergreen Terrace is saving energy and operation costs by replacing 60 watt lightbulbs with 25 watt bulbs in the hallways. Robert Wenc, director of family housing, said the closed fixtures used in hallways cause 60 watt bulbs to produce heat. This reduces the life of the bulb.

The 25 watt lightbulbs produce much less heat and the lighting is still quite adequate Wenc said.

Wenc said less energy is used, not nearly as many bulbs burn out in a given amount of time and the atmosphere is more pleasant without the glare from the 60 watt bulbs.

Enjoy A Bit Of America's Heritage . . . National Enriched Flour From Buffalo To The Nation!

The Meat People bring you Buffalo—a part of Cumberland's eating heritage, once a rare delicacy, now popular, but our years of success with a product of a taste treat as great as the big country from which they come. Whether tenderizing on farms, or baking in the oven, S.D.A. supervised breads are then baked to insure a yield of rich, full-flavored meat. With careful, measured or low temperatures, the natural flavor and characteristic fine burned sweetness of Buffalo is preserved for your whole family to enjoy.
Trustees grant sabbaticals to 56 faculty for next year

Got a little time off from the old sawmill? Not you? Well, relax, take it easy and study the possibilities of gene expression in beet trees. How about taking an in-depth gander at fish diseases? A bit all intellectual? These activities might not rate with grass-mowing and baseball throwing as number one leisure activity but they are probably undertaken by SIU faculty members granted sabbatical leaves during the 1973-76 school years.

The SIU Board of Trustees approved sabbatical leaves, which range from four months to a year, for 56 faculty members in its spring meeting.

Five of the faculty members granted sabbatical leave will study in foreign countries, nine have set textbook writing as a goal and five plan to devote themselves to creativity in art or films.

Of the 56 faculty members, who will be on sabbatical, 25 intend to do research or writing in their respective fields. Others will research or develop new or improved educational programs in their specialty and some propose completion of degrees, post-doctoral study or professional development experiences.

Projects include a study of photo device and integrated circuit technologies in industry, a study of federal requirements in equal opportunities in athletics for men and women, a study of hospital based patient education programs and undergraduate programs in community health education, research in stoerimetry, research in music for handicapped children, a study of Australian drama, creative film making, research on congressional committee witnesses and development of a self-instructional set of materials for school board members.

Faculty members granted sabbaticals for the 1975-76 school year and the periods for their leaves:

May 1-Aug. 14 — Chester E. Johnston, associate professor and chairman in the School of Technical Careers.

May 1-Aug. 17 — Alotie P. Rector, associate professor of guidance and education in Technical Education.

July 1-Dec. 31 — Paul N. Caldwell, associate professor in the School of Technical Careers.

Mark E. Klopp, associate professor of technology, Fan H. Kung, assistant professor of forestry, Gordon L. Langford, associate professor of agricultural industries, Benjamin A. Shepherd, associate professor of zoology, Dean L. Sivell, professor of educational administration and foundations; Charles J. Weetell, professor of accountancy.

Three periods at intervals between July 1 and May 31, 1976 — Charles E. Hauschung, assistant professor of marketing.

July 1-June 30, 1976 — Arthur M. Ford, associate professor of economics; Nicholas J. Koenigstein, assistant professor in the School of Music; Judy B. Little, assistant professor of English.

Sept. 1-Sept. 26 — Bill Brown, instructor in physical education for men and in professional education experiences.

For fall and spring semesters, 1975-76 — Foster B. Brown, Jr., instructor in the social welfare professional program; Donald G. Grissom, associate professor of health education.

For fall semester — Donald H. Adams, Jr., associate professor of economics; Alden M. Addington, assistant professor in the School of Art; Richard T. Arnold, professor and chairman of chemistry and biochemistry; Larry J. Bailey, associate professor of occupational education and of secondary education; James G. Bezgin, professor of English.

Patricia Carrell, associate professor and chairman of linguistics; John Cornell, professor of economics; Doris C. Hall, associate professor of instructional materials; Harold F. Engleming, assistant professor of continuing education; H. R. Jacobson, professor of political science; Lawrence John Link, assistant professor in the School of Art.

Catherine F. McLaugh, professor in the School of Music; Christian H. Mor, professor of theater; William F. Verme, professor and chairman of recreation; Ronald Ray Schmeck, associate professor of psychology; Bill J. Shields, instructor in occupational education; Jack Van Der Sluk, associate professor of political science and the public affairs research bureau.

For spring semester, 1976 — Michael Kent Alexiou, professor of guidance and education; Dale H. Besterfield, assistant professor of technology; Theodore Brown, assistant professor of occupational education; Michael R. Emplage, assistant professor of chemistry and biochemistry; Vincent A. Hain, professor of psychology.

John P. Hayward, professor and director of religious studies and professor of philosophy; Norvishi R. Hunsaker, associate professor of mathematics; Burt K. Ragoeff, assistant professor in the School of Music; Paul J. Ougraey, associate professor and chairman of interior design; Steve P. McNeel, assistant professor of psychology; Thomas A. Martinez, professor of economics; Roy E. Miller, assistant professor of political science.

Peter A. Munch, professor of sociology; Joan Olson, assistant professor of foreign languages and literatures; Michael O. Oken, assistant professor in the School of Art; Frank R. Paine, assistant professor of television, radio and film; George Kimball Puchmann, professor of philosophy.

Helen Paulon, assistant professor in the School of Music; Raymond O. Silverstein, assistant professor of linguistics; Irving S. Spiegel, associate professor of instructional materials; James V. Stamey, associate professor in the School of Art; Larry F. Taylor, associate professor of English.

Business school ready for awards presentations

The College of Business and Administration annual Parade of Honors will be held at 7:30 Wednesday night in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

Sponsored by the College of Business and Administration Student Council, about 45 awards and trophies will be given to outstanding students and faculty members of the college.

Along with the trophy for the outstanding senior, who will be picked by fellow seniors, members of the college faculty will be picked in the crowd to sing out for the winners.

Gag awards will also be given to various instructors to note some of the things they have become known for over the years. A few gag awards are: "the teacher with the best jokes," "the most notorious grade inflator," "the teacher who thinks has the only class offered." Two skills will be performed at the end of the program, with each by faculty members and students.

Putt-putt-putt...va-a-aroom, there goes another truckster

By Jan Wallace

Welcome to the sidewalks of SIU—home of ten-speeds, wheelchairs, dogs and people and Cushman trucksters.

The ubiquitous Cushman is a two-cylinder, 10-horsepower, three-wheeled wonder that uses regular gas and is driven on regular sidewalks.

Besides being fun to drive and easy to operate, they are a necessary element of SIU's sprawling campus, said Margaret O'Hara, assistant manager of Travel Services.

"They really have a vital role to play in the maintenance of our physical facilities," O'Hara said. "They're really good for what they're used for."

O'Hara said the majority of Cushmans are used by maintenance people—plumbers, electricians and grounds crew. Other departments rely on the vehicles for delivery purposes, she added.

Surprisingly, there are only 55 trucksters on campus. Four are broken and are kept in the Travel Service garage. O'Hara said she sees them as though there are more because they are almost always in use.

O'Hara said 40 trucksters are assigned to the Physical Plant. The rest drive around throughout various departments.

Media expert
give lectures
on three topics

John C. Merrill of University of Missouri will give three lectures at SIU this Wednesday.

Merrill will speak on "An Overview of International Communications Media" from noon to 1 p.m. in Lawson 114. "The Elite Press Around the World" from 1 to 2:15 p.m. in the Agriculture Building 154, and "A Brief Look at International Communications" in the Communications Building lounge from 2 to 3:30 p.m.

Merrill is an English and journalism teacher for 30 years, has worked for newspapers in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, and has published three books and over 200 articles in the field of international communication.

This summer Merrill has lectured in Ireland, London, Brussels and Athens.

The lectures are open to interested faculty and students.

Yoga society
sponsors talk
on Wednesday

The Ananda Marga Yoga Society will sponsor a talk on "Spiritual Growth and Change" Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the Home Economics lounge.

The talk will be given by Asharya Yatischvaradanda Avadhuta, secretary of the North American Ananda Marga Society and a former member of the Ananda Marga University Relief Team.

The lecture is open to the public.

Career fair set about positions
in rehabilitation

A Rehabilitation Career Fair will be held 10 to 11 a.m., Tuesday in the Kaskaskia Room of the Student Center.

Academic and career information on rehabilitation counseling, rehabilitation administration and behavior modification will be available. Representatives from each department of the SIU Rehabilitation Institute will be on hand to answer questions.

Assignment of the vehicles is made on an annual basis, O'Hara said. To obtain a Cushman, a department submits a letter of justification to a committee designated by the business area of the University administration. This is normally done around July 1, the end of the fiscal year. O'Hara said.

"The cost of the trucksters fluctuates because they're purchased through competitive bids from year to year," O'Hara explained. "The price changes every year too, so I'm not really sure how much they cost now.

A Cushman's average life span is about five years, O'Hara added, and their upkeep is minimal.

"They're the most practical thing to have for their type of service," she said.

O'Hara, a Carbondale resident who has worked in Travel Services about three years, could not recall ever receiving complaints from pedestrians concerning the trucksters.

"We've received complaints on just about everything else except that," she laughed.

Kevin Anfield, senior in radio-television and Sharon Myers, senior in music education, both agreed that some truckster drivers behave as though they own the sidewalks.

"I don't think they should be allowed on the real narrow sidewalks," Myers said. Anfield added that many times people barely miss being hit by a Cushman because they cannot hear them coming.

"They don't have horns," Anfield said, "and you don't know they're right behind you until you hear the engine."

Bill Robinson is employed at the Physical Plant and drives a Cushman truckster. He said he never had any problems with students while driving around campus.

"We always give the student the right of way," Robinson said. "You gotta be careful when driving them, but I've never had problems and I work all over campus."

City Council agrees to raise Carbondale firemen's pay

The council also informally agreed to give $1,200 to the Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Swing Choir and CCHS Singers to help finance the cost of participating in the International Music Festival in Washington D.C. this May. The group is one of 30 selected throughout the United States and Europe. Frank Black, President of the CCHS Music Boosters, said.

The council also agreed to having the old city hall building razed because of its questionable structural soundness and the cost of renovating it.

The council agreed informally to Public Works Director Bill Boyd's recommendation that a 4-way stop sign be placed at the intersection of Old Route 11 and Lewis Lane.

Recommendations for locating the Biketennial route through Carbondale were made by the engineering department and the safety commission. The Biketennial is part of a national cross-continent bike path to celebrate the nation's 200th anniversary.

The ride path from the west follows Chautauqua Lake Road and Chautauqua Road to the campus, through the campus, and east on Grand Avenue to the Giant City Blacktop.

The rural or bypass route leaves Chautauqua Road at McAfferty Road, follows McAfferty Road to the Reservoir-Pleasant Hills Roads, to the Giant City Road.

City Council agrees to raise Carbondale firemen's pay

By Mary Whiliter
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Settlement of the labor contract between the Fire Fighters Union and the City of Carbondale calls for a 3.4 cent increase over last year.

The contract was informally agreed to at Monday's city council meeting and calls for a wage rate of $3.97 per hour for a work week of 56 hours.

Fringe benefits will not change and the contract now will be the controlling document in relations between the city and the union. Scott Rater, personnel officer for the city, said.

There are now 26 firefighters on the force; four captains, and one chief.

A new method for computing holiday pay will be instituted, Rater said. The advantage of the new method is that it is clearly defined and examples of the method of computing are included in the contract, he said.

East Campus sets honors banquet for area students

An honors day banquet for East Campus residents will be held April 27.

Awards will be given for academic achievement and service to East Campus. Academic awards require a 4.75 or better grade point average. Service awards are to be determined by nominations.

The banquet, for formal wear, will be held at the Grinnell Area Office, all nominations must be in by April 17. The banquet will be held in the Troubadour Cafeteria.

The SIU Foundation and SIU Alumni Foundation are sponsoring a telethon campaign designed to bring in money for unrestricted funds for students at SIU.

"All we do is collect the money," said Jay King, assistant director of the Alumni Foundation. "The donors can designate it in any field or area they want."

This campaign will provide funds for financial and for students. It may go towards any type of research or students in need of a short-term loan or a $50 scholarship, King said.

The scholarship honors Roosevelt Pullman who served as president of the University from 1935-1944. First scholarships were awarded in 1983 and will continue as long as people keep contributing, said King.

Recipient must have a minimum 4.0 grade point average and financial need. Applications for this scholarship may be found at the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office.

"I wish the people who donate their money could see the success it has been," King said. "It helps keep a lot of kids in school."

Arborday is eligible for a scholarship or short-term loan. There is a three per cent interest rate on a loan. But this is to protect the foundation from defaults by students, explained King.

People working on this telethon are all volunteers who are working every night calling alumni in Jackson County. They also have a telethon in Saline County and plan to sponsor one in Chicago during the latter part of May.

Tankmen ripped in finale

They should have quit while they were ahead.

These basically were the thoughts of swimming coach Bob Steele, as he talked about his team's performance at the National Amateur Athletic Union swimming meet that took place in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Two weeks before, the Saluki swimming team had one of the finest days in SIU swimming history, breaking 14 school records and finishing 10th in the nation.

However, Friday and Saturday, the swimmers swam like fish with only one fin. It wasn't entirely their fault, though, according to Steele.

"It was really difficult to get excited about this meet," he began to explain. "All the adrenaline was gone. Because of the closeness of the meets (NCAA, March 29 and 30), it was hard to get ready. There just wasn't enough time to give everyone the hard work they needed and then have them ready for the meet."

The best a Saluki could do was seventh place, which was recorded by junior Jorge Delgado in the 200-yard butterfly. Delgado's time for the distance was 1:50.7. He also finished 16th in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 42.56.

Sophomore Mike Salerno was the only other Saluki to make any waves, as he finished 14th in the 100-yard backstroke in SIU.

"We really swam poorly," Steele said disappointingly. "Our relay couldn't do anything. The times were seconds off the times we swam at the NCAA."

Steele pointed out that the pool wasn't nearly as fast as the one at the NCAA, which also accounted for the slower times.

"Of the college swimmers that competed in the NCAA and then the AAU, only about 35 to 45 per cent achieved faster times than they swam at the NCAA," he added.

"This wasn't just us. It was the whole meet. Everyone swam poorly."

Looking over the accomplishments of the whole season, Steele commented, "It was a super season. It's just too bad we had to end it on a low note. The NCAA meet was certainly satisfying. We had some great swims. You can't be disappointed breaking 14 records in one weekend."

New billiard angle?

By Ray Clark
Student Writer

Can you shoot billiards from a wheelchair? Yes, according to those who live their lives in a wheelchair, a quick, "Sure, I do it all the time," might be heard.

But for those who have never had the opportunity to experience this type of approach to the game, they might find it quite a challenge.

The Office of Specialized Student Services is sponsoring a billiards tournament which is open to everyone on campus. The catch? All entries will be required to shoot from a wheelchair.

Entries need not be confined to a wheelchair or even physically disabled in any way, but entries must compete in a wheelchair, and wheelchairs will be provided for those who do not have one.

The tournament will be held Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m., in the Student Center billiard hall. There will be a $1 entrance fee, payable at the start of the journey. The game of eight-ball will be played with a single elimination round.

Registration centers for the tournament are at the Specialized Student Service Office, Woody Hall, and the counter center at the Student Center Billiard Hall. There will be two divisions of competition.

Nets gone for soccer

The SIU Soccer Club extended its spring season record to 24 Sunday, downing rival Murray State University 6-3 in McAndrew Stadium in an almost-cancelled game.

Friday evening it looked like no game would be played because the nets had been stolen. However, the Office of Recreation and Intramurals and some club members managed to come up with some makeshift nets.

According to club member Dan Habel, the nets cost approximately $100 two years ago. The club does not have the money to buy new nets.

Habel said the stolen nets can be returned to the stadium or the intramural office and no police action would be taken.

The club's next match will be Sunday, when it faces Murray State again.

Net meet reset

The women's tennis team opener against Southeast Missouri State scheduled for Monday was can-celled due to the rain and has been rescheduled for Wednesday at 3 p.m. on the University Courts.

Sweet Chariot.

I'm an Air Force officer and this is my sweet chariot. When I visit home people are happy to see me. And proud. They say I'm doing my part in the community by showing the young people and the adults that you really can make it. You really can get your share of the good life.

But I also feel good about my position in the Air Force community. I'm a leader there, too. I'm some one the other brothers and sisters meet in the service can look to. And it reassures them to know they have a voice in Air Force matters that concern them.

The Air Force needs more leaders, and it needs more in math majors…science and engi- nelers, too. You might be one of them and the best way to find that out is an Air Force ROTC program. There are two, three, and four year programs. Scholarship and non scholarship. Why not look into all of them and see if one fits your plans? It's worth it, brother.

The SIU Squids wheelchair track and field team began its season with a fifth place finish at the Ohio Wheelchair games last weekend in Columbus.

The Squids tallied 164.5 points and finished far behind the host Buckeye Wheelers, who finished first with 540 points due largely to the Buckeye's strength in the electric wheelchair events for quadruplegics.

McNeil 18-for-18

CHICAGO (AP)—Coach Dick Matta and his Chicago Bulls find they have more to worry about than Nate Archibald and Sam Lacey of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings in their National Basketball Association playoff.

The newest problem is Larry McNeil who has taken 18 shots from the field and made 18 field goals in the series which stands at one game each with game No. 3 to be played Wednesday night in Chicago Stadium.

"It just doesn't figure, it isn't normal," said Matta. "McNeil is a 60 per cent shooter. He just can't keep hitting at a thousand per cent."

One of the reasons McNeil is hitting so well is the fact that the Bulls have been double teaming the dangerous Archibald with Bob Love falling off McNeil to help Norm Van Lier or Archibald.

"We're going to have to have a more honest defense," admitted Matta. "Love will have to watch McNeil more closely."

meet was the lack of adequate competition in each disability class for certain events. For example, Squid Mike Zare captured the IC wheelchair without facing a single opponent and a third place in Class III table tennis due to the small number of contestants.

Mike Block, SIU, met a similar fate, winning three first place medals in Class IA swimming, while swimming each race as a lone competitor.

Women's events and weightlifting were other events affected by the number of entries.

Other places for the Squids were Leon Sturitz, first Class IV billiards, second Class IV (100-yard dash) and third in Class IV discus.

Elynn Boyd, first in women's Class III 100-yard dash, first in Class III women's slalom, and third in Class III women's javelin.

Joanne Seibolts, third in women's Class IV 60-yard dash, second in women's billiards and second in novice archery for women.

Bill Johnson and Mike Vircano placed second and third, respectively, in novice archery, and Nate Quinn hauled off first place in weightlifting in the featherweight class with a lift of 225 pounds.

Player-coach Ray Clark closed out the Squid scoring by taking first in the shotput, discus, and 100-yard freestyle, and second in the 100-yard dash and the javelin.

Clark also won the Class V scoring trophy for being the most standing achiever in his class during the meet.

Total.

Made especially for people who use spit on their contact lenses.

You really think you're saving something. Like the time it takes for proper lens care. And the cost of different solutions.

But in the long run you may wind up paying for short cuts. There's a chance your contacts will become contaminated. They'll probably feel uncomfortable and bother you. You may even get an eye infection. So why take chances with saliva?

Now there's Total! The all-in-one contact lens solution that does it all.

Total* wets, soaks, cleans and cushions. And you only have to use a single solution to get the whole job done.

There are two good ways to buy Total*—the 3 oz. size and the 4 oz. size. Total 2 oz. has a free, mirrored lens storage case, and the new economy 4 oz. size saves you 25%. Total* is available at the campus bookstore or your local drugstore.

And we're so sure you'll like Total* we'll give you your second bottle free. Just send a Total* box top with your name, address and college name to:

Sutton Death

A-a-aw, the Trailblazers are hurt

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

I'm losing faith in myself, here it is mid-April and, like any self-respecting Cub fan, I should be suffering from diarrhea of the pen about the Cubs' latest exploits.

Instead, I find fascination funneled to the first sports story I write the front page and sports page for equal time since Muhammed Ali was ducking more drug use prevention rumors than punches a year or two ago.

This time my main source, the verbal punches is Bill Walton, he of the gargantuan lumberjack appearance. Only problem is he falls shots, his trees, and has a height and wingspan (43.5) that all hair are less noticeable these days than his public utterances.

"The No. 1 redhead," as cliché-claden sportswriters like to refer to him, is suspected of having hooked Jack and Micky Scott, who in turn are suspected of having been associated with Patty Heastis. As a result, Walton has appeared in courts and headlines, alike, concerning the issue.

At a news conference last week, Walton called the FBI "the enemy" and said he rejected the U.S. government. As a result, this week the professional basketball player's bosses—the owners of the Portland Trailblazers—have remarked publicly, "We deplore Bill Walton's statement calling for rejection of the U.S. government."

Now nobody figured they agreed with him, so why did they have to pipe up? It's not as if Walton is threatening the game's integrity. He's not making bets, ala Dennis McLain, or running a bar, which draws top-rate hoodlums, ala Joe Namath. Bill Walton simply is airing his political views, which is one of the rights given him by the government he rejects.

What's it to them? Why are Bill Walton's statements supposed to be an offense to the National Basketball Association? You can wander down to Spud Murphy's Industrial plant in Anna, Ill., and find at least one left- hander, the Liberty Wheelmen. No one around here has a ton of money and likes tax cuts, so why should a Bill Walton fan be punished?

The point is, if he does it again, the Trailblazers and his teammates want him to be, but I doubt they sent many American youth down "the wrong path."

A Mick Jagger fan does not necessarily have "Sympathy for the Devil," so why should a Bill Walton fan feel he has to reject the American government?

I agree totally with the Blaziers' public position that Bill Walton should be allowed to believe the National Basketball Association is the best way to spend our tax dollars, but I am agnostic on the example of the opportunities available to people under our system of government, and Walton, no more than any other person, has expressed an economic benefit from this system.

I don't admire a man who lives in a $100,000 home in the woods and sits around knocking capitalism, but I still can enjoy watching a hypocrisy play basketball if he does it like few others can.

of the momentum with his game-saving catch in short field-center, and Kessler focused in the wild and had no other chance to help the Trailblazers win for starter Bill Dunning, 1-0. The moment with his game-saving catch in short field-center, and Kessler focused in the wild and had no other chance to help the Trailblazers win for starter Bill Dunning, 1-0. Not realizing that the bottom of the first, then fell behind 5-3 in the second before settling down. He pitched only two innings over the next two games, before the hard-throwing Kessler came on.

The Salukis gained the upper hand by scoring two runs on a fly ball in the third and went on to a final run in the seventh. John Hunsaker, whose towering three-run homer in the first traveled over 400 feet, opened the big inning with a single. John Hoscheidt walked, and Vukovich reached on an error to lead off the seventh inning.

Vukovich's walk, Murray's two-out line drive hit an error and a wild pitch led to the tying and winning runs on base.

The frame started with the Salukis up 9-5, but with one out. Brian Cohen singled, David Fowler was hit by a pitch and Gary Gladieux walked to load the bases against reliever Jim Kessler. Mitch Margo then picked up his fourth and fifth RBI's of the game with a double which halved the deficit, and another run scored when shortstop Rick Murray couldn't pick up a Joel Schevacek grounder.

Margo had to hold at second on the play, leaving men at first and second with one away. Vukovich then switched
