Buyers May Break Purchase Contract Within Three Days

By George M. Killenberg
SIU students and Carbondale residents can protect themselves from fast-talking door-to-door salesmen by seeking advice from local authorities.

The best safeguard, according to G. Richard Limmey, legal counsel, is a little-known state statute which gives the consumer a chance to lawfully break contracts sold by door-to-door salesmen.

This rule, which went into effect Jan. 1, gives a person three days in which to cancel an unwanted contract and return goods.(1) If the salesmen fail to give the name and address of his firm, the consumer should also be aware of some anti-peddler rules that don't apply to those who live in off-campus residences.

SIU students should also be aware that the peddler who does not assure that solicitors will not come on campus and sell illegally, Student Services, and the local chamber of commerce will be wary of these solicitors, and they should watch out for certain anti-peddler rules do not apply to those who live in off-campus residences. Greeny said.

In addition, Greeny warned, the anti-peddelr law does not insure that solicitors will not come on campus and sell illegally. Student Services, and the local chamber of commerce will be wary of these solicitors, and they should watch out for certain anti-peddler rules that do not apply to those who live in off-campus residences.

By George F. Leerlage, corporate counsel for the city of Carbondale, feels that consumers should read a contract from top to bottom before signing. By taking this precaution, the purchaser may discover the "bargain he is expected to be really not such a "bargain after all.

If a consumer does happen to sign an unwanted contract, there is no way for the consumer to obtain a large sum of money, according to Leerlage. "There are often many legal angles to get around a contract, so the student should always check out a large sum of money," Leerlage suggests a lawyer.

Senate Orders Activity Study

The Student Senate has ordered a study of the administration of Student Activities, established a new ballot form for Senate elections and approved the Student Employee Association as a recognized group.

The Senate's internal affairs committee will meet with several active organizations to submit a report on the Student Activities structure.

The study was required several weeks ago by Anthony Giannelli, acting coordinator of Student Activities, who cited a lack of continuity in the present system.

The new ballot is intended to eliminate confusion, provide for a listing of student political parties alphabetically, with space provided for write-ins. The new ballot also eliminates the possibility of voting a straight non-affiliated ticket, as was possible in the past.

The Student Employee Association was formed several weeks ago. Its constitution was approved by the Senate committee on campus organizations and activities, prior to Senate action.

At its meeting Wednesday, the Senate also temporarily changed representation for Southern Hills from commuter to extra side non-dorm, until the vacant commuter positions can be filled.

Two bills to be introduced for Student Body President Ray Lenz were delayed until next week. One calls for a list of all white students to examine and eliminate their "hangup" about race relations, encourages student organization to end de facto segregation, and establishes dialogue teams to explore the subject.

The other recommends that doctors serving at the SIU Health Service who are not willing to prescribe birth control pills to unmarried female students be required to refer students to doctors who do prescribe the pills for unmarried students. The bill calls for a meeting with the director of the Health Service.

Mr. Lenz said Thursday that he expected the two bills to be introduced at next week's meeting.

Students Charged, Put on Probation

Two SIU students were fined and placed on one year probation for theft of goods valued at less than $150 in Jackson County Circuit Court Thursday.

George L. Coleman, 19, of St. Louis, entered a plea of guilty and was fined $25 plus $15 court costs, after being charged with taking two portehersteak from the A and P store in Carbondale.

Another, A. Drew, 25, of Herrin, entered a plea of guilt of taking a desk lamp and two light bulbs from the SIU Book and Supply Company in Carbondale. He was ordered to make restitution and pay a fine of $25 plus $15 costs.

Egyptian Shouldn't Be Tampered With

The Daily Egyptian is published five days a week, usually in the form of 16 pages, through the efforts of some 70 undergraduate students, graduate students and faculty.

This is a coordinated effort, utilizing the talents of professionals now teaching, students attending journalism classes which meet at The Egyptian, graduate assistants, and paid student workers.

It is absurd to believe that a group of students appointed by the Student Senate could run such an operation and maintain the quality of the publication.

Also, it would be pure folly and a detriment to the interests of the students to allow an interest group like the Student Senate to control The Egyptian.

The students deserve something better than that, and so do the faculty and staff of the University. The Department of Journalism teaches the concept of a free and fair press, and tries to practice that concept in publishing The Egyptian.

Admittedly, The Egyptian sometimes fails, either owing no allegiance either to the student body or to the administration, The Egyptian is in a good position to resist pressures from either source.

Those who urge student control of The Egyptian would do well to remember that such a system has tried for years on this campus, and the overall quality could not compare to the publication of today.

Finally, we would argue that The Egyptian gains a much higher amount than a comparatively small amount of money they contribute—less than one cent per issue of the last year for which figures are available—than does any other activity.

Indeed, a higher amount would not be too much to pay compared to the services rendered.

On these bases, the Senate Finance Committee should look elsewhere for economies, places that do not benefit the student body to the extent that The Daily Egyptian does.

Protestors Use Discretion

To the Daily Egyptian:

College students are no longer engaging in activities concerning the trivial matters by which they are so often confronted.

One are the days of boycotts on cafeteria, vending machines, and local commercial business. Today, college students are involved in protests of major significance from student-administrative relationships to war tactics.

Though, to some extent, it must certainly be encouraging to world leaders that the youth of the world has taken an active interest in world affairs, it must be simultaneously disheartening. Disheartening, because these world leaders and administrators have spent many years of studying and researching in their quest for answers to world problems, while some college students are only 20 years old and yet, they seem to have all of the answers.

At this point I would like to make a plea to my generation, perhaps we do not have answers to problems which are taking world leaders longer to arrive at and more time to study.

However, if we were to use a little more discretion and approach these leaders at some time needed more mature level, I sincerely believe that they would be more apt to acknowledge our response to these devastating problems.

Leader You Wouldn't Believe

Once upon a time, a long, long time ago, there was a wonderful land called Wonderland. It was ruled by a mighty king named King Mighty, who had all that a king could ask for.

He had all the power that a king might need and all the wealth a king might need and he was the most popular king Wonderland ever had.

This last made him happiest of all, for he dearly wanted to be loved.

"The only thing I really care about," he said humbly, "is that my people believe in me."

And, as this was the truth, they did.

Unfortunately, however, when King Mighty became King Wonderland was engaged in a gritty war in another country far, far away.

"Frankly, sire," said his advisor some time after the war was won, "we can't lose it, we can't afford it and we can't end it. Maybe you'd better tell the people that it looks like a long one."

"What!" cried the king. "Why, if I told my people I was leading them into a long, grueling, gritty, meaningless war, they wouldn't believe me in any more."

The advisor suggested instead, that it was going to be a short, happy, meaningful little war. "Victory," he said, "is just around the corner." The people all cried, "Huzzah!" and sailed their caps up in the air.

"See?" said the king proudly. "I was right. Because I said this, they still believe in me."

The years passed, the war dragged on. The king worried that his people might stop believing in him. So he said the magic phrase again: "Victory is just around the corner." he said.

This time, the people said, "I don't think so."

And 62½ per cent raised their cap in the air.

So he said it again. This time, the people said, "Hmmm. And 32½ per cent lifted their cap lamely. So he said it again and again—with similar results.

Desperate to have his people believe in him once more, he made up glowing reports from the war front—just as the enemy captured 26 cities and told them, "This is a great victory for our side," he said desperately, "believe me you must."

And this time nobody did.

Communication And Mail Rates

It may be that the increase in postal rates will revive a cross-reading between two cultures. Perhaps there may even be some soothing of the recent turbulence in what is known nowadays as communication.

Years ago the fact had to be accepted, no matter how reluctantly, that anyone would not answer letters at enter into correspondence unless there was any alternative. If you didn't hear from a Vineyarder, you knew that the answer was to cut off that correspondence.

Today, the Vineyarder was a flat calm in the affairs to which a letter could be sent. Someone arriving in June would be told by an Islander, "I got your letter, but it hasn't arrived. When is this day, for goodness' sake?" and the letter would be seen you.

Of course some letters were written promptly enough, but always because of a special motivation. That's the quickening generally expected in modern correspondence.

On the other hand, mainland post office employees here and there are complaining that users of the mails are putting too much postage on their letters. If these employees lack a cent stamp, as of course they still do, they use two five cent stamps, making a gift to the federal government of four cents.

On some occasions some Vineyarders of the modern impositions, and somewhat profiteer generating, will ask their mailmen to put in a cent stamp, putting the extra stamp in the mail. This is the newer culture, and how it will make out is anybody's guess. But the main point is that the system is open to compromise. All who accept the postmen at the Vineyard system will not be surprised to see it gently re-established—and why not?

From Vineyard Gazette, Mass.

Borrower's Break

The country is close to its first effective movement to request the mail companies to lay their cards on the table.

Indeed, the House passed a strong truth-in-lending bill last week only after President Lavangeas, long-time champion of the legislation, lost his Senate seat.

The Senate last year passed a similar bill that would be much less effective than the House bill sponsored by Mrs. Leonor K. Sullivan, a Democrat representing a St. Louis, Missouri, district.

Both versions require lenders (banks, finance companies, etc.) to declare lending charges to customers as a percentage of dollar amounts instead of in dollars and cents.

However, the House bill requires that such percentages also be used in advertisements, a provision the Senate omitted.

Further, the House wisely required credit card companies offering charge accounts to be stated in annual rather than monthly rates.

The Senate version would except from this the so-called "percentage disclosure requirement," a provision that will leave hundreds of thousands of anonymous borrowers without protection each year.

The consumer badly needs the protection of a strong truth-in-lending law. The Senate should insist on the disclosure provision. The final draft should closely resemble the House version.

The Grenoble Olympic Truce

By Antero Pietilia

The Grenoble Olympic games will be over soon and so will whatever "thaw" this may have helped to occur in the France-U.S. cold war. Things will be "normal" again.

De Gaulle's dislike for the United States derives, of course, from economic reasons. He sees the growing U.S. economic power in Europe as a menace and limit to his independence to lead the kind of neutralist policy he considers best for France and Europe. He is suspicious and can back his fear by statistics.

Since 1958, American companies have invested $10 billion in Western Europe, and out of 6,000 new concerns set up abroad by Americans, half have been in Europe.

In 1963, according to Fortune magazine, American firms in France controlled 40 per cent of the oil distribution, 65 per cent of agricultural equipment, 65 per cent of telecommunications equipment, and 45 per cent of synthetic rubber.

In the vital sphere of electronics, the American drive has been even more successful. Eighty per cent of computer production in Europe and 95 per cent of the new process of integrated circuits are controlled from across the Atlantic.

This is only natural because the United States is where the money is. In the group of 500 largest industrial concerns of the world, Britain comes after the U.S. with 35 firms as compared with Germany's 30, France's 23, and Italy's eight.

Wrote Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber, editor and publisher of the French newsweekly "L'Express" in his bestseller "Le Defi Americain" (The American Challenge): "The third industrial power in the world after the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. in 15 years will not be Europe, but American industry in Europe."

It is good to remember that M. Servan-Schreiber never has been among the most ardent backers of De Gaulle.

Of course de Gaulle has other reasons to dislike America for, as this writer thinks, not so much America but Lyndon Johnson, whose Texas-flavored political showmanship he finds utterly disgusting.

For example, Americans didn't listen to the French when they warned the U.S. about getting involved in Vietnam. And the French tend to reason that one of the primary reasons for Americans to go to Vietnam is to show Paris that they are able to do what the French failed to do.

British customs may be very much in fad in France today but the government officials cannot forget that without U.S. support Britain would never have dared to establish the European Free Trade Association in direct competition with the European Common Market.

But it would be naive to think that it is only the official France that is deteriorating the Franco-U.S. relations.

This writer has never had an opportunity to use the Agenque France Presse, the semi-official agency, newswire in his work, but when the United Press International conducted a survey among its clients in Finland last summer, a majority considered UPI's coverage on France, even in non-political stories, "biased."

And it was somewhat hard to believe one's eyes and ears when such a responsible newscaster as NBC's Edwin Newman around Christmas read a news story about De Gaulle's comment on something, then went on to say that a videotape report of the occasion was available "but we don't have time to show it."

For months some newspapers have run editorials demanding that France pay back its World War I debts (as a matter of fact, Britain owes this country $7.3 billion as compared with France's $5 billion) and in New York some liquor stores refuse to feature French wines, "Discounts Pres. Charles De Gaulle."

Although there is talk about Francophobia, active boycott seems to be limited. A Frenchman hearing about Americans who refuse drinking Monet cognac on the grounds that it is French, could probably care less about the name as it only confirms his prejudices about Americans.

This, of course, does not mean much either. However, it confirms the fact that the idealism used by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, re-vivor of the Olympic games is outdated. The idea that the most important thing is not to win but have a fair competition is not true. Besides, it has never applied to politics, because every one knows that in politics it is not so important to win as to defeat your contender.

"It's always in the thorns of something."

Charles de Gaulle

Commission Predicts More Rioting

WASHINGTON (AP)—The President's Commission on Civil Disruption has found that many cities, including those at hardest by violence last summer, have done little to ease tension, and commission members doubt that much can be done to prevent another summer of rioting.

A source close to the commission said Thursday that in many riot-prone communities visited by commission members the only change they found was even greater bitterness and hostility.

The same pessimistic view was expressed Monday by President Johnson.

"I don't think you can aver a bad summer. We'll have a bad summer. We'll have several bad summers," the President told a student group at the White House.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Oklahoma, a member of the commission, said in a recent interview, "I would say the conditions in these urban ghettos where riots have occurred in the past, and especially last summer, are not getting any better."

A dissension view has been voiced by the only woman on the 11-member commission.

Katherine Graham Peeden, former commissioner of commerce in Kentucky, said in an interview, "I have a feeling that the tone of the nation is such that we're going to be sitting on a powder keg that we saw in so many of our major cities last summer."

But a commission investigator who visited Detroit, Faculty Council To Meet Tuesday

Faculty-wide evaluation of the General Studies Program will be considered at the meeting of the Faculty Council at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Calhoun-Kaskaskia Rooms in the University Center at Edwardsville.

The agenda will also include consideration of miscellaneous activities of the University and the structures and policies of the Graduation Appeals Committee.

The committee and subcommittee reports will be given and further consideration will be given the report of the Committee on Advanced Standing Examination Status.

City Sticker Deadline Monday

The deadline for displaying City of Carbondale wheel tax stickers has been extended to Monday, a spokesman for the City announced Thursday.

He said the extension is prompted by the overflow business at City Hall, which has raised awareness there. Today was the previous deadline for display.

City police will begin ticketing motorists Monday for violations of the wheel tax ordinance. The stickers may be purchased from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

The spokesman emphasized that the decals must be displayed in the right corner of windshield of vehicles.

Cease-Fire Reached in Mideast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli jet fighter-bombers roared along the Jordan River truce line, bombing and strafing Jordanian positions for seven hours Thursday night, before a cease-fire ended the fiercest fighting in the Middle East since the six-day war in June.

Koll Israel, the Tel Aviv radio, said fighting stopped after Jordan requested a cease-fire at 11 p.m.

A Jordanian military spokesman announced later that Israeli firing halted at 11:20 p.m.

At the fighting's height, an Israeli spokesman said: "Both sides are using everything they have."

Wrong Number?

WASHINGTON (AP) - Switchboard operators at the Democratic National Committee were harassed Thursday by a flood of calls on a block of 20 telephone lines into the office.

The reason: The word has spread that if you dial FEDUP-68 you are connected to the Democrats.

Conventionally, the number is 333-8768.

"I don't think it's funny at all," said one operator at party headquarters. "As fast as they call in, I plug them out."

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan later told the nation in a broadcast he hoped the fighting would teach Jordan that a cease-fire is a cease-fire and it applies to both Israel and Jordan.

Dayan Thursday canceled a scheduled trip to the United States because of the outbreak.

Combat spread over a 60-mile area from the Sea of Galilee south to Jericho. The ancient biblical city, spared Jordanian fire during the June war, came under Jordanian fire at nightfall, a Tel Aviv communiqué reported.

Nearly seven hours after Israel called in its French-made jets, Associated Press newsmen in Beisan Valley near the Sea of Galilee reported the planes still were dropping flares and strafing targets.

Dayan and Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev were caught on an trip to the Gesher the JordanRiver.

There was no estimate of Jordanian casualties in the nearly 12 hours of fighting, but state radio in Amman issued an urgent appeal for blood donations for "wounded brothers." Israeli spokesman said four Israeli soldiers and one civilian were wounded.

The Jordanians accused the Israelis of shell ing populated areas. A communique said Israeli artillery units blazed the Karameh refugee camp while jets dropped flares and phosphorous bombs.

A series of clashes during the week preceded Thursday's full-scale battles. Israel claims the root of the flare-up is the Arab El Fatah terrorist organization and says Jordan aids its men, with equipment, arms and assistance in infiltrating into the occupied west bank of the Jordan River.

The SIU Nursery School occupies an almost secluded corner of the Home Economics Building. The only clue to its presence from the outside is the small fenced-in rectangle of land with slides, swings, and a sandbox located on the north side of the building.

Inside, the school appears to be like most similar operations: small chairs and tables piled high with clay and blocks, an upright piano slightly out of tune; and the children—some restless, feigning sleep during naptime, some playfully wrestling and shouting, some doing nothing at all.

The only incongruity in the room and the structure that sets the school aside from these operations is that, screened in, "grese box" observation used by the children is "grese box" observation usually occupied by the children, the three and four-year-olds attending the school usually find themselves so bored that they probably never get around to disobeying.

"We use variety in our activities," she said. "The accent is on permissiveness here, but a child must obey." The children are in each hour school day. The program includes a quiet time, "play where you like" time, a "clean-up" time, story time, physical activity time, another quiet time, snack time (juice and crackers, or on special occasions, cookies), songtime and news-from-home time.

Sixteen children are in each hour of the two classes taught at the school. They are selected from over 200 applications received annually.

The children are the sons and daughters of Carbondale residents, both blue collar workers and professional people, as well as area farmers and merchants.

"We try for a balance," Mrs. Ponson said. All the children are without emotional or physical handicaps.

The school has aroused the interest of other educators in the area and has become a sort of showcase for visiting groups. Recently the Salem and Sandal High School Home Economics classes toured it.

Last summer the school was used to train workers for Project Head Start, Mrs. Ponson said.

The first phase of the Physical Science Building, located north of the University Center, is scheduled for completion this fall, according to University Planning Superintendent Carl L. Broshears.

The building, constructed in two phases, will be fully completed in the fall of 1964. The first phase will include classrooms and laboratory space. The second phase, slated for completion in 1969, will include faculty offices and auditorium space.

Funds for construction of the building come from both state and national departments. The Illinois Board of Higher Education and the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare have been prime financial sources.

University architects were unavailable for comment on the immediate progress of the construction.

Hartman Noncommittal About NIT Chances

By Dave Palermo

If SIU Basketball Coach Jack Hartman is thinking in terms of his team returning to the NIT this year, he does an impressive job of hiding it.

"I just don't know," said Hartman. "There's no way you can tell." "You just have to play every game as it comes and hope to accumulate the best record possible," the SIU coach added, "I make it a point never to speculate on post-season tournaments," he said, "I don't want to get the players thinking about any post-season tournaments during the season."

The Salukis have a 10-9 record going into the game with St. Louis and, while the record may be misleading, there are still five games to play and a 15-9 slate would not be, the worst record ever held by a team entered in the NIT.

Although Hartman would not elaborate on the advantage the Salukis have in playing their last four games in the SIU Arena, it surely will have some positive effect on the team's performance.

The home stand will begin Saturday with a game against Northern Michigan and finish with a contest against Centenary College on March 1.

Also included in the home stand are games with Kentucky Wesleyan and Evansville. The Salukis beat Wesleyan earlier in the season by one point in Owensboro, while losing to Evansville on the Aces' home court.

"A loss to Evansville could have gone either way as Southern failed to convert on the majority of shots and finished the game with a low shooting percentage. If the Salukis can avoid another cold shooting night and utilize the home court advantage, a victory over the Purple Aces could follow.

Many Saluki followers felt that the over-time victory over Southwest Missouri State last weekend, which snapped a five-game losing streak, could be the most important victory of the season in terms of getting an invitation to the NIT. A loss would have put the Salukis under the 500 mark for the first time in four starts over the last four seasons.

They hope the win will serve to restore their team's confidence, but Hartman felt otherwise.

"I don't think the team's morale was ever down during the losing streak," he said, "no team likes to lose but there was no real effect on their performance." Hartman had said earlier that he'll go with his best five the remainder of the season and not do any experimenting with untested players to give them experience.

This is not an attempt by Hartman to increase post-season tournament possibilities. It's always been the SIU Ignitor's style to go with the best five despite the season records and not think ahead, "We're going to play them one at a time," said Hartman. "Tonight it's St. Louis and Saturday it'll be Northern Michigan."

One thing Southern has going for it is the fact that the team is the defending NIT champion. This will rate highly with Eastern officials.

The tournament usually invites the runner-up of each of the nation's conferences. However, some teams invited do not participate. When the runners-up are chosen, the independents are looked to and, this season SIU will be the first consideration.

Bills' Stall Works; SIU Loses 60-54

ST. LOUIS—A slow-moving but much taller St. Louis quintet defeated its superior height and a game of keep-away during the last three minutes to top SIU 60-54 here Thursday night.

With seven-footer Rich Nieman acting as playmaker near mid-court, and St. Louis leading by one, the Billikens went into a wall which saw the ball being carried over the heads of the smaller Salukis. He passed the ball often to his teammates, 6-8 Gene Moore and 6-3 Joe Wiley.

The stall was more effective after Nieman sank a pair of free throws to put his team out in front 37-34, with 4:08 left in the game. The free throw was due to Howard Keene's fifth foul, Keene had done a respectable job guarding Nieman, allowing only 10 points before fouling out.

The clincher came after St. Louis had held the ball for close to two minutes without taking a shot. Moore then pushed one up from the three-point line left side, bouncing it high off the rim, but he was there for the rebound to put his team up 39-34 with 22 seconds left.

Wiley sank a free throw atsix seconds for the final score and the Salukis had gone without a clear shot throughout the last three minutes.

SIU trailed through the entire first half, at times by as many as nine points. St. Louis led 26-24 at the half-way point. The Salukis dropped behind 32-26 soon after the second half got underway. A field goal by Howard Keene and a jumper by Dick Garrett knocked the score at 33-32 at 15:53 left. It was the first time the score had been tied. The Salukis grabbed the lead for the first time at the 14:25 mark when Garrett hit a 23-footer to put SIU on top 35-34.

Nieman countered with a free throw to make it 35-35 and a new game unfolded. After the score changed hands several times during the next few minutes, Willie Griffin went unmolested down the lane to put SIU ahead 41-40.

Garrett's layaway shot from 15 feet gave the visitors a three-point lead with seven minutes remaining. The Billikins tied the score again when Nieman sank a jumper to make the score 46-46 at the eight minute mark.

Tom Thomas sank the first two foul shots to put him on top to stay at 4:26. He missed his second attempt, but it was tapped in by Moor and the Bills led by three. At the 5:38 point, Nieman sank two free throws to give St. Louis a 53-50 lead. On the next rip down court SIU's Craig Taylor sank a 15-footer to make it 53-52.

Moore countered with a 20-footer and the home team had grabbed another three point lead. Garrett hit the last basket for SIU at the 4:28 mark and the stall began.

Garrett led the Salukis with 21. He made eight of 17 from the field and five of six from the free throw line. Keene had his second best scoring night with 14 points after substituting for Butchko, Willie Griffin had 11.

The loss lowered Southern's record to 10-10. The team next meets Northern Michigan in an 8:05 p.m. game Saturday in the Arena.

Bills Beat SIU Frosh For Second Time

ST. LOUIS—The SIU frosh lost their second game of the season to the St. Louis frosh 87-84 Friday night. SIU lost earlier in season by 87-84 count.

Both teams sank 30 field goals, but the difference was at the free throw line as St. Louis converted 18 of 30, while SIU made only 11 of 22. The SIU rear guards committed 20 fouls compared to 15 for the Billikens.

Mike Hessick, who had been scoring big for SIU in the past few games, was held to a meager nine points, pulled down a total of 20 rebounds. Keene and a couple of his teammates scored 20 of the SIU total 57-54.

Hockey Team Wins

GRENOBLE, France (AP)—The United States scored its second hockey victory of the Winter Olympics today, a 6-4 comeback against East Germany while Czechoslovakia upset defending champion and previously unbeaten Russia 5-4.

Each has a 5-1 record with one game to go in the round robin tournament. Canada kept pace with a 3-0 advantage of Sweden. It was Russia's first defeat after 28 straight victories—in world or Olympic competition since 1964.

The United States is out of it at 2-4. The Americans, who lost their first two games before winning two in a row, blew a 4-2 lead to the winless East German in the last 61 seconds Thursday.
