Arkansas Editor Wins Golden Quill

Robert E. Fish of the Crosscut (Ark.) News Observer, won the 1965 Golden Quill Award in the Feature Personality category of the International Newspaper Editorial Writing presented by the International Press Club of Chicago and the Chicago Daily Tribune Weekly Newspaper Editors. The award, given annually to a weekly newspaper editor for excellence in editorial writing, was made Thursday evening at the annual Sigma Delta Chi banquet held during the International Conference's annual meeting. The banquet was held at Three Flags Restaurant at St. Charles, Mo.

In his editorial "A Kick in the Teeth," Fish, first runner-up last year in the competition, questioned the mayor of Crossett when a resident arose at a council meeting to ask some questions about the city's occupational tax law. The mayor's reply that he would talk privately about the problem but wouldn't bring it up in the open before the council prompted Fish to conclude: "There is no common thing these days to shake our heads and wring our hands over how Democracy is dying on the state or national level. We bemoan the giant inroads made on our liberties by the over (Continued on Page 12)

SIU Student on Leave From Peace Corp
Almost Victim of Mob Action in Colombia

An SIU student almost became the victim of an angry mob of student demonstrators in Bogota, Colombia recently. Michael A. Lanigan, member of the Peace Corps training staff at SIU, who is on leave touring Colombia and Central America told of his experiences in Colombia in a letter to Alfred J. June, assistant coordinator of international programs at SIU.

Lanigan had been walking near Bogota's National University where he encountered a mob of students protesting the death of a student killed nine years ago during the regime of Gustavo Rojas Pinilla.

One of the students spotted the tall, blond-haired, blue-eyed Lanigan and shouted, "Get out, gringo." Others picked up the shout and Lanigan fled, amid a hail of hurled rocks, into a book store and later slipped away along a side street.

Lanigan went on in his letter to tell of economic and political turmoil, and a "bandit" problem he observed during his visits.

Gathering information from friends in government, education and industry, Lanigan was able to put together an interesting picture of Colombia today.

Lanigan said because of the issue of considerable amounts of paper money last Christmas, the Colombian peso has been fluctuating uncontrollably. In a nine-day period during his stay, the rate of exchange fluctuated between $18.20 for $11 U.S. currency to $18.75 for each U.S. dollar.

Lanigan said there is political unrest because of the lack of responsible action by Guillermo Leon Valencia who took power almost two years ago.

The country has been rocked by waves of student strikes which police have been helpless to control. One such demonstration occurring in the past few months caused a state of siege to be declared in which the president assumed veto power over the congress and martial law went into effect.

Another Colombian problem in the hands of the Valencia government have been hard put to capture. During the week of June 13, government troops pitched a 5-hour battle before killing Colombia's Jesse James, Efrain Gonzalez.

Gonzalez had been charged with 130 killings and had been in Bogota trying to rescue his sweetheart from jail when he was cut down. Lanigan mentioned seven other bandit leaders who had been killed or captured during the Valencia regime, but there are still others on the loose "raising havoc in central Colombia."

Let's Not Promote Contempt By Appointing Biased Judge

Last Tuesday a Senate judiciary subcommittee unanimously approved President Lyndon B. Johnson's appointment of former Mississippi Gov. William David Coley to the United States Court of Appeals for the 5th Circuit.

On that basis, the Senate will handle civil rights appeals from courts in Mississippi, Mississippi and other states.

Since his experience qualifies him for the job, the only remarkable thing about Coleman's appointment is that he has a record of segregation sentiment and actions. As attorney general and governor of Mississippi, he remarked oftener than his state would resist integration by all lawful means.

In defending the appointment, Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach in several congressional hearings and, he said, several occasions Coleman had committed "acts of genuine courage in departing from extreme segregationist policy.

For example, the segregationist governor, Katzenbach noted, "to support segregation in Mississippi, he was merely a commonplace position among his fellow Mississippians. While few of us are naive enough to place much weight on "political correctness" in the normal variety such as "willing obedience to authority," and "will seek ways to improve our highways" seems significant only as a plain platitude."

"For this is when the courts are already under­ fire from the infamous fringe: the people who scream such drives as "Impeach Earl Warren," and "Vietcong lawyers." If voters feel the courts are excessively conserv­ ative, and the conserva­ tives think them excessively liberal.

When there are others who qualify, appoint a man whose very presence on the 5th Circuit will diminish the dignity of the court and threaten general acceptance of its judgments.

The fact is, Sen. Pitts Ryan, D-N.Y., has suggested that a Negro be appointed for the job. To appoint a Negro, especially because he is a Negro would be an is­sueable in the real position and his race. No matter how objectively "functioned," a Negro would win.

The answer will be to select someone other than Cole­ man—someone who has taken a political stand on integra­tion. As the most competent "someone" should happen to be a Negro, then he should be appointed.

We do not wish to be mis­ quoted, but we suggest that the 5th Circuit Court of Ap­ pels might appoint someone that shouldn't be rocked.

Education No Panacea For Economic Ailments

By Robert M. Hutchins

There is a high correlation between the per capita Gross National Product of a country and the amount of schooling in that country's population has received.

The question is, which is cause and which is effect? Does the GNP result from the amount of schooling or the schooling result from the GNP?

Is the United States a great industrial power because of its necessarily take place. It has not in Brazil. That country has one of the fastest growing economies in the world. The growth rate is much higher than in the United States. The growth rate in Brazil is around 5% per year, compared to around 2% in the United States. This is because the Brazilian economy is more diversified than the United States economy. The Brazilian economy is more diverse in terms of industries and exports. The United States economy is more concentrated in the manufacturing and technology sectors.

In terms of education, Brazil has a higher primary school enrollment rate than the United States. The primary school enrollment rate in Brazil is around 90%, compared to around 85% in the United States. This is because Brazil has a more universal education system, with free and compulsory education for all children. The United States has a more selective education system, with a higher enrollment rate for college going children.

However, Brazil has a higher unemployment rate than the United States. The unemployment rate in Brazil is around 10%, compared to around 5% in the United States. This is because Brazil has a higher level of informal employment, with a greater number of self-employed and casual workers. The United States has a more formal economy, with a higher proportion of wage and salary employment.

In terms of social inequality, Brazil has a higher level of income inequality than the United States. The Gini coefficient in Brazil is around 0.55, compared to around 0.40 in the United States. This is because Brazil has a more unequal distribution of income, with a greater concentration of wealth among the top 1% of the population.

Therefore, the relationship between education and economic growth is complex and not straightforward. While education is certainly an important factor in economic development, it is not the only factor. Other factors, such as institutional stability, political stability, and natural resources, also play a role. Additionally, the relationship between education and economic growth is not linear. More education does not necessarily lead to higher economic growth, and vice versa.

The key is to focus on building a strong educational system that is responsive to the needs of society, and to invest in social and economic policies that promote inclusive growth. This requires a comprehensive approach, that is not just focused on education, but also on issues such as job creation, access to credit, and social protection.

I think the best way to do this is through a combination of policies that promote both education and economic growth. This requires a coordinated approach, that is not just focused on one sector, but also on the interconnections between education, social protection, and economic policies.

It is also important to recognize that education is not just about imparting knowledge, but also about fostering critical thinking, creativity, and problem-solving skills. The goal is not just to increase the number of graduates, but also to ensure that they have the skills and knowledge to succeed in a rapidly changing world.

The key is to build a strong educational system that is responsive to the needs of society, and to invest in social and economic policies that promote inclusive growth. This requires a comprehensive approach, that is not just focused on education, but also on issues such as job creation, access to credit, and social protection.
Dog Days Come to Southern

Although Dog Days Last Officially Only From July to September, It's a Year-Round Affair for the Campus Canine Set. They Find SIU a Great Place to...

$47,000 Given SIU Nursing Section

Student loan funds and traineeship grants totaling more than $47,000 have been awarded to SIU's Department of Nursing.

Mrs. Margaret Shaw, department chairman, said $25,000 has been given to the University under the Nurse Training Act of 1964 to provide tuition and monthly stipends for registered nurses seeking academic degrees, and another $22,362 will be available for loans to nursing students.

The traineeship program pays all tuition and fees for qualified students, plus stipends of $300-$500 a month depending upon their previous college training.

Undergraduate students qualifying for loans may receive $1,000 a year, interest free, while attending the University. Fifty per cent of the interest will be deducted for each year the student works in the nursing profession.

Candidates for the traineeship grants must be registered nurses who can attain a baccalaureate degree with one year's study. They will receive a stipend of $200 a month.

The program provides stipends of $250 for nurses at the post baccalaureate level and $300 for those with a master's degree.

SIU nursing students may take their first three-quarters of training at the University's Carbondale campus or through the nursing department head-quarters at East St. Louis. Advanced work is conducted in East St. Louis, in clinical experience in area hospitals, day clinics and the East Side Health District.

FAMILY GATHERING — Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Moseley and their children, Mark (far left), Judy and Dee, share liaisoned space at Thompson Point this summer, but enjoy it.

Moseley 'Cubbyhole' Has Compensations

By Charlene Lucas

Mrs. Melvin Moseley may never again complain about her six-room home in Caro­ington, Okla.

Compared to her quarters this summer at SIU, the home in Oklahoma—at times—must seem about the size of the Home Economics Building.

Mrs. Moseley, her husband, and three children are sharing a two-room suite (with bath) in Stonehill Hall while Moseley is attending a summer biology institute at the University.

She made it plain at the outset that she's not too unhappy with the situation—after all it does have its compensations—but then she's not exactly jumping with joy either.

She tends to jump even less on those rainy days when the kids are confined to quarters here. He added that if there are any inconveniences, the distinctive foliage around the dorms would make up for them.

Another teacher, Mrs. Karl Schwaab of West Allis, Wis., likes the change to dormitory living. She said it gave her a chance to meet people from various parts of the country, and how's the TP adjusting to being in the family way, so to speak?

"No problems at all," an official acknowledges. "Oh, there may be a few scrabbles on the walls down close to the floor when they leave in August, but that's not serious."

Professor to Write

For Encyclopedia

Floyd F. Cunningham, director of the SIU Climatic Research Laboratory and professor of geography, has signed a contract to write a new article on Illinois for Collier's Encyclopedia.

Prior to joining the faculty at SIU, Cunningham was a lecturer in geography at the American University in Bar¬riss, France. He has also served as a Fulbright pro­fessor at the American University in Cairo, Egypt, and as a member of the U.S. Army Lecture Bureau in Frankfurt, Germany.
Howards Takes Massachusetts Job

Irving Howards, director of the SIU Public Affairs Research Bureau, has accepted a position with the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, effective in September.

A member of the SIU faculty since 1956, Howards will become director of the eastern school’s Bureau of Government Research. He also will hold the academic position of professor of government.

While at SIU Howards has been consultant to or member of a number of study groups related to state, county and local government in Illinois.

He has been consultant and research director of the Illinois County Study and Survey Commission since 1957, and a member served as research associate to the Illinois Legislative Council and executive secretary of the Illinois Township Problems Commission.

He also has served as research associate to the Illinois Revenue Laws Commission and the Illinois Board of Economic Advisers, and as consultant on county audit to the State Auditor of Public Accounts.

Figures on June Temperatures Show Area Cooler Than Usual

June was cooler than usual in Southern Illinois, the SIU Climatology Laboratory reported.

The mean temperature was 74.3 degrees, with an average high of 85.7 degrees and an average low of 63.2 degrees, compared to the normal mean of 75.6, average high of 86.8 and average low of 63.9 degrees.

SURVEY OF June Temperatures

Figures on June Temperatures Show Area Cooler Than Usual

June was cooler than usual in Southern Illinois, the SIU Climatology Laboratory reported.

The mean temperature was 74.3 degrees, with an average high of 85.7 degrees and an average low of 63.2 degrees, compared to the normal mean of 75.6, average high of 86.8 and average low of 63.9 degrees.

The warmest was 92 degrees on June 29. The coolest was 53 degrees on June 19. Temperatures of above 90 degrees were recorded on eight days during June in Carbondale.

Southern Illinois was also wetter than normal in June with an average rainfall of 5.32 inches compared to the normal 4 inches. Heavy 24-hour rainfall in thunderstorms was recorded on three days.

McLeansboro reported the highest June temperature, 96 degrees. Elizabethtown had the coolest temperature, 49.

The outlook for July in Southern Illinois is for slightly below normal temperatures and moderate precipitation.
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong hit hard at two Vietnamese army units 330 miles apart Thursday and the dead, among casualties officially described as heavy, included two American advisers.

Red 81mm mortars and 76mm recoilless rifles hammered the command posts of an infantry regiment bivouacked on a highway 35 miles north of Saigon for an hour before dawn.

Eyewitnesses said the shelling had killed at least 40 Vietnamese soldiers and two of the nine Americans attached to the regiment and that five Vietnamese and five Americans were wounded.

A Viet Cong major was among the wounded moved to Saigon for hospitalization. One guerrilla was found dead.

A motorized government cavalry squadron, traveling in trucks, was ambushed at dawn by an attack on the highway 6 miles further north. Six soldiers were wounded and a truck was hit by a rocket-propelled grenade.

“It seems likely the Viet Cong are using their vehicles in a way that the ARVN (South Vietnam National Liberation Front) has rarely used,” a U.S. official said.

Seven men were wounded in the ambush but were treated in the field.

McNamara said the number of attacks by the Viet Cong had increased during the past month and that he believed some increase could be expected in the near future.

“I do believe we are getting into a period when the Viet Cong and the people in the areas we are operating will feel we have been pushed too far,” McNamara said.

The latest Viet Cong attack came as McNamara returned from a trip to South Viet Nam to meet with government leaders and discuss the worsening internal situation there.

“McNamara said there was a ‘hight degree of damage—the place has been reduced to rubble’.

“Fifteen U.S. Air Force planes dropped 36 tons of bombs on the Son La military barracks and the pilots said there was a ‘high degree of damage—the place has been reduced to rubble’.

“McNamara said that the Viet Cong are using heavier, more accurate weapons and that the Viet Cong are using rockets and recoilless rifles to hit targets that previously they couldn’t reach.”
Mariner 4 Performs as Planned; Pictures, Other Data Are Relayed

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Mariner 4 sent earthward Thursday what is expected to be a fine crop of close-up photographs of the planet Mars.

And scientists said that while the planet’s surface seems more radioactive than earth’s, there is no evidence it would be dangerous to man.

A group of experts summarized findings of Mariner’s nongeophysical experiments, reported.

Mars has almost no magnetic field.

Due to so weak a field, it has not trapped a ring of intense radiation from the sun, as earth has.

But background radiation from the sun and outer space is much higher than earth’s, as Mars’ thin atmosphere doesn’t screen radiation as does earth’s thick blanket of air.

Dr. William H. Pickering, head of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory which built and guided Mariner, asked if he was discouraged by the planet’s findings, replied at a news conference: "No, I’ve always thought that we would find some form of life on Mars and I’m still looking forward to seeing the pictures and landing vehicles on Mars in the next few years."

Pickering said he expects Mariner to relay about 30 pictures of Mars’ surface, a process that will take 10 days.

Release of the first shot was expected today.

Scientists hoped the pictures would provide an answer to the ancient mystery of whether the planet might be like earth harbors life.

King Replaces Papandreou
Before Receiving Resignation

ATHENS, Greece (AP) -- Pushing Greece into a major political crisis, King Constantine Thursday ordered the resignation of the government on Thursday awards a new man into office as premier before George Papandreou, implacable foe of the monarch’s policies, had officially quit the post.

The newly named premier is Parliament Speaker Constantine Karamanlis, a moderate who had been keenly disliked by the king by his decision to bring down the government.

"They can’t do this. This is a coup d’etat," shouted supporters of Papandreou, who had launched an air force plane which crashed into the municipal airport, blocking the plane’s path.

The king’s sudden move to modernize the Greek government seemed to stem from a long simmering dispute.

Only this past Sunday Papandreou had officially registered the birth of the king’s first child, Prince Alexis, a friendly ceremony on the island of Corfu.

Six members of the royal cabinet had said it hung suspended at about 5,000 feet for 40 minutes.

When the sun glinted off it, it became clearly visible, they said. It disappeared when an airborne plane was sent to the air force.

Experts are now wondering if it was coincidence that the object was sighted shortly before a nearby Tienshina tracking station was scheduled to pick up Mariner signals. The station had unusual difficulty picking up Mariner at the time.

The sighting also came as Goldstone tracking station received irregularities in messages to Mariner was photographing Mars.

The Other Side of the Desk

Teacher in Student Role Finds Readjustment Often Difficult

One of the first things a teacher, back on campus to study for an advanced degree, has to learn is how to listen and not talk.

Most teachers agree that being on the other side of the desk for a change isn't always easy to adjust to.

"You try to do all sorts of things you'd never do, or you've been taught not to do," said one.

Here are some other views:

A secondary school history teacher from Arkansas said he found the readjustment from teacher to student frustrating. "I'm having a rough time following what's going on in class," he said. "I think that this difficulty is present because I'm no longer accustomed to being a student. It's a good experience to realize the student role again, as it has helped me to gain an insight into some of the problems that students face."

Not all teachers, in a student position, react the way an English teacher from Hopkinsville, Ky, did.

"Professors really don't care about our students as individuals," she commented. "And what's more, adjusting to a college atmosphere again is difficult because I'm past the stage of wearing Bermuda shorts and tennis shoes."

A more encouraging comment came from Hayden Jolly, an English teacher at Austin Peay State College in Clarksville, Tenn.

"I find it pleasing being free from the responsibility of preparing lectures, record keeping and counseling students," he said. "Jolly's position may be a bit different from that of the other teachers, because he has completed most of his Ph.D. course work and has only one instructor.

He says that grasping material comes easier now than it did when he was an undergraduate, because his powers of concentration are better. A home economics teacher from Jacksonville, Ill., finds being back in school is distressing.

"I feel that I have to work twice as hard to compete with all these youngsters."

And how do the college students feel about taking classes with teachers? The consensus seems to be most graphically explained by one young man who said:

"They talk too much. Three of them in one class interrupted the professor on an average of five times each during one-hour period to make their views known—usually it contributes nothing."

Workshop Seeks to Develop Training in Skills for Girls

A plan for a high school course to help a girl develop a marketable skill in occupations relating to home economics is being developed in a four-week workshop at SIU this summer.

Fifteen high school home economics teachers are enrolled in a "wage-earning training" workshop conducted by Anna Carol Fults, chairman of the Department of Home Economics Education.

The class is gathering curriculum materials that can be used to teach the skills, techniques and attitudes that will qualify girls for jobs as domestics, cooks in nursing homes, of child-day-care centers, cafeteria workers, school lunchroom employees, hospital dietary department employees, hotel-motel workers, child care aides, household workers and other jobs related to home and community service.

Grad Students in Rehabilitation Work as Interns

Fourteen graduate students in rehabilitation counseling at SIU are spending the summer as interns at 10 locations.

These interns, working with professional rehabilitation staffs, receive interns' pay as well as credit towards the degree.

This on-the-job experience is arranged by SIU's Rehabilitation Institute.

The fourteen students and their assignments are John W. West, Decatur Evaluation Center; Joe M. Burnett, Anna State Hospital; Jo Halliday, Carbondale Division of Vocational Rehabilitation; Norma M. and R. William English, St. Lewis State Hospital; Kathryn A. Hunt, S.I.U. Recruitment Office; Allen L. Woody, Anna State Hospital.

Michael L. Walsh, Anna State Hospital; George J. Eyedi, the Jackson County Nursing Home; Bernice Johnson, Carbondale Operation (lead); Dean, Kent Klopping, Anna State Hospital; Frank J. Jasmine, Washington, D.C., Nuclear Science Laboratory;_MIDDLE_COUNTY; Boys; Ruth E. Sponsler, the Murphyboro Southern Illinois Mental Health Clinic; and Kent W. Mason, Englewood, Colo., State Prison.
Alexander Says Winston-Salem Needs More Political Science

Special to the Daily Egyptian

Winston-Salem, N.C. — Orville Alexander, chairman of SIU's Department of Government, confessed after class with three students at Winston-Salem College, where he is an exchange professor this summer.

"The U.S. government in the state of Illinois is the only state in the country to discuss the controversy over the union which has such a political process, and if anybody needs to know something about political science, it is definitely the Negro."

The so-called law in New York, he said, has at least one bad feature, in that it equates persons who plead the fifth amendment, with Communists.

Alexander, who was reluctant to discuss the controversial law which forbids Com- munists and persons who have pleaded the fifth amendment, with Communists, said, "Working on the assumption that North Carolina is the only state in the union which has such a law is enough to declare it unenforceable."

Alex- ander said he was surprised to see the degree of political process, and if anybody needs to know something about political science, it is definitely the Negro."

He was surprised to see the degree of integration in Winston-Salem. "At home," he said, "we have integrated schools, but very few integrated communities. I see more integration in housing here than I do in the state of Illinois."

"Although I am sure I will not be back next summer," he said, "I certainly intend to come back some time."

CLASSROOM CONFERENCE — Orville Alexander, chairman of the Department of Government at SIU, is in a man with 27 years teaching experience who refuses to take a vacation from his professorship. Alexander is teaching two political science courses at Winston-Salem State College this summer under an exchange program between the two institutions.

As a legislative representative from SU to the Illinois General Assembly until 1957, Alexander has been associating with politicians for 25 years.

One thing which puzzled Alexander was that Winston-Salem State does not have a political science department, or at least more courses in this field.

"If a school the size of State were in the state of Illinois, it certainly would have more courses offered in political science with two or three hearing, he said.

Parsons, SIU Pitted In Weekend Series

Southern's baseball Salukis will take a modest three game winning streak into the home game at 6 p.m. today with league-leading Parsons College.

The four-game series with Parsons will conclude with a doubleheader at 1 p.m. Saturday and a single game at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Coach Rich (Itchy) Jones has named George Poe to start tonight's game. Poe, who has a 2.03 earned run average, has collected two wins, half of Southern's victories, in three starts.

Jones is not expected to make many changes in the lineup that has been responsible for three straight wins. The only two positions Jones hasn't decided are second base and catching.

The Salukis, who have encouraged Jones by their improving play in the field, will have to depend heavily on the pitching staff if they are to take the series from Parsons.

Mike Stafford, unsuccessful in his first three starts despite his having the lowest earned run average among the starting pitchers, 2.02, is scheduled to pitch in one of the games Saturday, with righthander Bob Ash scheduled to pitch the other.

Mike Locke, who won his last outing against the University of Illinois, is expected to pitch Sunday.

Jones, who has developed a surprisingly strong pitching staff, bolstered it with the addition of Ron Guthman. Guthman, the only performer off the spring team, won the first game last Saturday in relief and will be in the bullpen this weekend with righthander Ed Olenec. Olenec has a 1.32 earned run average in four relief appearances.

The batting has also taken a turn for the better.

Salukis' Next Foe Leads in League

Parsons College, the Salukis' opponent this weekend, continues to lead the Midwest Summer Collegiate Baseball League standings.

Southern, victor in three of four games with the University of Illinois last weekend, is still in last place, but only one game behind the Illini and two behind second-place St. Louis University.

The standings:

W. I. Pett GB
Parsons College 11 5 .688
St. Louis U. 6 6 .500 3
Illini 7 9 .438 4
Southern 4 8 .333 5
