Soph Tests Scheduled For Today

The annual Sophomore Testing Program will begin today with four test sessions scheduled. The sessions will continue through Saturday with makeup sessions scheduled for May 27 and 29.

Thomas C. Oliver, supervisor of testing, estimates that about 2,500 students will be involved in the testing program which will measure the areas of history and social studies, literature, science, fine arts and mathematics.

All sophomores, except those enrolled at the Regional Technical Institute, who are enrolled for 12 or more quarter hours for the spring quarter are required to participate.

Oliver said the program is designed to assist SIU sophomores in their vocational and educational planning and to assist the University in overall evaluations of its curriculum.

Oliver added that the results may be useful in confirming a choice of a major or in assisting in choosing a major and/or minor.

Results of the tests will be mailed to the students, and copies will be placed in the files of the Academic Advisement Center and Counseling and Testing Center.

Letters have been sent to all sophomores indicating the test sessions which they are to attend. If a sophomore registered for more than 12 hours this year, he should receive a notice of examination, should contact the Testing Center for assignment to one of the sessions.

To Bike or Hike—That’s Question

At the start of this series, it was noted that this was supposed to be a cycling series, followed by a hiking series. However, it is not intended to show that these activities are the world’s best drivers or their automobiles are world’s worst, as many probably thought when they heard that this series was “written in response to the recent series on cycles at SIU.”

The fact is that a person has to make a choice at one time or another as to what form of transportation he will use, and at SIU most students have to choose between motorcycles or no form of motorized transportation.

The majority of SIU cyclists would be car drivers if they had the opportunity, and therefore any suggestion that they are characterized differently from the drivers of cars, and that cyclists as a group are to be condemned is completely unwarranted.

The facts and figures on all the injured on cycles do not indicate that cycle riders are reckless; the injury figures only indicate the vulnerability of the cyclist.

It wouuld be very hard to get accurate figures on automobile accidents at SIU to make a true comparison with accident figures of motorcycles, since almost all motorcycle accidents involve injury to the cyclist.

For instance, many accidents in town involving two cars usually have only the loss of a little bumper chrome (Continued on Page 5)

Student Workers’ Hourly Wage To Be Increased to $1 on July 1

Jobs Will Be Reclassified On Study-Work Principle

The student program of the Education department will be increased to $1 an hour starting July 1.

President Delyte W. Morris said that the increase was to facilitate the recruitment of students to professional and technical jobs requiring undergraduate student-level skills.

The increase in pay will be a revised General Work-Study minimum salary of students employed part-time in work-study programs for which they received an allowance or wage.

Also effective July 1 will be a revised student job classification plan, which strengthens Director Frank G. Adams' procedures for providing on-the-job training in skills related to the student’s study field.

The classification plan details how students are categorized, ranging from unskilled labor, largely performed by students with poor academic and technical jobs requiring upper-division graduate student-level skills.

The University program envisions promoting the improvement of the student’s education progressions, so his part-time employment will keep pace with his educational advancements.

Maximum hourly wage rates will be raised to $1.75 for regular students and $2 for graduate students. The new schedule also provides for the Federal Work-Study program in which full-time students may elect to work full-time for one quarter (three months) a year, to accumulate funds for continued attendance at the University.

Morris Replies To RAM Letter

By Fred Beyer

A brief, two-paragraph letter from President Delyte W. Morris, released by the Rational Action Movement Committee Monday, has been discussed with the chairman of the Faculty Council and the Graduate Council. Each has agreed to consult with the University Council at its next meeting regarding participation by the University Student Council as soon as practicable, preferably after spring elections.

"It is my hope you take as much satisfaction as do your members and their fruitful outcome," he said.

Meanwhile, the Rational Action Movement Committee has announced plans to continue its activities with a more deliberate, intensive strategy."

At a meeting Sunday, RAM decided to form a community organization to set in motion an area-wide publicity campaign.

Probationers Urged to Get Counseling

Students on academic probation may go to the academic advisement center any weekday morning to discuss problems they encounter. Dorothy J. Ramp, supervisor for probationary students, has announced.

Some confusion has occurred from the center's practice of sending notices to students on probation asking them to come in on certain dates. This means that students may come in for counseling only at these appointed times, Mrs. Ramp explained.

"If they want them, they have to drop in any time they think we can help them," she said. "They need not make an appointment."

The counseling service is open from 8:15 until 11:45 a.m. every Monday through Friday in Building 7-55, the Academic Advisement Center.

A discussion is also planned on events such as the African Conference, which has been sponsored by the International Relations Club and the Academic Advisement Center, and other matters which would aid in a more coordinated program of the International Student Center.

During the group's last meeting on May 7, a program of summer employment for international students in the field of their majors was discussed.

Doing Something About It

Coeds Want Dream Dorms, Offer Ideas for Planners

(First of Two Articles)

Just like Mark Twain's axiom about the weather, many students talk about residence halls, but nobody does anything about them...that is, until William A. Reichert came along and let students design a living area of their own.

As a design course project, Reichert a senior from Belleville, was required to produce research in which conclusions could be drawn for future housing planning. Reichert tackled coed housing.

He questioned more than 250 students at SIU about the state of their present housing facilities, coed housing layouts, which they prefer, and about facilities they would like available in both sexes and to their own sex. He asked also about facilities considered not necessary or for limited use, that the students would like in the housing area.

Today's Weather

Partly cloudy and continued mild. High in the 90s. According to the Daily Climatology Laboratory, the high for this date is 95, set in 1911, and the low is 41, set in 1932.

Answers to these questions, and other data, provided through seven questionnaires and compiled through the Data Processing and Computing Center fill four volumes.

"This type of study could be done for almost any type of building," Reichert noted. "And it should be done; students have to live in what has been built for them; they have no choice."

Reichert thinks students' preferences in housing are important, because "the manner in which these youths live today will determine their personalities, their characters, and their moral attitudes. The environment in which future leaders live today will have an impact on the world tomorrow."

Existing housing facilities, Reichert's study shows, are mainly not quiet enough for the men and lacking in adequate temperature and draft control for the women.

"Now, we will take a look inside the coed housing facility designed through student questionnaires."

Polykephalus: A Satire on RAM

By John N. Sfondorouris

Character

CIC: Court House Crowd
Ev: Evangelist
I: Inquirer
S: Editor
T: Chorus Leader
D: Artificial Doll

I: Blight not on the grain! Do not set up the duet of groans in the jungle style. It is not I. steal the beans, and most bad temper. I: You speak of dignity, brave hearts, and finally, the Polykephalus, this then is why you have so long taken such precautions your horoscope gave qualms of terror. (To E) Your mind is on drink industry? Can a man strike out a brilliant thought when drunk? Do Without question. Go, fool, blow yourself with water; do you dare to accuse wine of clouding the reason? Quoet me more marvellous effects than those of wine. Look! When you drink, he is rich, everything he touches succeeds, he gains more petitioners, is happy and helps his friends in the doped Crowd. Come, bring him more wine, that I may soak my brain and get an ingenuous idea. By Apollo! Can your drinking do to help us gain rights and duties and responsibilities? Much. But bring it to me, while I take my seat. When doth Prophecy Sortivial ideas, trite phrases, poor reasonings everywhere in the peaceful house. It is lucky I was not caught in the house stealing the wine.

Run indoors quick and steal the 'oracles' of the Polykephalus, white he is asleep.

BLESS US! We fear this Good Genius will be a very absent from us. And I will set the mine barrel near me, that I may throw away their honey to invent some brilliant notices.

How loudly be anore! I was to seize the sacred 'oracles' of the Polykephalus, the other night.

Quick some drink! Dionysus is very dry.

Oh, miserable Polykephalus! This then is why you have so long taken such precautions your horoscope gave qualms of terror. What does it say? It says how he must end.

And how? How? The oracle announces near that a dealer in selling leather must govern the house. That's one tradesman. And after him, who? After him, a sheep dealer, Two tradesmen, oh? And what is this one's fate? To reign with to be flatterer and scoundrel than he arieas, then he peddle in this place the leather seller appears, the Polykephalus robber, the brawler, who roars like a torrent. And the leather seller destroys the sheep seller?

Yes. Where can another seller be found, is there ever one left? I: There is yet one, who pursues a first-rate career.

Tell me, pray what is it? You really want to know? I: Yes, Yes I! I had seen him, oh, oh, it's our Polykephalus! I: You tell me, oh Polykephalus, why I am looking.

Yes, I am looking. Is there a mortal more blessed than you? Then it's a blessing to cockroaches? I: No, but you are the one who is going to trade and all this. According to the oracle you must become the greatest of householders.

Just tell me how a sausage seller becomes a great householder?

E: That is precisely why you should be a sausage seller, because you are a sad scoundrel with all you have, rather than a common market rogue.

I: I do not bold myself worthy of exercising this function.

E: Oh, by the gods! Why do you not hold yourself worthy of exercising it? You think such a good opinion of yourself? Come, are you of honest parentage?

By the gods! No, of very amiable parentage.

E: Spotted child of fortune, everything fits together to ensure your greatness.

But I have not had the least liberal education. I can only read and that very badly.

That is how one may stand in your way, almost knowing how to read. A damage must be neither an educated nor an honest man; you have nothing at all, even else a demagogue requires. By the gods! No, you possess not all the attributes of a demagogue, an evasive and elusorie voice, a perveres, warped nature, a very common to the market place, a very common which is necessary for running the household.

I: You speak of dignity, status, rights, duties of our children, but how do you propose to go about?

E: By the new method, there is a way, (To S) "acting before thinking."

In what way does this concern me? Please instruct me your ignorance, And who will be the sacrificer among the spectators, those who are men of education or the gods themselves.

S: Oh, this is a villain beast, who has spread confusion amongst the people. This public nuisance, this phallus of Charybdis, this villain, this villain, this villain! Come, come, drivel true of the house and hurl it to pieces. Stun him with your blows and your shouts, and do not let him escape you. Chain, chain, chain the Beast!

The proposal by the ad hoc committee is expected to be discussed at that time.

Those representing the Carbondale campus were Dick Coldfeather, Francis G. Langston, Stephen E. Wilson, Richard L. Cox and Michael G. Peck.

Wilson, Cox and Harold E. Genell (Garrett) were appointed by Murphy to replace Carbondale representatives who had resigned. Their appointment by the Carbondale campus council had been vetoed by Student Body President Pat Micken.

Garrett did not attend because members were unable to notify him of the meeting.

Johnson Asks $4 Billion Cuts In Excise Tax Starting in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress Monday for a $4 billion excise tax reduction, promised that it will not be our last tax cut, and called on industry for price cuts to match.

His long-awaited message proposed two big bites of $1.75 billion each, the first on July 1 and the second next Jan. 1, followed by $464 million in smaller cuts to be put into effect in annual stages until 1970.

A prospering economy can afford the business boosting, while still whistling a billion off next year’s anticipated budget deficit.

He reassured those who fear a steep rise of defense costs in Viet Nam that there is no military spending increase in sight “that would make these excise tax reductions inadvisable.”

virtually all the early comment from Congress members was favorable.

It seemed likely, therefore, that business and the consuming public can expect the cuts to take effect on this president’s anticipated timetable.

Army Crews Blast Bombs At Bien Hoa

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Explosions touched off Monday by American experts helped to cut the danger of further blast hazards at the Bien Hoa Air Base, scene of the U.S. armed forces' greatest single setback of the Vietnamese war.

U.S. Army demolition specialists blew up four 500-pound bombs which, fitted with delayed action fuses, had emerged intact from the chain of flight line explosions Sunday that left 27 Americans dead or missing and 40 aircraft destroyed or damaged.

They used timed charges to get rid of the bombs, which had been set to explode within the next few days for a raid on the Viet Cong. Another 500-pound, one of 10 such bombs armed for the raid, blew up harmlessly by itself in the smoldering wreckage of the main airstrip of the base.

A U.S. spokesman said five of the Americans killed in the disaster have been identified and 22 are listed as missing or presumed dead.

Twenty-nine Army men and 74 Air Force personnel were involved.

Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Moore, commander of U.S. Air Force operations in Viet Nam and Thailand, said a preliminary inquiry showed the outbreak of flight line explosions was an accidental explosion of a bomb on one aircraft and spread to the others.

Deaths in Marshes

World Will Never Know Full Horror of Cyclone

By Conrad Fink

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The world probably will never know the full horror of last week's devastating cyclone that cut through isolated areas of East Pakistan, taking a path of death and destruction.

Preliminary reports reaching India from Dacca, East Pakistan's capital, said the official death toll is 5,492 — and is expected to rise. But, as in past cyclones that have hit even harder, nobody can say for sure.

There is no way of telling with certainty how many persons lived in East Pakistan's marshes and on its river inlets before the cyclone. Death tolls in previous storms have been staggering: an estimated 12,000 in May 1963, about 20,000 in 1960-61 monsoon storms, and 11,000 and 10,000, respectively, in 1942 cyclones and tidal waves.

East Pakistan's latest ordeal came last Tuesday night. The cyclone was said to have roared north to the "flooded" area created by the Bay of Bengal, slammed into the coastline and hammered away for about nine hours until shortly before dawn Wednesday. Tidal waves followed, surging across coastal areas that have only hillocks and tree trunks to break the full force. Raging 100-mile winds were then reported to have struck flimsy huts, telegraph wires and trees.

Some government officials in West Pakistan said five million persons probably were homeless, but even this figure could only be an educated guess.

The United States was the first to step forward with help for the devastated area. Assistant Secretary for International Health W. H. McComb, head of the U.S. mission here, said a $100,000 aid package was being sent to the government.

Chicago's Tallest Building Is Hit By Blaze

CHICAGO (AP) — Sparks from a welder's torch touched off a $150,000 fire Monday on the multilevel top floor of the nearly completed Civic Center, Chicago's tallest building.

Thousands of spectators craned their necks on downtown streets as firemen, hampered by an uncompleted pumping system in the $7 million building, pumped water from street level with mobile pumping units. The building is 440 feet high.

New Sit-Up Champ Is Glad It's Over

By Joe Cook

Darrell (Skip) Green may never do another sit-up again. At least not for the next few years. The 26-year-old Chicagoan spent the past week recuperating from his sit-up, a 45 minute sit-up marathon.

He broke the old record of 13 sit-ups in 5 minutes set by a Californian, Sidney Robinson.

"There's nothing seriously wrong with him that won't cure, but after doing 8,020 sit-ups Saturday, his stomach muscles naturally are a little sore, " said Green.

"It's not his stomach but his hip muscles that are forcing him to limp and bend slightly at the waist, " now know what it must feel like to be an old man," said Green.

He started on his record at 8 a.m. Saturday in Room 105 of Pierce Hall. He had spent most of the early morning arranging the room for his bid at the record.

Two scatter rugs, a portable fan, a set of barbells, a stereo record player, a clock for keeping track of the sit-ups and a bunch of matches were some of his needed equipment.

The scatter rugs were taped over his ankles to keep his legs down. The fan was used to keep him as cool as possible and the record player, with a stack of rock and roll records was used by Green to keep his mind from what he was doing.

"Actually the record player was a big help to me," said the soft-spoken Green, "for I was able to blot out everything and could concentrate on the music."

The kettlehump bottle came in handy. We he had most of his time recuperating from his sit-up, a 45 minute sit-up marathon.

"I was a little disappointed I lost only four pounds," said Green, "I guess I drank too much water."

He also took a couple of salt tablets and managed to gulp down a Hershey bar.

Green didn't jump at this thing hazardless, he had thought the entire thing through before hand all the things he would need and had also planned a schedule.

He was ahead of schedule all the way, averaging 398 sit-ups an hour and managed to do 20 sit-ups in 8 minutes 17 seconds, a personal best.

After a heavy dinner Green went to bed but spent one of his longest nights, he said, fittingly asleep.

4,000, but slowing down to 17 a minute during the second half.

At the finish he was a minute and a half ahead of schedule.

Although Green had been training for the event since early April, he had never come close to doing 8,000 sit-ups before. His highest previous total was 2,000.

"I was feeling all right until I got around 4,000 and it was then I made my decision to stop at 8,000 and not go for 10,000," said Green.

"I even felt like quitting after 6,000, but I knew with all the attention I had been receiving that I had to continue and break the record. As he neared the record his room became crowded. At one point, thirty students crowded their way in to see the new record holder in action.

An eager wait up when he broke the record and an ever larger one rung when he finished.

After a heavy dinner Green went to bed but spent one of his longest nights, he said, fittingly asleep.
