Report: University did not reach its goal in awarding minorities business contracts

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

The University has awarded only 34.6 percent of its total contracts to minority-owned businesses, falling well short of its goal of awarding 10 percent of total contracts to these businesses according to a report submitted to the SIU Board of Trustees by Donald Wilson, vice chancellor for financial affairs. The report stated that only about $326,000 out of a goal of $1.5 million was awarded to these businesses. In the fiscal year of 1989, the University was "a degree pleased that 35 percent of (its) goal was met." Of groups identified in the survey, businesses owned or managed by Caucasian females had the highest earnings for fiscal year 1989, with $430,900. Black females-owned or managed businesses had the lowest, with $1,444.

Under the Minority and Female Enterprise Act as amended in 1988, state universities must strive to fill 10 percent of contracts with businesses who are minority-owned or female-owned.

Ground broken for prison work camp

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

Gov. James R. Thompson officially breaks ground for a $3.3 million work camp at the Quoin State farmlands Thursday.

Funding for the project will be accepted next April and is expected to be completed by early 1991. The facility will have 15 acres and will house 200 inmates.

State Sen. Ralph Dun, R-Du Quoin, said the funds for the construction of the camp came from the Capital Development Board.

Dun said the $2.5 million appropriation for the camp was supplemented by $800,000 in Nov. 1 when architects designing the facility said more money would be needed.

The exact location of the camp was unknown by Dun, but he said it would be somewhere east of the farmlands. Dun said the camp would be administered by one prison.

Dun said the $2.5 million figure was a guess on the total cost of the camp. The original funds were appropriated June 30.

According to a press release, the facility will cost the state $4.5 million budget, of which $3 million will be from state revenues and $1 million will come from inmate wages.

The new facility is expected to bring 110 new jobs to the area.

Cafeteria collapses, seven die

City officials are smiling because sales tax receipts show the local economy is very strong, but their smiles could turn to frowns within the next two years if the Illinois Center Mall in Marion becomes a reality.

Analysis from the city's finance department revealed that sales tax revenues through November are about 8.2 percent higher this year as compared with the last fiscal year. This increase translates into about an extra $100,303 for the city's general fund, Paul Sorgen, finance director, said.

"Money in the general fund is used for basic services, such as fire and police. Therefore, this increase is expected," Sorgen said. "Projections for the fiscal year 1991 sales tax revenues are $53.1 million, a possible 6.4 percent increase from previous years." In addition to the sales tax increases, city officials discovered in October an additional $900,000 in the city's budget, a direct result of a two-year income tax hike, said Steve Hoffner, city manager. The budget windfall is being used for the creation of the new civic center and development of the downtown area, Hoffner said.

"The future, however, may not be so rosy for the Carbondale economy," Hoffner said.

East Germans OK reform for coalition government

WEST BERLIN (UPI) — The new East German leadership agreed Thursday on a reformed coalition government and charged Parliament with finalizing constitutional and electoral amendments amid demands for revoking the Communist Party’s dominant status. In Bonn, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and East Germans must decide whether they want German reunification. “Freedom is and remains the heart of the German question,” Kohl told the Bundestag or parliament. “That means above all that our fellow countrymen in East Germany must themselves decide the way they want to go to the future.”

Salvadoran intellectual shot, beat to death

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Gunmen murdered El Salvador’s leading leftist intellectual in his home in the western outskirts of San Salvador Thursday as weapons planted rebel positions and house-to-house battles raged in the capital during a sixth day of heavy fighting. About 20 to 30 men wearing military uniforms and carrying automatic rifles burst into the home of Ignacio Elizbaras, a Spanish-born Jesuit priest and rector of the General American University before dawn Thursday and shot and beat him and seven others to death.

House approves pay raise, ethics package

WASHING'ON (UPI) — The House approved a plan Thursday that will substantially raise the pay of members while overhauling congressional ethics rules. The bill, which passed 252-174 and now goes to the Senate, would increase members’ pay from the current $89,500 a year to more than $120,000 in 1991. The package would prohibit House members from accepting speaking fees and other honoraria, and limit all costs of outside income to 15 percent of their congressional pay.

Senate gives in to Bush on abortion ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate quietly acceded to President Bush’s demand for a ban on the use of federal funds to perform abortions for victims of rape or incest Thursday and senior advisers urged the president also to veto a more liberal policy for the nation’s capital. The Senate, reducing a calculated decision in part to avoid a major showdown with Bush on abortion until next year, made no effort to put liberalized language into a 4-year version of the $156.7 billion appropriation bill for the Labor and Health and Human Services departments. The bill was passed by a voice vote and returned to the House.

Walesa wraps up historic Washington trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Solidarity founder Lech Walesa, in his last major Washington appearance, turned to humor to make his pitch for more investment aid for Poland. Speaking at the podium of the National Press Club, where presidents, kings and prime ministers have spoken before, the burly shipyard electrician from Gdansk told an overflow audience that ‘‘for me, the heroes are the ordinary people because they will grow big; they are the last ones, for they shall be first.”

Thompson visits area hit by storms, 100 mph winds

ALorton (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson, after viewing Thursday storm damage in the Metro East area, promised quick action to get the economically depressed area back on its feet. A thunderstorm and winds reaching 100 mph ripped through the area east and south of East St. Louis early Wednesday, causing the death of one woman when a mobile home in which she was sleeping was crushed by a tree. The storm left about 30 families homeless, destroyed several buildings, damaged and damaged about 40 planes at St. Louis Downtown-Parks Airport in Cahokia, and set off several small fires.

Singer, songwriter, comedian, Dave Rudolf uses his puppet Mr. T as a prop for one of his jokes Wednesday night at the Comedy Cellar.

Opening his act with a musical parody of Johnny Cash, Rudolf established both the breakneck pace of the evening and a control over the audience that few comedians this year have shown.

He demanded a note from people who came late to the show. He shot jokes, he shot hecklers and he sang songs. In his hyperactivity, Rudolf has everything.

Over the course of his performance, he played and parodied Phil Collins, Michael Jackson, Jim Hendrix, George Michael, Bob Dylan, Paul Harum, Joan Jett, Steppenwolf, R.E.M., Bruce Spingstein, Elvis, The Rolling Stones and Paul Floyd. He also played a few of his own songs such as "Winnipeg Pioneers" and "Go play in Traffic" which have been featured on the syndicated "Dr. Demento Show." He closed his show with a serious version of Ray Charles' "Hit The Road, Jack." Rudolf's jokes were fast-paced as well and were frequently based on this area and the college atmosphere. Imitating Elvis, he said "I'm alive. I'm living in Marion. That's why they've never found me." After saying that James Joyce had a stream of consciousness while he only had a puddle, Rudolf said, "All the English majors are saying: 'I know what that is. I read ClifNotes.'"

Bounding with energy and enthusiasm, the short walls of the Big Muddy Room's stage were insufficient to contain Rudolf. He frequently jumped into the audience to sing to people and to annoy hecklers. He responded to everything and everyone, singing songs from artists people requested, "singing about the stage, what people wore and how they sat."

The main point of the movie is to show that family is the most important thing in life, even if it takes awhile to realize it.

Ted Danson plays a man whose relationships with both his father and his son have suffered because of his own selfishness. He left his parents for a career in the big city and returns only when his mother, played by Jack Lemmon, has a heart attack. Danson takes on the task of babying his father, played by Jack Lemmon, until he realizes Lemmon is completely capable of functioning by himself.

Lemmon simply has forgotten how to think for himself years of being dictated to by Dukakis. Danson helps his father become self-sufficient—to the point of wildness.

Lemmon begins to live out all of his dreams and make the most of his remaining time, and he does some hilarious things, including modeling wild-colored clothes andrupifying for a driver's license.

Although Dukakis resents this newfound freedom, she is finally convinced to allow Lemmon to have fun in his remaining years.

During the time he stays with his parents, Danson begins to realize how much he has missed the love, care and advice his father has given him.

He also becomes reacquainted with his own son, played by Ethan Hawke, who comes to visit his grandparents. Danson and Hawke have not seen each other since Danson's divorce.

Danson realizes the relationship with his son is beginning to parallel the relationship with his father and he makes the decision to drop everything else in favor of his family.

Danson plays a very believable character. His portrayal is not one of a cold, uncaring man but one of a forgiving, slightly selfish man.

Lemmon, who has not appeared in a film in over a year, stands the test. His character is wisty and convincing.

Dukakis plays a much older woman with a great deal of skill. She gives the frail, older woman, a strong, overpowering, stubborn personality.

The movie lasts nearly two hours, and it does drag a little in the middle, but minute for minute, there's not a better tick of town.
USG mall resolution biased, misdirected

THE UNDERGRADUATE Student Government has put itself in the uncomfortable position of speaking on an issue that does not care enough to take the time to see if the actions it is taking are in the students’ best interest.

With the passing of a resolution criticizing the city of Carbondale for its loss of current businesses, it appears that the USG is from Maroon’s viewpoint constructed to be disinterested in bringing business areas into areas with economic instability.

TIM HILDEBRAND, USG president, said he will veto the resolution, which he said slipped through the Nov. 8 meeting without a unanimous vote without anyone having a chance to speak on it.

Musgrave wrote the resolution in support of dropping the lawsuit and proceeding with building the mall that would, in theory, house a new mall. CARBONDALE believes is not hurting economically.

One of the city’s fears was the loss of current businesses, such as the Sears’ department store. Sears has announced questionable financing to build in an area that the city of Carbondale believes is not hurting economically.

REINFORCED STEREOTYPES

Donald Kaul’s commentary on East Germany that appeared in the Daily Egyptian Nov. 15 reached the stereotypical view that many Americans have of Germans. The East Germans crossing the border into West Germany are not warp-speed fanatics who will kill with a beer can holder on each side with tabs running into their mouths) and the suggestion that “they soon will be anti-German.”

Most Germans are not Nazis. Even though Germany was partitioned in 1945, many of those who allowed a few madmen to take control of the military and the press, most of those responsible for the war were killed during the war or have died during the 40 years since.

How do I know? My girlfriend’s grandmother was there. Those (mostly women and children) who were not lucky enough to make it out of Berlin at the end of the war suffered genocide at the hands of the communist Russians who had decided to move them to death. If not for the airlift, they would have died.

Anyone who witnessed the war, most of those are either dead or have turned into a fog with the passage of time, are not even anti-German, except for Kaul’s commentary, that’s about to gloss over the racist words that Kaul’s article, other than gross ignorance and fear. He comparison won freedom of East Germany with Charles Manson being put on parole and has the audacity to claim that he is not “anti-German.”

Would you call that “pro-German?” Is it too much to ask for us to think “pro-human” and forget the racial monstrosity?

Although I don’t expect the intense fear that generated Kaul’s article, other than gross ignorance and fear. He comparison won freedom of East Germany with Charles Manson being put on parole and has the audacity to claim that he is not “anti-German.”

Social work students are being 'shunned' by DE

As a university newspaper, we would think you’d be concerned with setting examples for your aromatic students and for the student body rather than wish focusing on the sleazy headline.

I speak specifically about the fact that in the past year, our organization, the Social Work Student Alliance, has twice asked the Daily Egyptian to assign at least a photographer to cover our events; we also asked the Southern Illinoisan to cover our events. In each case, your news editor assured us a photographer would cover our events, but each time the only photographer who showed up was a Southern Illinoisan photographer.

Why? Why have you shunned us? This most recent event was a Halloween party we gave for needy children in conjunction with the Emma Hayes Center. What did you mean more appropriate to cover? Certainly not the Alliance, whose members spent many hours preparing for and shooting a block party to help about 100 children.

I bring this to your attention not because we feel we deserve a pat on the back, but because Social Work Alliance members consistently set such examples for our fellow students, only to be ignored by you. Why do you deem it inappropriate or unimportant to avoid coverage to events that concern acts of humanitarianism as opposed to events that depict the more sensational side of campus life? Why aren’t you setting better examples?

On another but similar note, why doesn’t the DE cover the Social Work’s events, such as Heart’s Day, our recent MSW Accreditation press conference or National Social Work Week. America’s best guess is you don’t cover alliance functions, but it’s unaccomplishable that you ignore the school’s events as well.

When will you recognize that the School of Social Work is a growing and vital part of this community and will give us adequate recognition?

By the way, we have another event coming up just before Christmas -- think you’ll have time for us? — M.A. LeMay, SWSA president.

Mall war: 2 cities fight over revenue

Marion caught up

Marion's use of tax increment financing subsidies to build the Illinois Center Mall will be on trial in an Illinois court this summer. The owners are hoping to keep the project moving forward.

In fact, Marion has proposed an outdoor strip mall and an indoor mall. The enclosed strip mall and an indoor mall. The enclosed strip mall and indoor shopping center will cost $300,000,000 and is located on the site of the former Carbondale Mall.

An artist's rendering of the proposed Illinois Center Mall, which would be completed by the end of the year, is shown.

What is TIF?
In areas using tax increment financing, the amount of real estate taxes created by the property is frozen. Tax increases created by improvement to the property are transferred into a special fund to pay back redevelopment-related expenses.

New mall good for region - developers

By Lisa Miller
The proposed Illinios Center Mall will bring about 3,300 jobs to the Marion area. The mall will be completed in 1990.

Ray Saathoff, employee of Antonia Investments, said a considerable amount of money go to the Southern Illinois area. Shopping malls in St. Louis, Cape Girardeau, Paducah, Evansville... "We believe a lot of business can be generated and kept on the Southern Illinois area," Saathoff said.

"The $65 million enclosed mall and a $10 million strip center near the mall will be located on the site of the former Carbondale Mall. The enclosed mall will contain a food court, two small shops in its 200,000 square feet. Sears and Dillard's will be the two main department stores. Saathoff said another one would be added at a later time.

Gary Kobes, a representative for the proposed mall, said the developers are in the process of negotiating with the city of Marion and the Edward J. DeBartolo Corp., which own the site.

"We are in the process of negotiating with the city of Marion and the Edward J. DeBartolo Corp., which own the site," Kobes said. "We are in the process of negotiating with the city of Marion and the Edward J. DeBartolo Corp., which own the site."

For the city of Marion, the proposed mall will be a major boost to the city's economy. The mall will create 3,300 jobs and will bring an estimated $300,000,000 to the area.
Lotto game offers
big payoff in Illinois

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The Illinois Department of Lottery gambled six years ago with a new lottery game thatamble that lottery officials said paid off.

The Lottery game, which is in an estimated $5.7 billion in sales for fiscal year 1989, nearly 16 times the $34 million in revenues for fiscal year 1980, Director of Communications for the Illinois State Lottery Kathy Rem, said Thursday.

The game guarantees a $5 million jackpot to a single winner every Saturday. When nobody wins the weekly jackpot, the money is carried over until the next weekend.

The players try to match six of 54 numbers drawn from ping pong balls Saturday night.

The highest jackpot in the game's history was $69.9 million won on April 15, 1989, by a player who matched all six numbers.

"When the pots roll over, more people will play," Rem said.

But Dracos, an accountant in the research and fiscal information office for Comptroller Roland W. Burris, said the Lotto game is the most popular offered by the department, and it accounted for 39.7 percent of the ticket sales in fiscal year 1989.

The Lotto game sales increased from fiscal year 1989 in part, Dracos said, because the game's format was changed from a 44 number draw to 54 numbers.

"(It) was just a bad year for the lotto in fiscal year 1989 prizes for the lucky increased by $746.9 million from fiscal year 1980 to $792.7 million.

The Lotto game is only one of four computerized games offered by the Illinois Department of Lottery.

"We believe the new format was similar to Lotto but has no guaranteed win," Rem said.

The smaller version of Lotto is played on Monday, Wednesday and Friday prizes are awarded to players who match three, four and five numbers out of the 35 drawn.

The Daily Game and Four-Digit games are daily computerized games based on a three-digit draw.

In addition to the computerized games, the department offers three instant games.

"As people buy out on the game, it's up to the Illinois State Lottery to create new games," Dracos said.

Rem said the number of ticket sales in fiscal year 1989, $5 million in ticket sales, has increased by $746.9 million in ticket sales.

Players scratch off a card and try to match three television symbols. If they do so successfully, their card is entered in a drawing for which a certain number of dollars is drawn for a television game show aired at 6:30 p.m. Saturday night a Chicago-affiliated television station.

Even though four states bordering Illinois recently have started their own lottery programs, Rem said Illinois lottery bus ness should not be affected.

"(Illinois) has been around. We have an established player base, and sales have held up," she said.

Dracos and Rem said the game sales for the Four-Digit games, the Daily Game and the Lotto games carries over from year to year.

Dracos said the players name on the one and for the Maryland and Virginia players, the number of tickets sold is hard to predict.

"They're going to start playing and see how they do," Rem said.

"I think we’re coming up with by far the most appropriate use of University funds with this plan," A.D. Van Meter, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees, said. "This issue has been before the ad hoc (housing) committee repeatedly, Lazerson is the most successful of the vendors. Lazerson has been the most appropriate use of university funds with this plan," private housing. Thorne, but under the new policy, he may choose to move into private housing and receive the $18,000 supplement or remain in University-owed housing.

Lazerson indicated he would sell private housing.

Paterson, chairman of the financial affairs committee, said the University-owned house where Lazerson lives is in need of many repairs including a new roof, gutters and siding and probably would not be worth the money to fix.

Paterson said proceeds from the sale of the house, which is owned by the SIU-C president, who was in favor of a new system, Robert Renthal, vice chancellor of academic affairs at the University of Illinois, testified against Seven’s proposal.

Paterson called the tone of the SIU-C hearing “fairly predictable,” though he wasn’t sure what would come out of the hearing.

"We will take back the money we got through the income tax increase," Paterson said.

Despite the dismal forecast, Paterson said the University had managed to get every veto it had asked for signed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

"All but one of those were sustained by the legislature," Paterson said.

Another success of the veto session was getting $60,000 restored to an Alzheimer’s Disease study conducted by the university.

Thompson had vetoed the money earlier this year, but the legislature overrode the veto.

Paterson said a technical error, which involved leaving an effective date off this year’s budget, had been fixed during the session as well. The effective date makes it legal for the University to spend money.

Paterson also responded to the recent Illinois Board of Higher Education’s review hearings, one of which took place at SIU-C Thursday.

The five hearings, the last of which was concluded Thursday at Western Illinois University in Macomb, were to review the effectiveness and role of the BHE plays in Illinois higher education, and how it might be improved or replaced.

The SIU-C hearing featured testimony from several witnesses including Albert Samol, former SIU-C president, who was in favor of a new system, Robert Renthal, vice chancellor of academic affairs at the University of Illinois, testified against Seven’s proposal.

Paterson called the tone of the SIU-C hearing “fairly predictable,” though he wasn’t sure what would come out of the hearing.

Meet the requirements. At least half of that 10 percent must go to female-owned businesses.

A January Supreme Court ruling made the requirement “hard” certain contracts for those businesses exclusively, making it more difficult to meet the goal.

The report also cited SIU-C’s rural surroundings as one of the difficulties in meeting the goal because it “does not attract minority businesses.

Wilson said the SIU-C campus was the most successful of the three SIU campuses in efforts to reach the goal, mainly because of its close proximity to St. Louis.

"Taking the business to out-of-state vendors generally against the rules," Wilson said, adding that in many instances vendors are usually too large to qualify for the program.

Trustee William R. Norwood said if the rules imposed on the University were too restrictive,” the University should talk to the rule makers.

"In theory, every business we contract with will grow," Norwood said. "We want to still be able to use them after that.

Education budget
to gain little in ’90

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

University Chancellor Lawrence K. Patern said Thursday that SIU had a successful fall veto session, but warned that there would be little growth in the Illinois education budget next year.

"We cannot expect as good a session as this one," Patern said at the SIU Board of Trustees meeting.

Patern said there would only be about $300,000 growth in the state budget for the education programs.

"Higher education will not get much of that," he said.

Patern said that enough property tax relief, whatever its final form, will have a negative impact on higher education.

"It will take back the money we got through the income tax increase," Patern said.

Despite the dismal forecast, Patern said the University had managed to get every veto it had asked for signed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

"All but one of those were sustained by the legislature," Patern said.

Another success of the veto session was getting $60,000 restored to an Alzheimer’s Disease study conducted by the University.
$20,000 cash award for art talent available to seniors

By Carrie Pomeroy
Entertainment Editor

Undergraduate art majors who wish to receive their degrees between the fall semester 1989 and the end of the summer session 1990 can start gearing up to compete for the Ricker-Ziefold Talent Award, the largest cash award offered at the University.

The $20,000 award, endowed by the estate of the late Margarette Ricker, has been divided as much between as few as two winners and as many as ten. The cash prize has no strings attached and can be used however the winner chooses.

Last year, 25 students entered the competition. Candidates must be graduating seniors in art; they must submit an application, a maximum of 20 slides of their work and a vita form outlining their artistic goals and background by Feb. 15.

To help prospective entrants brave the entry process, two meetings will be held to explain what entrants need to do to participate, Harris Deller, chairman of the award committee, said.

"They get pretty frantic and we don't want them to see us make mistakes," he said.

Deller said the first meeting, to be held at 4 p.m. Nov. 29 in room 102 of the Allyn Building, will inform graduating seniors about eligibility, entry procedures and the award itself. As the second meeting, scheduled for 4 p.m. Dec. 4 at the same location, School of Art and Design faculty member Bill Boyen will give candidates hints on how to photograph slides of their work.

Art and design faculty will review applications and slides and vote to narrow down the field to about 10 to 15 finalists. John Lipton, director of the competition, said the finalists will display work in the Allyn Building and entries will be voted on March 5.

Rescuers continue search for survivors of tornadoes

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Rescuers searched for trapped survivors Thursday in the wreckage left by a tornado that cut a wide swath of destruction through the city, killing at least 17 people and injuring at least 463 in what one witness called "an eternity of 20 seconds."

The tornado, which devastated a shopping complex and an apartment complex, was one of a series of twisters that roared through six Southern states Wednesday afternoon and evening. Another twister hit West Virginia Thursday morning, injuring three people as the bricks fell in.

"I heard my friend Cherie got hit in the head. She was smashed by the wall and I started crying," McCall said. "Everyone started crying. They just picked her up and she was in the library lying down. Two students, 7-year-old Mike Miller Jr., recalled, "I was just sitting next to the wall and all of a sudden there were bricks falling in."

Department spokesman Chris Carperone said.

Seven children were killed and 19 people were treated at St. Luke's Hospital, spokeswoman Debbie Sproe said. Four children were treated at Cornwall Hospital's emergency room.

"It's incredible destruction -- vehicles and debris stacked on top of each other, in some places 10 to 12 feet deep," said Danny Cooper, director of the Alabama Emergency Management Agency. Hunstville police said at least 17 people were killed, including a 7-year-old boy and at least 463 were hurt.

"There could still be bodies in there," rescue worker Benay Anders said. "It's really slow and methodical. All we can do is move and search, move and search. It's a matter of amplying these buildings."

Earlier Thursday, police had placed a death toll at 19. Police Sgt. Roy Fudge blamed that expert on the chaos accompanying the search for survivors in the tons of rubble.

The most destructive tornado in Huntsville hit at 4:30 p.m. and slashed through an area a half-mile wide and 4 miles long, damaging an apartment complex, homes, schools, churches and a shopping center containing at least 10 stores.

Lecture explores Japanese ideology and cultural uniqueness

By Brian Gross

The annual Madeleine Smith Lecture yesterday evening featured Janet Fair-Christianson’s talk, “Japanese Women’s Language and the Ideology of Japanese Uniqueness,” which provided insight into how many cultural and social differences between Japanese women and men. The lecture, taken from Fair-Christianson’s Dissertation research at the University of Chicago, was highlighted by insightful examples of the language and culture that delighted the audience.

Fair-Christianson actively demonstrated how differently the language was used by men and women, adding that most Japanese women “were defeated. They are better suited to being role models rather than taking the lead.”

David Kamenof, the panelist featured expert, said it was the topic of the lecture that delighted him. "I've been a long-time speaker on the topic of Japanese family for the past 16 years." Kamenof also highlighted the differences between Japanese women and men, saying they included men who have been in need of treatment. "Some have been in need of treatment for many years," Kamenof said.

The lecture also discussed the choice of words women use to indicate a level of politeness. Women generally use a lower status than men, which is reflected in the language where women typically use more polite speech. "I thought she did an excellent job of pulling together sociology, linguistics and kinesthetics, making it a very interesting, cohesive presentation,” Kamenof said.

Fair-Christianson said she learned Japanese when she was a child, her father was stationed at an Air Force Base in Japan. She studied Japanese in America from 1976-80 and then returned to Japan for two years to teach at a Catholic girls school.

"For the sake of research, it let me be a part of a community of people," Fair-Christianson said of her stay in Japan. "I lived with a Japanese family for the first year. Spending time with Japanese people was a tremendous help." "They have a different writing style, which makes it more difficult to learn than French or Spanish, because its not an Indo-European language," Fair-Christianson said. "It is demanding, but people can learn it. Japanese is not something foreigners can’t learn if they take time." Fair-Christianson said she enjoyed learning the differences in women's speech, such as pronouns. "I didn’t mind using more polite speech when talking to men." “What I didn’t like so much was when my subordinates spoke politely to me,” she said.

Live panel discusses HIV/AIDS

By Diana Mildev

"AIDS in the College Community: From Crisis to Management" was the topic of a teleconference shown in the Student Center Auditorium Thursday afternoon. The National University Teleconference Network aired the live panel discussion from New York through its facilities, Jim Ogser, the Division of Continuing Education at SIU-C, said. The program itself was produced by Ohio University, he said.

The panel featured experts from the medical, legal, student affairs and health education fields. A person with AIDS also was on the panel.

David Kamenof, the panelist with AIDS, said he didn’t like to be referred to as an AIDS victim. "The word is not appropriate for me. I am not defeated. I don’t want to be labeled," Kamenof said.

Laura Dohn, a psychotherapist and AIDS educator at Columbia University, said people often lose sight of those on campus most severely affected by AIDS.

"It’s like all students are the most severely in need of help," she said.

There are studies that show some people have been placed in very high risk groups for AIDS, Dohn said. She said it is hard to label men who have had sex with other men and shares of needles in drug use. People who have been in high risk groups should be tested on a regular basis, she said.

The panelists agreed that more campus organizations and administrators need to focus on AIDS. Pinsky said campuses with gay and lesbian groups are the best candidates for peer counselors. Winters said it was a good idea to attend the teleconference at the Student Center. Ogser said the program probably will be aired again at a convenient time in concordance with other campus organizations because of its importance.
Wishing you the best of the season!

Faculty member found guilty of criminal sexual assault

Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

Melvin Haun, faculty member in the College of Technical Careers, was found guilty Wednesday on two counts each of aggravated criminal sexual assault and abuse of a girl under the age of 13.

Haun’s two-day trial at the Jackson County Courthouse ended at about 11 p.m. Wednesday, after 12 hours handed down a verdict of guilty. State’s Attorney Chuck Graczyk said.

Haun, 55, was convicted of committing “unspeakable acts” against a girl who was 11 and 12 years old in 1985 and 1986, when the alleged assaults occurred, Graczyk said.

During the trial the girl charged that Haun sexually assaulted her on numerous occasions at Haun’s home in Makanda, his office at SLU-C and in his car on rural roads in Jackson County, reports said.

Haun testified Wednesday that he went driving with the girl in rural Makanda, where some of the assaults allegedly occurred, on several occasions in 1985 and 1986 to look at horses, reports said.

Haun’s defense attorney Brian Lewis said he was very disappointed with the ruling and will more than likely appeal the decision as soon as he discusses the matter with Haun.

Lewis said Circuit Judge David W. Watt has not sentenced Haun and will not do so until a pre-sentence investigation is held, which probably will be scheduled around Dec. 16.

Lewis said Haun’s conviction is a class X felony and carries a six- to-20-year sentence without parole. “His sentence could turn out to be a real injustice,” Lewis said.

“Haun is a man with a 21-year military career, a Ph.D. and a spotless record.”

Haun was arrested on July 19, 1988, after an investigation was initiated by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and conducted by the investigation division of the Illinois State Police, according to reports.

Haun’s son, Robert Haun, also faces charges of six counts each of aggravated sexual assault and aggravated sexual abuse, according to the Williamson County Courthouse spokesperson.

Deanna Marie St. Germaine, the doctor who examined the girl in 1987, testified Tuesday the girl told Germaine that both Melvin and Robert had sexually abused her.

Watt revoked Haun’s bond and he is being held at the Jackson County Jail in Murphysboro.

The Sun is going down in St. Louis, Michael Kupinski, senior writer at The Post-Dispatch, said the Sun's future is less than bright. "The outlook for the Sun is bleak," he said. "It (the Sun) is going to have to compete aggressively for the advertising dollar." Kupinski said primary advertising accounts from businesses such as Famous Bar and Dillards are being lost. Perhaps for the first time, the Sun feels like other newspapers and it is going to have to stay competitive with the Sun for the Sun's business. "We're not asking for any special favors," he said. "We're just asking for the Sun to stay competitive."

The Sears Department Store has already made plans to move to the new mall and other businesses may soon follow, Hoffner said. Sorgen said the financing department has not yet taken the new mail into account for the budget projections for fiscal year 1992, when the new mall should be completed.

The new mall will take business away from Carbondale, but Sorgen said Carbondale will fight back through new developments. Despite the litigations, the real estate developers of the mall, Anoma Investments, have announced the groundbreaking ceremony will begin Nov. 21. Katy O'Brien, attorney for the developers, said it was legal for the construction to begin.

Men's basketball team signs 5-11 prep star from Indiana

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's basketball team announced the signing of their second recruit in 24 hours when coach Joe Vandeventer's club limited its season 19-2. Lowery sank 32 percent of his attempts from three-point range and 53 percent overall.

On Wednesday, the Salukis announced the signing of Marvin Kelly, a 6-6, 200-pound forward from the University of Evansville, Ind.

Head coach Rich Herrin said the two players will fill different dimensions.

"I was going to have a powerful and quick forward in Kelly and an exciting player in Chris Lowery," Herrin said.

"At 5-11, Lowery can dunk the ball two-handed and he can also hit the three-point shot. He's a very explosive player. He can play the point guard and the shooting guard. "He's a high class individual," Herrin said. "He gives us another dimension that we don't have. He's going to be a crowd pleaser."

"I was probably leaning toward a couple of other schools until I visited SIU-C," --Chris Lowery

Lowery made his decision after visiting SIU-C earlier this week and was looking forward to playing with the Salukis.

"I feel really good about SIU after having visited them," Lowery said in a released statement. "I was probably leaning toward a couple of other schools until I visited and became better acquainted with the coaches and players. All of the coaches really seemed to be sincere about me coming to SIU and that was important to me."

"I believe I can help out next season in some way or another. I like to generate and don't mind dunking the ball off to someone else. Whatever skills I have I've learned from my coaches and I owe everything to them and to my family. They are very supportive."

After picking up two signatures on the last two days of the early signing period, which ran from Nov. 8-15, Herrin was looking to the spring signing period to add some big post-players.

"We'd like to sign at least two of these players if we can," Herrin said. "I don't know if we can or not, but we're going to try." Vandeventer had a few words to say about Lowery's role at SIU-C.

"Chris Lowery is an outstanding human being," Vandeventer said. "He's just an exceptional person who knows right from wrong and who also happens to be a fine basketball player. He may not be an impact player right now, but he'll be a great role player."

 Tyson scheduled to fight in Tokyo **

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Tyson will make his next heavyweight title defense against former WBC champ Douglas Feb. 12 in Tokyo, it was announced Thursday, bringing close of an negotiations with Canadian promoter Lou Duva.

The Tyson-Ruddock bout, origi- nally scheduled for Nov. 18 in Edmonton, Alberta, was postponed last month when Tyson was diagnosed with a rib injury. The Canadian promoter Snooky McPhee wanted to reschedule the bout for Jan. 10 but could not close the deal in time to meet HBO's Wednesday deadline.

L.A. Clippers trade for Ron Harper

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Clippers took a major step toward respectability Thursday, acquiring Ron Harper and three draft picks from the Cleveland Cavaliers in exchange for forward Elmore Smith and the rights to Danny Ferry.

In addition to Harper, the Clippers will receive Cleveland's first-round draft choices in 1990 and 1991 and the Cavaliers' second-round selection in 1991.

Harper, a 6-foot-6 shooting guard, averaged 27.9 points as a rookie three years ago and 18.4 points in 82 games last year. He will replace the point-shooting Williams in the Los Angeles starting lineup.

"Anytime you do trade you can feel bad, but I feel this trade is going to be a good one for the team," Dan Majerle said.

Women's forward sprains ankle

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Cyd Mitchell can attest to the fact that good fortune sometimes turns out to be bad luck.

Mitchell, a 6-1 junior forward from Hamburg, was beginning to make a name for herself in the Saluki women's basketball lineup. But during practice Friday, Mitchell sprained her ankle on a drive to the basket.

"It happened during transition on offense, it was a three-on-three drill," Mitchell said. "I was cut out of the basket and I somehow hit my foot or my ankle just gave out on its own. I don't remember anything after that." Mitchell said she was told to wear a cast for five days. Her ankle will be examined by the doctor Monday and if things go according to plan, Mitchell's cast will be taken off and she will be ready to play early next week.

"I want to be ready for the Hawaii tournament," Mitchell said. "That's our goal."

The Salukis open the season in the Wahine Classic in Honolulu Nov. 24-26.

Mitchell's ankle injury isn't her first setback of the preseason. A knee injury three weeks ago kept her out of action for a week. Mitchell sprained her ankle just a week after recovering from the knee injury.

"I was really down," Mitchell said. "I know the Hawaii trip was coming up and I also had just came back from the knee injury."

Saluki volleyball coach Patti Hagemeier instructed her team during a match against Bradley earlier this season. The Salukis play No. 1 seed Illinois State in the Gateway Conference tournament Saturday afternoon in Normal. Clarke | Daily Egyptian

Oregon discusses NBA betting

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon's interest in starting a state-wide "Sports Action" betting game based on NBA outcomes has certainly caught interest of the league and others.

Charles Grantham, executive director of the NBA Players Association, will address the proposal during a news conference Friday in Portland.

Also taking part will be Portland Trail Blazers forward Buck Williams, an officer in the players' union.

Jim Sens, Jim Hill, D-Salem, and Bill Kenmore, R-Milwaukee, arranged the news conference to discuss concerns about the Oregon Lottery's proposal to add NBA betting to its sports betting.

NBA Commissioner David Stern will be in Salem Monday to apprise the Oregon Lottery Commission of the proposal.

Both NFL and NBA officials have said the leagues are opposed to any gambling connected with their games. In "Sports Action," gamblers make wagers on NFL games.

Salukis hold on to defeat Brazilians

By Kevin Simpson

Senior Jerry Jones pulled down and held it and lost it with 42 seconds left in the game to break a 95-93 score and lead the Salukis to an 89-87 victory over the Brazil National Team in a game played at the University of Illinois-Urbana-Champaign.

Junior Rick Shelley sank two free throws with 22 seconds remaining to give the Salukis a 95-93 lead.

Although Jones had an impressive evening, he downplayed his efforts and said that his team was the most important thing.

"There is no point in a game, I lie to play with physical with them," Jones said. "I wasn't counting the points, I was counting the game." He said he played to win the game. It just worked out for me tonight. All I wanted to do was win.

Head coach Rich Herrin said aggressive play was the trade mark of his team and this hold true as the Salukis played tough defense, ran the fast break and used a strong inside game to win the game.

"Jerry Jones has always been a great scorer," Herrin said. "Jerry hit the big key basket for us to give us the lead. We had a lot of good effort. We were in foul trouble but should have shown how to win the basketball game down the stretch. Freddie got us going and Jerry got the big basket for us.

"We beat a good basketball team," Herrin said. "We did play a good defensive balls." It was a battle of points. We just lost the ballgame.

McCowan, who identified the team with a couple of slam dunks in scoring 12 first-half points, said Jones and Shelley deserved a lot of credit in the game but the freshmen also played well.

"It showed that two, three, four, five players don't make a team," McCowan said. "I think tonight everybody is a star because everyone put forth the effort to win. I'm not looking for any individual to be the best ever, but I think it's going to be good. They put in a good effort during the whole game. They're pretty comfortable right now but we know we have a long way to go.

The Salukis were led by Jones' 27 points and 10 rebounds, nine offensive, while senior guard Freddie McCowan scored 19 points before fouling out. Junior point guard Sterling Mahan scored six points and dished five assists.

With the absence of Randy House and Kai Numbringer, both of whom were in the undisclosed, the Salukis were suspect from three-point range.

As a team, the Salukis made only 2 of 11 shots from three point range, while Brazil was 3 of 13.

The Salukis out-rebounded Brazil 30 to 39. The Salukis hounded the offensive boards and controlled on the evening.

Head coach Rich Herrin was happy with the overall play from his team.

Herrin is now 6-0 in exhibition games during his coaching career at SIU-C. Herrin will have a chance to improve on that record tomorrow night when the Salukis take on Action Tuesday at the Arena.

The Salukis enter their regular season when they travel to Chicago State Nov. 26. Their first regular-season home game will be Nov. 30 against Tennessee State.

The Salukis first Missouri Valley Conference game is against Creighton Dec. 4 at the Arena.

Smith: Southern Illinois sells itself to recruits

By Tracy Sargent

While some students are worried about how they are going to get home for the Thanksgiving holiday, the basketball team is preoccupied with a different task—a Gateway Conference test.

The Salukis found out last weekend that they were headed to the Gateway finals in a fourth seed position for the Western Illinois University Westerwinds lost to Southeast Missouri, 10-15, 12-14 and 2-14.

The Westerwinds improved their overall record to 20-9, but their conference record of 5-4 wasn't good enough to qualify for the tournament. The Salukis, who are 10-15 in Gateway conference record, will face the winner of the Northern Iowa-Southwest Missouri game on Sunday.

Spikers face ISU in tourney

By Kevin Simpson

The Salukis face the ISU volleyball team Wednesday night in a conference test.

The Salukis have had their ups and downs throughout the season, but the team is looking to bounce back from a recent loss to the Illinois State Redbirds.

The Spikers are currently second in the conference with a 7-3 record, while the Salukis are sitting at 6-4.

Payton seeks St. Louis NFL team

By Rick Stock

In a recent interview, Payton expressed his desire to play for a team in St. Louis.

"The St. Louis NFL Partnership is an option," Payton said. "We have to have some hope for a football team in the city, and it certainly is not good for the young man to just hang around for three or four years. But in order for a kid to be beneficial to us, he has to be here for the education. That's the priority."
