Commission Defers Rezoning, Passes Construction Requests

Southern's request for rezoning of the South East section of Carbondale was deferred till October by the Carbondale Planning Commission at a two hour session Wednesday night April 15. This action was taken at the request of John Rendleman, SIU general counsel, in anticipation of getting that area under urban renewal. If urban renewal is successful, disamies the request entirely," said Rendleman. He objected to designating the area under urban renewal; instead he recommended rezoning of the area. He also recommended rezoning of the area a blight area.

William Buim, director of Community Conservation, explained that "people who feel that the University can purchase property cheaper from urban renewal authorities are 100 per cent mistaken." He pointed out that the part that would go to property owners would be based on "market value." In the commission meeting passed a motion by Mrs. Barbara Rendleman, chairman of the zoning committee, to approve two new requests for dormitory construction. Approval was given to the Egyptian Dormitory Land Trust to build a dormitory at 508 to 510 S. University to be joined to the existing dormitory. It will house about 80 students. Steam Clark's request for a 64 student dormitory at 418 to 420 S. Graham was also approved.

The commission also accepted a report on a bond issue for recreational facilities in Carbondale, Kenneth B. Miller, chairman of the plan on bond issue, outlined the plan which calls for $375,000 on bond.

"This will not give us the community building and swimming pool we need," Miller said. He expressed a hope that in about 1 1/2 years, a bond issue for these facilities would be taken.

The plan calls for neighborhood park facilities of three categories: for little children, teenagers and young adults, and for adults.

How ‘Real’ Is Artist’s View of Things?

Herbert L. Fink of SIU Discusses ‘Painting’, ‘Landscapes’

By Rona L. Talcott

Why would an artist choose to paint in a way different from what appears as reality?

“Has it been a frequent question for many people when looking at abstract forms.

“The artist is constantly looking for new ways of saying things,” says Herbert L. Fink, chairman of the Art Department. His work is currently on exhibit in the Mitchell Gallery.

“I have been painting seriously since ’38,” Fink said. “The more you become involved in a discipline, the more real it becomes. Paintings are not paintings, but actual landscapes.”

Fink walked over to a large painting that was done in black and browns, a composition with calligraphic line quality. It was part of his Mounds series, paintings he has been inspired to do by a group of men in Mounds, Ill., who played jazz music with a jug, kazoo, and homemade instruments.

He pointed to lines in the painting. There were people, horses, instruments, and tools. “If you have eyes to see,” he said, “you can follow the lines of the painting and see or feel the Mounds setting.”

“I try to make each line say as much as it can say.”

Although some of his drawings and lithographs in the show were detailed and portrait-like, Fink said, “As much can be communicated with a single line as with a completed figure.”

Discussing the intricacy of his work, Fink said, “I try to make the complexity of my work equal the complexity of life. But at the same time, I try to bring order to life.”

Fink’s show includes drawings, prints, and paintings. Although he has won several awards for his prints, he has not done a print in a year and a half.

“The use of different media is a cyclic thing. Right now, I am doing a series of paintings composed of black areas and white lines. There is a problem in getting true blacks and true whites,” he said.

The general direction of Fink’s work is determined by each work. A print or painting is started with an idea, but the work will take its own form and direction. Evaluating his present work, Fink gets ideas for the next. “One work begins another.”

With Fink’s rigorous schedule as chairman of Southern’s growing Art Department, it is difficult to conceive that he finds any time for his own art.

“You don’t find time...you make it. I start by getting up very early. Before the day even begins, I have been working in my studio for two hours,” Fink said.

“At home I become husband, father, what have you.” When his children are in bed and his wife is reading, he continues his work in a quiet studio in his home.
Second Beckwith Murder Trial Also Ends in Deadlocked Jury

Jackson, Miss.—A second white Mississippi jury deadlocked Friday in the Byron De La Beckwith murder trial which Circuit Judge Leon L. Parlier again declared a mistrial.

It marked the end of the state's second effort to convicted, for the fourth time, a convicted segregationist, of the murder of the Negro integration leader Medgar Evers.

The jury said it was hopeless to deadlock after 10 hours of deliberation. It gave no breakdown of how it stood.

De La Beckwith's trial ended Feb. 7 with the jury deadlocked 4-8. Judge Hendrick called the 'jurors into the courtroom at 11:30 a.m. and polled them as to whether they thought they would agree with anyone else a verdict.

The emphatic replies ranged from: "I don't look too good to I wouldn't think so" and "No, sir."

"I have never been in favor of forcing a verdict," the silver-haired 69-year-old old judge said, "I have never been in favor of wearing out 12 men such as you are. You are dismissed."

Hendrick ordered Beckwith removed to the sheriff and returned to jail.

The judge said the case would be continued to May term of court.

Long-Smoldering Rail Crisis Near Showdown

Compiled by Associated Press

The current railroad strike threat is as serious as any in modern times. The dispute has been smoldering for four years. Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, and Johnson all have had to deal with the possibility of a general rail strike over the work rules controversy which brought the railroads to within 87 minutes of a nationwide shutdown just a week ago.

The negotiations have been in progress this week not far from the watchful eye of President Johnson.

The end of a 13-day moratorium will come at midnight Friday. If no agreement has been reached, the strike will begin at one minute after midnight.

The dispute began when the carriers demanded the elimination of certain diesel firemen's jobs and a reduction in the size of certain crews. "Feather-bedding," the carriers claimed, is costing them hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

A shutdown was averted when Congress intervened, banning a strike for six months and referring the two major issues to a special arbitration board.

In November the board ruled that the railroads could eliminate 90 per cent of the firemen's jobs and refer the question of the size of crews to further arbitration by individual railroads.

The unions challenged the award and it was upheld by the U.S. Court of Appeals and then taken on up to the Supreme Court.

The unions have been trying to break the united front of the railroads by maneuvering for individual contracts. Such a move against the Illinois Central Railroad 80 days ago precipitated the present crisis.

Public opinion seems to be with the railroads. Many impartial observers have voiced a belief that most of the disputed jobs constitute little more than featherbedding, from which the railroads derive relief.

A strike could have a serious effect on the national economic situation.

About 200,000 rail workers would be directly involved, and another 500,000 carrier employees would be out of work if the lines shut down. An additional 3 million other persons probably would be laid off in industries relying on rail transportation. Mail service would be curtailed, shortages of some consumer goods would occur and exports would begin to drop. Administration economists believe a 90-day walkout would reduce the gross national product by $75 billion, and even with a quick rebound in the strike the GNP would show a $25 billion deficit for the quarter in which the strike occurred.

The probable effects of a nationwide strike are quite serious. Because of the interdependence of the various industries and the fact that railroads cannot be managed to enact arbitration legislation, he held that a union strike or a railroad strike management cannot come to an agreement themselves.

In November, he said, would be "a hard fight, a difficult one." But he quickly added with a grin: "I would hope that it wouldn't be too close, but it may be."

Johnson opened his news conference with the joking reassurance that "I did not drive myself over here," a reference to the stories that have been coming out about his fast driving on Texas roads.

He also said:

1. The nation's Gross National Product rose in the first quarter of this year at a rate of $608.5 billion, up $4.5 billion from the fourth quarter of 1963. The Gross National Product measures the value of the goods and services produced in the nation.

2. "We are making real progress in cutting down unemployment. We had a net gain of 1.5 million jobs from a year ago. The payroll rate dropped from 5.8 to 5.4 per cent."

Johnson was asked by the public argument revolving around Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Air Force Secretary Curtis E. LeMay, with LeMay saying the U.S. edge over Russia has been narrowing.

"I am pleased with our strength," Johnson replied. "I think we have made great gains during the last three years."

In discussing the national economy, he said that while employment and production have climbed to record highs, prices have remained firm.

Labor has gained more than four million jobs and $56 billion annual income. Johnson went on, while business has gained a 50 per cent profit increase after tax. At the same time, he said, prices have remained stable higher than anywhere else in the world.

American business under the circumstances does not need high price levels, Johnson said. So he said he looks to responsible business leaders to help maintain price stability and lead the way to a balanced budget and a strong enough competitive stance in worldwide trade to wipe out the balance-of-payment deficit.

Scholarship Program

Johnson announced he is establishing a program of presidential scholarships, for secondary school graduates, public and private. This is to encourage preparation, technological and intellectual pursuits, he said. The scholars would be chosen by a presidential commission, headed by Dr. Milton Eisenhower, Leonard Bernstein, Katherine Anne Porter, and others.

He said the commission would operate with complete independence and would be named in May of this year.

Long-Ranging Rail Policy Parables Indicates He'll Run

WASHINGTON — At a far-ranging news conference Thursday President Johnson came closer than ever before to confirming that he'll run for president in November.

The conference was heavily attended, and, as he took note, was well-advertised in advance. It was carried live on radio and television.

Johnson also said that the economy and defense are in good shape and called again for prompt passage of the civil rights bill now being debated in the Senate.

"We will pass the civil rights bill because it is morally right," he said.

At the same time he deplored extreme measures that would seek to dramatize their cause by civil disobedience tactics.

Of course, condone violence or taking the law into your own hands, or threatening the health or safety of others," he said.

"You really do the civil rights cause no good, and you harm the cause."

"We do not think the violation of one right, or the denial of one right, should permit the violation of another right."

Johnson seemed relaxed and confident as he talked, slowly and often with a half-smile, of the program facing him as president and displayed.

"I'm enjoying the job and I'm prepared to continue."

That was one of several references bringing him closer to the almost universally accepted belief that he will run for president in November. He called him in August to run for president in November, up to Thursday, however, he had hedged, even denied even the possibility he might run.

He said at one point that he expected that he would be "a hard fight, a difficult one." But he quickly added with a grin: "I would hope that it wouldn't be too close, but it may be."

Presidential Race

WASHINGTON -- Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon appears headed for another shot at the White House, newspaper editors from across the nation forecast.

They think Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey or Atty. Gen., Robert F. Kennedy will team up with President Johnson on the Democratic ticket.

Nixon, Humphrey and Kennedy were rated the front-runners in an informal Associated Press poll of 150 editors, here Thursday for the convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

But ma., of the newsmen said they couldn't hazard a guess at this stage of the 1964 political races.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the ambassador to South Viet Nam, ranked second to Nixon—but with fewer than half as many editors in his column.

Vincent Will Lead On Mound Today

A pair of strong - armed right-handers, John Hotz and Gene Vincent, may dominate Southern's pitching choices this season if they continue to perform in the same manner they have since the Salukis returned home from their spring tour.

With the regular season just four games old, Hotz and Vincent already have worked 30 of SIU's 34 innings and are likely choices to draw starting assignments in the Salukis challenge Arkansas State in a doubleheader tomorrow at Blytheville, Ark.

The Hotz-Vincent combination has been among the best this season so far, and there is no reason to think there is a let up in pitch that has led to four wins and 16 saves while Hotz and Vincent lead the team with a 13-0 shutout.

Bernstein, a junior from Chicago, currently leads the Salukis in batting with a solid .467 average and has shown veteran poise at his third base position.

Undefeated SIU Golfers Play Evansville College on Monday

SIU's undefeated golf team, 3-0 in dual match competition this season, travels to Evansville, Ind., Monday for an afternoon meet with Evansville College's Purple Aces.

Coach Lynn Holder's Salukis, bolstered by the return of star golfer Glenn Vincent, are expected to challenge Arkansas State in a doubleheader tomorrow at Blytheville, Ark. Tennis Star Lance Lumsden Invited to Play in Davis Cup

Lance Lumsden, varsity member of the Saluki tennis team, has been invited to participate in the Davis Cup tournament in Venezuela early next month.

Lumsden, a native of Jamaica, received a long - distance telephone call this week inviting him to return this year. He played in the tournament a year ago, in which his team lost to Ecuador, 3-2.

Teams from all over the world participate in the tour - nament. Jamaica, Lumsden's home, is a member of the Caribbean Island group, which sends three players to the tournament.

The Davis Cup tournament is considered one of the top tennis tournaments and is the highest level of competition for tennis players. "It's like the Olympics," Lumsden exclaimed.

His participation in the event would require his absence from school during the week's Purdue quadrangular tourney. Kent Collins and Bob Hardcastle, former Saluki stalwart, will also play in the match competition.

The first session at 8 a.m. in Room 148 of the Agriculture Building, Cleve - linger will speak on the history of his University, which is one of the largest book and edition printers and binders in the country.

Dudman Raps Latin Policy

coup and nothing else,” he added.

He added that it quickly turned into a military dictatorship which has taken away constitutional guarantees of a number of important persons in Brazil “many of whom were no further left than liberal.”

Another “bungle,” according to Dudman, was Johnson’s quibbling over the language involved in statements concerning our differences with Panama recently.

“The President was too inflexible in refusing a commitment to revise the Panama Canal Treaty when everyone knows we are to revise the treaty,” Dudman said.

Dudman said that although the State Department and the administration have denied it, the United States obviously has embarked upon a new policy toward Latin America.

Under the policy we have indicated that we will no longer withhold recognition in cases of a military coup.

“Brazil is the first major application of that new policy,” Dudman said. “Our rejection of the new military government is an indication that because of American investments in Latin America, we are going to pay less attention to democracy in Latin American countries and more attention to stability,”

Dudman, who recently returned from a tour of Latin America, said the United States continues to push “free enterprise” in Latin America although to those nations it is synonymous with Yankee imperialism.

When You Should Stop Advertising

WHEN man becomes a creature of habit so thoroughly he will certainly buy this year where he bought last year...

WHEN younger, fresher and spunkier concerns in your line cease starting up and taking “your customers” away through advertising...

WHEN population ceases to increase and no new folks want to live and work in your town...

WHEN you have thoroughly convinced everyone who ever has or ever will be in your store that they will now and forever get better buys from you...

WHEN business principles reverse themselves and the non-advertiser does more business than the successful advertising merchant...

WHEN men stop making tremendous strides in business through well-planned newspaper advertising...

WHEN you can forget the words of wise merchants the world over who attribute their success to the use of newspaper advertising...

WHEN you would rather have your own way even if you fail, than to follow sound advice and win success...

WHEN you want to be rid of all the troubles of waiting on customers and are tired of making money!
