Council: Halloween needs change

By Jake Spüner

The City Council split support Tuesday night over canceling Carbondale's not-so-halloween celebration.

Although the council did not agree on ways to change the celebration's negative image, it did agree that the celebration will not continue in its present form next year.

Councilmen John Yow and John Mills and Mayor Neil Dillard agreed with the city's recommendation to cancel the street party. But Councilmen Richard Morris and Tim Hester said plans should be made to improve the party.

Tuxhorn said the city and University failed to utilize party to attract residents and students to the city.

"We have done everything we can to make this celebration work," he said.

But Yow said he could not support an event that allowed the open consumption of alcohol. "I feel the elimination of public consumption is the first and foremost step," he said.

Dillard said he has attended the event and "loved it. I feel enough energy has been put into improving the party."

"It's not perfect, but it's been successful," he said.

Dillard added that the train to change the party is moving down the tracks.

Mills said he believed public opinion favors ending the party and "we don't want to make a confrontation downtown."

Yow said that if the party is canceled, attendees will find a way to have an event.

Deputy City Manager Jeff Berkey said, "We have an event that would be a fantastic event that would be in compliance with the code and people would come here and have a wonderful time."

Ready, set... vote!

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

Candidates are busy with last minute campaigning as students go to the polls to vote in the upcoming Student Government elections today.

At stake: The presidential and vice presidential seats, 41 senatorial seats and one student trustee seat.

William Brokovich and David Lindsey, the two candidates, were pulled off the ballot because of academic ineligibility. However, a recent write-in candidate was allowed to run in a special commission decision made last week. The total number of senatorial candidates stands at 30.

Three presidential team candidates and two student trustees are in the race.

The ballot also will carry the following referendum items to ascertain student opinion concerning:

- A University and USG proposed full fall schedule.
- Reallocating multiple polling places.
- A special 50-cent-per-student, per-semester fee for the Obelisk II yearbook.
- Deliah Hughes, USG elections commissioner, said polling places will be tended by at least one commissioner.

Students don't know AIDS effects—expert

By Tracy Sargenti
Staff Writer

Students know all the basic facts about Aquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, but don't deal with it so because they can't see the effects happening to their peers.

Richard Keeling, a research investigator and expert on AIDS, said.

Keeling, director of the Institute of Medical Research at the University of Illinois in Urbana-Champaign, was speaking at a meeting of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

"We talk about new realities and greater challenges," he said. "And we talk about the chance to recognize elements of behavior which can increase risk of infection*, Keeling said.

He listed common barriers that people have about practicing safe sex in order to entitle. "AIDS: New Realities and Greater Challenges* at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Student Center Ballroom D.

In a press conference about his lecture, Keeling revealed he requested the presentation for a public AIDS awareness education.

We talk about new realities and greater challenges," he said. "And we talk about the chance to recognize elements of behavior which are associated with increased risk of infection," Keeling said.

Among the facilities slated for closure are Fort Sheridan along 10 miles north of Chicago and Chanute Air Force Base near Rantoul.

The recommendations of the Base Closure Commission are final and based on inaccurate, out-of-date information, Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill., and colleagues. "The process has not served us well. It has become an embarrassment."

"Chanute Air Force Base should not be on any closure list. It does not meet the criteria set by the commission. It is clear from the transcripts that commission members were not familiar with Chanute."

"The commission was guilty of dishonesty and unfairness regarding Fort Sheridan at least," said Rep. John Porter, R-Ill., whose district includes the fort. "The House should have rejected their work and sent them back to the drawing board."

However, the fight was not entirely over. Foes of the plan have been busy convincing legislators that the base is needed to pay for the shutdown, but the heavy vote for its retention is in favor of the shutdown and reflected the strategy behind legislation that created the commission: that those who escaped the hit list would band together to force the closures into effect.

The base closings also face a court challenge filed Wednesday by a union representing about 1,000 civilians employees at three of the installations slated for closure.

A spokesman for Gov. James R. Thompson said hope for averting the closings is unrealistic.

"We don't know what kind of odds people give those kinds of things," he said.

Beaches beyond spill site spoiled by Exxon Corp. oil

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) - Oil from America's biggest spill for the first time soiled beaches beyond the site of the environmental catastrophe and outside the bounds of Exxon Corp.'s cleanup plan, officials said Tuesday. Officials confirmed that patches of oil stained a mile of beach near Seward, southwest of Valdez, making it the first beach to be blackened by amount in an Alaskan spill, site of the spill March 24 of more than 10 million gallons of oil aboard the Exxon Valdez tanker.

Switzerland arrests businessman on warrant

BERN, Switzerland (UPI) — Saudi Arabian businessman Adnan Hashogg, once one of the richest men in the world, was arrested Tuesday on charges of conducting an attempt to kill the tentative fiscal 1990 accord and order negotiators to produce a more comprehensive package. The bipartisan spending plan was announced last week by President Bush and congressional leaders.

Group to donate 70 acres for quail

The Shawneetown chapter of Quails Unlimited will provide 45 plots for quails' nesting and feeding in the Shawnee National Forest.

The Shawneetown chapter signed an agreement with the U.S. Forest Service Tuesday to use $5,000 in labor and materials to improve quail habitats in 70 acres of the Ute-Horne Gap area of the Shawnee National Forest in Pope County.

Bruce Gowan, chairman of the Shawneetown chapter of Quails Unlimited, said the group has organized a fund-raising drive for $10,000 to match the interest in increasing the number of quail.

Gowan said he hopes that by matching the existing habitats specifically for quail, the number of quail will rise to one for every four or five acres of the forest.

Rod Sallee, forest supervisor for the Shawnee National Forest, said the groups were brought together by common interest in increasing the number of quail. He said if the project goes well, state agencies like the Department of Conservation may help sponsor similar projects.

Gowan said his chapter will plant shorter, warm season grasses, which were originally native to the area, the quail population will increase.

Gowan said the Shawnee forest biologists estimate there is one quail for every 10 acres of the over 300,000-acre forest.

Gowan said he hopes that by improving existing habitats specifically for quail, the number of quail will rise to one for every four or five acres of the forest.

The 1959 American LaFrance fire truck is being traded in for a newer model.

"We need reliable equipment if we have to drop back to the reserve," Rushing said.

The City Council approved the purchase of a 1988 FMC Pump Truck Tuesday night for $33,007 with a 4 1/2 year payment.

"When we start the truck and take off, we take off. Rushing said. "Those miles are rough on the trucks."

The need for expensive customized parts have caused problems for the department in the past.

The highest bid to buy the whole truck was about $1,000.

Wage debate forgets needs of universities

A BILL TO increase the minimum wage will soon be on President George Bush's desk from the Congress that will request a raise to $4.55 in the minimum wage. Its provisions are of interest to everyone. For 1980-1990, the University have to fund 25 percent of the program and the federal government's share will decrease to 75 percent. So Congress' approval of the deficit that would be created by the minimum wage increase are grim. The study estimates that tuition would have to be maintained at the current level. The full minimum wage was enacted after three years or that 1,350 student jobs would have to be eliminated or student work hours would have to be reduced by 15 percent.

AGAIN, THE fact that these estimates are premised on a continued rate of subsidy for the work study program means that repercussions probably would be even greater. Each year the minimum wage is raised, a number of young or unskilled employees will be deeply affected by the minimum wage increases. A usual example is fastfood, but another one is lowest minimum wage employees who are higher education institutions. Because a $4.55 minimum wage would shoot the University $50 million, the student workers, either pay through their wallets or through reduction in service which the University now offers—academic or otherwise.

POSHARD IS on the labor and education committee through which the minimum wage bill was approved before moving to the full house, yet Poshard's spokesman said he had not heard a discussion on the impact within higher education. It is clear that the impact of this bill on higher education has not been considered.

The Congress and the president must remember that public higher education is a subsidized institution. Higher education institutions are designed to mass a profit nor does it. A federal law that would cost as much as a raise in the minimum wage, without complementary funding increases, would spell problems that should not be ignored.

Remember to vote today

Today is the big election. Don't forget to vote. The "progress Party" candidates, Tim Hildebrand and Lisa Sprague, are at the polls and have promised that if elected, they will have a focused and feasible platform, and promise to uphold it.

For the students, you are eligible to vote in the student trustee election!

‘Rock lovers’ show no regard for the social impact of music

It is quite all right with me that ‘some people like heavy metal’ as I am one of the latter group. I don’t like heavy metal music because I personally think that this brand of ‘music’ promotes nothing but hyperactivity, violence, and very often vulgar statements.

I wouldn’t call something music that is filled with four-letter words, has an abundance of phrases like this: “Fk you, I hate you, but I had to kill her, and I had to bury her in my backyard.” Is that rock and roll or something? I don’t know. Very sadistic attitude, anyway. And not acceptable to me as music. Because according to my definition, music is an art with some sort of theme, not plain vivacity and vulgarity.

This argument applies to some ‘soft rock’ too. For example, those obscene gestures that have been seen in music videos performed by Michael Jackson and Sheena Easton in her latest video.

I have recently discovered that even many American rock lovers don’t always understand the lyrics well—I spare me! What happened to you rock lovers when you became so obsessed with your sense of deconomy.

Have you guys ever thought about the social impact of this kind of music? The kind of music you listen to or especially on kids all over this country and even abroad?

To talk about abroad, I always wonder if we have any sense of respect toward people of other countries, especially so-called ‘poor’ third-world countries. Otherwise, why would some people always refer to them in a disrespectful manner while they make a point? Why bother Bangladesh or San Salvador when you are discussing Bon Jovi?

I don’t know much about San Remerino, but let me give you a piece of information, especially when you people seem to be so ignorant. Those half-naked Bengal-speaking people of Bengal, which is now known as Bangladesh and the state of West ‘Indies’ in the US, have given a Nobel prize to world famous poets, authors and philosophers, but you people even won a Nobel prize! So please don’t make any unwarranted references in your letter. Especially when you talk about intellect, sophistication and the other big words so much and so often.

—Partha Basu, graduate student, botany.

Not all metal songs are thoughtless

I am writing this letter in response to a letter in the April 11 issue. The letter was written by Brad Seifert and was a poor attempt to discredit the signing you re-read your letter, Brad.

According to your definition, you are an educated person—2) what their goals were to achieve them; and 3) what, if anything, students got in their education with their opponents’ platforms. If you read, you have been able to read an accurate and in-depth report concerning the debate, it would have erased the student belief that ‘I want candidates to vote because I don’t know the candidates or the issues well enough.’

Instead of printing a precise report of the debate, reporting who won, the DE chose instead to waste its time and resources ‘digging mud’ on the candidates. Unfortunately, students got a lecture in criminal law, and didn’t get to see the real candidates for our state. You must print irrelevant material, please don’t do it at the expense of the student and legitimate news.

Instead of emphasizing the students’ right to know who you should’ve emphasized the debate which has more importance for the student and their well-being than their political, insignificant police reports.

Please, I expect more from our DE. Let’s see some responsible journalism starting with an accurate and detailed report of the US candidates. One of those people even won a Nobel prize—Partha Basu, junior, physiology.

Coverage of USG debate not precise

Once again our campus newspaper failed to live up to the title of the “Daily Enquirer.” The USG debates which were held April 11 were both exciting and informative. The students were able to see the candidates at their best.

The candidates discussed: 1) What issues do you care about and how they intended to achieve them; and 3) what, if anything, they would do to improve their country’s position with their opponents’ platforms.

If you would’ve been able to read an accurate and in-depth report concerning the debate, it would have erased the students’ belief that ‘I want candidates to vote because I don’t know the candidates or the issues well enough.’

Letter stereotyped heavy metal fans

A gentle rebuff to Brad Seifert who claims all people who listen to heavy metal need to develop an intellect and who also claims the ‘individuals who stand up and praise this type of chaotic music are misfits who lack purpose.’

I have never seen ignorance displayed so convincingly as I did when Brad stereotyped display as convincingly as heavy metal fans. While Brad has been slamming the Arena for booking too many bad bands, but in a clever, interesting themes that are very creative. Brad, by stereotyping all lyrics of heavy metal bands and to condemn the people that listen to heavy metal as misfits, he is very immature.

On April 7, when Mike Edwards wrote his letter on his bust and metal, I did not think its content could be surpassed. But Brad has proven me wrong. —Jerry Bellak, senior, pre-dentistry.

Satire on metal bands was funnier than comics

Lately the DE editorial page has covered some of the comic pages! I have been following the Mike Edwards heavy metal ‘campaign’ and having the best time.

Perhaps the University should offer a class; titled ‘Satire on metal bands was funnier than comics’.

Brad displayed more of his intellect when he said heavy metal lyrics ‘don’t require any thought to write nor do they provide thought after they are sung’ and implied hard rock does not have a ‘theme to their music.’

Some bands classified as heavy metal may fit this feeble opinion, but may bands classified as Metallica, Queen’s, Metal-X-Ray, Dio, Helloween, etc., express satirical manner —crazy kid! Believe me, I would be banging my head in San Remerino or Bangladesh if I was not so busy holding my side. —Beth Kasi, senior, advertising.

Board undecided on how to collect needed funds

By Jeanne Dickier
Staff Writer

The fate of two student interest groups rests on the Board of Trustees' decision on how to fund these two groups. Two student groups want to become SIU's representatives on matters of education, environmental issues and consumer concerns in the Illinois legislature. These groups are the Illinois Public Interest Research Group, and the Illinois Student Association, based in Springfield. Both groups deal with higher education issues, but IPIRG also addresses environmental and consumer problems.

The SIU Board of Trustees is taxing another month to decide how funds for these groups should be collected. The ISA has been at SIU-C for about 10 years, operating on a $20 per year membership fee paid from Undergraduate Student Government money. David Starrett, executive director of ISA, said.

However, this year the ISA is getting away from the flat fee system and moving towards the student fee system. If SIU doesn't organize the student fee system, ISA will not be able to provide its lobbying services for SIU, and eventually SIU will be phased out of ISA's service, Starrett said.

A mandatory refundable fee for all students, Under this system, students would be charged a $1 fee, but they would have the option to have the fee refunded. "At present, SIU is one of our strongest members," he said.

"SIU dropped out of ISA for one year because they were frustrated with the letter-head organization," Starrett said. "It's only been over the last several years that we got an office in Springfield." ISA has a lot of potential and is realizing that now, Starrett said.

"We would love to have gotten a decision (about funding) at the board meeting," Trudy Hale, IPIRG representative, said. We have a lot of work to do this summer to get this thing started in fall." Hale said a fall start was still possible thanks to dedicated student volunteers who would start working as soon as the funding issue was squared away.

"We have pages and pages of volunteers," she said. Over 10,000 students signed a petition to start an IPIRG chapter at SIU last year, Hale said.

IPIRG is asking for a $3 waiverable fee to be collected on a negative check-off system. Students would be charged the fee unless they specifically checked a box which said they did not want the fee.

Once the fee was collected, it would not be refundable. "IPIRG and ISA have complementary agendas," Hale said.

They have similar structures since they are both student run. They are both separate from the University system, student funded, and they pursue issues in the same manner: through lobbying and working on behalf of students.

"It is not uncommon for them to work together, hand in hand," Hale said. "IPIRG and ISA together equal better student rights." Hale said the "flood-gate" effect that was brought up at the board meeting would not occur if IPIRG and ISA got their funding requests.

"Sports Journalism: How the Game Has Changed" will be the topic of a lecture that will be given 7 p.m. Wednesday night at the Morris Library Auditorium by award-winning sports columnist, editor and author Dick Talley.

Talley, a 1958 graduate of SIUC, is speaking in conjunction with journalism week. The lecture is sponsored by the SIU chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists.

David Bennett, executive director of the Illinois Press Association, was scheduled to speak, but will not appear because of professional obligations.

The Cubs of '69: Recollections of the Team That Should Have Been.

Talley's latest book, will be published in April. Talley has worked as a leading sports columnist for the Los Angeles Daily News and the Chicago Tribune during the last two decades. In addition, Talley served as sports editor for the now defunct tabloid Chicago Today from 1968 to 1974.

Talley has won numerous awards for his writing, including a first place in the best column writing category for large circulation papers by the Associated Press sports editors national competition. Also, Talley has been named Illinois Sportswriter of the Year by the National Association of Sportscasters and Sportswriters.

Over his career, Talley has covered all of the major sporting events in the United States and abroad, including the Olympics, Super Bowl, World Series, Wimbledon and the major golf tournaments.
A proposed Illinois House bill that would cancel high school dropouts' drivers licenses or permits if they choose to drop out of school is getting mixed reviews from Carbondale Community High School officials and students.

Student Writer

"Most officials agree that if the proposed bill were passed, it would keep high schoolers from dropping out. "In many cases, it would force kids to stay in school, because a car may be their only form of transportation," Margaret Hollis, principal of Carbondale Community High School Central Campus, said.

"My only concern would be about reluctant learners who don't want to be in school and are stuck there because of the law," she said.

Despite Hollis' reservations she supports the bill because people would have to get a diploma or the equivalent to keep their driver's licenses. "It would provide an incentive for them to get an education of some type," Hollis said.

In Carbondale, there is a program specifically designed for meeting the needs of high school dropouts. Operation Rebound offers three hour blocks of classes in the morning, afternoons and evenings to help dropouts complete their high school credits or review for the GED.

"Though kids in our program do have a better chance than kids in other cities that don't have the same opportunities, it would make a difference if the bill passed," Charlotte Wittenberg, a counselor at Operation Rebound, said.

"Driving comes with responsibilities, and kids have to prove they are responsible before the privilege is extended," he said.

Students at Operation Rebound agree that if the proposed bill was passed, it would make a difference whether they remained in school or not.

Karen Tellor, 17, agrees with the proposed bill, because it would encourage people to stay in school and get an education. "It's as good idea. Kids need to stay in school," she said.

The current law states that if students pass driver's education and receive a permit or license, it cannot be taken away from them if they drop out after completion of the class.

Prof: Employee information could be abused

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A University of Illinois professor Tuesday said many of the nation's largest companies do not have policies guarding against the misuse of sensitive or confidential information kept on their employees.

David Linowes, a professor of political economy and public policy, said more than half of the Fortune 500 companies responding to a recent survey do not inform employees of the types of records maintained on them, how the information is used and to whom the companies disclose the information.

Linowes, speaking at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C. is the author of "Privacy in America: Is Your Private Life in the Public Eye?" The book is scheduled to be released April 28.

"Employees are in many instances, denied access to all or portions of their own files, while the employer may release the same information to third parties," Linowes said. "These records are too often outdated, inaccurate or simply unnecessary. And worse, the vast amounts of personal information collected about every man, woman and child in the U.S. is stored and transferred at the press of a computer key but without anyone's knowledge or consent.

Linowes, former chairman of the U.S. Privacy Protection Commission in 1977, said nearly every state has passed legislation to regulate information gathering that threatens individual privacy. But, said this "patch-quilt" approach is not effective and a national policy is needed.

Such a federal law, he said, should give individuals access to — and the right to correct information — records about them and require that information collectors minimize intrusions into individuals lives by asking for more information than is needed.

In Linowes' survey, 42 percent of the 126 firms participating said they do not find it necessary to inform employees what information is being gathered about them. He said more than half of the responding companies use private investigators to collect or verify information concerning their employees and 15 percent reported using portable or "truth-detecting equipment."

He attributed the increase to heightened concern about drug use, AIDS, cigarette smoking and general health consciousness.

"Employees are in many instances, denied access to all or portions of their own files, while the employer may release the same information to third parties," Linowes said. "These records are too often outdated, inaccurate or simply unnecessary. And worse, the vast amounts of personal information collected about every man, woman and child in the U.S. is stored and transferred at the press of a computer key but without anyone's knowledge or consent.

Linowes, former chairman of the U.S. Privacy Protection Commission in 1977, said nearly every state has passed legislation to regulate information gathering that threatens individual privacy. But, said this "patch-quilt" approach is not effective and a national policy is needed.

Such a federal law, he said, should give individuals access to — and the right to correct information — records about them and require that information collectors minimize intrusions into individuals lives by asking for more information than is needed.

In Linowes' survey, 42 percent of the 126 firms participating said they do not find it necessary to inform employees what information is being gathered about them. He said more than half of the responding companies use private investigators to collect or verify information concerning their employees and 15 percent reported using portable or "truth-detecting equipment."

He attributed the increase to heightened concern about drug use, AIDS, cigarette smoking and general health consciousness.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — University of Illinois professor Tuesday said many of the nation's largest companies do not have policies guarding against the misuse of sensitive or confidential information kept on their employees.

David Linowes, a professor of political economy and public policy, said more than half of the Fortune 500 companies responding to a recent survey do not inform employees of the types of records maintained on them, how the information is used and to whom the companies disclose the information.

Linowes, speaking at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C. is the author of "Privacy in America: Is Your Private Life in the Public Eye?" The book is scheduled to be released April 28.

"Employees are in many instances, denied access to all or portions of their own files, while the employer may release the same information to third parties," Linowes said. "These records are too often outdated, inaccurate or simply unnecessary. And worse, the vast amounts of personal information collected about every man, woman and child in the U.S. is stored and transferred at the press of a computer key but without anyone's knowledge or consent.

Hoffman's brother doubts drug-caused suicide

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI) - Hoffman, a political activist who was found dead last week, was accused by a traditional Jewish ceremony," said Florence Hoffman, the actress's sister.

Among the dozens invited to the event were Bill Walton of the Boston Celtics, Barbara Walters of ABC News and Jerry Rubin, a fellow Chicago Seven defendant in the case arising from the violent anti-war protests at the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Abbie Hoffman, a co-founder of the Young International Party in the 1960s, was twice divorced and is survived by children and one named America.

Caribbean journalist to speak about Grenada

By Marc Blumer Staff Writer

SOLANO, a Caribbean journalist and political activist, will give a lecture titled, "Teaching the Grenada: The Caribbean and Central America Today" at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Wham Building, Davis Auditorium.

The lecture, which is sponsored by the Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee, the Abraham American Studies Association and the University Honors Program, is part of a program of events tied to the Grenada rebellion and Central America Today.

Sosa is currently secretary for the formation of the Anti-Imperialist Organizations of the Caribbean and Central America. Since 1986, Sosa has served as a visiting scholar for the Department of Art History at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

Walgreens to build local support facility

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) - The Walgreen Co. plan to construct a $40 million distribution facility in Mount Vernon beginning next month, company officials said Tuesday.

"The center initially will support the stores throughout the Northwest and the southeast and as a capacity will serve 400 stores," the company said.

The 362,000-square-foot facility is being built on a $14 million incentive package from the state, including a $140,000 grant from the Community Development Assistance Program grant.

Construction is expected to begin next month with completion scheduled for summer 1990.

efforts when you have a majority of congressmen not affected by base closings." Thompson spokesman David Fields said. "He's trying to be realistic.

"We have to prepare for the closings. We have to get on with the business of replacing those jobs," he said.

After the vote, Madigan, whose district includes Champaign, said he was not surprised.

"I knew we wouldn't win, but I always felt that our best route to success was through the appropriations process, which is a lot to come at, or through the courts, where one lawsuit has been filed already, and another, on different grounds, is about to be filed," he said.

The plan marks the first major effort in a decade by Congress to shut down a group of domestic bases.

The White House's report calls for closing 34 major military installations and 32 smaller sites, including a shutdown of five large bases and the "realignment" of others. None of the bases will be closed before January 1996, and the work must be finished by late 1996.

Nearly 13,000 military personnel and 7,000 civilian workers are expected to lose their jobs nationwide, but they will be given first crack at openings elsewhere under a special job placement program.

The commission estimated that its plan would ultimately save $84 million a year, after the cost of shutting down the bases is met.

USG constitutional by-laws specify that two election workers be present at each polling places at all times. Hughes said much of the volunteer staff are members of fraternities, sororities and student organizations, but more poll workers are needed. Hughes said the presidential results should be known by late Wednesday night as commission members have until 5 a.m. to count ballots at Fayer Hall. Senatorial and student trustee results will be known by the end of the week, Hughes said.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the following locations:

- Student Center
- Grinnell Hall
- Trueblood Hall
- Lentz Hall
- Communications Building (west end)
- Lesser Law Building
- Technology A Building

Only undergraduate students can vote in the USG general elections and referendum items, but graduate students can vote in the student trustee race, Hughes said.

Fall workers will check for identification to see if the person is eligible to vote.

Rape prevention to be taught at PREP seminar

By Tracy Sargeant

Helping people realize that rape happens on college campuses and teaching people ways to prevent rape are the goals of the Program for Rape Prevention, Susan Powell, PREP coordinator, said.

A half day of free workshops entitled "Cultural Violence Against Women" will take place from noon to 4:30 today in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

The sessions are set up so people can come and go whenever it's convenient, Powell said. The workshops are sponsored by PREP, Women's Services and the Campus Safety Board.

"We hope to let them know about each topic and teach them ways to prevent (cultural violence)," she said.

Date rape culture, presented by Valerie Johnson, will kick off the workshop from noon to 12:30 p.m. It presents how society condones violence through cultural attitudes, Powell said.

Cultural violence against women is prevalent in the media and everyday life, she said. Nancy Bandu, assistant athletic director, will present a workshop on sexual harassment from 1 to 3:15 p.m. Danby said she hopes to increase people's awareness about what sexual harassment is by talking about why it occurs, behaviors towards sexual harassment and what people can do about it.

Copies of SIU-C's revised sexual policies brochure will be handed out. Danby said. "In love or in danger? When relationships turn violent," presented by Dr. Beth Greenfield, coordinator for Women's Services and psychologist at the SIU-C Counseling Center, will be from 2 to 5:30 p.m.

Firestein said she will cover the dynamics of violent relationships and what people in violent relationships can do to get help.

"It's important that people know more about this," it's estimated that 21 to 65 percent of college-age students have been victims of at least one act of violence by their partner," Firestein said.

The event will be a date rape panel discussion featuring Susan Powell, Sally Allbright and Dr. John Deitchmann, from 3 to 5:30.

A set of talks from each covering information, psychological effects, responses, services available to victims and men's role in prevention of rape will be followed by a question and answer period.

Bill Johnson, professor in radio-television, said University students will produce the show and then send it to MTV. Johnson is the field coordinator of the production.

"MTV wants to do a feature on it (the regatta)," he said. MTV asked that the tape show different aspects of the event, Johnson said.

Outrageous boats, interviews with boat captains, the campus itself and possibly an interview with Richard Archer, the organizer of the regatta, are what will be featured, Johnson said.

Profs hoping for Soviet visit to study U.S. environment

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (SINS) — A conversation in a field of lamas near Boulder may have opened the way for a handful of Soviet students to study in Colorado.

A team of professors from Colorado State University and the University of Colorado proposed the exchange after meeting with Soviet environmental officials this month during a tour to Moscow and Leningrad.

"They didn't pull any punches in describing the problems they face," said Robert Lawrence, a CSU political science teacher who organized the trip.

Lawrence said the trip originated in a conversation he had with Prof. T. Morgoun, director of the Soviet State Committee for the Protection of Nature.

The committee, comparable to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Protection Agency, was formed by decree last year.

Fired publisher hired by Christian magazine

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — The former publisher of the Dayton Daily News, fired from the newspaper in June when he refused to accept advertising from a homosexual rights group, has accepted a job as editor of a Bible school in Chicago.

Lawrence, who has been hired as the general manager and executive director of the Moody Bible Institute's Moody Monthly magazine, Jerry Jenkins, vice president in charge of periodicals at Moody, said the business and editorial divisions will report to Shere.

"We're extremely pleased that Dennis will be working with us. Until he had several options available to him," Jenkins said.

Moody is an evangelical Bible school offering four-year degrees and specializing in Bible studies, with students training for the pastorate, Christian education, music and mission careers, said Shere Fischer, a spokeswoman for the Moody Bible Institute.

Shere was fired from the Daily News for refusing to accept classified advertising from a homosexual rights group. The dispute, advertised, submitted by the Dayton Gay and Lesbian Center, announced a speakers' series at the center, said David Easterly, president of the newspaper's parent company, Cox Newspapers Inc.

At the time, Shere said, "In the past I have tried to balance my Christian perspective with the demands of running a newspaper. I have compromised where appropriate without violating my principals. My conscience and concern for this community would not allow me to compromise on this issue."

"They (Soviets) didn't pull any punches in describing the problems they face."

Robert Lawrence

The two men met while Morgoun was attending a conference in Boulder and while Lawrence was escorting a Soviet photographer to a llama farm near Boulder. During that conversation, Morgoun suggested that a group of Colorado professors meet with environmental officials in his country.

Lawrence now hopes to initiate a privately funded program that will bring two Soviet graduate students to CSU by the 1990 academic year.

CU biological sciences professor David Inouye also hopes for an agreement to send up to 10 Soviet students to study with him at CU's field research station in Nederland.

During the trip, Lawrence said the Soviets described serious air and water pollution caused by heavy industries such as coal, iron and magnesium production.

The Soviets list 10 cities which are deficient in air quality standards, compared to 43 in the U.S., said CSU earth resources professor William Marlati.

While in Leningrad, the professors got a first-hand lesson in Soviet environmental problems.

Although the Soviets were frank in discussing their own environmental problems, one subject that didn't come up during the trip was the disaster at the Chernobyl nuclear plant three years ago this week.

"It was one of those things that we didn't make an attempt to bring up and they didn't either," Marlati said.

Doctors unable to save hand of bombing victim

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Surgeons failed Tuesday to save the hand of a 5-year-old girl wounded in a K mart department store by the explosion of a small pipe bomb described as "a little more sophisticated" than the average such device.

Officials sought two men for questioning because they believe the explosion happened at a fast pace with slices on their faces, but said there was no hard evidence linking them to the bomb.

Employees provided descriptions and police artists put together composite sketches of the men. K mart offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to convictions in the case.

Investigators determined the bomb was hidden inside a pump toothpaste-type container that exploded when type container that exploded when it was touched. Police determined the bomb was hidden inside a pump toothpaste-type container that exploded when it was touched.

Sgt. John Brooks, a bomb expert from the Marion County Sheriff's Department, said Erin Bower was holding the device when it exploded as she, her parents and 1-year-old sister shopped at the store.

Erin was listed in serious but stable condition in Methodist Hospital, where doctors amputated her left hand just above the wrist Tuesday. The bomb blew away all but two fingers of her left hand.

"The rest of her hand was recovered by paramedics at the store about an hour after the blast, packed in ice and rushed to the hospital. Surgeons said there was too much damage to try and reattach the fingers."

Charles Petersen, agent in charge of the Indianapolis office of the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division, described the device as a pipe bomb containing black powder and BBs.

He said it was made of three-quarter-inch pipe.

The girl's mother, Maurine, 30, sustained minor injuries. Her husband, Kevin, 30, and the couple's 1-year-old daughter, Megan, were in another aisle and not injured.

Husband charged in slaying

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A former auto parts store manager was charged with murder in the shooting death of his wife Tuesday as police investigated the slaying of the man's wife and three children in what could be the worst mass murder in Montana history.

Montgomery Police Chief J.L. Bryant said his department was called to the city jail late Tuesday to treat a suspect with razor-blade cuts to both wrists. A spokesman at Jackson Hospital, Vicky Jones, confirmed that Carter was treated at the hospital Tuesday and returned to police custody.

"At the time he was in stable condition," she said. "He was released into the custody of probation.

The wife's mother arrived at the crime scene at about 11 a.m. Tuesday and wailed, "They killed all my children. Lordy," before being led back to the family car.

If all four victims were murdered by the same person, it would be the worst mass murder in the city's history.

In 1996, Quang Ngoc Bui of Montgomery was convicted of the knife slayings of his three children.

Lucille Ball undergoes heart surgery

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lucille Ball, 78, known to millions as the daffy redhead star of television's "I Love Lucy" show, was hospitalized Tuesday after suffering a heart attack and underwent surgery, a hospital spokesperson said. Her condition was listed as "very serious."

Ball, 78, was taken to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center at noon and heart surgery began about 2 p.m., hospital spokesperson Ron Wise said.

"Her condition must be viewed as very serious," he said.

Ball was experiencing chest pain and "bad symptoms of a heart attack," Wise said.

The team of King, Staten and McMahon took first place in the competition, winning a chance at the national competition in Washington D.C.

SIU-C moot court team wins

University News Service

A team of law students from the University took first place at the American Bar Association regional moot court competition held April 17 and 18 at Indiana University.

The victory, the team's fourth in five years, means a chance at theABA national competition for the fifth year in a row. ABA finals will take place in August, in Washington, D.C.

Team members are Kimberly A. King, a third-year law student from Peoria and second-year students Kimberly A. Staten of Chicago and Stephen W. Stone of Decatur.

Competing against representatives from law schools in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, the SIU-C team argued a hypothetical dispute over financial responsibility for damages awarded to a person beaten by city police.

Its victory was especially sweet as a second SIU-C team consisting of second-year students Luke Bentley II, Murphyhers, Steven J. McMahon of Union Grove, Wis., and Scott D. Bjorseth of Carbondale, had suffered a quarterfinal round defeat at the hands of Chicago-Kent.

Telethon to create scholarship fund

By Theresa Livingston

Staff Writer

The University's Student Alumni Council has resurrected its senior telethon and plans to use the proceeds to establish a scholarship fund for future seniors, Patricia A. McNeil, assistant director of Alumni Services, said.

"We have some dynamic students here on this campus that give their time and contribution as much, but are struggling to make it. Why can't we help them out, recognize their contributions," McNeil said.

McNeil said the group, which is in its ninth year, held a telethon three years ago, but had discontinued the fund-raising activity.

"It was a telethon (a telephone) three years ago, but this is the first time we've gone out in an all-out effort to raise money," McNeil said.

McNeil said that the group has set a $10,000 goal for the two-night telethon, which began Monday night and will continue tonight.

The volunteers are asking the students to donate $10 to the fund; $5 for the individual's first year membership in the council and $5 for the scholarship fund.

McNeil said the council also had written former members, asking for a $25 donation to the endowment fund.

"We've already received $100 from former members, some of whom I had the good fortune to work with, and they're so happy we're continuing with our efforts," McNeil said.

The endowment will underwrite the costs of the group's Super Student Scholarship, which is awarded each spring semester to juniors who will be full-time seniors the following autumn.

The recipient also must have a minimum 3.2 grade point average and work to pay for their academic career.

Chairman creates fund for freshmen

By Theresa Livingston

Staff Writer

The chairman of Civil Engineering and Mechanics has established a $1,000 scholarship for next year's incoming freshmen civil engineering students at the University.

Braja M. Das said he will privately fund the annual scholarship, which he claims as his only charity, to encourage enrollment in the University's three-year civil engineering program.

"I have a scholarship bag, grew up in fairly bad circumstances and since I'm now making a little bit of money, I think I should pass it on," Das said.

Das said the scholarship, while open to "all good students," will have a slight preference toward female and minority students.

"Females and minorities make up 60 percent of the U.S. population, yet this figure is not reflected in the engineering mainstream," Das said.

James Evers, associate dean of Civil Engineering and Mechanics, said the recipient would be selected on the basis of high school standing and transcripts, outside activities and test scores.

Evers said the student affairs committee, a standing committee comprised of members of the college that are reelected annually, will make the final decision on the applicants.

The University's civil engineering program is fully accredited and offers both undergraduate and graduate level degrees.

Deadline for applications is June 15.

Paul Venier is not really a joke teller, he says, but more of a "thing myt, the 34-year-old nightclub comic said.

"My approach is to use props. For instance, I'll put sunglasses on and do a Ray Charles impersonation at the keyboard," Venier said.

Venier, who has appeared on "Late Night with David Letterman," said he saw law enforcement. said she saw he paid Illinois and he Jazz concert ticket orders can An Elvis impersonator who also played "straight" comedy in his act, Venier also com-

'Major League' a grand slam; bags big bucks at box office

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - The winning streak of "Major League" stretched into a second week as the baseball comedy dominated the box-office standings with a gross of $7 million in 1,615 theaters.

Starring Tom Berenger, Charles Tatum and Corbin Bernsen as key players in a story of a resurrection Cleveland Indians team, "Major League" has bagged $18.4 million in two weeks.

On second base for a second consecutive week was the humor-filled "The Dream Team," dealing with a quartet of young moviegoers, made its opening in New York City after leaving an institution.

"The Dream Team," starring Michael Keaton, John Cusack, Perry King and Steven Furst, pocketed $5.3 million at 1,800 theaters for a two-week tally of $11.5 million.

Two newcomers, both aimed at young moviegoers, made their debuts last week to good, though not spectacular, business and placed third and fourth in the box-office listings.

No. 3 was "Say Anything..." which bowed $6 million in 2,017 theaters. Written and directed by Cameron Crowe, "Say Anything..." was famous for its many romantic moments.

"Something is funny but after incorporating it into the act, it doesn't go. I'll use it for a few weeks and then it's not working by then, I throw it out," Venier said.

"It's been a real challenge, I have things that go over great that I didn't think were funny. So it works here and it doesn't there," Venier said.

Venier is famous for slowly building his audiences into a new one every week. He doesn't want to stop. It's hard for me to stop and get motivated again. I just keep on going," he said.

Venier has been known to produce and direct the audience up to stage to write a theme for his jokes. He also conducts sing-a-long sessions.

"Sometimes I just play music while other times I'll just do comedy, but I also enjoy mixing the two," he said.

Venier began his career in show business as the lead vocalist, guitarist and keyboard player in New Jersey's No. 1 rock band in the mid-70s.

Venier's songwriting talent has not been stifled since his decision to abandon rock 'n' roll and take up the microphone of the stand-up comedy stage.

Aside from the comedy tunes in his act, Venier also composes pop ballads and TV-movie soundtracks.

Venier appears regularly on "Rascal's Comedy Hour," a syndicated series, which may be purchased by HBO.

He also co-wrote and starred in a cable TV pilot, "C'LT," which also stars Rodney Dangerfield and Rick Dees. Of his comedy act Venier said, "When I see a person leaving the show and laughing, I knew I did my job. That's what this is all about."
Two lottery winners come forward, two remain

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dan Dixon and his family will travel first class now that the engineer holds one of four winning lottery tickets in a $20 million Illinois lottery jackpot.

Dixon, 38, and his wife, Mary, bought their winning ticket at a convenience store in Lisle, Ill., a few miles west of Chicago. The winning numbers were 14, 32, 40, 46 and 54.

The New Jersey members of the clan flew to Chicago early Wednesday to claim their share in what will be traveling from here to New Jersey, said the Dixon family. An engineer who retired two years ago, Dixon was among the family members who formed the Matlosz Family Partnership to divvy up the winnings, had agreed early that they would share any lottery winnings.

He said the family buys tickets all over the country when the pot gets big enough. He said he bought 15 tickets for Saturday's drawing.

"I sat down at the kitchen table Saturday night and checked all the tickets except one," he said. "And then we got one with a perfect match. I was hoping I was the only one."

Dixon said he then called the rest of the family to inform them and "told them I believed me." He said he checked the ticket himself and called the Lottery Hotline three times to make sure he had the right number.

"It's great," Dixon said. "It's a lot of money. It's just incredible!"

North American record Friday when lottery officials humped the jackpot from $50 million to $62 million. The largest previous North American jackpot was California's $61.98 million payoff that went to three groups last October.

The previous largest jackpot in Illinois was $44 million, won by Mike Wittkoski on Sept. 1, 1984. The jackpot started off at $22 million April 8 when no one matched the six winning numbers in a field of 54, and by Monday had risen to $41 million.

Sharp said ticket sales Saturday were the best ever, averaging $1.4 million per hour and 485 transactions per minute.

Consecutive rollovers on combined with strong sales, resulted in jackpots, Sharp said.

E. St. Louis school district seeks $20 million loan from state board

COLOWNVILLE (UPI) — The superintendent of the financially troubled East St. Louis school district asked state officials for a loan of $20 million to ease its financial woes.

Superintendent Elmo Bush personally presented the loan proposal Monday to State Sen.ads, Illinois superintendents of education and a state group in Colowville.

During the meeting, officials from several schools in the St. Louis area asked for an increase in state aid for education.

Bush submitted his plan to Sandeers shortly after a meeting of the district's board, which gave unanimous approval to his loan proposal.

Sandeers, asked to the No. 2 job in the U.S. Department of Education, promised to study the plan.

Under the proposal, the state would lend $20 million for the district to pay off its accumulated debt. The district, which has about 16,500 students, would have to repay the entire loan over the next 10 years.

As part of the loan proposal, the district would also file an operating budget with the state during each of the next 10 years. If the district stayed within its yearly budget, the state would forgive half of the annual repayment.

The district's board voted last month to send layoff notices to 910 of its 1,800 employees to close schools as budget-cutting measures.

The district, which has a $70 million budget this year, wants to borrow the money to pay off $21 million in unpaid bills. Bush said the district also would need to borrow about $8.5 million at the end of the year to cover the deficit for the next July and August.

The loan proposal did not mention a specific amount, but Bush said the loan would have to cover both the unpaid bills and the summer payroll.

The Illinois Board of Education is holding a series of town meetings around the state to give representatives from financially troubled school districts a chance to express their needs and meet with legislators and state board members.

Chemical union strike ends; workers not assured of jobs

SENeca (UPI) — The International Chemical Workers Union Local 41 has ended its 10-month-old strike against Explosives Technologies International and union members waited Tuesday to see if they would be called back to work.

Some 210 employees walked off the job last June 18 following two and a half months of mediators' fruitless talks. Local President Rick Ammerman said the agreement on a new one-year contract — the first between the union and ETI — was reached late Sunday.

Ammerman said the agreement calls for a 2 percent across-the-board pay hike for all hourly workers, who made an average of $12 an hour, with another one increment before the strike.

Key obstacles in resolving the labor dispute, he said, were the hiring of replacement workers and the ETI's proposal to use temporary workers during the winter months.

Ammerman said the settlement provides for an 18-hour vacation for each worker, but it was unclear whether the strikers would be called back to work.

ETI manufactures commercial explosives for quarry mining and construction industries and ships the explosives nationwide.

Daley downplays dispute between Democrats

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard M. Daley Wednesday tried to downplay a split between Democrats that could give the Republicans a working majority.

Sen. Frank Savickas and Sen. Gary Joyce have aided Republicans on two recent state Senate votes, and Daley has refused to reappoint Savickas to his post as assistant majority leader, according to members of the Senate Democratic Caucus.

"It's great," Dixon said. "It's a lot of money. It's just incredible!"

The New Jersey members of the clan flew to Chicago early Wednesday to claim their share in what will be traveling from here to New Jersey, said the Dixon family. An engineer who retired two years ago, Dixon was among the family members who formed the Matlosz Family Partnership to divvy up the winnings, had agreed early that they would share any lottery winnings.

North presented at trial as both patriot and liar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawyers for the Iran-Contra trial bitterly argued Tuesday whether the United States is persecuting a patriot or a habitual liar who adhered to Adolf Hitler's strategy: "The victor will never be asked if he was telling the truth."

Prosecutor John Keker, accusing North of lying throughout the course of the scandal and even to his own jury, said the ex-White House aide considered lies as a first resort when arranging a U.S. arms sales to Iran.

"Lying had become a habit; deceit had become a watchword," Keker said of North in a two-hour, 20-minute closing argument.

But defense lawyer Brendan Sullivan forcefully retorted that the weight of American government is focused on convicting North, a retired Marine Corps lieutenant colonel and former staff member of the National Security Council.

"They'll do anything to get Colonel North," Sullivan shouted. "This is a phoney case from start to finish.

Sullivan charged the prosecution tried to "throw dirt in the jurors' eyes" and divert the panel by numbers from "weak" accusations against his client, who "put his life on the line" in Vietnam "to protect freedom and democracy." "The government hasn't climbed Mount Everest; they haven't planted the flag on the top of eachount" and proved the case, Sullivan said.

After 50 witnesses and more than 256 exhibits in North's 8-week-old trial for allegedly lying to Congress and government officials and gaining financially from the secret operations, Tuesday's closing arguments were the last efforts by the lawyers to review North's role in the worst scandal of the Reagan administration.

Sullivan was to finish his statement Wednesday; then Keker will offer a rebuttal argument. Thursday, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell will instruct the jury on the law and then seques ter them for deliberations.

If convicted of all 12 charges, North faces up to 60 years in prison and $2 million in fines.

Keker, who quoted liberally from the Bible, Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson in his closing argument, Wednesday, said the jury of 12 should "boil his secret work.

North and Robert McFarlane, the national security aide in 1985, told inquiring lawmakers in three letters that North committed 12 felonies in dealing with Iran-Contra arms to Iran and to the Contras.

In dealing with Congress, Keker said, North and McFarlane were driven by "Adolf Hitler's strategy, which was the victor will never be asked if he was telling the truth.

A Josep McFarlane, Keker said, "was man enough to admit he told lies to Congress. McFarlane was convicted last year for withholding information from lawmakers in three letters.

Keker said North believed, "The Iran-Contra, Congress will stop asking questions.

Sullivan was incensed by the Hitler reference, fuming back in his closing argument with a passionate attack: "To have Colonel North's name and Adolf Hitler linked in this courtroom should send a course of rage through every room in the court. This man is not Adolf Hitler!"

The prosecution charges North was ''scrupulously deliberate in a lengthy effort to dodge inquiries into his secret work to get U.S. arms to Iran and to keep the Contra rebels alive at a time when official and was banned by Congress.

The defense claims North did nothing without the express approval of the highest-ranking member of the Reagan administration — including Ronald Reagan.

Charges against North include lying to Congress in 1985 and 1986 letters, lying to the attorney general in November 1986, accepting an illegal gift of a $13,800 security system for his home, converting more than $4,000 in traveler's checks to his own use and tax fraud.

Keker said the falsehoods North allegedly told over up his role in the scandal became a habit that came into the courtroom. He flatly ac cused North of lyin "the jury when he said he was $15,000 "family fund" in a box bolted to the floor of a closet at his home.

"Lies start on the tongue but end at the heart," said Keker.

Wright’s inquiry just the start of long process

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — Though the ethics investigation of House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, Jr., of Massachusetts, is proceeding as a preliminary inquiry, is often compared to a grand jury investigation. After gathering evidence and testimony, the committee used a "reason to believe" standard to find that Wright may have violated House ethics rules.

Now the 15-member panel begins a process that could lead to a trial. At this stage, the committee will determine whether Wright should be found in violation of House rules until an impartial standard of proof — clear and convincing evidence — is met.

"In the absence of clear and convincing evidence, then the rule is in favor of the (House) member," said Rep. Charles Pashayan Jr., R-Calif., an ethics committee member who is also an expert on constitutional law.

Both the committee's special counsel, Richard Phelan, Wright's attorney, William Sullivan, and investigators present witness and other evidence to the committee.

"One gets a statement of alleged violation, the recommendation of the committee is more like a trial," Pashayan said. "All that a preliminary inquiry has is whether there are enough facts that warrant beginning a formal charge."

Also during the hearing, the committee would decide what punishment for Wright, if any, to recommend to the full House. The committee can recommend sanctions ranging from a reprimand to a fine, $200 to $10,000, censure or expulsion.

At the least, the committee must recommend sanctions and recommend no formal sanctions to the House. Or it can recommend that Wright be fined, reprimanded, censured, stripped of his position as speaker or expelled from the House.

The resolution is the most serious, and the rarest, form of punishment.

A simple majority of the committee is required for a vote to recommend denial of enforcement, or of censure of Wright. If a two-thirds majority is required for expulsion of Wright.

But even a lesser penalty, such as a reprimand, force Wright from the speaker's chair. Many House Democrats say he couldn't survive such a public admonishment and would be forced to step down.

If Wright is convicted of a violation of house rules, he can be expelled under the provisions of the Constitution.

If convicted of a violation of House rules, he can be expelled under the provisions of the Constitution.

The process, from now through the hearing phase, could take well over two years, said Wright, who died in 1990.

A quick resolution of the case would serve to minimize damage to Wright and the Democrats.

House Republicans have made it plain they want to prolong Wright's troubles with the ethics committee, forcing the speaker into a defensive posture and eroding his ability to lead. They also plan to use Wright as a symbol of corruption in the Democrat-controlled Congress.

avoid the HIV infection, such as not knowing one's sexual partners, communicating to a potential partner about the AIDS risk, not really getting to know the potential partner before engaging in a sexual relationship, especially in the cases of suspected sexual contact or date rape: misinformation between the two partners; and alcohol.

He stressed the seriousness of alcohol-related contacts on college campuses and the fact that normal judgement about a potential partner is affected by alcohol consumption. "When you are drunk you will have sex with someone if you've never had lunch with," Keeling said.

He also connected the problems of AIDS to other issues such as poor peer pressure, mixed media messages using sex to sell products and a lack of applying the knowledge of AIDS to prevent HIV infection.

"I hope to focus some of their attention on specific issues of AIDS, and risk reduction for the (students) that are at risk. Risk reduction is primarily based on education," he said.

This is important in having good communication skills, especially about knowing what is a risk and what is not in a potential sexual encounter, separating sex from alcohol use, proper protection by using condoms and not sharing needles, Keeling said. He visits college and university campuses as part of a combined consultation and education program to deal with reducing the HIV AIDS virus infection among college and university students.

"In the first place I hope to work with people here at SIU to help them improve the kinds of programming they do, to evaluate what they are doing and to share some ideas about what is working in other places," Keeling said.

He explained that in his presentation he tried not to talk much about basic AIDS information but students "know most of that (information)" very well.

Keeling added that students know a lot about AIDS but don't necessarily do much about the problem. "He said it is difficult for college students to come to grips with the tragedies of AIDS.

"Tied to that, unfortunately, is the reality about the biology of AIDS, which is that the incubation period is so long that even if infected with the virus would seem and remain perfectly fine," Keeling said.

He commented that when students try to search for the evidence of AIDS they don't see it, "which does tend to stress the AIDS myth of that it doesn't or won't happen to me."

Keeling said that with AIDS education, scare tactics do not work.

"Scare tactics and AIDS education produce what I like to call the eight-mile cop phenomenon. The eight-mile cop phenomenon is what happens when you are driving on the interstate highway ten miles over the speed limit and you pass a (police officer), you slow down for about eight miles," he said.

"It's what happens with scare tactics. You get temporary but not lasting changes," he said.

Prowell said that programs aimed at changing behavior about AIDS seem to work the best.

"Teaching them things like how to talk and feel comfortable about decisions they make about safe sex and how to understand what is risk and what is not helps," he said.

"Peer based education really helps," he said.

"What I hope to leave behind in this slide show discussion, maybe a little controversy, some further interest in focusing on behaviors by students, and, I hope, some legacy of further interest in pursuing this issue," Keeling said.

Women’s tennis team overcomes injuries to win

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

Judy Auld and the women’s tennis team are experts on adversity. Playing without No. 1 singles Beth Boardman (torn ligaments) Tuesday, the Salukis lost Maria Coch (shin splints), Julie Burgess (pulled muscle) and Lori Edwards (pulled muscle) before the day was done.

After all the carnage was removed from the University Courts, SIU-C overcame the injuries to beat Eastern Illinois 3-2 to finish up the opening season at 1-4.

The Salukis are 10-2 in Gateway play and sport a 26-6 mark for the entire year.

“We’re kind of scraping along here,” said Auld, who enlisted field hockey player Nancy Hattrich as her sixth player Tuesday.

Auld said she expects Burgess and Edwards to be out two to three days, Coch practicing possibly by the end of the week and Boardman possibly practicing by early next week.

In singles action, Dana Cherubini, playing at No. 1, defeated Missy Hoiste 6-1, 6-2, Michelle Jeffrey beat Dawn Bramon 6-0, 6-4, Lori Edwards beat Jill Bachchn 6-2, 6-1 and Burgess beat Sue Cottingham 6-0, 6-1.

Eastern’s Angel Hossek knocked off Michelle Toye 6-2, 6-4 and Hattrich was downed by Lori Neste 6-0, 6-0.

On the doubles side, Cherubini and Jeffrey beat Hoiste and Kim Rhodes 6-2, 6-2, and Burgess and Hattrich lost by default to Bramon and Hoiste when Burgess’ pulled muscle took her out of action.

The final doubles match was postponed after a lengthy rain delay.

“I think overall we are still playing good tennis,” Auld said. “Over the weekend we were a little flat, and it was a little hard getting them up then.”

The Salukis’ 14-year veteran coach said some quality practice time with all players present and accounted for before the April 27-29 Gateway Championships could lead to a third league title in the 1990s.

Aside from a five-run explosion in the second inning of the first game that allowed pitcher George Joseph the leverage to preserve a three-hit complete game for his first victory, Jones was displeased with the team’s intensity.

“I’d like to know what’s in our players’ heads,” Jones said. “I want to know what their intensity is. From an offensive standpoint we only had one good inning in a total of four.”

Doubles by Tom Drake and Mike McCauley gave Southern Indiana a 3-0 jump on the Salukis in the second game. The Eagles added another run in the third on a three-nm double and three more runs on four hits in the fourth.

The Salukis had one extra-base hit, a third-inning double by Kurt Endebrock.

“We are not aggressive enough,” Jones said. “These guys take a game like it’s a practice. They do get ready to play and it’s a shame.

three runs scored. Venorisky went 2-3 with a triple and one run scored. The Salukis hit three triples in the nightcap.

Brechelshauer is pleased with the teams progress so far this season.

“Last year we had it freshman, six or seven of which were starting,” said Brechelshauer. “We won 30 games last year, but I like this team better.

“We are more solid this year, especially our pitching staff as a whole. Our freshman are standing out. Cher, has a big bat, Johansen is catching some key balls and Gibbs is a solid leader.”

April 19 through 21, the Saluki softball team is beginning to blossom. The Salukis have been hot in Carbondale as they downed Austin Peay 10-6 and 4-2 in a doubleheader.

Saluki Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer is eight away from becoming the only SIU-C women's coach to reach the 500 wins mark, but she's not that excited.

"That means the team is doing well," said Brechtelsbauer. The team advanced its record to 10-11 overall. Carbondale native Shelly Gibbs smashed one over the fence in the first inning of the opener. She then turned around in the nightcap to drive in three runs with an in-the-park homer.

In the bottom of the first inning of game one, the Salukis hit a hot spot and scored six runs over the Lady Governors. Assistant coach, junior Jan Agnich had a two RBI double. After the Salukis batted around, sophomore outsider Shannon Taylor drove in a pair of runs on a base hit on an error. The 10-run rule ended the opener in the sixth after the Salukis scored three more runs.

Sophomore third baseman Mary Jo Firebach and Gibbs got on in the sixth, ahead of freshman grinder Kim Johannsen to knock them in with a double. Johannsen scored from freshman shortstop Cheryl Venorsky's batting base hit. Venorsky went 3-4, scored one run, and had one RBI.

Johanssen and Taylor both had two hits and a triple. Firebach also had two hits.

Coach Brechtelsbauer said she took the Governor's seriously and both games could have been closer if the Salukis had made a few more errors. But Brechtelsbauer was quick to point out that the Salukis have the stronger pitching staff.

Sophomore Pitcher Jennifer Brown went the distance on the mound for the win. Austin Peay refused to be blanked by SIU-C in the nightcap. The Governors scored four runs but the Salukis' bats were bigger.

The Salukis trailed 10 after three innings but came alive to put three runs across the plate in the fourth, two in the fifth, and four in the sixth.

The Carbondale native, freshman Briti Darnell pitched a little more than five innings to get the win. Sophomore Traci Pursley replaced Darnell in the sixth to gain the save. Gibbs went 3-4 in the second game with three RBIs and two runs, while Taylor went 4-4 with four RBIs and one run.

Field hockey coach facing decisions

Players give thoughts on Illner's fate

When the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee cut field hockey last December, it cut the heart out of coach Julee Illner's life and career.

"Cutting the hockey program is like cutting her heart out," said Pat Matreci, former Saluki hockey player and personal friend of Illner.

Matreci, who graduated in 1975 and is currently a staff editor for South County Publishing, called Illner a special person to a player who could take any problem.

"She is No. 1. I have No. 2 a coach," Matreci said.

"If you needed a friend, she would be it.

"For freshmen it's the first time away from home and they can't go to their adviser. If it's a problem with class friends, she wanted to help you.

Matreci relates one summer experience at camp to show Illner's compassion for her players.

"It was the night before we were to return to Southern, and some of the players went to a bar named Kellys. We were drinking, and when we got back to camp we went crazy with some other university players playing laser ball streaking through the fields and we got caught.

"We were an embarrassment to the school, but Coach Illner gave really last her temper. She just never said a word," said Marie Verderber, a Daily Egyptian Photo

Field hockey coach Julee Illner says she will stay at SIU-C despite her sport being cut by the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee last December. Illner is a member of the physical education faculty.

"We were an embarrassment to the school, but Coach Illner gave really last her temper. She just never said a word," said Marie Verderber, a senior at SIU. She said the coach called a meeting of the team to talk about their loss and give them a message about discipline.

"I think she was very angry with us, but she didn't show it," said Verderber.

"We were a group of girls that didn't have a lot of experience, but we were a very close-knit team," said Verderber.

"It's a shame that they cut the sport because it's such a fun sport," said Verderber.

"It was a lot of fun to be a part of," said Verderber.
