$4.6 Million Loaned, Earned At Southern During Last Year

Work Program Is Major Part

During the 1965-66 academic year the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance has handled $454,723.95 through the SIU student work program, loans and private scholarships and grants, according to Frank C. Adams, director of student work and financial assistance.

This figure does not include SIU fellowships and teacher scholarships. If they were included, the amount would be well over $6 million, Adams said.

Fred Dakak, coordinator of student work and financial assistance, said these scholarships are not included in the total amount because no transfer on money is involved.

The largest part of the $4.6 million is $5,724,855.74 which went for students participating in student work program, the student work program, and other self-help programs administered by the office, according to Adams.

Private loans and scholarships and short-term loans to student on the Carbondale campus and National Defense Loans to students on both SIU campuses amounted to $875,720.14 during the past year.

Private loans and scholarships and short-term loans to students on the Edwards campus was $22,348,105 more.

The largest source of money, other than the student work program, is the National Defense Loan. SIU has asked for $17,202.90 for the first year, and loaned $5,125 of that amount. During the past year SIU requested $17,202.90 and loaned $5,125.

The discrepancy in the amount of money loaned is made up by former students who are paying off their loans, Dakak said. Their loan payments are put back in the SIU fund and loaned again to other students.

Love in Mythical Setting

Musical ‘Brigadoon’ Will Open

At 8 Friday Night in Shryock

The mournful wail of bagpipes and a love story woven into the mysteries of a magical Scottish village are the major elements of the final production of the Summer Music Theater.

"Brigadoon," Lerner and Lowe's first musical collaboration, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and Aug. 26 and 27 in Shryock Auditorium. The musical is the story of the experiences of two Americans who lose their way while hunting in the wilds of Scotland. They come upon Brigadoon, a magical Scottish village which comes to life one day every 100 years.

Tommy, played by Robert Guy, and Jeff, played by William McMuggie, are the Americans. Tommy falls in love with a lovely inhabitant of the mythical village, Fiona, played by Susie Webb. Jeff, a cynical young man, is chased by Meg, played by Elizabeth Webb, another Brigadoon dweller.

The young men go back to the states, but Tommy longs for Fiona. He goes back to find her, and his love for the young lass brings Brigadoon back to life.

The stage director for the play is Joseph Stockdale, who has directed 60 major productions for the Purdue University Theater. He is a professor of speech and director of the experimental theater at Purdue.

The choreographer and ensemble director is Gilbert Reed, director of the Ballet Department in the School of Music at Indiana University. He has also been a solo dancer with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The Department of Theater's production of "Medea" was a moderate success despite actress's forgotten lines and embarrassing pauses.

Sandra O'Sullivan played the tragic Medea well until the second act. She dropped her lines early in the act and had to be prompted for several minutes before regaining her footing.

Miss O'Sullivan must be commended for her work before and after this incident, however. She and Lynn Ziegler, the nurse, were by far the most impressive players.

"Medea" was adapted from the play by Euripides by Robinson Jeffers. It concerns the barbarian Medea who saves the life of the Greek Jason (of Golden Fleece fame) and marries him.

They live happily in the Greek city of Corinth and have two sons before Jason deserts his wife for the daughter of Creon the king. Creon banishes Medea and her sons because he fears she might unleash her barbarian mystical powers against his daughter.

The spurged Medea views revenge against Jason and his new bride and proceeds in killing the girl and his labor through poisonous gifts. Medea then "slaughters" Jason, leaves him in despair and departs for Athens.

Medea's sudden personality changes from the "revengeful" to the "forgiving one" were sometimes confusing until several lines had been spoken. Had the production been a more classic Greek style one would have expected the differences between the two faces to have been more exaggerated with gestures and voice pitch. In this "freely adapted" version, the director left me uncertain of what to expect.

At times Creon, played by James L. Moody, and Jason, played by Robert Wilsey, addressed Medea with their backs to the audience for long periods of time, but their voices carried in the small room.

In fact, the entire production staff did well in the small, unfinished experimental theater in the Communications Building. The theater definitely gives the air of a workshop rather than a stage and this, I believe, is what it is.

Student Government Policy

Policy Is All Take, No Give

To the editor:

It seems that the University sees fit to pass many of its regulations in the summer quarter when most of the student body is supposed to have a voice in the decision.

The policy of disregarding student concerns regarding the student body is one of the reasons why some students have an aversion to the student body. To have a voice in the decision is a perfectly reasonable thing to do.

It seems that the Housing Office has adopted a policy whereby no student can live in an unsupervised housing unit unless he has at least a 3.3. average, and with the probable cycle regulation, the student is also denied a economical means of transportation. It is a wonder that the University doesn't tell the students what to eat or whom to date.

It is foolish to say that cycles are not dangerous, but a bicycle ticket as an example of their danger is nothing compared to the Chicago Tribune has material to tap the administration as it did in the recent money request incident. This is why the Student Government is making this proposal look as ludicrous as the Tribune made the money request look.

Stamp for Beautiful America

Will Have First Sale Oct. 5

By Frank Graham

Copley News Service

The 5-cent stamp for the Beautification of America, urging users to place a 5-cent stamp for every 5 cents they save, will have its first day of sale Oct. 5 at Washington, D.C.

It will be in three colors and the design will show the Jefferson Memorial, framed by a bouquet of Washington's celebrated cherry blossoms.

The stamp was designed by Miss Gyo Fujikawa, freelance artist of New York City. It is the second stamp she designed. The other was the United States commemorative in 1963.

Sparked by high school students throughout the nation, a 5-cent stamp in conjunction with U.S. servicemen and to promote sales of savings bonds will have its first day of sale Oct. 26, at Sioux City, la., in a junior high school in the nation in which the drive started.

It is the sixth stamp design by Stephen Doan, West Side High School student.

He is the first in a series of four, the next being Oct. 26.

Scientists Have Fuzzy Ideas About Our Furry Ancestors

By Bryan Evans

Copley News Service

Albert, the superb male gorilla in the San Diego Zoo, has a fine fur suit. So do all of the other apes. So, scientists tell me, did my very remote ancestors. Why don’t I?

This simple little question propounded somewhat differently in science magazine has brought a flood of answers from scientists. The answers are subtle and well thought out, but they disagree.

H. Bently Glass, a John Hopkins University geneticist, stated off the bullhaldoo by innocently remarking that man lost his body hair because he took to wearing clothes and did not need it any more. He pointed out that man retained hair on his head to ward off wind and rain. Nobody liked this idea. It couldn’t be that simple. There is no known genetic mechanism for just turning something off when it is not used.

Loring Brace, of the University of California-Santa Barbara, pointed out that the people who wear the most clothes (Scandinavians, perhaps) have more hair than people who wear scarcely any at all.

Brace came up with another suggestion. In the primate tropical forest the ability to hunt long hours and get rid of body heat was a great advantage. Hairless man with many sweat glands had the advantage as a hunter. So, perhaps, the hairless races survived better than the races that could not take the heat because of hair.

In this view the hair went first and the clothes came later. Brace estimated that the hair was lost in a warm period a half a million years ago and clothing started with the onset of the glaciers. He has a side remark of some interest. It might have been the wearing of clothing that caused the emergence of light colored people. Dark skin is a protection against ultraviolet rays in the tropics and needless in the colder climates. This, of course, would explain why tropical people are darker than those of the temperate zone.

Phillip Herskonvitz of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago said that if Glass’s theory was right, then man should have lost the hair on his head first because actually the head is the easiest of all places to cloth. You can throw your arms over your head or use a big leaf. Contrary, he said, noses, ears and fingers remained relatively more exposed than clothes-covered parts of the body. So why don’t we have furry ears and noses and he also wanted to know, how can the retention of armpit and pubic hair be explained? Herskonvitz also remarked that babies shortly before birth have a luxurious coat of fur while they are in an environment that gives them the most complete protection they will ever have.

But to my way of thinking, Walter S. Olson of Scarsdale, N.Y., came up with the best explanation of why people lack fur coats.

His explanation goes something like this:

Long long ago when various humanoid types were struggling to make a go of it, they all had hair. Then there was one group that, because of a mutation, had a defective hair gene and came out bare. These, one may guess, were the "out" people.

But along with human evolution there was also insect evolution that produced ticks and lice. These ticks and lice carried diseases like typhus, spotted fever or the Black Death. This did not bother the bare-skin people. But, wrote Olson, "their furry cousins probably never could delouse or detick themselves (as anyone can appreciate who has tried to rid a long-haired dog of ticks)."

Thus a loose-born or tick-born epidemic could have wiped out all of the furry people and left just our ancestors.

Girls Evaluate Dates

Personality, Neat Appearances
Are Main Attractions to Coeds
By Carol Malburg

How do girls rate their dates? Well, fellows, in case you're not up on the latest, read on. There's no telling what you may learn, and it might even help.

As far as what a girl looks for in a date, well, it's the fellow with personality who wins, hands down.

"It's the personality that counts. How well a guy can associate with people has a lot to do with whether he is attractive or not," said Jan Johnson, a junior from Benton.
"It's not always the 'tall, dark, and handsome' guy who is the most popular.

"A guy with a jovial per son ality is fun to be with. It means a lot if he has a sense of humor and can make you laugh," said Judi Marsh, a freshman from Highland Park.

But personality alone isn't always enough. According to one senior from East St. Louis, "Sincerity, dimples, and a generally neat appearance make a guy attractive to me."

Contrary to rumor, fellows, not many girls agree that the best looking guy in the class dates.

Mary Todoroff, a freshman from Granite City, said, "Too often the handsome guys are the most concieited. They have had their way too long, and the girls go along with it because they want to make an impression. These guys just act too sure of themselves."

Inevitably, one will hear about the girl who measures her date by his bank account.
The girls feel differently about this, and who knows they might be standing up for the 'fair sex' and make some effort. "The fellows use their Hondas

to make an impression."

Another, a junior from Chicago said, "Yes, it will make a difference. Who likes to walk everywhere? I know I don't, so I'm afraid if I had to choose between a guy with a car and a guy without one, I guess I have to be honest and say 'I'd choose
the one with the car.'"

HARRY OR HE MAN?

Miss Todoroff also said, "I have just as much fun staying at home and watching television with my fianc6 as I do when we go out to some expensive restaurant."

Vicki Scott, a sophomore from Springfield, said, "If I can go out and have fun without spending a lot of money I'd just as soon. It's much easier to relax and be yourself."

The big big question in relation to transportation is whether the recent cycle ban will have any effect on dating.
Many of the girls don't think so, but there are a few exceptions.

One senior from Chicago believes that the ban

may have some effect. "The fellows use their Hondas
to make an impression."

Another, a junior from Chicago said, "Yes, it will make a difference. Who likes to walk everywhere? I know I don't, so I'm afraid if I had to choose between a guy with a car and a guy without one, I guess I have to be honest and say 'I'd choose
the one with the car.'"
Elementary teachers are working to solve basic problems in the teaching of reading at each grade level as part of the Specialist Training Course held at the University of Southern California. One of the major critical problems in a vast number of our elementary schools, said Robert J. Kibler, director of the Educational Research Bureau.

According to Kibler, one of the most convincing evidences of needs in the field of reading is the large number of reading programs sponsored by institutions under provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Concerned educators in many parts of the country are tackling the problem.

The Reading Specialist Training Course here was sponsored by the Central Midwestern Regional Educational Laboratory Inc. (CEREL), St. Louis. It is one of a group of reading laboratories set up under contract with the U.S. Office of Education to test innovative programs aimed at improving education.

The course was designed to train good teachers in elementary schools and improve their ability to teach reading effectively.\(^1\)

"It is to give as much attention as possible to problems that occur in the teaching of remedial reading, and to acquaint teachers with the newer materials and techniques in developmental reading."\(^2\)

Southern's training course brought eight remedial reading and other elementary teachers to the Carbondale campus. The participants received free tuition and honorary stipends through CEREL.\(^3\)

The training was directed by Frank E. Fink, associate professor in the Department of Elementary Education, and was projected to prepare the teachers as reading specialists.

Included in the program were three courses, two taught by Brod and one by Ted R. Bagdade of the Department of Elementary Education. Bagdade's course emphasized the remedial approach. In Brod's classes students worked primarily on skills common to all reading regardless of the approach used and took up some of the new approaches and materials. Some emphasis was given to evaluating pupil performance and diagnosing and correcting reading difficulties.

As an example of one of the projects carried out, Brod said that the eight students worked in pairs on four kinds of materials. One group worked up practice materials for what he called "word-attack skills." These included game type materials, charts and film strips. Another group made a list of workbook materials to develop word-attack skills, two others worked on workbook materials designed to develop comprehension, and the fourth pair worked on selected books which have high interest, low vocabulary content that would be used chiefly as supplemental reading materials.

The students, who received eight hours of graduate credit for attending the eight week program, also observed demonstrations in teaching and testing techniques.

Shouting Match, Oustings Mar Un-American Activities Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lawyers for a dozen answer witnesses stalked from a House Committee on Un-American Activities hearing Wednesday after a wild shouting match with committee members about removal of an attorney who was dragged from the room by three policemen.

The lawyers, who represented all of the witnesses involved in groups denouncing U.S. involvement in the Viet Nam war, said they no longer could represent their clients after Arthur A. Kinoy, a middle-aged Rutgers University law professor, was expelled.

Kinoy, chief counsel for two witnesses who have challenged the constitutional basis of the hearings by the Committee on Un-American Activities, was removed at the order of Rep. Joe B. Pool, D-Tex., the acting committee chairman.

"Throw us all out!" said Kinoy’s partner, William Kunstler of New York.

But after a brief recess, Kunstler and half a dozen other lawyers told the committee they were withdrawing, leaving their clients unrepresented before the committee.

At least 16 other witnesses were expelled today from the tumuluous hearings, bringing the two-day hearing to a close.

A scheduled hearing by a special three-judge federal court was postponed until further order of the court.

The order said the three judges needed more time to decide whether to proceed with the case of return it to a District Court judge.

Pool said Kinoy was removed because he was being "obstreperous" and did not conduct himself in the professional manner the committee required of lawyers.

Kinoy was dragged from the hearing room after he had refused to halt his objections to testimony about his client, Walter D. Teague.

Teague, who is chairman of the U.S. Committee to Aid the National Liberation Front of Viet Nam, is one of 13 persons subpoenaed to testify at the hearings on bills aimed at Americans who aid the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

Kinoy had challenged the testimony about his client by a recent Yale University graduate who works for the National Review magazine.

Republicans to Wage Election On Riots, Viet War, Inflation

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, Republican minority leader in the House, said the violence in cities, Viet Nam and inflation are issues Republicans will use to break the Democratic "stronghold" on Congress in November.

Ford told a Republican Day rally at the Illinois State Fair ground: "that President Johnson’s program "will not solve the Frankenstein mess which is damaging our prestige around the world and ravaging our people at home."

Ford was principal speaker at a grandstand gathering which also featured Charles H. Percy, GOP nominee for U.S. senator.

The Michigan congressional leader, criticized administration spokesmen for their comments in connection with recent racial disturbances in major cities.

"When high-ranking public figures, like Vice President Humphrey, talk about leading a riot themselves, they are encouraging a defiance of the law which is inexcusable in a civilized society," Ford declared.

"You read about the riots, the arson and the looting in our great cities, and you wonder if America has gone mad." Ford said the nation is "begging down" in Viet Nam and "in a mess with inflation."

The easiest and quickest way for you to clean up Viet Nam, stop inflation, bring down interest rates, and protect the lives, rights and property of us all—including all minorities—is to vote Republicans in and the Democrats out."

Johnson Lauds CIA’s Work, Pins Medal on Ex-Director

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has defended the often-criticized Central Intelligence Agency as he pinned a medal on Adm. William F. Raborn Jr., for his brief tour of duty as the agency’s director.

He expressed "deep confidence in the expert and dedicated service of personnel of the agency."

"They work in silence, sometimes they fall in silence, more often they succeed in silence," Johnson said.

"Sometimes they suffer in silence, for occasionally they are subject to criticism which they must not answer."

The medal was awarded to Raborn in a ceremony in the White House East Room. Johnson noted that Raborn had a distinguished naval career, including the job of developing the Polaris submarine, the President said when Raborn was called out of retirement last year to direct the CIA, the admiral stipulated only that he be relieved when a permanent director was chosen. Such a director, Richard Helms, a CIA career man, has now taken over.

Airline Strikers To Reject Pact? KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The president of the largest machinists local in the Trans World Airlines system said Wednesday he is dismayed by reports that other locals may reject the new contract offered by the airlines.

"Some of the contracts are better than this one," the president said. "The 10-year contracts are better than the five-year contract offered by the airlines."

"The contract offers us better wages and benefits, including a $1 raise per month, which will be given in two installments, and a 12½ cent raise for each hour worked at the end of the five-year period."

"The contract also provides for a new pension plan, a new profit-sharing plan, a new health and welfare plan, and a new education plan."

Johnson Lauds CIA’s Work, Pins Medal on Ex-Director

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has defended the often-criticized Central Intelligence Agency as he pinned a medal on Adm. William F. Raborn Jr., for his brief tour of duty as the agency’s director.

He expressed "deep confidence in the expert and dedicated service of personnel of the agency."

"They work in silence, sometimes they fall in silence, more often they succeed in silence," Johnson said.

"Sometimes they suffer in silence, for occasionally they are subject to criticism which they must not answer."

The medal was awarded to Raborn in a ceremony in the White House East Room. Johnson noted that Raborn had a distinguished naval career, including the job of developing the Polaris submarine, the President said when Raborn was called out of retirement last year to direct the CIA, the admiral stipulated only that he be relieved when a permanent director was chosen. Such a director, Richard Helms, a CIA career man, has now taken over.

Airline Strikers To Reject Pact? KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The president of the largest machinists local in the Trans World Airlines system said Wednesday he is dismayed by reports that other locals may reject the new contract offered by the airlines.

"Some of the contracts are better than this one," the president said. "The 10-year contracts are better than the five-year contract offered by the airlines."

"The contract offers us better wages and benefits, including a $1 raise per month, which will be given in two installments, and a 12½ cent raise for each hour worked at the end of the five-year period."

"The contract also provides for a new pension plan, a new profit-sharing plan, a new health and welfare plan, and a new education plan."

King Asked To Call Off Marches

CHICAGO (AP)—A proposal for moratorium on openhouse marches was laid before a summit conference of civil rights and civic leaders Wednesday.

Ely M. Aaron, chairman of the Chicago Commission on Human Relations, suggested that Martin Luther King Jr. and his associates call an immediate moratorium on marches that have caused a violent reaction in all-white neighborhoods.

Aaron said a moratorium was needed to prevent fomenting these communities into battle grounds for extremist and racist elements who are now flocking to these neighborhoods to foment more trouble.

Ben W. Heineman, chairman of the Chicago and North Western railroad, served as moderator.

Most of the conference devoted to making any statements before going into the meeting, arranged by the Chicago Conference on Civil Relations.

The discussions were called “very fruitful” by King and Heineman. They met for 2 1/2 hours.

Pioneer 7 Begins Sun Orbit, Checking Clouds of Radiation

CAPT. KENNEDY, Fla.—(AP)—Spacecraft Pioneer 7 raced into orbit around the sun Wednesday to test the “self-wind” great clouds of radiation that blow through space at a potential hazard to moon-bound astronauts.

Pioneer 7 darted into space past the sun 240 days ago by the United States launched Lunar Orbiter into a successful orbit about the moon.

Spurring a red-hot tongue of flame and an arcing tail of white smoke, a three-stage Delta rocket belted away from Cape Kennedy at 12:50 a.m. to start the 140-pound package of equipment and instruments on its marathon journey at more than 24,000 miles an hour.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported 40 minutes after launching that Pioneer 7 was in orbit around the sun.

Six spacecraft sensing devices were to be turned on later by ground command.

Officials said it would be several months before tracking stations could determine the precise orbit and whether the craft was properly stabilized to carry out its mission.

Unlighted Horse Draws Penalty

ELWOOD, Ind. (AP)—Doyle W. Davis, 21, Elwood, was fined today for improper lighting—on his horse.

A car almost hit the dark-colored horse at 3:15 a.m. Judge Richard West set the fine at $25, because Davis had been warned previously.

Proposal to Draft Reservists Stirs Opposition in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal to call thousands of young military reservists—newly exempt from combat service in Vietnam—ran into sharp questioning in the Senate Wednesday.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, contended that lifting individual from trained Army National Guard or reserve units might lessen their effectiveness.

He said it might be wiser to call up complete units.

Russell, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and President Johnson had decided against mobilizing entire companies or divisions of the reserves.

Russell said that if a guard or reserve company called in a community it often takes away several hundred young leaders, including men who have served in World War II Korea and probably some from Viet Nam.

He said the pending proposal would probably mean that only seven or eight reservists—whose only prior service was for training—would be taken from any unit.

TO BE TELEvised FRIDAY

Ex-Salukis May See Play In Cardinal-Colt Exhibition

The St. Louis-Baltimore exhibition game will be televised nationally on the CBS network Friday night as some of the professional teams get set for regular season action.

Starting time will be 8 p.m. Area fans of the Big Red will be watching for three doublets, two produced with the Cardinals. Sam Silas, Jim Bante and Jim Hart will all be on hand as St. Louis will be going for their third straight preseason win in as many games.

Defending champion John Powlless will be back in part to take the withdrawing Southern Illinois University Tennis Tournament to be held Aug. 27-28.

The play, under the direction of Saluki tennis coach Dick LeFevre, will take place on the SIU courts just east of the Arena.

Powlless, who will be teaming for his third straight title in the event, is currently the top-seeded player in the National Public Parks Tournament being staged at St. Louis.

The talented amateur from Flora had little trouble in second round play, easily taking John Pate of Los Angeles in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4.

Ante Prowing from Atlanta came up against the SIU player and was unable to stop the Powlless drive.

To keep Powlless from his crown in the Cardinal-Baltimore event will be two former players under LeFevre; Roy Sprung (of the group that won the national title), and Paco Castillo are expected to participate in the event.

The divisions of play will include both singles and doubles, with SIU's over 35--35 division in addition to the regular men's event.

Baseball coach Joe Lutz has already announced that SIU will be defending the first annual Governors Tournament to be held at Southern next week.

The six-team field will include both the SIU, the University of Illinois, Western Illinois, Arkansas State and the Chicago R. C. C. C. University of L. K.

$6 Million Spent

In Loans, Awards

Since the beginning of the program, SIU has loaned $2, 392,901.50 to students, during the past year 1,064 full-time students and 35 part-time students borrowed money under the National Defense loan program here.

Dakak said statistics about the National Defense loans and work programs in operation on campus seem to point out that "Women are willing to work rather than borrow, but that men rather borrow money to get through school."

He noted that the ratio of male to female students on campus might have some effect on the validity of this conclusion.
