Debts, disinterest trouble Obelisk II

This month's large baggage fees should be used to fund the financially-troubled yearbook. "I hope the Obelisk can be as successful as the U of I yearbook," Hall said. "Adding Volume II did make the yearbook more attractive to the students.

The source of funding should be from the Student Government.

Cave Valley bridge site of controversy

An environmentalist group believes the U.S. Forest Service could be in violation of the National Environmental Policy Act because of their refusal to stop reconstruction of the Cave Valley Bridge. Gibson, a member of the Regional Association of Plots of Land, said.

However, the U.S. Forest Service said they are violating no laws because the bridge must be reconstructed for safety reasons.

Cave Valley near Pomonok in Jackson County of the Shawnee National Forest, is the subject of the clearingcutting controversy. Clearcutting is the harvesting method of removing trees from large properties.

Over 1,000 acres of land are being cleared in the Shawnee National Forest in areas such as Fairview Church, Querrel Creek and Town Hall. The Town Hall and Querrel Creek areas were recently up for appeal by the U.S. Forest Service in Washington. They were turned down because they were untimely, Ron Robinson, Shawnee timber management staff officer, said.

The U.S. Forest Service recently put a stop work order on the area because of the endangered plant and animal species which inhabit the area. The area must go under an environmental assessment before clearcutting activities can resume.

"One of the provisions of the stop work order is to prevent the Cave Valley Bridge reconstruction," Gibson said.

Simon fund-raiser for cash, not senate re-election bid

By Daniel Wallenberg

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., will not use a fund-raiser Sunday to announce his bid for re-election as an Illinois state senator, a spokeswoman for the senator said.

The event, costing $50 per person, will be at 7 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom.

The main speaker at the event will be Sen. Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

"It's a credit to Southern Illinois and to Paul Simon that the new Senate majority leader has chosen this event as one of his first fund-raisers," Einar Dykopp, Simon's campaign manager, said.

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) - The besieged Kabul government on Wednesday accused Pakistan of sending 1,500 soldiers into Afghanistan to assist the Moslem guerrillas and a rebel rocket attack on the capital killed six people, three of them children.

State-run Kabul television said six rockets struck Kabul about 1:30 p.m. in an attack launched shortly after the government announced a curfew to counter guerrilla efforts to "create panic and sabotage."

The guerrillas largely had refrained from launching major attacks on Kabul and other cities since November to allow Moscow's troops to leave unhindered. The last of the 140,000-member Soviet garrison departed the country Wednesday under the terms of the U.N.-mediated Geneva accords signed last April 14.

One day after the withdrawal, Foreign Minister Abdul Wali charged that 1,500 Pakistani troops had massed on the border east of the Afghan city of Jalalabad and that a similar number actually entered Afghan territory. Diplomats have reported that Moslem rebels have massed near Jalalabad in preparation for an offensive.

"About 1,500 (Pakistanis) are on the border and another 1,500 have entered Afghanistan," Wali said. "The numbers are difficult to estimate" because they have no troop counts.

The bomb contained a limited amount of interline baggage and the rest was made up of Pan American Airways Flight 103, which originated in Frankfurt, West Germany, the spokesman said. A Washington Post spokesman indicated a balance of probabilities. Orr said in concluding the bomb containing the bomb came from West Germany.

Pressed to say whether Heathrow had been ruled out as the place where the bomb originated, Orr said: "I am not ruling out any possibility, I'm talking about a balance of probabilities."

A West German official spokesman dismissed as "pure speculation" the claims the bomb may have originated in Frankfurt.

The spokesman for the regional authority in charge of security at Frankfurt airport said Thursday evening that "again and again there have been reports."

Pan American World Airways Flight 103, en route from Frankfurt to New York, with a stopover at London's Heathrow Airport, had been blown out of the sky over Lockerbie Dec. 21, killing all 273 people aboard, and 11 people on the ground.

Orr said the bag in which the bomb, disguised as a radio-cassette player, was packed had not been identified. However, it was packed in a container comprised mostly of baggage from Frankfurt.

Medicaid overhaul to aid millions of U.S. poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Medicaid overhaul of the health care system for the poor was approved by the Senate Thursday after a hard-fought battle to win Senate action. The bill was passed by a vote of 91 to 6 with the support of the majority of the chamber. The law overhauls the Medicaid program for the poor and includes expanded health benefits for low-income families, the elderly and disabled. It also provides funding for preventive care, mental health services and home health care.

Bush: U.S. will make necessary for rebels

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Bush acknowledged the withdrawal of the last Soviet soldier from Afghanistan by declaring Thursday the United States will continue "to do what we need to do" for the Mujahideen rebels. In a statement opening a new round of talks in Washington Thursday, Bush said the United States would "continue to support the Mujahideen rebels until the Soviet troops withdraw from Afghanistan." The statement came after the president met with Secretary of State James Baker and other officials to plan a new round of talks to try to end the war in Afghanistan.

Consensus reached in Solidarity labor unrest

WASHINGTON, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity and the government reached a consensus on the relegalization of the banned Solidarity union during crucial talks Thursday on the future of the country. The talks were described as "very important" and "very complex" by government lawyers who were trying to determine what kind of union would be relegalized.

Graduate running in council primary

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Kyle Englert said Carbondale needs a change so he is running for City Council to get the job done.

The 34-year-old Democrat is running for City Council in the Feb. 28 primary election.

"To earn one of the two seats available, Englert will have to defeat incumbents John Yow, Keith Tuxhorn, Marvin Tanner or Carl Flowers."

Carbondale City Council elections are non-partisan so the candidates' names are placed on the ballot according to the time and date they filed their nominating petitions.

The four candidates with the most votes move on to the April 4 general election.

"I don't like the way the current council is operating," Englert said.

The former SIU-C student graduated in May 1986 with a political science degree.

Because he was a student himself, Englert said he will be more representative of University students.

"The council doesn't do much to promote school spirit right now," Englert added.

On the retention of the candidates, Englert said, "I'll be back next week. I thought (Edelson) handled the hecklers well."

Deb Kichline, graduate student in rehabilitation, said, "It's about time SIU did something for the students that we don't have to pay for."

Co-Coo's is too far away. If you want to go to Shyrock, it costs $10 to $12 for a ticket.

BAS advocates fight for study of culture

SO FAR THIS month the African American Studies Association, formerly the Black American Studies Association, has won two rounds in its one-sided sparring match against the flat-footed Goliath — the SIU bureaucracy.

In round one the group summited the Board of Trustees in its meeting last week. Students, led by Luke Tripp, director of the Black American Studies Program, crashed the meeting and held an inquiry into the program for BAS. In the process, they made the front page of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch as well as both Carbondale newspapers.

In round two on Tuesday, Franz Mullings, coordinator of the association, blind-sided the administration when he called Gov. James R. Thompson, who was answering questions on a Carbondale radio station, and persuaded him to consult the University about its inaction.

ASKING THE UNIVERSITY "for an explanation of the apparent decline of the program and what value it place on the way the University is trying to improve it," Mullings said, vogue but it left the University know that Big Jim is thinking of them.

The association's continual upstaging has put in sharp relief the way the University's administration is progressing toward reviving BAS. The program is on the verge of evaporating. It has sunk from four to one fulltime position and the former Fullbright scholars have been denied. Adjunct professors from other curricula teach the balance of the classes.

Ken Seymour, assistant to the president for affirmative action, has been promising since last spring that the program will be back in the program "next semester." And Jim Scales, chairman of the task force assigned to chart the future of BAS, said the release date of the report would be sometime in April delayed until April 15. That's nearly two months later than Scales originally predicted.

THE ASSOCIATION is mad because the deliberate pace of the administration is maddening. The task force should have been released long ago, and it should have been on the agenda the day the budget was approved. The whole African American Student Association has been fueled by rhetoric unaccompanied by action over the last few months. At a hearing Feb. 21 and 22 in the Student Center, the task force will field suggestions from students and others. After this session we will know whether the administration will jump into the ring or continue its shadow boxing.

Miller beer insert ad viewed as advocating irresponsibility

Shame on the Daily Egyptian! You run editorials decrying sexism on campus and run stories about alcohol and substance abuse and then allow Miller Lite to insert its "Beachin' Times" into your paper.

That insert, in the Feb. 12 issue, promotes irresponsible sex, irresponsible drinking, and STORE ideas of the way women should dress and interact. (Maybe I'm unjustly criticizing people of an arrant rectangle.) On top of all that, the insert suggests that bad things happen to women

I'm guessing that the paper's editors cannot see the insert as satire. But it's a failed attempt. Satire isn't funny when it's not executed properly. You ran "Study the Thrive 3's of Spring Break Drinking: Fat, Fags, and Babes," or includes the tips on "four sure-fire ways to scam sbans". The insert is a statement on "Why I Are a Bitch, You're a Snobber" or promotes a party with the drinking starting at 10:30 a.m. and continuing until the next day at 1 a.m.

As the insert says, "Cruise the bars. (Drink) Lots of Miller Lite and Miller genuine draft beer." Party. Scam babes. Sunrise to 11 a.m. Crash.

The back page of the insert is an insult to men. It's a picture of a muscular "beach monster" holding two beers and a fellow wearing glasses holding a transistor radio in front of his booby trap. "The right" pointing to the "beach monster" and an arrow saying "Wrong way" pointing to the fellow with the radio. The undersigned message: It's cool to be a drunk. Forget being an ordinary guy who likes to have fun in a responsible way.

I could go on with the examples, but I'll stop. The point is this: the paper and Miller Lite show bad judgement when they promote this. There is a small box on the second page of the insert which says drinking and driving don't mix. But that message tends to take second stage to pictures of scantily clad women, silly pictures of men, and all the hype about parties on the beach.

You probably raised more than a one eyebrow with "Beachin' Times." If people weren't upset by the sexist ideas and irresponsibility behavior of the insert, I wonder if the promotion promotes, maybe they'll be upset when they find out that money from Miller Lite when alcohol distributors have been banned from sending campus events at SIU-C. Or, they can be troubled by the thought of such publicizing it's promoting a party-school image.

The DE and Miller Lite can do better. I know you can. The American Medical Association has earned awards and will continue to do so. Let's make funny, creative commercials on television. Between the two of us, we can come up with something other than people losing money and reader interest.

Holidays should follow condom week

The dual celebration of National Condom Week and Valentine's Day is a brilliant exercise in taste and subtlety. St. Valentine (a priest who was clubbed and beheaded around 270 A.D.) is surely gratified by the use of his feast day to promote safe fornication. Who says religion is dead?

My only criticism is that the condom-minions didn't take full advantage of the holiday. Next year local restaurants could offer romantic dinners half-price upon being offered physical evidence of recent condom use, for example. I could see people like: "My soul is yours and so's my heart, if you wear this on your other part." This year was a good start, though.

So good, in fact, I offer the following combinations of holidays and public awareness weeks: Christmas-National Flower Markets; Easter-Condom Week; Easter-National Missing Persons Week; Feast of the Ascension-National Air Travel Safety Week; Feast of St. John the Baptist-National Dance Week.

Abortion views religious, should be protected

It is difficult for me to under­stand how liberal funda­mentalists are so sure that their beliefs should be written into law. I am religious be­cause I live my life according to my church's values and not necessarily as a result of my beliefs in democracy. I believe with all my heart and mind in our democratic form of govern­ment. One of the basic tenets of this form of government is that there should be a strict wall between religion and govern­ment.

The belief that life begins at conception is a religious belief. How do we know it's a religious belief? There are countless Christians and non-Christians, countless scientists, ministers, rabbis and priests in this many-faceted nation of ours who disagree. These many people believe that it is our legal right to act according to our own religious beliefs, that it is intolerable to be told in this great democratic nation that we must obey different schools' else religious strictures. To yield to this false means that we risk losing our freedom of religion and in the long run even losing the other freedoms that we are blessed with in this U.S. - Muriel S. Hayward, Carb被盗

Homeless haven
Shelter gives roof, bed to destitute

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The lines on Elsie Speck's forehead tell the story.
For six years, she has served as director of the Good Samaritan House in Carbondale. Speck has struggled to provide food, shelter and clothes to the homeless who find refuge in the old brick church at 701 S. Marion St.

"I'm not a saint," Speck said. "But when people are hurting, you have to have some kind of compassion."

The shelter gives sanctuary to about 13, mostly male, homeless people in a week. Speck said she has housed up to 23 people.

"We've never turned anyone away for lack of space," she said.

During the day, five employees, including a counselor, help Speck run the shelter.

Five staff people also live at the shelter with free room and board in exchange for night duties.

The church's basement has been transformed into living quarters for the city's homeless.

As affordable housing becomes less available, poverty also will drive more people to the streets.

Wanda Neubauer, in a Good Samaritan House transitional bedroom, ponders her uncertain future in the shelter.

Homeless remember paths to shelter

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Darren Stewart is a drifter, one of Carbondale's homeless wondering Illinois in search of a shelter to help him get back on his feet.

The Kentucky man came to the house because of a lack of shelters in Kentucky's transitional housing program.

He said he'll probably move on to a shelter in Marion in a few days.

Bed's are partitioned off by wooden boards in the four man's dorms that each sleep four.

The women live separate from the men in a three-bed "dorm." Another room, set aside for families, is equipped with a crib.

Residents can use the basement's laundry facilities and showers that are designed for people with disabilities.

Before families can stay at the Good Samaritan House, they must sign a form with the shelter agreeing that the House and staff are not responsible for the care and well-being of their children.

Any person seeking shelter at the House has to sign and agree to eight rules, including no possession of alcohol or illegal drugs.

A personal form also is completed to give the staff information about the resident's medical background, income, education and psychological profile.

The homeless are allowed to live at the house for up to three weeks, but Speck said exceptions are made if the residents need to stay longer.

"The House has the right to evict or not admit those people who display violent or threatening behavior, substance abuse, criminal involvement, disruptive or uncooperative behavior, repeated unauthorized absences or abuse of property," Speck said.

The Good Samaritan House also provides a transitional housing program that gives a resident a homelike environment for 18 months in exchange for a $175 fee or 30 percent of his income.

Transitional housing offers a room, three meals a day, housemother during the day and staff available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

From July 1987 through June 1988, 15 residents lived in the transitional housing program. During that same time, the shelter housed 72 emergency shelter residents. Of the 223 residents, 88 were Carbondale homeless. 68 were Jackson County homeless and 77 came from other counties.

"The homeless people taking shelter at the House usually are mentally disabled and "can't take up roofs elsewhere," she said.

Most homeless people aren't criminals, but "they just don't know how to manage on their own," she said.

As affordable housing becomes less available, poverty also will drive more people to the streets, Speck added.

The lines on Speck's forehead tell another story as the former teacher and 1988 Carbondale Chamber of Commerce "Citizen of the Year" leaves the shelter.

She goes home to her husband, University professor Charles Speck, and her two children at night.

"I can still find time to laugh," she said.

In the transitional housing kitchen, Wanda Neubauer and Joe Restoff talk about the assistance they have been given by the House.

Shelter's fund application rejected by City Council

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The director of Carbondale's homeless shelter said she is alarmed by the City Council's Feb. 7 decision to cancel tentative approval of funds for the shelter until the staff applies for another grant.

The Good Samaritan House requested $4,000 from the city's general fund.

The Council tentatively approved $2,000 in a one-time payment.

However, Jeff Doherty, interim city manager, announced Feb. 7 that the Council would not approve this $2,000 until the staff had applied for a grant from the Emergency Shelter Grants Program.

Funds from this program can be used for rehabilitation, renovation or conversion of buildings for use as emergency shelters, operation or maintenance expenses directly related to the emergency shelter, and new or expanded services by the shelter.

Donald Hecht, director of community development, said the Council has indicated it will provide the $2,000 if the emergency grant is not approved.

Brothers charged in hiring voodoo priest to kill judge by voodoo.

Two Mississippi brothers who tried to hire a lock of a judge’s hair have been charged with plotting his death—by voodoo.

John Henry Ivy of Tupelo, Miss., and Leroy Ivy of Oxford, Miss., were indicted earlier this month on a charge of conspiracy to murder Lee County Judge Thomas Gardner by hiring a voodoo priest to cast a death spell.

Authorities said he was apparently upset by the judge’s ruling in favor of another man in a civil case.

The indictment accused the Ives of conspiring to hire a voodoo priest to cast a spell on Gardner, saying:

"Between you and I, I don’t believe in voodoo. But it’s a religion to some people and they honestly believe it could cause bodily harm, sickness and death."

Lee County officials were tipped off to the curse attempt by local residents who said they were offered money to obtain the judge’s picture and a lock of his hair.

The Ives said they would not comment on the case.

The brothers probably will go to trial in May. Although the facts point to a conspiracy, Brett said, the court will have to decide whether it was a serious attempt at murder.

“In my opinion, it will be a legal issue for the court to decide whether a curse is in fact a criminal act,” said Brett.

SEATTLE (UPI) — One of the two sea lions captured by wildlife biologists in an effort to remove the mammals from valuable fish runs at the Ballard Locks died during the night, officials said Thursday.

Meat cleaver used in attack by local man

A Murphysboro man was arrested Wednesday night and charged with aggravated assault with a knife and a meat cleaver, Carbondale Police said.

Frankie K. Puckett, 34, was arrested around 9:35 p.m. for attacking Trent Crab, 29, of 300 S. Hunt in Carbondale.

In an attack that followed an argument about money, Puckett owed to Crab’s girlfriend. During the argument, Puckett tried to stab Crab with a knife and a meat-cleaver.

“Puckett attempted to stab and chop at Hunt,” Sgt. Bob Gore, of the Carbondale Police Department said.

The argument occurred at 700 S. Lewis Lane in Carbondale. No one was injured in the attack, Gore said.

Puckett, of 706 Maple in Murphysboro, is being held in Jackson County Jail awaiting a hearing.

Leroy Ivy was being held in Lee County Jail. Bond was set for both men at $50,000.

“It’s certainly something out of the ordinary,” said Lee County Prosecutor Charles Brett. “Between you and I, I don’t believe in voodoo. But it’s a religion to some people and they honestly believe it could cause bodily harm, sickness and death.”

Lee County officials were tipped off to the curse attempt by local residents who said they were offered money to obtain the judge’s picture and a lock of his hair.

The hair and the picture were to be sent to a voodoo witch doctor in Louisiana to obtain the judge’s picture and a lock of his hair.

Bridge," Glisson said. "The U.S. Forestry Service claims that the bridge must be reconstructed for safety reasons. "The bridge is literally falling apart," Larry Burkhardt, Forest ranger, said. "It's not a violation of anything, it simply must be fixed."

RACE claims the bridge can hold up to 28 tons, but the Forest Service needs the bridge to hold up to 40 tons in order to get their timber-hauling vehicles across, if they are allowed to do the clearcutting, Glisson said.

A letter has been written to the U.S. Chief of Forestry in Washington to explain the injustice that is going on in Cave Valley concerning the renovation of the bridge, Glisson said. "Especially, he will be able to do something about it," Glisson said.

"We (RACE) are not going to let them clearcut the Cave Valley area," Glisson said. "We're going to fight them every step of the way." Clearcutting the Cave Valley area may also be a violation of the Endangered Species Act, Glisson said.

The Indiana Bat, which is covered by the federal endangered species act, inhabits the area. The plants will have to wait to be evaluated in the spring when they are in full bloom, Glisson said.

Robert H. Mohlenbrock, faculty member in the botany department, was asked by Burkhardt to examine the area to determine whether or not endangered plant species actually live there.

"I know for a fact that endangered plants lived there 10 years ago," Mohlenbrock said. "I had a graduate student do a plant evaluation of that area in 1979 and there were several species that were on the Illinois endangered species list.

The plants will have to wait to be evaluated in the spring when they are in full bloom, Mohlenbrock said. "We'll have to wait and see what happens with the endangered plants," Sam Emmons, Shawnee timber management planning, informative and involvement staff officer, said. "We may be able to clearcut around the endangered plant and animals."

The decision on whether or not to clearcut the Cave Valley area will be made after the environmental assessment is completed this spring, Emmons said.

RACE says there is no decision to be made. Any clearcutting of the Cave Valley area will be a violation of the law.

Mount Vernon resident to the Good Samaritan House because the program was beating Rector and stealing his Social Security check each month.

For 14 days, the house has given him a safer haven than his own home and the 73-year-old didn’t have more than that.

“I came here so I wouldn’t get killed,” Rector said.

While his physical wounds are healing, Rector was making plans for his return home.

This time, he wants to be ready for the mugger.

“I don’t want you to have a gun and the cops don’t either but I’m going to get one and be ready for them next time they come,” Rector said.

Once homeless like Rector and Stewart, Wanda NeuBauer is a success story.

She came to the house from Anna, seeking emergency shelter with no job, no home and family in Central Illinois could help her.

“I was lonely, frightened, anxious and depressed at the same time,” she said.

Neubauer said she didn’t have much at the time and she hoped her situation would get better and it has.

She moved upstairs from the emergency shelter to live in the house’s transitional housing. For a portion of her Social Security disability check, she can live upstairs, cook two meals a day, watch television and have a bed at night.

Because Neubauer is the only female living in transitional housing, the house staff is looking for a new place for her to live.

Neubauer said that makes her future uncertain.

“I don’t know where I’ll be next month at this time,” she said.

Eventually Neubauer would like to rent a house and “get my life together.”

Spellman sentenced Posner, who pleaded no contest to 10 counts of tax fraud, to serve at least $3 million of his own money to save 5,000 hours to aid the homeless during his five years of probation.

So far, Posner has financed a study of the homeless as part of his sentence.

approved.

“This should not be perceived as a lack of support for the Good Samaritan House,” Doberty said.

But Elsie Speck, Good Samaritan House director, said the Women’s Center, which shelters abused women and their children, received money from both.

The shelter receives additional income from recycling aluminum cans and sales from the shelter’s year-round yard sale.

the city and the Emergency Shelter Grants Program.

“Hate determination against men,” Speck said.

Monty said the city funds the Women’s Center received were for use with abused women of domestic violence.

Comparing the two organizations is like comparing apples and oranges,” Monty said. “You can’t compare the two.

He added that the Emergency Shelter Grant could “much better address the needs of the Good Samaritan House.”

Speck said the homeless men are victims, too.

“A homeless man is a victim because he’s been beaten with no home,” Speck said. “It’s not drunk, he’s not on drugs, he’s just homeless.”

For fiscal 1989, the house budgeted $49,463 including $15,000 in private donations.

The shelter also received $46,000 from the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

Speck said additional income is from recycling aluminum cans and sales from the shelter’s year-round yard sale.

The House runs a general store called The Attic in an upstairs storage room.

The store, open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Mondays and Fridays, carries donated clothing including shoes and furniture.

Recycling and store sales totaled $1,569 in 1988.

Royal Crown Cola Co. to aid homeless

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Victor Posner, the reclusive multimillionaire who was ordered to help the homeless as part of his sentence on tax fraud charges, Thursday announced a nationwide campaign to raise $1 million to do just that.

Posner, chairman of Royal Crown Cola Co., said his soft drink company and local bottlers will donate 4 cents to feed and shelter homeless people for every eight ounces of cola bought in those markets by April 30.

“There exists today in America a tragedy where more than three million Americans are homeless... We all know this problem exists and discuss it further won’t help to alleviate the sorrow and the waste,” Posner said.

“We are going to make a difference by calling on corporate America to join us in our fight for the homeless,” he said.

The publicity shy financier, who controls an empire of businesses through several holding companies, read a brief statement to reporters at his Miami Beach headquarters, but refused to answer questions.

Organizers said the pilot project is not the usual sentence imposed on criminals.

Speck sentenced Posner, who pleaded no contest to 10 counts of tax fraud, to save at least $3 million of his own money to save 5,000 hours to aid the homeless during his five years of probation.

So far, Posner has financed a study of the homeless as part of his sentence.

Straight talk from Charter Bank about the safety of your savings

An important message for anyone concerned about the condition of their financial institution and the safety of their money.

You hear much lately about the poorly managed financial institutions. You probably haven't heard that they represent a tiny fraction of the many thousands of healthy, well-managed institutions that hold more than 90% of the assets in this business.

Charter Bank ranks among the very top of these solid, well-managed institutions that form the backbone of this industry.

Sure, it's easy to talk about strength, stability, soundness, safety... anyone can do it. Not everyone can prove it. What counts are the numbers. They tell the story. That's why we want you to pay particular attention to the charts below. They are the facts and tell you what you deserve to know.

Net worth is an accurate measure of strength and stability... both vital to the safety of depositors' money. And after-tax profitability is the key to everything we've been talking about. The absolute bottom line! For a comparison, check our profitability and net worth figures with those where you do your banking. You'll see just how solid we really are!

Charter Bank is making profits for its savers and investors, and profits for itself. Principles of good management demand that we invest our profits back into reserves to give our customers complete peace of mind about the safety of their money and total confidence in our strength and stability. Our best customer is an informed customer.

Jazz quintet to debut works while raising travel funds

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

The New Arts Jazz Quintet will perform "Out of the Blue," a collection of original works that go beyond conventional jazz, at 8 tonight in Shryock Auditorium.

"We're reaching for the outer limits," said Arnold Miller, bass player and assistant professor of music. "The group, which has been together for five years, is made up of four SUU School of Music faculty members and Daniel Grunder, a high school teacher from Ansen-Jonesboro and a University graduate.

Six pieces composed entirely by the group will be played. The works are substantial and complex, Miller said.

The purpose of the concert is to raise funds for a trip to Romania. The group was invited to play there by the Romanian state arts agency. Members of the group may participate in a music festival that will be held in April.

*Prices:
General public — $5
Students and senior citizens — $3.

"I've always dreamed of going out of the country," said Miller. The group has played in Poland and as far east as North Carolina.

Pieces to be played include: The Last Outpost, Alice on Wonderland; Disastrophy, Zygot, Beach Dream; and Breach of Etiquette.

"The Last Outpost," written by Eric Mandel, clarinet-saxophone player and associate music professor, has an exotic, oriental sound, Miller said. "Alice on Wonderland," by Robert Allison, trumpet player and music instructor, has a magical feeling, he said.

"It has that feeling of falling into Wonderland like Alice did."

"Disastrophy," by Miller is a book shuffle with an uneven backbeat, Miller said. "Zygot," also composed by Miller, has a non-commital sound. "That title came to me in a dream. It's part of my dream heritage."

"Breach of Etiquette," composed by Frank Steemper, piano player and associate professor of music, is obscure and has an avantgarde sound, Miller said. "Beach Dream," is also by Steemper.

"From solo to solo it will be a different feeling," said Miller of the program.

Tickets are on sale at the Shryock and Student Center box offices and are $5 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens.

about coal

John N. Murphy, research director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines Pittsburgh Research Center, will conduct a seminar entitled "An Overview of the Pittsburgh Research" from 10 to 11 a.m. on Friday, February 17.

The seminar, which is open to students, faculty, and others interested in mining research, will be held in Tech A 222.

A specialized coal mining research facility, BOM's Pittsburgh Center provides information and guidance to industry, other federal agencies, and state and local government on such topics as fire and explosion hazards, dust control and ventilation, roof support and ventilation, environmental problems such as acid mine drainage, subsidence and abandoned mine fire control.

Murphy, a professional engineer, is the author of 26 publications and is listed in "American Men and Women of Science." He serves as Second Vice President of the National Mine Rescue Association and is a senior member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers.

Hudson's lover after his estate

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A lawyer for a Hudson's homosexual lover asked a jury Thursday to award the man at least $14.5 million in punitive and exemplary damages, above the $14.5 million he was already awarded.

The jury of seven women and five men on Wednesday awarded Marc Hudson $14.5 million in compensatory damages for the "outrageous" conduct of Hudson's personal secretary, Mark Miller, displayed in concealing Hudson's affliction with AIDS from Christian, 35. Hudson's Christian's lawyer, told the jury Thursday that the punitive exemplary damages were needed to save the lives of others, "fair more important" because the jury had heard that Hudson "tries to save the world that this kind of conduct ought to be stopped.

The jury does not allow Hudson to seek punitive exemplary damages against the estate of a dead man, so Hudson's was seeking the damages against Miller, who testified Thursday that his net worth was "less than $100,000.

Miller conceded, however, that he is not a beneficiary of Hudson's estate — estimated at about $10 million, most of which has been put in trust for charities.

Robert, who had been on the jury there were millions of people who could find themselves in a position similar to Christian's and the jury could help them by sending out a message that people will be held liable for their failure to inform their sexual partners they have AIDS.

"If you have the opportunity to save the lives of untold millions, surely you must be able."

International office appoints new director to take position

By Fernando Fello-Moggi  Staff Writer

James D. Quisenberry might get a chance to practice the languages he learned while getting his Ph.D. in linguistics at Indiana University.

Quisenberry is the newly appointed director of the University's International Programs and Services position held until December by Jared Dow.

Dow is now principal of the SIU-C Nigtara campus, the University's campus in Japan.

Quisenberry said he is now director of the three branches of International Programs and Services.

The first branch, International Student Services, helps international students with advisement, employment, laws and finance, Quisenberry said.

Inspirations for 007 spy dies

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — James Bond, the world-famous onomatologist and author whose names was the basis for Ian Fleming's secret agent 007 in Ian Fleming's novels, died today at Chestnut Hill Hospital. He was 80.

A widely published authority on birds of the West Indies, Bond was the former curator of ornithology at the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia.

Fleming, an avid bird-watcher, was living in Jamaica after World War II when he decided to write a thriller.

Fleming was reading Bond's book, "Birds of the West Indies," and asking a name for his fictional character when he was inspired by the name described as a "brief, evocative, Anglo-Saxon and yet very masculine name."

Bond is best known scientifically for proving that birds of the Caribbean originated in North America, not South America, as had been believed for more than a century.

In 1975, the same year he retired from the University, he was named outstanding librarian of the year by the Illinois State Library Association.

He earned bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Iowa and earned a master's degree in library science from the University of Illinois in 1959.

Retired SIU-C librarian dies at 81

University News Service

Harold J. Rath, retired special services librarian at SIU-C, died Feb. 8 in Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. He was 80.

Funeral services were held Feb. 11 at the Martha's Home in Carbondale with burial at Fairview Cemetery in Harrington.

Rath joined the SIU-C faculty in the fall of 1963 as an assistant professor and was appointed special services librarian a year later. From 1965 to 1969 he served as regional librarian for the Illinois State Library in Carbondale, then housed on the SIU-C campus.

Rath also taught education and training for the state library in Springfield.

Rath was a member of the University's International Programs and Services board until his retirement in 1968.

been the bomb originated in Frankfurt. "As long as there is no proof, the British can say what they want. In our case, we deal only with hard evidence," the spokesman said in Wimbledon near Frankfurt.

The first leg of Flight 103, from Frankfurt to London, was made by a Boeing 727. At Heathrow, the passengers and luggage were switched to a larger Boeing 747 for the rest of the flight.

Orr said the metal luggage container that held the bomb was recovered in the airport baggage claim area. It was opened, studied, picked up over 40 miles, and was not used.

He refused to specify the make or size of the radio-cassette player, but said he had indications of what it was like.

Transport Secretary Paul Channon said at a meeting of the International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal he would support any airline or airport to allow passengers to carry portable computers and personal computers in their carry-on and check luggage.

"Passenger sabotage also would be a very drastic step. It is something that has to be considered," Channon said. "Civilized society will have to decide pretty soon whether it is fair to allow these things on the plane."

Orr would not say what type of explosive had been used, but said he was aware of "certain aspects" of it.

Channon, however, said previously the bomb was made from a high-performance plastic explosive, most likely Czech-made Semtex, which is used by terrorists in many countries.

Dumfries and Galway Chief Constable John Bovell said investigators have been concerned at the very outset that Pan Am crew was caused by "criminals of internationals."

He said more than 1,000 doctors, technicians and police were on the investigation. More than 80 percent of the aircraft has been recovered, as well as about 10,000 pieces of personal property, Boyd said.

camouflaged themselves.

Other Afghan and Soviet officials made similar accusations last week, saying as many as 5,000 Pan Am troops had massed along the border.

The official Afghan government broadcast said one of six rebel rockets that struck at Tameka Thursday exploded in the courtyard of a blanket factory, striking a shower of deadly fire. Sixteen were killed in the factory, and three men were killed by rockets in other locations, the broadcast said.

The broadcast also reported stepped-up fighting among strategic cities in the country in recent hours since Soviet troops left the country.

It said 10 rebels were killed near the southeastern city of Kandahar, nine near the eastern city of Jalalabad and seven near western Herat. In addition, six Afghan troops died in clashes in Ghazi, 90 miles south of Kabul.

Rebel sources reported fierce fighting in Kandahar and Helmand, a strategic town near the Pakistani border.

GARBAGE IN -> GARBAGE OUT

"Garbage In, Garbage Out" is very familiar to computer users. It means one cannot expect to get anything out of a computer which is of better quality than one puts into it. I don't know much about programming but do know that if you don't know the rules (or logic) of the language you are using, I get nothing of value back from my program. The output in garbage because of what I put into it. At this point there is nothing to do but to admit my mistake and start over having the computer is an un forgiving machine.

I think if Jesus were alive today, he would be saying, "Garbage In, Garbage Out," to teach. He might even use it in the form of a parable as he did many of the everyday elements in his own time to explain to people the nature of God and human life.

Using our title we might look at our own lives to decide if we are getting out of life is mainly garbage: hassles because of the people with whom we associate, hangovers and poor grades due to substance abuse, poor feeling about ourselves resulting from letting others take advantage of us (our time, sexual demands, etc.). In these situations there is nothing to do about it. We have to live with the computer programs we have made a mistake and start over.

We have been created by God to function in a certain manner.

WICHITA, from Page 24
Bacon gave Wichita State a chance by making two free throws to make it 54-52. Then Jones' technical and Seals' free throw followed.
A 35-foot desperation shot by Wichita's Steve Crow came up short at the buzzer.
The Salukis had a dismal first half shooting, making only 29 percent of their shots. The total at the end of the game was not much better, 25 of 63 for 39.5 percent.
The difference was the emergence of the Salukis' inside game, which outrebounded the Shockers 47-33.
Saluki center Cathy Kampwerth finished with 15 points, while Fitzpatrick and Seals had 13 points each.
Amy Roers led the Salukis with 14 rebounds, adding 19 of her 12 points in the second half.
Wichita was led Tracy Lane with 17 points. Bacon had 11 points and 7 rebounds while Janet Ried had 13 points and 7 rebounds.

ILLINOIS DEFEATS MICHIGAN STATE TO STAY IN SECOND

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) - Kenny Battle scored 18 points and Lowell Hamilton hit a jumper with 29 seconds left and House hit a jumper with 2.1 seconds remaining to close the game.

Michigan State slipped to 12-9 overall and kept the Illini in second in the Big Ten behind Illinois with an 8-3 mark. Michigan State slipped to 12-9 and 3-4. All five Illinois starters scored in double figures.

College fans need lesson in attitude at basketball games

By Jonathan Rand
Kansas City Star and Times

The worst part about many college basketball crowds isn’t that they often get obnoxious and ugly. It isn’t that they routinely are inflamed by madmen disguised as coaches. It isn’t even that they abuse the officials and throw junk on the floor.

The worst part about crowds, particularly Big Eight crowds, is that we have become indifferent to behavior that would make our skins crawl. We have become so calloused to behavior that is threatening at worst and ugly.

Georgia coach put on probation

Eight crowds, is that we have assessed a routine threat and threatening at worst and ugly.

Referees request, that bat

Georgia and its coach, Hugh Durham, was ejected from a Southeastern Conference game on Feb. 27 by Vandy.

Durham’s outburst came after guard Litteral Grice was called for a charge. Gobein hit all six free throws to put the game out of reach.

It was the second ejection

Durham has incurred during his 11 years as coach of the Bulldogs. During the 1963-64 season, he was ejected against Mississippi State near the end of a 73-64 loss.

In a letter to Durham, Dooley said he was placing the coach on probation that could lead to an indefinite suspension if any such incidents occur in the future.

Dooley also ordered Durham to make a public apology to the University of Georgia and its support group, the SEC, Vanderbilt and the officials.

"It was a very unfortunate incident," Dooley said. "His actions are detrimental to crowd control and to good sportsmanship. I deeply regret having to take this action, but I feel it is both appropriate and necessary to insure proper conduct on the part of any Georgia coach in the SEC.

Concerning the events of the Wednesday night game with Vanderbilt University, I would like to offer a sincere apology to the fans and the athletes in the SEC. This is a determined drive for the SEC championship."

Birthday kicks off big weekend for Saluki gymnasts

By Tricia Jarding

Some traditions will just never end.

Every Feb. 16 coach Bill Meade expects a birthday celebration during practice. He knows what will happen and his wife’s special touch is never a surprise.

While Meade was observing his gymnasts preparing Thursday for their meet against the Huskies of Northern Illinois on Saturday, Mrs. Meade came in shining cheerfully, “Happy birthday, birthday boy!”

One gymnast shouted, “The tradition continues — same time and same place as always.”

Meade took a moment to consider, “This is a tradition that has been going on for 10 years. It has been good for our meet.”

While coach Meade was waiting for his team to sharpen their performances, some traditions didn’t stop. The last chance for the Illinois State men’s team to sharpen their performance against Northern Illinois as well as the Saluki’s team to sharpen their performance against Illinois State as well.

One gymnast shouted, “The tradition continues — same time and same place as always.”

“Happy birthday,” some of the gymnasts said, “It’s going to be good.”

The men are looking forward to doing well against Northern Illinois.

“The men’s team is looking to shape up for the conference meet,” Coach Bill Cornell said. “Competing against Illinois State just one week away from the NCAA championships, it will be a good opportunity to get some practice against the Gus.”

Cornell last week expressed hope that the weather this weekend will be good. “We’re looking to shape up for the conference meet.”

“Competing against Illinois State just one week away from the NCAA championships, it will be a good opportunity to get some practice against the Gus,” Cornell said.

That tells me that some of the guys are rounding into form, but I’m still waiting to see the entire team round into form. Hopefully, it will come by February 24th.”

“Now we have to work inside instead of out on the track.”

“All student workers should have on file each year a processed American College Testing Family Financial Statement (ACT/FFS). If you plan to work on campus during the 1989-90 academic school year, you should complete and mail the 1989-90 ACT/FFS form. Scott hoping large crowd can motivate Salukis

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Women's basketball coach Cindy Scott loves a crowd. The bigger the better.

So it's no surprise Scott is excited about playing at Southwest Missouri on Saturday, where 4,000 plus are expected for the 7:30 p.m. game at the Hannum Center.

"We seem to respond better and play together just from the larger crowds," Scott said.

For the record, the Salukis have won three and lost four when they have played before more than 2,000 people this season. It should also be noted, though, that four of those games were played on the road and against ranked opponents.

However, Southwest Missouri is far from being a member of the national polls.

"The large draw of Springfield, Mo., residents will mostly be the result of the promotion," Scott said.

The Lady Bears are 6-15 overall and 4-8 in the Gateway Conference. They are third in the standings pending a late game Thursday against third-place Eastern Illinois (13-9, 8-8).

Most important, the Bears are 0-18 against the Salukis since the series began in 1977. Scott said, "We have to worry about her. She was able to score on Dana (Fitzpatrick) when we played them (in Carbondale)."

The Salukis beat the Lady Bears 82-70 at the Arena, but Porter did score 19 points.

Freshman forward Karen Rapier has emerged as a floor leader for Southwest Missouri. She had 18 points, eight rebounds and seven assists in the win against Wichita State (which broke a six-game Lady Bears' losing streak). She is averaging 13 points and 7.3 rebounds per game.

come true yet or not. I've still got a few months to make sure they don't forget me.

Roberts comes from a family with a military background that caused his family to travel greatly. He began swimming at an early age to get his mind off of things. His mom had him swimming in little pools just for fun.

Randy House is from a family that his family traveled and ended up in Carbondale. There he attended the 1985 Senior Nationals in East Los Angeles.

This is where he first met Doug Ingram.

"I had heard the name Doug Ingram from people everyone I talked to, especially my high school coach," Roberts said. "When I met Coach it made an incredible impression on me that lasted.

"Coming from a rather large suburb, being so close to Seattle and having his heart set on swimming for the University of Washington, Roberts was in tremendous shock as he came to the Missouri State swimming program at Carbondale.

"In the moment I got off the plane in St. Louis and saw all of the open land, I knew there was no way I was going to swim here or anywhere near here," Roberts said. "The drive from St. Louis was so bland and boring."

Once he got to Ingram's office, he showed me around. I realized that SIU-C was where I really wanted to swim after all."

context, good for fifth in the MVC. In the Hurricane's 75-49 win over Creighton Feb. 11, Wingard pulled down a career high 15 boards.

The Hurricane has not fared well on the road this season. Coming into Carbondale, Tulsa is 3-4 on the road this season after going 0-11 at the opponents home last year.

Since that time Roberts, a 6-4, 185-pound senior, is a four-time All-American, being placed 12th at the 1988 NCAA championships in the 200 backstroke and he has set numerous SIU-C records.

At the college level, Roberts most memorable swim, meet was when he competed in his first dual meet in Indianapolis and he won a number of events.

So far this year, Roberts has been the team captain for the 10th ranked team in the country, and he has set the country's fastest time in the 200 backstroke and 200 freestyle.

"Since I first met coach Roberts, he has been the single most influence in my life other than my family," Roberts said. "He's put me in contact with a lot of things at one time and he has had a very remarkable man."

There's more money possible owners' lockout situation and a Salukis' typically 230-pound center is only "one-12,14". Herrin said, "It's a great night for the Salukis."

Robert's other goal is to be ranked the No. 1 swimmer at SIU-C. "That's what I want people to know and remember about me, but I'm not sure that goal has been achieved yet," Herrin said.

Scot Roberts is ranked the No. 1 freestyle swimmer in the country, but it doesn't mean too much to him. "I don't see the polls as anything really earth-shattering because no one can measure if you're the best swimmer in the country," Roberts said.

When Roberts first started swimming at SIU-C, he was backed up because his team had been in the top ten. "I wanted to be a leader on that team, so I was able to change it. I wanted to put that team in the top 10," Roberts said.

That goal has not yet come true because of injuries and the season's end. The year's not over and I'm still here to try and make that happen.

"We didn't cut Farr off and we kept Pillig the clock," Herrin said. "mentally we didn't play our best game of the season, didn't let them back into the ball game, couldn't stop the game to lose, maybe the situation was perfect.""}
