City, SIU pondering crowd plan

By Steve Brown
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Mayor David Keene released a letter Monday to the owners of two taverns, saying that if the establishments fail to comply with closing orders in the future, their licenses will be suspended.

The letters, which were sent to owners of The Club and The Rathskoiler, stated that Keene had been informed that neither bar had shut down Saturday evening after he had ordered all taverns and bars closed.

A copy of the letter was sent to all liquor license holders in the city. A Liquor Advisory Board meeting will be held Thursday.

Keene's action came in the wake of a meeting Monday between SIU representatives and Carbondale officials to discuss the large crowds of students who blocked South Illinois Avenue Friday and Saturday night.

The street was closed both evenings after young people congregated in the street and blocked traffic.

Carbondale Police S.U. Security Police and the Jackson County Sheriff's Office were on alert both nights, but were not called out. Carbondale Police Boarded traffic around the portion of South Illinois between College Street and Walnut Street on Friday and Saturday.

Attending the meeting with Schmidt were Edward H. Hammont, assistant to the chancellor for student relations; Hank Wilson, Hammont's assistant, Chief Joe D'akim and Lt. Clarence Johnson of the Carbondale Police; Schmidt's assistant, Jerry Maxwell, and John McCarthy, SIU student body vice president.

Schmidt said the bars were closed at midnight Friday and about 16:30 p.m. Saturday.

No arrests or property damages were reported either night. The crowd estimate Friday was 200-300 persons while Schmidt said the group Saturday numbered several thousand.

Hammont said he appreciated the manner in which the students handled themselves both nights.

"I hope that we can find another place," Schmidt said. He added that same program or plan may be available by Wednesday. Schmidt said he hopes to meet with as many groups as possible to seek a suitable alternative to the situation.

There was no statement released after Monday's meeting which was closed to the public.

City voters to choose new mayor today

By David L. Mahesan
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A hard-fought campaign for Carbondale mayor and two city council seats will come to a close Tuesday as Carbondale voters go to the polls.

Candidates for mayor are Neal Eckert and Hans Fischer. Vying for two city council seats are George Kanes, D. Blaine Miller, A.E. Ramsey and Chuck Vineyard.

The issues in the city election have not been clear-cut, nor have they been consistent during the course of the campaign.

A last-minute piece of campaign literature, a tabloid newspaper called The Query, was mailed to 4,000 residents this weekend. In it are articles under the by-lines of Fischer, a city councilman, Miller, a former mayor; and Ramsey, a former councilman and chairman of the board of directors of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce.

In The Query, Fischer cited a division of Carbondale into factions as a major concern. He said that he would build bridges of understanding between the factions to accomplish common goals.

Miller said the city budget was his primary concern. He said it has tripled in the last four years and thus in his opinion there are "many unnecessary expenditures," but he did not specify them.

In another article, Ramsey cited a lack of "effective human relations" in Carbondale as a problem to be overcome. He said that he feels he can contribute to the development of understanding among various groups in Carbondale.

Although Fischer, Miller and Ramsey are listed together in publication, the three have denied that they are running on a common slate.

Eckert, general manager of Eckert Orchards, has said, "Business and economics are the areas I feel will serve the greatest needs of this town. I am particularly interested in citizen participation on the decision making."

He said he would work with all interest groups to solve common problems.

Vineyard, a chemist, and Karnes, a dentist, are running jointly for the city council. They advocate increased participation in city government through various boards and committees. They favor annexation of the SIU campus and the construction of Cedar Creek Reservoir.

Karnes and Vineyard are also interested in attracting new industry to Carbondale, but have said that any new industry should be such that it can utilize the work force already in Carbondale.

At stake Tuesday are three seats on the Carbondale Park District Board. This is a separate election in no way connected with the city election.

Polling places for the city election are:

Ward 2—Church of God, South Wall and East College Streets.
Ward 3—High Rise, 300 S. Marion, Ward Community Room, Jackson County Housing Project, Ward 3—Som's Store, 6221 N. Marion.
Ward 4—Memorial Hospital, 210

Mayor, city commission chosen

Two groups seek control of Cairo

CAIRO, IL (AP) — Cairo voters, weary of their community's anarchy, have enacted by election the mayor and all four members of the City Commission.

Two groups, one a 12-cratical slate and another a slate of white citizens, are seeking control of the City Commission. Commission members have not the legal authority to run a city government but administer such departments as fire and police.

The community has experienced gunfights and fistfights during the past 12 months between white merchants and the black residents of the city.

Mayor Albert "Bert" Thomas, a member of the black slate, has stated that he will run a black slate in the upcoming election.

Limited liability aids card losers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's credit card users may be protected against some of the problems under a new law limiting their liability.

The reason many credit card firms have decided to absorb the loss rather than notify all cardholders of their new rights.

As of Jan. 1, credit card holders are not liable for any losses resulting from stolen or lost cards if they notify the issuer before anything is charged. Even if the card is used before notification takes place, the cardholder's liability cannot exceed $50.

Another wrinkle in the 1979 law is that the credit card issuer must notify the holder of his liability and furnish the cardholder with a statement reporting a lost or stolen card. Without such notification, the holder cannot have a claim under any circumstances.

A Associated Press survey of government, consumer groups, credit card issuers and credit card holders showed compliance with the notification provisions among issuers is apparently spotty.

Sheldon Feldman, an attorney in the consumer credit division of the Federal Trade Commission, says noncompliance with the notification provisions is widespread, even among the big credit card issuers.

"That far many issuers have in directly indicated an indifference to their ability to collect by not taking the necessary measures under the law," said Feldman. American Express, a pioneer in the charge card field, said it sends notification of the new liability in the form of an insertion in its billing statements.

The notification of the $5 maximum liability is also on the bill.

An American Express spokesman conceded that some inactive accounts which haven't received a bill since January haven't received the notification. The cost of a special mailing would have been prohibitive, the spokesman said.

"A spokesman for San Francisco's Bank of America, the major issuer of the BankAmericard, said that the bank did not feel spending the money to notify each of its 2 million card holders in California was worth while. While new card recipients in California, however, will receive notification. Other banks issuing BankAmericard are making their own decisions.

Juniors, seniors need to unite about housing

To the Daily Egyptian:

Landlords have limited power in their relations with tenants. The tenant is responsible to the landlord because he is bound by rent. The power the landlords exercise is economic. They devise the rent. They may respond in the manner of a landlord to the standard housing unit, although this is questionable. The demand for housing in Carbondale is very high and the supply is very limited for those with a reasonable housing quality, at a fair price. It is the landlord who decides where and at what price one shall relinquish his economic power. But it is we, the tenants, who have the equalizing power. We have the power of numbers united together to "bargain" with the landlords. It is we who pay for limited housing. Since the landlord is dependent upon the tenant, it is necessary for us to substantiate our position.

One situation that will be problematic for juniors and seniors that fall ill the withdrawal of restrictions imposed by the University on approved housing. Some landlords will stand alone when bargaining with the landlords. That will put them in the position that the citizen of Carbondale already face—they will be at the mercy of the landlords.

We are in a situation that binds us together in the sense that we all are bonded together in the payment of rent to landlords. We must have a Union of tenants for our mutual benefit, to bring about an equalization in power among landlord-tenant relationships.

Coalition Against Landlord Abuse will provide this essential for Justice Unity with CALA.

If anyone is interested in organizing a Union among tenants in his housing unit, call 549-6532 or ask for CALA, 127 N. Washington on the local Assistance Foundation.

All states offer exams for high school diploma

To the Daily Egyptian:

Kenneth J. Ruben's Copley News Service article "Dropouts beat the "system" " (Daily Egyptian, April 9) implies that the Maryland program for high school equivalency examination is applicable to all states. We would like to inform all adults who have not graduated from high school that similar programs exist in all states with the cooperation of the Assessment Council on Education.

Mrs. Nancy Pfaff is the GED (General Educational Development) examiner for this area. She may be reached at the Counseling and Testing Center, SIU, Carbondale (Phone 618-553-5271). Any adult, 18 years of age or older, who does not have a high school diploma is encouraged to call or write to find out about the Illinois program. Although the 19-year-old student who was "beating the system," the GED program helps many Illinois citizens obtain certificates to qualify for better jobs or a sense of personal accomplishment.

In the last year, 251 adults passed the high school equivalency examinations at this center.

I would also like to remind the Egyptian that credit-by-examination is a constantly expanding educational service at SIU CLEP exams are included in the program as well as local exams. Last year over 30,000 hours of proficiency credit were awarded on this campus.

Egyptian should boost, not discredit, baseball

To the Daily Egyptian:

It seems unfortunate that the Daily Egyptian cannot get behind the efforts of the Saluki baseball team. The paper's consistent efforts to bring down the credibility of the team's record, ability and potential is reflected not only in Mike Kier's "Second Thoughts" —which I wonder where he has them—and the continual pictures (approximately three-fifths) that depict the errors made by the team. The Daily Egyptian should get behind the team and start supporting its efforts because who knows, Mr. Kee, the sun could keep on shining.

If directory is built, will it be updated?

To the Daily Egyptian:

I hope the residents of Evergreen Terrace have better results from their directory than we have had at Southern Hills. The people living at Evergreen Terrace at the time the directory is put up undoubtedly have their names listed. I pity the people who move in later, if it is kept up as they are at Southern Hills. We moved in six months ago, and are still waiting to see our name on the directory.

Student asks others to sign peace treaty

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am deeply committed against the war in Southeast Asia and feel those of us who are against the war in Southeast Asia should sign the "People's Peace Treaty," which ends the war between the people of the United States and the people of Vietnam. Please return the following copies signed to Jim Mullerandor, Student Government Office.

A JOINT TREATY OF PEACE

BETWEEN THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES, SOUTH VIETNAM & NORTH VIETNAM

We hold that the American and Vietnamese people are not enemies. The war is carried out in the name of the people of the United States, but without their consent. It drains America of her resources, her youth and her honor.

We hereby agree to end the war on the following terms, so that both peoples can live under the joy of independence and can devote themselves to building a future based on human equality and respect for the earth. In rejecting the war we also reject all forms of racism and discrimination against people based on color, class, sex, national origin and ethnic grouping which form the basis of the war policies, present and past.

PRINCIPLES OF THE JOINT TREATY OF PEACE

AMERICANS agree to immediate and total withdrawal from Vietnam, and publicly set the date by which all U.S. military forces will be removed.

VIETNAMESE agree to participate in an immediate cease-fire, and will end all discussions on the procedures to guarantee the safety of all withdrawing troops, and to secure the release of all military prisoners.

AMERICANS pledge to end the imposition of Thieu, Ky and Diem on the people of South Vietnam in order to ensure their right of self-determination, and to ensure that all political prisoners are released.

VIETNAMESE agree to form a provisional coalition government to organize democratic elections, in which all South Vietnamese can participate freely without the presence of any foreign troops, and to enter discussions on procedures to guarantee the safety and political freedom of persons who cooperated with either side in the war.

AMERICANS and VIETNAMESE agree to respect the independence, peace and neutrality of Laos and Cambodia.

Upon these points of agreement, we pledge to end the war. We will resolve all other questions in mutual respect for the rights and self-determination of the people of Vietnam and the United States.

I ENDORSE THE PRINCIPLES OF THE PEOPLE'S PEACE TREATY

Criminals should pay debt-to-victims

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Sen. Mike Mansfield and Rep. William Green of Pennsylvania have introduced bills in Congress that would appropriate federal money for the relief of the victims of criminals.

The proposed legislation would not only provide funds to victims of crimes under federal jurisdiction, but it would supplement payments which the legislatures of six states have now authorized for the victims of state law infractions.

Crime compensation at taxpayer expense is getting popular; Britain, New Zealand, Sweden and seven Canadian provinces have now enacted such laws.

But the idea can be improved. It can be improved by going back to the first principle of ancient law—the principle that it is the perpetrator of the crime who has the primary obligation to the victim.

In ancient days the idea of paying damages was not limited to civil law. Hammurabi and Draco understood that a criminal was not merely the enemy of the people as a whole, but a particular debtor to has victim. Dracy provided for fines in excess, not to be paid to the state, but to the aggrieved party.

A couple of weeks ago Dr. John Kielsch, prison psychologist, resigned from the Oklahoma Department of Corrections to take a position in the federal penal system. And in departing, he made a few radical suggestions.

It is time, he said, that the man who robs or injures makes direct restitution. To this end he proposed that the courts determine proper compensation and that the state set up elaborate training programs and prison industries which would enable the prisoner to earn real money in behalf of the one he had wronged.

Dr. Kielsch suggests indeterminate sentences, the duration of which would largely depend on the efforts the prisoner would make toward full restitution. He adds that if a prisoner is released or paroled before his restitution is completed, a portion of his outside wages could be deducted.

The help with such prison job-training programs, according to Dr. Kielsch, is that many prisoners associate the training with their punishment. This gives them a negative attitude toward useful work. They develop skills reluctantly and slowly and often turn their backs on them when they hit the streets.

If, on the other hand, hard work and the acquisition of marketable trades became their keys to freedom, this might put them in a different light.

If a court can decide that the man who suffers a broken arm has $1,000 coming to him from the non-criminal who hit him with his car, why shouldn't the criminal who breaks an arm in a brutal assault also owe the victim $1,000?

And there have been too many cases where robbers, who have made big scores, have lost their prison years in the smug confidence that the caches will be waiting for them when they emerge. If full restitution is insisted upon, the profit vanishes.

Since a law was passed in Michigan making parents financially liable for the depredations of their minor children, the incidence of juvenile vandalism in Detroit has turned down remarkably. Parents who were quite casual about scolding in juvenile court began to take a lively interest in the behavior of their young as soon as they received bills from the school board for wrecked classrooms.

Money may be the root of all evil, but the possibilities of using money as a means of discouraging evil have been underexplored in America. The trouble with the bills proposed by Sen. Mansfield and Rep. Green is that they would load upon the blameless taxpayer the indemnity for the victims of crime.

What's wrong with charging the criminal? "Paying non's debt in society" would then take on a new and more practical meaning. And it's about time.

An editor's outlook

Criminals should pay debt-to-victims

Will the Illinois Baptist Foundation agree to the idea of converting its dormitory into a health ser-

The student-run filing system for off-campus housing is a very feasible idea, something that can be implemented easily by student government itself.

Is the idea of a student-operated code enforcement department.

And everyone wants more parking space and the parking sticker prices lowered.

Students also want more say in the making of administrative policy.

None of the platforms, however, says just how its proposals can be accomplished, and on some points they assume too much from the University.

This is not to say the campaign goals are un reachable. With the inauguration of the all-encompassing University Senate in March students have attained a recognized voice in the decision making process of the University. They can strengthen or weaken this newly found voice by the candidates they elect. Students, to a great degree, are responsible for the quality of student government.

It would be nice, just once, if they got off their apathy and voted.

Chicago firm hired to plan proposed art-media center

By University News Services

A Chicago architectural firm, L. Laton Smith and Associates, will be hired to master plan a proposed College of Communications and Fine Arts complex at SIU.

The SIU Board of Trustees approved retaining the firm Friday for site selection and planning on the scope of the project. The proposed building has not been budgeted for construction, only for master planning out of general SIU funds.

In other campus planning action, the Board authorized a contract with R. G. Burkhart and Associates of Chicago for utilities distribution system plans for the Center for the Advanced Study of Physical Sciences. The building has a $7,411,306 construction authorization from the General Assembly. Utilities planning will be contracted for $87,306 and the full for letting is not expected.

Authorized legal descriptions and surveys so that sites for those planned buildings can be transferred in the Illinois Building Authority. They are the Center for the Advanced Study of Physical Sciences at Carbondale and a power plant and Health Education complex at the Vocational Technical Institute.

Another reason that people lost confidence in dealing with problems by volunteer work is that the net work of charitable organizations could not be kept up with the institutional changes which have taken place since 1939.

"It's not so much that we lack faith in the ability of voluntarism to deal with our problems. We had simply forgotten our traditions."

Musical rivalry at Greek Sing set for May 16

The SIU Greek Sing will take on a new look this spring.

Instead of each fraternal group participating in group competition, categories have been added to include individual and group in instrumental arts, according to Bonne McDonald, Alpha Omicron Pi and Song chairman.

Miss McDonald said this will create a more versatile show and more entertainment. The Song will take on an almost talent show look.

The Sing is planned for 7:30 p.m. May 16 in the Home Economics Auditorium. All Greek social fraternal groups and sororities are invited to participate. Applications must be returned to the Office of the President or the Mail Office by May 2. Judges for the Sing will be faculty members of the Department of Music. The judging criteria will be based on creativity, harmony, appearance, and vocal and instrumental abilities.

The event is sponsored by the Greek Activities Committee and is open to the public.

Ministers recognize homosexuals

NEW YORK (AP) - About 80 people filled the small conference room. Most were men, a half dozen women. Included were numerous seminarians and ministers, some in clerical collars. Many freely asserted their homosexuality.

"Homosexuality as a way of life is an idea whose time has come," said the Rev. Robert W. Wood of San Francisco, urging churches to recognize it as a moral alternative.

"If something is sexually loving, it’s good."

The occasion was the first National Conference on Religion and Homosexual Behavior held in New York recently, offering a review of the teaching on the subject from various points of view and open acceptance by the churches.

It also sketch the rapid growth of a network of independent congregations especially for homosexuals.

There are now at least 40 gay churches, started in the last two years in several cities, with others developing, conference leaders said.

"Our congregation has doubled to 800 in eight months and it will double again by September," said the Rev. Robert Clement, pastor of a Manhattan congregation for homosexuals, the Church of the Beloved Apostle.

"We’ve been a welling, outpouring love I’ve never seen before," he said. "People come, not because they’re gay but because they’re human and they can worship without hiding their identities as homosexuals."

The basic motivation is Christianity.

A key speaker at the conference, which also included "straight" churchmen not expecting homosexuality was whether present trends pointed to the rise of a formally separate denomination for homosexuals.

They’ve become impatient, waiting for the church to make up its mind about accepting them. So said the Rev. Robert W. Wood of Newark, N.J. He said the church should consider homosexuality as morally neutral as left-handedness.

"It’s an area where spiritual leaders need to do some serious ethical rethinking," he said. "He said there are 8.5 million homosexuals in the United States.

Under present circumstances, it was emphasized that they generally must conceal their condition to be accepted in ordinary churches, and this is driving them to start separate congregations.

Airlifting badly injured proposed in care plan

By Robert Shoup

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A statewide system—excluding Carbondale—as a center to treat the critically injured by using helicopter techniques is evacuate accident victims is the drawing boards of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

A similar system could be put into effect by the Illinois Department of Public Health under a plan being studied by the department.

The plan would establish a statewide system of air ambulances to transport critically injured patients to the nearest hospital capable of providing the needed medical care.

The plan is based on the idea that critically injured patients should be transported to a hospital as quickly as possible to ensure the best possible outcome.

The plan would involve the use of specially equipped helicopters that would be stationed at strategic locations throughout the state.

Critically injured patients could be airlifted to the nearest hospital capable of providing the needed medical care, ensuring that the patient receives the best possible care as quickly as possible.

This plan is similar to the system used in other states and has been shown to be effective in improving patient outcomes.

The plan is currently under study and is expected to be implemented in the near future.

Foam separation defined by professor: fights pollution

By Judy Ferdin

D. Blaney Miller, professor of environmental engineering, has developed a method for separating foam from water that could be used to fight pollution.

Miller's method involves the use of a specially designed filter that removes foam from water by using a combination of physical and chemical processes.

The filter works by first using a physical process to remove larger particles, such as dirt and debris, from the water.

The remaining foam is then removed using a chemical process, which involves the use of a specially designed agent that breaks down the foam into smaller particles that can be more easily removed.

This process is much more effective than traditional methods of foam removal, which often involve the use of chemicals that can be harmful to the environment.

Miller's method is currently being tested in a pilot study and has shown promising results.

The professor is excited about the potential of this method to help fight pollution and improve water quality.

The method could be used in a variety of settings, including industrial facilities, municipalities, and agricultural areas.

The carbon footprint of the method is also much lower than traditional methods, making it a more environmentally friendly solution.

Foam separation is an important part of pollution control, and Miller's method has the potential to make a significant contribution to this field.

The professor is currently working to refine the method and make it more practical for use in real-world settings.

The project is funded by a grant from the Illinois Department of Natural Resources and is expected to be completed in the near future.

The professor is looking forward to seeing the method put into action and making a real impact on pollution control in the state.

South Vietnamese forces are attacking suspected enemy positions in the valley, 25 miles southwest of Hue and 275 miles north of Saigon. Field officers said the main force of 1,000 Americans and 10,000 South Vietnamese are committed on paper to the operation in the valley, 25 miles long, later this week. Depending upon what patrols find, it may be a smaller operation or a larger one extending into Laos, they added.

The South Vietnamese have said their forces so far have made no significant contact since they first went into the valley last Tuesday. The South Vietnamese forces include two regiments of the 1st Infantry Division and two brigades of marines. All part took in the operation into Laos.

Welfare benefits increasing?

WASHINGTON (AP) - Details of a new Welfare-Cash Security bill are generating changes to make it safer for millions to increase welfare benefits and to spare medical recipients an increase in their costs.

The draft of a bill tentatively approved April 6 by the House Ways and Means Committee has come under heavy fire from liberals in Congress and welfare-oriented organizations outside.

The committee begins Tuesday a review of the draft, expected to take

Dean asks frat policy clarified

By Darrell Abear
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU dean of student services has removed Chancellor Robert G. Layer to clarify University policy on off-campus fraternity and sorority housing.

Walter M. Munson said Monday he has asked for a clarification of policy to prevent fraud and sorority to operate off-campus facilities.

Munson said the Inter-Greek Council had approved groups operating off-campus housing in its meeting Jan. 17, 1992.

"One of the uncertainties in our current policy is that we permit fraternities to rent converted private homes from the University, but not from private owners," he said.

Munson said the present policies were made by students and approved by then Chancellor Robert W. MacVear Therefore it would take Chancellor Layer's approval to alter the policy.

Munson said Monday he was studying the recommendation and an answer had been reached.

Munson said if Layer would approve this change of policy to principle, work would begin immediately on developing a specific housing on campus, "the Inter-Greek Council voted earlier to approve the policy change."

Munson said the University submitted a resolution on student groups negotiating for the renting, leasing, or purchasing of property must now approve of the chief officer of student services and the SIU Legal Counsel.

Munson said this policy could probably stand without interfering with the proposed change in the Inter-Greek Council.

Munson added that his office is also studying the possibility of renting existing units at Small Group Housing to fraternities and sororities as an individual group basis, rather than by individual contracts.

The members of CALA who have met with the worthy candidates for citywide presidency can easily classify them as unfeeling, insensitive individuals who, despite pretension, have little or no interest at a student level in the student body's affairs. The students should, by the statement's standards, be treated equally.

Zezler, Generate Dynamic involvement student body president, has made statements concerning student equality with administration and the "student problems" which have an "aura of nonseriousness."

"To claim that the majority of the students' problems are caused by the administration promotes a concerned and responsive student government, which has not been the case in the past and certainly will not be the case under Camille, since he has proposed no solutions for the very vague problems that he presents as the status quo."

It also attacked Bob Prince, majority and students' party student body executive candidate, saying he shared the same "nonserious" official candidates. He also said that his campaign would focus on the health service and lowering the parking sticker fees.

The CALA members, the statement said, agree that the most inexpensive, logical proposal made about the health service should be its relocation into a larger building and greater funding, and that parking sticker fees should be lowered.

But they cannot see he has no concrete offer to make in the way of a "better deal for students in some major problem areas, such as housing, disciplinary codes or due process."

The statement said that only interest groups such as CALA will "make the students' voices heard" and that not "merely some nonserious rhetoric."

Nixon asks aid on reform

WASHINGTON, Va. (AP) - President Nixon urged Republican governors Monday to help him reform a welfare system under which he said a man "can be rewarded for doing nothing." He said there is as much dignity in scrapping floors or sweeping basements as in any other work, including being President.

A speech that was praised from the two dozen GOP state and Washington, D.C., meeting this spring meeting in this restored colonial capital, Nixon sought to increase pressure on the Democratic-controlled Congress to act on welfare reform. He called it "White House priority.

The President's appeal won partisan favor from California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who advocates requiring work or training for welfare recipients. "Today is the time the time has come," Reagan told reporters.

IRS tell citizens to withhold more

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Internal Revenue Service recommends that Americans increase the sums withheld from their 1971 paychecks to cover income taxes. If they don't, the IRS said, their 1971 tax bills may be much higher. The agency said it is increasing the withholding amounts to meet its tax collection needs.

The IRS said many taxpayers are not having enough money withheld from their 1971 paychecks because of changes, effective this year, in the withholding allowances under the Reform Act.

The way to escape a big tax bill next year is to "arrange for additional withholding with your employer, who has been informed in letter," the IRS said.

"I have this one official, "it could be a real wild situation next year," the IRS said. Taxpayers must likely need extra withholding to avoid a tax bill next year.

Employers who expect to earn more than $15,000 in 1971 and want to claim the $3,000 standard deduction or itemized deductions totaling less than 12 percent of their $15,000 salaries.

Single employees who expect to earn $10,000 or more.

Married couples who expect to earn $20,000 or more and whose spouses are working.

All working couples.

"What happened," the IRS said, was that Congress increased the standard deduction from 10 percent to 15 percent. The withholding system allows a 13 percent deduction for all income, but the standard deduction is limited to $1,550 on the tax return.

The withholding tables assume that a single taxpayer with a $15,000 income and 12 percent of deductions, or $1,850 in deductions, the IRS said.

"But when the taxpayer files his return and takes the $1,850 standard deduction, or $60 less than the deductions allowed for withholding, he will generally wind up owing tax.

The same holds true for the taxpayer who itemized deductions to add up to 12 percent of his income, the IRS said.

SIU crime up 325 per cent

Police reports written by the SIU Security Office have increased 325 per cent, according to university security officer Thomas L. Lefler.
The increase from 672 incidents last year to 2,809 in 1980 was termed a very major increase by Lefler.

Enrollment at the Carbondale campus during the 10-year period jumped from 8,411 to 23,843 students. During the span, the student body increased from 17 men to 74.

The 2,809 total reported is a report for each case handled by the Security Office (courts and criminal), and do not include cases handled by other law enforcement agencies.
The large increase in Carbondale campus and does not include almost 400 reports made during the disturbances at SIU in May 1979.

According to Lane, the increase resulted from more citizens being committed and more police, writing reports.
The jump in enrollment was listed as a major reason for the increase; however, Lane said some crime would have been committed if enrollment had remained at the 1980 level.
The greatest increase in reports filed for one year occurred in 1980.

The greatest increase in reports for one year occurred in 1980.

Lane said that the increase in reports resulted from students being "more aware of crime being committed. Observational crimes are down for the past year. People see what is going on, rather than not." Lane added.

Lane said that for 1981 does not seem to be optimistic, according to Lane. In 1981, the number of reports during the first four months of the year was 205.

Organized labor woos young in vote drive

By Neil Gilbridge

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some of organized labor's political leaders are recruiting a few buses to win youths into a major vote drive that almost certainly will be aimed at winning "President Jimmy" to office in 1980.

"Please don't get us side-tracked with side shows that divide us like legalize homosexuality, legalizing pot and affirmative action for draft-age men who went to Canada or Sweden or reparations for the Viet Cong," pleaded AFL-CIO political director George Carson in a youth vote conference.

"Work with voters' issues of education, health, housing, minimum wage and economics - and we can make big bands under one banner."

The 80-year-old Black urged the youth conferences who discussed registration of soon-to-be 18-year-old voters.

One young girl who was Miss Bessie, party and fifth-grade political consultant, said "girls in short skirts" are on the youth vote campaign aid along with street trucks, leaflets and coffee kettles.

But she later smiled and applauded Bessie's advice to seek out youth groups wherever they congregate and get them to register.

"Once they leave the pot party - they're just like anybody else - they're hard to find. They're like 45-year-old Catholic women - you can never find them."

Racine said there were 14 people Wednesday at the conference. "Keep Them Together. Stupid."

Racine, who has been a union leader for 25 years, said the youths avoid "the cheap thrills."

"They're Fringe points of the unions."

But some buses at last week's "The Beat's Got You Down" on the Youth Vote sponsored by the A. Philip Randolph Institute.

The institute is named for the former president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters.

National food stamp scale planned

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government has proposed that national income eligibility standards be set for operating food stamp programs uniformly in all states.

A family of four with a take home pay of $300 a month, for example, could qualify for food stamps regardless of residence.

At present state welfare agencies determine income requirements, all but three states cut off food stamp eligibility at monthly incomes lower than now proposed.

The new income schedules and other operating regulations were announced by the Agriculture Department which has charge of food stamps, a program currently serving more than 10 million poverty level Americans.

The department said public comments on the proposed food stamp regulations will be accepted until May 17.

The proposed regulations will implement a liberalized food stamp law passed by Congress last year.

Under the food stamp plan, qualified low income people can spend a portion of their income on food stamps and in addition get bonus coupons good at supermarkets. Nationally, recipients have averaged $60 worth of stamps for each $4 spent on them.

The proposed regulations also provide for a modest increase in the total value of food stamps issued monthly to various size families.

The proposed regulations also are subject to changes aimed at getting more people at the higher income levels to use food stamps and into job markets.

Kabuti dance troupe to perform at Convo

Details of Alternative '71 survey on campus

Alternative '71, could be an alternative to SIU's Convocation program. According to Tom Kelley, chairman of the Cultural Activities Committee in the Student Government Activities Council (SGAC), SGAC is coordinating a series of cultural events on campus to begin May 15 through May 23 in a celebration of the University and community, using the title of Alternative '71.

Kelley described the present Convocation program as watered-down in a letter to the Alternative '71 planning committee.

According to Kelley, the deficiency in the Convocation program can be resolved through Alternative '71. Kelley said SIU had a duty to provide the key to eliminating problems of culture and politics at SIU, but he does not believe the program's sole purpose is to avoid violence.

Kelley said his job is to coordinate the many details involved in making cultural events possible. He said SIU tried to schedule programs which are relevant to the students and the time on the Agenda.

Area people dine with 15 prisoners

By Robert W. Snide
Assistant Writer

Party five area residents had dinner with 15 prisoners Friday.

Members of the First Presbyterian Church, in cooperation with the Work Release Center, a division of the Illinois Crime and Corrections Department, sponsored the dinner so that community residents could learn and share experiences with the men in the Work Release Program.

Except for those convicted of murder, kidnapping or treason, convicted offenders are eligible to participate in the Work Release Program during the last half of their minimum sentence.

An application is made at the prison through a counselor and reviewed by members of the Work Release Center.

Russians orbit possible station

By Michael Johnson

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union has observed the first phase of what it termed a successful craft involving several cosmonauts and at least two more spacecraft.

Details were kept secret, as usual in the Soviet Union, but semificial sources said the mission was a joint project between the long-established program of building an orbiting space station and a new program of launching a new type of unmanned craft, the Sibute, possibly the first of a series.

It was described officially only as an "orbital scientific station." The workaday nature, however, put it in a path to receive more craft for joint maneuvers.

"Particular consideration is given to the individual with a family on welfare, or to those who are from the rural area," said Ronald Scott, supervisor of the Center.

This program enables the accused individual to work on a job to help support his family. And the chances are better for the individual to maintain the job when he is released.

Presently, there are 21 men in the work program in this area. Similar state programs are in Chicago, Peoria and Joliet. A program for women is conducted in Dwight.

Referring to the men as "residents," Scott said, "Under the program, the residents are learning how to act in the community.

"We try to simulate real world experiences. These sets of experiences will give a guy a chance to function realistically.

"This is better than just giving him a few dollars and releasing him from institutionalized living."

In a dormitory setting at 110 W. Cherry St., the residents work together as a big family. Each resident pays for his room, board and personal expenses from his earnings.

Meals are even served family style.

One of the problems the center hopes to avoid is resident dependence on the center...

"We are creating an atmosphere of independence. We are not trying to become institutionalized," Scott said.

A four-member Resident Governing Board is part of the effort to maintain resident independence. The board, elected by the residents, elected to represent the residents for a two-year term.

Wages are based on the resident's skills and making recommendations to Scott.

"I have to beawi, of course, but I usually confer with most recommendations," Scott said.

Dance course offered

A 10 week course in ballroom dancing is being offered by the Carbonate Park District. The program is on a call or the park district and will include instruction in the ballroom, social, cha-cha, rumba, swing, tango, polka and rock.

Classes will start at 8 p.m. Monday in the Community Center at 300 W. Elm St. Advance registration should be made by calling the Park District office at 627-4790. A fee of $2 for each person will be charged for each class.

Persons of all ages are invited to join the program. The course is designed to accommodate both singles and couples.

Two professional dance instructors who have taught with the Fred Astaire Dance Studios in Chicago will conduct the course. Nona Griffin and Jack Ramke have participated in numerous dance competitions and exhibitions.

Control program aims at local rat problem

By Dave McGregor
Student Writer

Rats destroy about $1 billion worth of property in this country each year. According to Tom Bevirt, technical consultant for the Carbondale Rat and Pest Control Department, Carbondale has its share of rats but is trying to do something about the problem. The department, which has been in existence for almost a year, is using a program of education and extermination in hopes of controlling the rat population.

How big is the problem? Bevrit says there is no way to tell how many rats there are in Carbondale, but that only recently an estimated 7,000 rats were discovered just outside of town.

Bevrit said that rats are not confined to any part of town. Rats use the storm sewers to move about, he added.

Bevrit also said, "The rat problem is a sociological problem, not a biological one."

Bevrit was explaining the reason that high rat populations can exist because people are careless about littering and properly disposing of garbage.

"Students are among the worst offenders," Bevrit said, referring to the careless manner in which garbage is left in open containers. As to the effectiveness of the program, Bevrit said, "We've been pretty successful in many areas because we've killed a lot of rats." He added, however, that the rat population will probably never be eliminated and will be controlled only if the public cooperates.

In addition to exterminating rats, Bevrit said the department has implemented an active educational program and has given lectures to members of the community, in schools and on the Carbondale area.

Information for free extermination service for rats and other pests, such as cockroaches, may be obtained by calling 549-5890, extension 371.

As to the effectiveness of the program, Bevrit said, "We've been pretty successful in many areas because we've killed a lot of rats." He added, however, that the rat population will probably never be eliminated and will be controlled only if the public cooperates.

In addition to exterminating rats, Bevrit said the department has implemented an active educational program and has given lectures to members of the community, in schools and on the Carbondale area.

Information for free extermination service for rats and other pests, such as cockroaches, may be obtained by calling 549-5890, extension 371.

Jesus People' make switch; on with God, off of drugs

Coplay News Service

LOS ANGELES—She stood on a busy downtown corner, the wind tingling her red hair.

"Come on, man, get your head straight," she pleaded as she passed out leaflets to passersby.

Another "Jesus Freak" bent anti- Establishment propaganda? Not hardly.

This young woman is a member of a growing fraternity of former hard-core children who are turning to God instead of drugs.

The by-now-familiar slogan describing the ecstasy of finding God and going others to do the same.

Called "Jesus Freaks" by hard-core addicts and those who wish to ridicule the movement, they are simply "Jesus People," "Street Christians" or "Children of God" to those who have compassion for the movement or belong to it. They are young people—virtually none is over 30—most are barely over 20, and many are former addicts—and they are part of a growing movement that is spreading like wildfire across the United States.

They operate out of communities, rescue missions and on the streets. Groups range in number from a few members to Ducks of more than 1,600. They have their own slang language and even their own newspaper. Their converts come from every imaginable niche of society. Rich kids peddle God right along with the poor welfare kid who could hardly talk too vividly what it was like growing up in the ghetto.

Estimation of how many young people are involved is widely varied. In California alone it is believed there are some 100,000 involved in the Jesus movement.

The movement has its own newspaper, the Hollywood Free Paper, which boasts a nationwide circulation of more than 200,000 for its twice a month edition. Publisher of the so-called "underground" paper is one-time entertainer Duane Petersen, 23, who became interested in the project a year and a half ago after seeing the success of other underground publications.

The movement took hold with the young people two years ago and is being led by youth-oriented fundamentalist preachers who advocate a turn on to Jesus and a casting aside of drugs and illicit sex. There seems to be no central denomination, and so many young evangelicals that a "new Christian Youth" movement has been going on at the Bethel Youth Center since 1968 when a young man named Breck Stevens got interested in the Pen tential Church, which was then called the Bethel Assembly Tabernacle.

The young man had just been arrested for a drug offense, add opium, he started believing in Christ after a visit to the church. He started bringing in other hip friends, many of whom wore beards and bands and didn't have homes. They, too, became converted to Christianity.

The church opened its doors to the young people and shortly after that changed its name to the Bethel Youth Center. The young people have reported that by going out to make converts for Christ.

They have seen the change in the youth in their idea of living and are turning for a better kind of reality. The Rev. Lyle Stevens, pastor of the church, said at the time.

More than 10,000 young people have been contacted by "Street Christians," says Stevens.

Stevens is now 18 years old and serves as an assistant pastor at the church.

A few of them have come here for kicks, Stevens says. "You know, kids who want a trip for the night."

But Stevens insists that the "Street Christians" have been a turning point in the lives of many youths.

Tryouts planned for 'Deathworks'

Auditions for "Deathworks," a California Stage production, will be held Tuesday and Wednesday.

Over 32 actors, interpreters and mime artists are needed for the show, which is an original piece of theatre written and directed by student in theater at California Stage.

Auction will open in mid-May under the direction of Maureen O'Sullivan and Terry Czerniecki, also a graduate student in theater.

"Deathworks" is described as a multimedia performance piece on the theme of death.

Audition times are at 4 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday on the California Stage on the second floor of the Communications Building. Auditions are open to all interested persons.

Havens' concert featuring a mixture of 'Rap and Roll'

By Cathy Spence
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Richie Havens' concert in the Arena Student Union recently has been called "Rap with Rock" by Rich. Havens spent some time Monday evening discussing the influence of rap music on younger generations.

His philosophic dialogues about life, love, the nature of existence and learning about yourself, were richly infused with heart and soul, yet were not an afterthought, but the few spoken songs were even better expressions of Havens' feelings. The cavernous interior of the Arena Student Union looked more like a living room and less like a concert hall, a needed intimacy between performer and audience.

Havens opened the show with an exuberant version of "Freedom." He introduced the audience fully into the celebration, all over the stage, panel in the encore by a stage full of fans. It was a fine evening for the approximately 2,400 persons who saw only the sides and back of Richie Havens for over half an hour. The audience finally responded to shouting for the galleries to move as the stage could not and it wasn't too hushed, but they had paid their money, only to leave in the middle of Traffic at State Street and Jackson Boulevard, set down on them and threw themselves into a traffic jam. Havens asked them to disorderly conduct and tossed them off to the side of the road and entered the show because, in the traffic, he had poked his head out of his car with three sharpened bicycle spokes.

Later he was found on TV. As for the hotel episode, Havens again gets the word disorderly conduct and also for disturbing an already vacant hotel room, only refused to pay $500 to meet the Palmer House area physicians as clinical associates in the medical school. The physicians will serve without pay and will help organize and staff the medical school.

State readying bill preventing student voting

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - In the wake of student victories in Berkeley, Calif., city elections, the Illinois House of Representatives has approved a bill Monday aimed at limiting student voting in all elections, including from voting in campus community elections for the medical school.

The measure, approved 13 to 2, applied to all students from outside the state. It would provide county clerks with legal tools to prevent students from registering in college counties if the student was not considered by the clerk to be a permanent resident of the community, the registration could be denied.

Board gives tentative OK to highway bypass

A highway improvement plan for Carbondale which includes a four-lane, bow-shaped U.S. Highway 51 bypass west of the city, was tentatively approved by the SIU Board of Trustees at its meeting Friday at VTL.

The Board gave preliminary approval to the Carbondale Area Transportation Study, planned for implementation by 1989.

The University is one of four agencies which has worked under a joint agreement since 1984 to develop a highway plan. The other three agencies--Carbondale, Jackson County and the Illinois Division of Highways--have already tentatively approved the plan.

The technical committee of the agencies will now work out the boxed art show program

"The Beser Top Art Show," an exhibit at Illinois State University, will be shown at SIU's art department in June, Harold Gregory, associate professor of art in charge of the show announced. The show consists of 30 art pieces by well known American and foreign artists on invitation of the SIU Department of Art. Each piece was sent a frame canvas on which each executed a work of art and returned it to the show.

The SIU art department requested that the show be sent to Carbondale after the exhibit ends April 30.

Tennis team triumphs in doubles

The SIU team, under the direction of the head coach for the second consecutive year, was able to defeat the University of Tennessee in the third round of the NCAA Division II tennis tournament. The team members, who were expected to make it to the third round, were able to make it to the final round and win the match against the University of Tennessee. The victory was the fourth for the Salukis against two losses and a tie. The Salukis defeated the University of Tennessee with a score of 5-4, after losing the first set 3-6 and the second set 2-6. The victory was a result of the combined efforts of the team members, who worked together to win the match. The victory was significant for the SIU team, as it marked the second consecutive year that the team was able to defeat the University of Tennessee in the NCAA Division II tennis tournament. The victory was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the team members, who were able to overcome the challenges of the tournament and come out on top.

Coed P.E. department offers special training

Students whose skill in golf, volleyball, fencing, tennis, badminton, gymnastics and dancing needs a little polish can receive individualized instruction in these areas from the women's physical education department.

The program, "Individualized Instruction," which began Monday, is designed to offer instruction to students who recognize that each student is unique in the learning process and requires different approaches and varied practice time, according to Dan Fetter, women's physical education instructor.

Miss Fetter said it is hoped that this program will give students an opportunity for students to perfect skills in sports in which they want to progress beyond regular class activities.

The instruction schedule is: Golf, volleyball and fencing instruction, 7-9 a.m. Monday; Tuesday and Wednesday; and badminton and gymnastics, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Wednesday and Friday. The center is in the Women's Physical Education Building.

SIU gymnast visits Russia

Tom Lindner, SIU gymnast who finished third in horizontal bar and fourth in pommel horse at the recent NCAA gymnastics championships, left Monday for a 14-day trip to Riga, U.S.S.R., where he will represent the U.S. in the first International Invitational Tournament.

Lindner, a junior, will be part of a six-man team consisting of himself, Bob Netzer, a junior; Bob Lentz, a senior; Brett Simmons and Pro-Five State's Marshall Austin. Simmons and Austin were teammates of Lindner's while competing for the University of Kansas in the World Games last year.

The U.S. team will be coached by Bill Mahoney of the gym club on North America, and head coach at the University of New Mexico.

Soccer team plans 7 games

Seven games, including three at home, are on the spring schedule of the SIU Intercollegiate Soccer Association. St. Louis University was defeated by SIU, 3-1, in the season opener at the soccer field east of the Arena.

The schedule games for the season were: St. Louis, Feb. 28; Missouri State, March 5; Missouri State, March 8; Emporia State, March 12; Kansas State, March 16; and Kansas State, March 19; West Virginia University.

The soccer team played the University of St. Louis on Senior Night.

Killbrew leads Twins to victory

ST PAUL (AP) — Harmon Killebrew drove in the only run of the game with a two-run single in the first inning to help the Minnesota Twins build a 9-4 lead and then pitched the sixth inning to earn his 19th win of the season.

Killebrew sparked the Twins to the early edge with a two-run single in the first inning, a run-scoring groundout in the second and a two-run home run in the third.

Killebrew, who hit .273 with 11 home runs and 42 runs batted in this season, came in on the second after Kansas City starter Jim Kaat was shelled by six hits, gave up Killebrew's second homer of the season.
Illinois a hapless lot, lose three; Itchy pleased with Martin's work

By Fred Weisberg

The number is now 10. The magic number is now uncertain. The number refers to a 10 game winning streak the SIU baseball team now possesses. The uncertain magic number refers to the number of additional games the Salukis will have to win to be considered for a berth in the NCAA District Five playoffs. The Salukis go against Washburn University in St. Louis Tuesday afternoon.

Wins number eight, nine and 10 came with a sweep of a three-game series with the University of Illinois over the weekend. SIU won the Friday game, 14-1, and took both ends of a Saturday doubleheader, 7-4 and 6-2.

Steve Randall got the win in the first game of the twinbill, going five and one-third innings, building up a 7-1 lead before the largely dormant Illinois came to life for a 4 run rally in the sixth.

It was not enough, however, to put Illinois back in the ballgame as SIU coach Bob Jones removed Randall for top relief man Dave Martin who put down the rally with eight fastballs.

"We need that kind of relief pitching," Jones said.

Illinois pulled even with the Salukis in the second inning of Saturday's second game for the first and last time in the series.

Bob Jones led off the SIU first with a single and scored the first Saluki run on Dave Martin's sacrifice fly. Illinois Tom Heinrich evaded the count by belting a homer over the centerfield fence but it was all the second inning hitting Illinois could muster and SIU went on to win 6-1.

It was the fourth victory for the golfer against one loss and coupled with the tournament victory in which saw Southern finish ahead of three Big Ten teams, it gave coach Lynn Holder reason to smile.

"It was a real big one for us," he said.

Racers here for hot times during track meet tonight

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

There's going to be some hot times in the town tonight probably high.

The Murray State Racers will face the Illinois team in McAndrew Stadium in what will be one of the most outstanding dual track meets in the country.

Field events will begin at 7 p.m. Running events will start at 7:30 p.m. The shot put and javelin competitions will use thehandle ball court area at 6 p.m.

Both teams are undefeated in dual meet competition this year. The Racers have defeated Western Illinois, Southeast Missouri and Memphis State while SIU has topped Florida State and Indiana State.

Murray State will stack its chips behind a solid running team which includes an outstanding mile relay squad and pointer Tommy Turner.

Turner is the third-ranked quarter miler in the world and NCAA champion in the indoor 800-yard run. He won the 220-yard dash in 46.2 seconds at the Dogwood Relays last Saturday.

Turner will face his old Western Illinois Gator, high school teammate—Ivy Crockett—in the 220 and the anchor legs of the mile and 440 relays.

Terry Erickson, two-time AAU champion, will also run in the 100-yard dash. He won the 100 in 9.1 seconds at the Dogwood Relays.

The mile relay will share the spotlight with Crockett and Turner although both are anchors for their teams.

Murray State's mile relay team ran a 3:02.6 at the Dogwood Relays, the best time this year in the nation.

The Salukis—Crockett, Bobby Morrow, Erickson and Eddie Sutton—are ranked fifth in the mile relay.

The Racers placed high in the indoor NCAAs this year and ranked sixth in the outdoor championships last year.

Murray State has beaten Southern twice in the mile relay this year.

The SIU relay teams are fighting the track just as much as the Racers. The 440 relay team—Sutton, Erickson, Stan Patterson and Crockett—placed second behind the Doggs. Last year the Racers set the school record for the second time this year.

"Unless they cloblser us on the track," said SIU head coach Lew Hartle-"we should take the meet. Although some track records—particularly in the mile relay—will fall," he said.

"You just can't find a better dual meet."
