U.S. halts convoy action through Gulf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has temporarily suspended convoys of U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tankers and their Navy escorts through the Persian Gulf until the situation in the volatile waters calms down, a Pentagon official said Tuesday.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said "it is not prudent to have escorts under way" in the gulf until the situation in the volatile waters calms down following U.S. naval strikes on two Iranian oil rigs Monday and subsequent clashes between Iranian and U.S. forces.

The official said "suspension is a good term," when referring to the escorts, adding, "Until things subside, you probably won't see any escorts."

"This certainly is not a change of policy, but given the last four or five days, it is not a prudent measure to have escorts under way," he said. However, Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard, asked about a delay in escorts, told a Pentagon briefing, "there is simply not true." However, replying to another question, Howard acknowledged there had been no convoys either Monday or Tuesday.

He declined to say whether there would be a convoy today or later this week or the Week.

Increasing the minimum wage may cut the number of student workers offered by the University, the director of Student Work and Financial Assistance said.

"It is required in the bill to raise the minimum wage that all college work study and other student workers will have to be paid the new minimum wage," Joe Camille said.

But for the same number of student jobs to be offered if the wage is increased, the University would have to receive additional funding from the state and federal governments.

The House of Representatives education and labor committee, which was given the task of reviewing and amending the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, has proposed raising the minimum wage from $2.35 to $3.35 over a four-year period.

If the bill is passed and the University doesn't get additional funding, there would have to be a reduction in the number of hours student workers may work or some student jobs would have to be eliminated, Camille said.

He said more money was allotted to student employment in this year's federal budget and that the Illinois Department of Transportation for review.

The firm updated a 1985 study of Carbondale's traffic patterns in October 1987. It said traffic could increase between 5 and 10 percent by 2001 and that bypasses, which would cost about $15 million, were not worth the cost.

The consulting firm conducted two studies on Carbondale's traffic pattern.

The first surveyed drivers to find out which roads they traveled on when passing through Carbondale. Motorists were stopped and asked where they were heading on Route 51.

Local pharmacies to help Medicaid patients

By Curtis Winston Staff Writer

The Carbondale pharmacists will continue to fill prescriptions for Medicaid patients despite warnings from the state that it is running out of money to pay Medicaid providers.

Three other city pharmacists said they are still filling Medicaid prescriptions, but aren't sure if they will continue.

Pharmacist Jack Atwood, of Atwood Drugs, would not say whether he would continue to serve Medicaid patients. Department of Public Aid officials announced the Medicaid funding crisis Monday, saying it has halted payments to 1,800 pharmacies, dentists and other Medicaid providers. The department also will halt payments to another 27,000 Medicaid providers in the coming weeks.

Pharmacists in the East St. Louis area have said they will stop filling prescriptions for Medicaid patients. Mary Jane Rees, Jackson County public aid administrator, said no Jackson County medical vendors have told her they would stop serving Medicaid patients, but there is no law requiring them to do so. They may notify her as a "matter of courtesy and ethics," she said.

There are 11 Medicaid providers in Jackson County. Medicaid providers include pharmacists, doctors, hospitals, nursing homes, dentists and ambulance services.

Under the Medicaid program, the state pays for services medical vendors provide to the elderly, disabled and low-income families with dependent children.

Rees said the Medicaid crisis "seems to be especially bad this year because we did not get a tax increase."

The 1988 budget for public aid was a "zero-increase" budget from the previous year, while the number of Medicaid cases increased, Rees said.

Gov. James R. Thompson has proposed a 15% increase in welfare programs in the 1989 fiscal budget.

Aspirin abuse unchecked
Over-the-counter drug use disturbs campus officials

By Holly J. Corrivong Staff Writer

Over-the-counter drug abuse at the University has campus health officials worried.

"Students misuse and abuse over-the-counter drugs without knowing the physical consequences that are caused by them," David F. Duncan, professor of health education, said.

In a campus study of drugs most commonly used by students, Duncan found the statistics on aspirin use frightening.

"While aspirin is not addicting, it has apparently become a habit with many students," said Duncan.

The study, taken from a random sample of about 233 students enrolled in undergraduate and graduate classes, revealed that about 12 percent of those surveyed took aspirin with other drugs, 6 percent used aspirin daily, 3 percent reported taking at least 12 aspirins a day and the same percent said they had taken two bottles of aspirin to overdose, it takes a very small dosage to cause hemorrhaging in people with liver disorders. A statistic in the study by Duncan didn't find particularly surprising involved students who reported drinking and driving.

Despite public awareness campaigns on the dangers of drinking and driving and police crackdowns, nearly two-thirds of the respondents said that in the past year they had driven after drinking two or more alcoholic drinks, Duncan said.

The campus police report for 1967 included 46 arrests for driving under the influence of alcohol, 71 incidents of underage alcohol consumption, 244 incidents of underage possession of alcohol and 43 incidents involving the breaking of University rules and regulations, which covers confiscation of alcohol in the dorms.

"Alcohol is the drug of choice on campus," Bach Fjolok, coordinator of Alcohol and Drug Education at the Wellness Center, said. She said that about 90 percent of students on campus drink, 20 percent on their way to serious dependency problems.

Although the statistics are high, Fjolok said they are comparable to statistics reported by other universities.

Fjolok said those who suffer most from alcohol pressures are freshman males who live in campus housing. She said they are under the illusion that drinking leads to strong friendships, romance and financial status. "There's a strong media expectation that real men drink beer," she said.

Fjolok thinks the key to responsible drinking is moderation.

"Liquor stores are making their money from people who drink abusively," she said. "If all adults drank only the maximum moderate amount of alcohol per day, the liquor industry would lose 40 percent of its profits."

Although current studies have advised taking one aspirin a day to reduce the risk of blood clots, Duncan said aspirin can cause bleeding in the circulatory system that results in stroke or heart attack.

In addition, Duncan said that while a healthy person may have to take two bottles of aspirin to overdose, it takes a very small dosage to cause hemorrhaging in people with liver disorders.

A statistic in the study by Duncan didn't find particularly surprising involved students who reported drinking and driving.

"Far more people die from aspirin abuse than heroin or cocaine," said Duncan.

Duncan said that a bleeding ulcer is the most common cause of death resulting from irregular consumption of aspirin. An aspirin overdose upsets the acid base balance in the blood, poisons it, and causes the ulcer to bleed, he said.

Safety on campus must be improved

VERY FEW THINGS are worth dying for, and an education is not one of them. But if the University’s record of safety hazards in the past decade is any indication, SIU-C just might be one huge accident waiting to happen.

A list of some of the more serious potential dangers follows:

- In the late 1970s, it was found that a number of transformers on campus were leaking PCBs, a suspected carcinogen. A supposed carcinogen, into, among other places, Campus Lake. The University knew of the leakage for more than two years before the news became public. Only after the news broke were the transformers replaced or replaced. In the meantime, people who swam in or ate fish from Campus Lake knew about the PCBs and the potential dangers involved. By withholding the information, the University did these people a great disservice, whatever the level of consciousness starting early.

At the time, 13 transformers on campus were found to contain PCBs, 10 of which still are in use at SIU-C. Money has been allocated for their replacement, but the problem will take a few years, said John Leister, director of Pollution Control.

While the majority of the transformers with PCBs are in low-traffic areas, the potential for severe harm to students and employees still exists. And, while all PCB-containing transformers eventually will be replaced, it has been more than a decade since the potential danger was discovered.

- Morris Library recently was found to be in violation of state fire codes because of boxes of books piled in the corridors and near entrances and exits. The problem apparently has been corrected, but only after a Daily Egyptian article on April 6 pointed out the violation.

It was we have taken little effort for the University to call the fire department and check if the boxes violated fire codes, but perhaps it didn’t want to hear the answer.

- In March 1987 a group of SIU-C employees in Morris Library filed a complaint with the Illinois Department of Labor about possible asbestos contamination in the basement and on the third floors of the Library.

The University had known that there were levels of asbestos in the library probably are not dangerous, but, through the whole affair, the University was very insensitive to the fears of its employees.

The employees were told the results of asbestos testing by University administrators, but were not shown the actual samples of the asbestos. The employees, second-hand-on an issue of such importance did nothing but compound their fears. If there were nothing to fear, the employees should have had to file a Freedom of Information Act request to get the results.

By themselves, many of these potential dangers to SIU-C students, employees, and visitors are not very profound. But, put together, the University definitely is not the safest place in the world.

In addition, the University often has had to be called by students, who were calling its students and employees in danger before it investigated possible dangers or did anything about them.

University officials should make two important changes in how they try to ensure safety on campus. First, they should be more aware of what is going on around them. Observing the truth only creates fear and distrust. Second, SIU-C’s administrators should take a more active role in checking for safety violations, instead of waiting for others to discover dangerous situations.

The lives they save could be their own.

Catholic women need leadership

This letter is in response to Toni Intravaia’s perception that “women should not be ordained but be priests” and that “women are not varied” and that they “are not finding their place in the church.” Only enhances the evident ignorance displayed by many Catholics in today’s society.

If we, as a society, were to solely rely on women like Toni Intravaia to lead by example and to educate other women (which she does, to and behold!) within the realm of Christian learning, perhaps it would presently be one of the female altar “boys” at Saint Francis Xavier who “assists the priests.”

To conclude, I have opted to pursue a master’s degree, a choice perceived as somewhat marketable. - Laura J. Michales, graduate student, sport management

Visit to campus was very nice, fun

We want to thank everyone for the very nice tour we had of the University on April 11. Debbie Perry arranged a very nice tour and John, our tour guide, was very helpful and answered all of our questions.

The real highlight of our day was when we got to go into a real college class at the Agriculture Building. We really do appreciate the time you took to show us how things are done.

It really was something special. We enjoyed seeing the room out at Thompson Point. It was very nice of Chris to let us see her room. Now we know what a student’s room looks like.

The two ladies at the Museum gave a great tour. Seeing the Indian Pottery that had been put back together was really very interesting.

The map room at the library was wonderful. The guide had a list of good maps to see and we were able to think him again for letting us have the road maps. Our two guides at the library were very helpful and showed us how to check out books.

The food at the Center was excellent. We were very happy to see so many friendly people who helped us and answered questions for us.

April 12 was a great day for us.

Thank you for saying good-bye and inviting us to behavioral.

Jesus is real, Easter Bunny is not

In response to the April 8 letter, “Religious Jesus,” As is by understood your letter. “If there is a God he would tell his people to be cool and to make friends.

Yes, there is a God and, if you can excuse the phrase, it plainly says “go then to all people everywhere and make disciples.” (Matthew 28:19). That verse says to proclaim the gospel (in a true manner) and to make disciples (that means to see people follow Jesus). Jesus’ disciples were not the “coolest” people in the world.

In fact, they were beaten and persecuted for preaching and believing in Jesus. They were killed for telling the “true” gospel (Acts 2:18-30, 26-27).

What the people in front of the American Flag were really doing was preaching the true meaning of Easter, not bunnies and candy Jesus did come and died for us so we could have everlasting life and he did rise from the dead to prove he should be believed (John 19:37-39).

Maybe everybody does understand the true meaning of Easter and Jesus but how many believe enough to die a death like he did, just for believing? (Ephesians 5:5-7) In Pinocchio meaning of “cool” drinking a beer and discussing Easter Bunny in a place of religion (Proverbs 31:6-7).

God will judge those who mock him. They mocked Jesus when they nailed him to his cross and stabbed him in the side. Yes, God really is real and so was the blood and tears that Jesus shed for you. He really does love you. If you do not want to do something about this, ask him in your heart and read the scriptures, John 1:15, Mark 9:1, Luke 23:38, John 6-36 - 3:14 and Acts 16-24.

USO to ratify election results, discuss BAS programs, faculty

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Government, Wednesday night, voted on whether to ratify the results of the 1990 student election. A small but energetic group of the Alliance Party were elected president and vice president. The Alliance and Stand parties each had 13 delegates elected and the Phoenix Party had nine.

Senator for the Alliance Party Damon Mathis said there were no complaints of fraud in last Wednesday's election and all the parties agreed it was a fair election.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center. All USO members the USO will vote on whether to:

—Support the Carbondale Clean-Up. The trash clean-up project is set for Saturday.
—Change the name of the USO to the Undergraduate Student Government Association. The name change proposal appeared on the referendum on the student election ballot. Students voted in favor of the change 1,137 to 752.
—Support the Black American Studies Association's proposal to reject that their faculty positions in Black American Studies and 33 that their tenure-track personnel by August 1991.
—Reconstitute the two BAS courses that were eliminated from the general education curriculum.
—Directly link the BAS program to the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and provide the program with a separate budget.

The Black American Studies program currently operates on the budget of the School of Social Sciences.
—Support the campus-city mass transit system. An item was placed on the student election ballot asking students if they would support a 15 cent semester fee for the system. The proposal was approved 1,297 to 506.

The transit system would be student operated. It would be governed by a student mass transit board made up of USO and Graduate and Professional Student Council representatives as voting members. Representatives of the city administration, the city and the transit service company would be advisory members.

A proposal will be submitted to the SIU Board of Trustees recommending the implementation of the transit system.
—Fund 40 registered student organizations.

Financial Aid Study Commission has recommended a $4.65 increase in student fees that would provide more funds for student workers in the upcoming fall term.

"If the minimum wage is increased, it seems that the federal and state government are looking for ways to keep students employed," Dr. Camille said.

In its report to the full House, the education and labor committee stated that a gradual increase in the minimum wage would not have adverse effects on the economy.

A recent study assessing the bill indicated that over a three year period increasing the minimum wage from $3.35 to $4.65 would increase unemployment by less than 0.1 percent. The final increase of 90 cents in the fourth year would have a similar minute effect on employment, the study said.

But the committee's minority report, which proposes a moratorium increase in the minimum wage states that any increase will have a drastic negative affect on the economy.

All increases would only eliminate jobs but pass increased payroll costs on to consumers, the minority report said.

It has been 10 years since Congress and the President have approved legislation to increase the minimum wage.

grounds that as a general policy, convey grants are not announced in advance. The last U.S. escort convoy was Wednesday.

White House spokesman Martin Fittwater asked whether the United States' temporary suspended escorting reflagged tankers through the Persian Gulf, said "there is no change in our national policy. Our intention is to carry it out as we have done in the past.

The official cited the freshly laid mines in the gulf and "activities of the last few days" during which U.S. and Iranian forces clashed.

Meanwhile, there was a report from the gulf that the Iranians for the first time Monday fired some of their Silkworm anti-ship missiles, which are made in China, at U.S. tankers. The report said five Silkworms had been fired.

A U.S. official said these reports cannot be confirmed.

In the heat of battle it is nearly impossible to determine what type missiles were fired, he said. "Right now, we have the information to say Silkworms were fired," the official said.

Fittwater also said there was "no evidence" Silkworm missiles were used by Iran.
Group addresses policy, stigma attached to sexual harassment

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Students sexually harassing other students is common but rarely reported, the leader of a victims support group said.

Friends Against Sexual Harassment recently formed to support students of sexual harassment. The group was inspired by discussions on sexual harassment sponsored last fall by the Feminist Action Coalition, Cynthia Clabough, group coordinator, said.

During the discussions, many women complained about the sexual harassment policy. Clabough said, so a group decided to meet regularly and to work with victims dealing with the policy.

"The group's objectives are to deal with sexual harassment through direct action with harassers. They know they can't get away with that behavior and letting victims know they are not powerless," Clabough said.

Few students have come to the support group for help yet, Clabough said. Most students don't bother to report sexual harassment and many don't know where to go for help, she said.

Students need to understand that sexual harassment is and know that they don't have to put up with it, Clabough said. Internal students are especially vulnerable because they cannot know their rights and are afraid to report incidents, she said.

"The need is out there for the support group to be here," Clabough said.

The support group is made up of faculty, civil service employees and some student volunteers.

Women need to be educated about what they can tolerate and how they can stop harassment, Clabough said.

She encourages victims to write a letter to the harasser letting him or her know what sexual harassment is and asking that he or she stop. Studies show that this method works in about 70 percent of the cases she said.

The group will need someone to accompany victims who want to talk to their harassers or victims who are going through a formal grievance procedure. Clabough said.

"Not everyone is willing to go through the formal procedures, and even if they do, there is no guarantee that any action against the harasser will be taken by the University," she said.

The group also plans to put together a speakers panel to go into health classes and talk about sexual harassment, Clabough said.

"Right now we're saving money to advertise because we would like to really get rolling by fall," she said.

Volunteers needed to work during Regatta

By Curtis Winston

Organizers of the 15th Annual Cardboard Boat Regatta say more volunteers are needed to help with the event because of a record number of entries.

More than 90 entries had been received as of April 12, which is a record for that date, according to regatta founder Richard Archer, assistant professor of design. Regatta coordinator Terry Mathias said about 80 or 90 volunteers will be needed to help with the event, which will be held at noon April 30 at Campus Lake during Springfest activities. Volunteers will help with registration, timing, scoring and other functions essential to the race.

Mathias said two student organizations have said they will provide volunteers, but he said he didn't know how many people from the groups had committed to volunteering. For details about volunteering for the race, call Mathias at University Relations, 453-5306. Race participants do not need to preregister.

Van Halen hospitalized for infection

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Rock 'n' roll star Eddie Van Halen has been hospitalized after apparently picking up a virus on a trip to the South Seas, a spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The 33-year-old lead guitarist for the heavy metal group Van Halen checked into Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Sunday after experiencing a high fever and "getting sick over the weekend," his publicist, Maureen O'Connor, said.

Van Halen apparently contracted the infection while vacationing in the Fiji islands with his wife, actress Valerie Bertinelli, who was not affected, he said.

The exact nature of the infection was not disclosed, but Van Halen was undergoing tests and receiving antibiotics, O'Connor said.

Sun beams dangerous fun

Skin cancer can be a consequence for sunbathers

By Amy Gaubatz

With summer approaching, many people will be trying to get a deep, dark tan. But they may get too much sun if they bargain for a sunburn.

"Sunburn is a radiation burn." Chris Labyk, co­ordinator of the Student Assessment Center and researcher at the University of Missouri­Kansas City, said. "It's actually like an injury."

Burns can be quite dangerous, especially if the process of burns and sunburns can be any one of them, although usually one of them will be called erythema. A second-degree burn is called a blisters.

A third-degree burn causes the skin to turn white and come off.

"It is important to keep a burn cool and to make sure you are wearing a clean shirt against it," Perkins said. "Any time you have a lot of blistering, you should seek medical care."

Cold packs, not necessarily ice, can help cool the pain of sunburn, Perkins said. Normal and similar lotions also can be used. Lotions contain water and moisten the skin.

Vaseline and other petroleum jellies should not be used.

"Vaseline is pure oil," Perkins said, adding that oil seals the skin from moisture.

"Aspirin sometimes relieves pain and sunburn is like aching," Perkins added.

Labyk said that basting in a mixture of cool water and baking soda also can relieve the pain of sunburn.

Sunburn can cause skin cancer later and premature wrinkles. It also worsens acne in those who already have it, said nurse at the Carbondale Clinic, said.

Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer and the most curable if detected early enough, Labyk said.

Fair-skinned people are more susceptible to skin cancer, but they are not alone in the high-risk group. People who were sunburned a lot as children, and those who are frequently burned are more vulnerable.

Minor skin damage can include skin spots and red scaly areas that linger and moles that change size, shape and feel.

The sun also can dry out the skin and make it too tough to be knocked out, Labyk said. Even if oil and moisturizers are applied, damaged skin will not be fixed.

The sun also can affect other parts of the body.

Ultraviolet light from the sun can contribute to the formation of cataracts and cloudiness of the eyes, Labyk said.

"The eyelids are sensitive. People should be wearing good quality sunglasses," she added.

She added that rays glare into the eyes even worse when contacts are worn. Labyk said the best times to lay out in the sun are before 10 a.m. and after 3 p.m. The first day, sunbathers should lay out only for 15 minutes, then gradually increase by five to 10 minutes daily, up to 30 and 25 minutes.

As for sunscreens, the higher the number, the higher the protection.

"To get the maximum benefit, you need to apply sunscreen an hour before you go outside," Labyk said.

Perkins said that it is important to drink plenty of water, weak fruit drinks and decaffeinated drinks when out in the sun to replenish fluids lost through perspiration.

Researchers: Spas for tanning risky

By Christine Cedusky

Commercial tanning salons may cause serious, long-term medical damage to regular users, a research project specialist said.

Mary Ann Dougerty, research specialist for the Office of Economic Development, did a study in 1986 to determine why people visit tanning salons and the effects salons may have on them.

Dougerty, who conducted the study for her master's thesis in health education, said people think it is a tan looks better, but in reality, tanning represents irreversible damage to the skin.

Salons use intensified rays that penetrate the skin more deeply than sun rays do. Medical professionals are expecting long-term damage from salon rays to be internal.

However, spa owners say the salon tanning process is just as safe as tanning in the sun.

Bonita Troutt, owner of European Tan in Carbondale, said, "Through literature and training we have been told that the beds are safer than tanning in the sun."

In her study, Dougerty said she found 83 percent of the patrons she surveyed said they go to tanning salons for a tan. They go from using the tanning bed is because they are able to get a tan without damaging the skin.

People believe this because the effects of salon tanning do not hit hard until about the age of 35 or 40, Dougerty said.

"There is a hard-core group out there who go to tanning salons as often as five times a week and lay out in the sun too," she said. For such people, tanning usually becomes an obsession, she added.

Student patrons who were interviewed at the salons said that having a tan increases their sex appeal and that the booths save them time. Tan spa owners and workers said some students begin tanning as early as December and continue through the spring.

Dougerty said going to tanning salons becomes a social event for many, but a chance to interact with others, and many patrons go at the same time, she said.

The tanning industry realizes the social appeal of salons and encourages owners to set up salons to accommodate social interaction, Dougerty said.

"One salon I know of set up an end-of-school happy hour and served champagne and hors d'oeuvres," she said.

Another appeal of using tanning beds is the relaxation, which is cited by salon goers as a reason for tanning beds being popular as often as wanting a tan, Dougerty said.

Dougerty said she was surprised by the lack of knowledge of tan spa owners about the beds when she asked them questions. Some salon owners did not know much about the effects of tanning salons and did not issue warnings to customers.

"Very often, owners did not even tell customers to wear their glasses in the goggles, and that is very dangerous to the protection of the eyes," Dougerty said.

Troutt, the tanning bed herself, said her customers sign a statement of understanding about the possible hazards of using the tanning beds.

"The beds even have a caution label about sunburn," she said.

Dougerty said she found little information on the beds in popular publications. She said much of what she did read was promotional material and biased in favor of tanning salons.

"If you are going to use tanning beds, you need to be an active consumer," Dougerty said.

Boy with AIDS virus returns to school

By S.G. Anderson

CLINTON, Tenn. (UPI) — Anderson County school officials reported few protests Tuesday from parents, teachers or students over a boy who was attending classes with other youngsters at his age, and Clinton Junior High School Principal Harold Heath said a concerted effort to educate the staff and students at the school may have helped Mowery's return to public school.

Heath said the school system has been working on non­smutty education programs to teach staff, parents and students about the AIDS virus and how it is not transmitted. He said the junior high staff and students were looking forward to working with Mowery.

Seniors, students coalition advocated

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Students and senior citizens are banding together to get more state money if they work together in a coalition of competing, said Dan DeFosse, a master's student in political science.

Speaking Tuesday after a press conference by Southern Illinois senior citizen care providers, he said the group wanted to abandon special interest votes by working together to tell legislators there is a problem in Illinois. The problem is one group against another - seniors against students or taken from another group.

DeFosse said, "We need to stop this game. Today we see a piece and tomorrow we get another piece, but the public never sees it as a package.

"There's a bigger picture out there than we've been looking at," he said. "We're talking about a majority of people being affected.

About 28 percent of Illinois' population is composed of seniors and 35 percent is students. DeFosse said these groups need to be educated about senior citizens and view each other.

DeFosse said he is planning a student-senior citizen rally May 2. The groups will meet at the Southern Illinois Senate Citizens Center, 409 North Stadium, for a meeting and a short march.

DeFosse said he would use the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate Student and Professional Student Council to recruit students for the coalition. DeFosse is a former USG senator.

DeFosse, who said he is an assistant to the vice president of student affairs, and Bruce Swinnen described the program to Paratore as a way to identify students with problems and help them before it is too late.

"We try to get students before they drop out," Paratore said.

DeFosse said that can serve as warnings of possible problems including grade point average, failure to participate in classes or work, dramatic behavior changes and warnings from instructors or parents.

Paratore said she asks faculty and staff members to volunteer as facilitators to contact students to determine if something is wrong, if any, problems exist.

Facilitators do not act as counselors but refer students to people or departments that can help them, Paratore said.

"It is the first step in helping these students and letting them know someone cares," Paratore said.

As a facilitator, Paratore said she likes to meet with students in an informal setting.

"Once I picked up a girl from the dorms and took her to Shoney's for dessert talk," she said.

Katherine Hollister, assistant coordinator for recreational sports, joined in the initiative. The Early Warning System task force is one of several.

"I'll plug away," Johnson said. "I'll keep trying to get students involved. I think that senior citizens have the same plight as we have in education - the state is not giving us the services we need. Only our un­restlessness, I'm sure, is threatening.

Southern Illinois senior citizen care providers held the press conference to bring that message to the campus and early warning system.

George Everingham, executive director of the Egyptian Area Agency on Aging, said if legislators don't increase the budget that senior citizens will "vote with the pocketbook" and make the Early Warning System, Paratore said. She said referrals have increased so much that more facilitators and at least two graduate assistants are needed for the program.

Funeral services to be held for history professor

By John Mohler

Funeral services for Donald L. Brehm, associate professor of history, will be held at Rago Brothers Funeral Home in Chicago at 12 p.m. Friday.

Brehm, a member of the University faculty since 1967, died Monday afternoon at Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago, where he had been hospitalized for three weeks.

He had been diagnosed with cancer just four weeks before his death.

Brehm was the president of the Faculty Senate for the 1986-87 school year, and he continued to serve on various University committees, history professor John Simon, a close colleague of Brehm, said.

"He was as well known as any faculty member on campus," Howard Allen, chairperson of the history department, said. "Students flocked to his courses."

Brehm has said "students are obviously important to me or I wouldn't spend my life teaching them." Something that Simon said Brehm made apparent.

Whether it was travelling to Chicago, frequenting Carbondale's bars and restaurants, or "holding seminars" in his own home, with lavish food and drinks...Brehm always made students feel important," Simon said.

"In the offices nobody liked his cigar, so he would hold court in the Faser (Hall) breezeway and talk to anyone about anything," Simon said.

Brehm received the Queen Award for Outstanding Teacher in the History Department in 1963. For the presentation, faculty members collected letters from his former students and put them in a book.

One of the letters read, "Mr. Brehm was always good for a pizza when the funds were low and you were homesick as hell."

Brehm received his Ph.D. from St. Louis University in 1968.

The silent film star, who has been diagnosed with stomach cancer after World War II to join her sister, Jane, who was already an established star, died Sunday at the Motion Picture and Television Hospital in Woodland Hills, a spokesman said.

Novak appeared in slapstick comedies and was a bathing beauty in Mack Sennett comedies before co-starring with Mix in more than 10 Westerns, among them "Sky High" and "Trailin'."

Most of the Mix-Novak films have been preserved in the Museum of Modern Art archives in New York City.

Novak was famous in her day for doing her own stunts and relying on Mix's ability to protect his leading lady.

In 1921 she married William Reed, an assistant director and stuntman.

She then made three films with Hart. In the late 1920s, she and Reed bought a film company in Australia where they made a series of movies mostly Westerns.

In the early 1930s, Novak returned to the United States to play ingenues in several pictures, including one of Mack Sennett's early films, a box-office and critical disaster.

Director's techniques highlighted in 'Streetcar Named Desire'

By Richard Nunez Entertainment Editor

There have been many interpretations of Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," but John Stanunas agrees that the one that stands out as the most is director Elia Kazan's 1951 version. Stanunas will direct "A Streetcar Named Desire" for five performances this week at the McLeod Theater.

At the show, the Kowalskis' a lead of Stanley Kowalski and early three Academy Awards. Vivien Leigh is as best actress and Karl Malden and Kim Hunter as best supporting actors.

ALTHOUGH the movie may place high expectations upon the McLeod Theater's production, Stanunas is hoping that his interpretation will be an acceptable alternative.

Stanunas said he will focus on the psychological and emotional lives of the play. "We want to illustrate how civilization is lost in people and destroy their hopes and dreams," Stanunas said. Kowalski's two as people who have killed for less than they had hoped for in life. When Blanche DuBois enters their lives, she shakes up the stability and comfort they have grown accustomed to in New Orleans.

BLANCHE, A fragile Southern belle, has come to New Orleans to escape the memory of her husband's tragic death and the grasping of the small, Southern town of her birth. Her arrival sparks Stanley's anger, who resents her presence and the delicate dream world she has created among the chaotic environment of New Orleans.

The crucial decision Stella Kowalski must make is choosing between Blanche and Stanley. This is one aspect Stanunas wants to explore. Because of their precarious situations, Stanunas said the characters begin to close off their findings toward one another.

"STANLEY CLOSES off to Stella and Stella closes off to Stanley," said Stanunas. Stanley blames their problem on Blanche and latches out at Lewis said. "I think the public down to his level and shake her from this world, he said, he said. Stanunas and Bob May, who will play Stanley, do not see Stanley as as "animal," which they believe Brando's performances made Stanley seem like, but more as a human being trying to preserve his own sense of home and family. "Stanley is not out to destroy Blanche as much as he wants to get her out of his world," Stanunas said. "Stanley is as vulnerable as anybody else."

"I SEE HIM as a human being — a simple human being — but a human being nonetheless," May said. Brando's performance is considered by some to be the definitive Stanley. May, though he has seen Brando's performance, said he does not feel burdened by it.

"I think there is always an influence somewhere, but it is definitely his (May's) interpretation of Stanley," Stanunas said. "You have to reach down inside yourself and figure out what you want to say. The script itself suits you, not the director's performance or Leigh's performance."

Stanunas' interpretation, though not radically different from other interpretations, is slightly different from most. He sees all of the characters in a different way than most productions have portrayed them, especially Blanche.

"A LOT OF play's interpret her (Blanche) as not being all their understanding," he said. "I want the audience to see that the beginning is unstable. I wanted to gradually work through her insanity."

The play describes Blanche as "a butterfly in the jungle" and Stanunas said he wants to convey this idea by emphasizing her confusion amid the chaos of New Orleans. To do this, Stanunas decided it would be best to work with a general floor plan, instead of the specific floor plans Williams had in mind.

The stage is surrounded by a black wall that centralizes the set design of the Kowalskis' apartment. Stanunas said. "The wall also makes the set smaller, with to the inside of a void, while all around is in confusion," he added.

Judge denies plea to end comedian's suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge refused Tuesday to dismiss a $65 million libel suit by comedian Joan Rivers against writer Ben Stein, whose lawyer argued that Rivers is libel-proof because she often joked about her husband.

Superior Court Judge Kurt Lewin rejected arguments by Stein's lawyer, Martin Singer, that because Rivers often joked about her husband when he was alive, she cannot sue a writer who quoted her making jokes about her husband after his suicide last year.

"I don't think her brand of humor makes her libel-proof," Lewin said. Although the perception is that people have proven here.

"The article Stein wrote for GQ
Alter prep curriculum—task force

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A task force charged with reviewing required programs and rules for state grade and high schools will recommend this week that college-bound students be given more curriculum flexibility and a moratorium be placed on school holidays, the panel's chairman said Tuesday.

Sen. John Mailland, R-Bloomington, said the Mandates Task Force will release its final report and additional findings on Thursday, but be able to carry out those mandates to a greater degree than others.”

Among the panel's recommendations will be to simplify state laws involving schools, a ban on new legal school holidays and to no longer require teachings relating to commemorational school holidays be taught on those days. In addition, teaching of the metric system would be optional, Mailland said.

Society staff seeks AIDS test law repeal

CHICAGO (UPI) — The medical staff of the Illinois State Medical Society has called on the society to work for repeal of a state law requiring patients' approval before testing for AIDS.

The proposal will be considered at the group's annual meeting this week.

Dr. Dennis Brown, the medical staff's delegate representing the medical staff, said the doctors are concerned because the test for acquired immune deficiency syndrome is being refused in many cases in which it is medically indicated.

Brown said many patients are refusing to be tested for AIDS when they are asked to sign a permission form as required by a law adopted last year.

Brown, a Schaumburg family practitioner, said the proposal arose because of problems a downstate pediatrician had in persuading parents to approve giving the test to their children. He said parents refused to sign consent forms because they feared merely taking the tests could lead to their children being outcasts.

Dr. Remalow Sherer, head of the AIDS unit at Cook County Hospital, said that if testing is performed without adequate counseling, it could lead to doctors “shooting themselves in the foot.” Sherer said individuals might be discouraged from going to the doctor because they would fear that their rights to privacy would be violated.

Dr. Bernard Turnock, director of the Illinois Public Health Department, said the medical staff recommendation is “very harmful because the law is designed to encourage wider use of testing of persons at high risk of being exposed to the virus. This would throw the baby out with the bath water.”

Indicted mayor found dead

HARVEY (UPI) — Dismayed Mayoral Kenneth Fisher was found dead at his home in the south suburb Tuesday, one day after he was indicted by a federal grand jury on bribery charges, officials said.

Fisher was pronounced dead at 4:30 p.m. at Ingalls Hospital in Harvey, a hospital spokesman said. The Cook County medical examiner's office said the cause of death apparently was carbon monoxide poisoning.

The mayor's body was found in his car by his wife at about 4 p.m., said David Meisner, Fisher's attorney. The car was running in the garage.

Meisner said Fisher left a note to his family, but the contents of the note were not disclosed.

Fisher was indicted Monday for allegedly accepting bribes to allow a gambling operation to flourish in the south Chicago suburb for at least five years.

We Program Excitement!
Builder of the Titanic to design luxury liner

LONDON (UPI) — The giant shipyard that built the ill-fated Titanic won a contract Tuesday to construct the world's biggest-ever luxury cruise liner, a behemoth longer than three football fields that features cabins with individual balconies.

The liner is planned for American tourists and although as yet unnamed is referred to in designs as the “Ultimate Dream.”

It will be more than twice as big as the current largest operating cruiser, the 70,000-ton Norway. The luxury cabins with their own balcony and sea view will not have traditional portholes.

Indian-born shipping tycoon Radji Tikko, who made his fortune in the 1970s with a vast tanker fleet, announced he awarded the $500 million contract to Belfast's Harland and Wolff shipyard, one of the world's biggest — and the one which produced the doomed Titanic in 1912.

The 46,328-ton Titanic was 885-feet long, the largest and most luxurious vessel when it sank April 14, 1912, off Newfoundland after hitting an iceberg on its maiden voyage, taking the lives of 1,513 of its 2,224 passengers.

Construction of the “Ultimate Dream” is subject to final details on financing.

“I’ve decided to build ‘Ultimate Dream’ after carrying out independent market research,” Tikko, 55, said. “I discovered only four percent of America take cruise holidays, so the potential for growth is enormous.”

Unveiling his plans for the 1,132-foot, 160,000-ton ship, he said it would feature 12 swimming pools, a 1,500-seat theater, tennis courts, eight restaurants, the world's largest floating casino and a unique eight-deck complex for its large cabins, capable of holding more than 3,000 passengers.

There will also be three deluxe “penthouses” on the cruise liner, which is expected to be completed in 1992 and begin cruises in the Bahamas and Caribbean.

“This ship will revolutionize cruise-ship building in the entire world,” Tikko said. “It is the first ship of its kind, and all the existing cruise ships are nothing but repetitions of the old designs, and they don’t have the comforts that this ship will provide.”

Announcement of the contract was met with jubilation at Harland and Wolff. A spokesman for the shipyard, which has suffered from a shipbuilding decline, said it was likely to create 1,000 new jobs plus a spin-off of employment in related British industries.

Shipyard chairman John Partington said Tikko’s order “heralds a new era in cruise ship design.”

Amid all the hoopla surrounding the announcement, however, Tikko or shipyard officials mentioned Harland and Wolff's construction of the White Star liner Titanic.
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - The controversial film "Colors," opened on only 422 screens last week, but still managed to place No. 3 among all films in release with $3.7 million at the box office. The No. 1 ranking film, "Biloxi Blues," played on nearly four times as many screens but brought in only $1.7 million — not even close to the "Colors." The most radical movement at North American's theaters came from "The Last Emperor," inspired by nine Academy Awards — the biggest honor in a quarter century — "Emperor" staged a 206 percent increase in business and ranked No. 4, up from No. 18 the week before. "Empire" last week grossed $2.3 million. The previous week it brought in $227,000. The comedy-horrer film "Beetlejuice," played on 2,300 screens, topped the top 10 grossers in three weeks to a handsome $3.1 million. The biggest hit was the debut of "Colors," the Dennis Hopper-directed action drama of gang warfare in Los Angeles. "Colors," stars Robert Duvall and Sean Penn as a pair of cops bent on cooling racial and gang tensions. It benefited from a variety of groups claiming the film would foster violence, intensity gang activity and possibly lead to riots in theaters. It hit. The objections by nervous social groups were as effective as a $25 million publicity campaign. "Colors" opened with a per-screen average of a whopping $11,348, highest of all films in release. "Colors" goes into wide release April 29. By comparison, "The Last Emperor," No. 4, averaged only $787 per screen in 677 theaters. No. 3 was Neil Simon's "Biloxi Blues," starring Matthew Broderick as the playwright-screenwriter during his army training days in World War II. "Biloxi Blues" tallied $3.4 million in 1,308 theaters for a flat opening weekend of $215,000. "Return to Snowy River," the bucolic sequel to the hit 1980 film, was down in attendance a few years ago, was No. 5 with a flat $84,000 in 121 theaters in its opening week. "Moonstruck," which won three Oscars, cashed in on Cher's best actress award with a 59 percent jump in attendance. The comedy hauled in a $2 million in 1,022 theaters in its 12th week.

Shepherd considers withdrawing name from No. 2 spot at Justice

WASHINGTON (UPI) - John Shepherd, hurriedly selected by Attorney General Edwin Meese two weeks ago to be the No. 2 official at the Justice Department, intends to withdraw from consideration, sources said Tuesday.

Sources said Tuesday, however, that Shepherd was asked to refrain from announcing his decision until Meese can name a replacement which will likely not occur for several weeks because the White House wants FBI background checks conducted first.

Shepherd did not return repeated telephone calls Tuesday. Meese, leaving a White House ceremony, was asked if Shepherd had withdrawn and he said, "Not yet. I expect we'll be hearing something tomorrow."

Earlier, White House spokesman Martin Fizwater said, "We have not had the direct correspondence or indication from Shepherd, Fitzwater said, explaining that the Justice Department had not informed the White House that Shepherd had withdrawn.

On April 5, Meese nominated Shepherd, a St. Louis attorney and former president of the American Bar Association, to be deputy attorney general. That day, Meese also named Assistant Attorney General Arnold Burns and William Weid, the assistant attorney general charged with the department's criminal division.

Burns and Weid quit because of Meese's lingering legal affair with Sinner. The Reagan administration's 9:00-10:30

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The House passed legislation Tuesday outlawing sexually explicit telephone services, but arranged to vote on a school spending bill that includes a softer version limiting the so-called dial-a-porn to adults.

Conservative supporters of the total ban, who had wanted the prohibition added to $7.5 billion education bill to improve its chances for final approval, assailed the first vote Tuesday as the meaningless 379-22 vote sent the stand-alone version legislation to Senate and opened the way for the House to consider the education bill, which includes a provision limiting dial-a-porn to adults who specifically subscribe to service.

Conservatives accused House leaders of duplicitous legislative maneuvering that gave them an excuse to vote for the ban while con- demning the idea to certain death in the Senate by stripping it out of the popular education bill.

"This should be identified as duplicit, in a case of duplicity," said Rep. William Keating, D-Calif., who predicted the Senate will never consider the separate legislation to ban dial-a-porn.

The House was scheduled to vote on the education bill later Tuesday. Danemberger and other proponents of outlawing the dial-a-porn claim that thousands of dial-a-porn consumers have emotionally damaged by listening to the tape recording.

They had succeeded earlier in getting the Senate to put an outright ban in its version of the education bill by a 46-0 vote. The House subsequently supported the ban in a non-binding 384-17 vote.

Phone sex ban OK'd, House bill pending

WASHINGTON (UPI) - House and Senate negotiators agreed to drop a disclosure requirement for foreign in vestment Wednesday, clearing the way for final congressional action on the trade reform bill. The Senate would have required foreign companies to register with the government if they own more than 5 percent of an American company or own realizable buildings.

The Reagan administration opposed the amendment, proposed by Rep. John Bryan, D-Texas, who feared investor revelations would create dire consequences for a domestic economic dependent on foreign capital.

The trade bill, designed to open international markets to American goods and stop trade abuses, is expected to go to a final vote in the House Thursday, and if approved, would go to the Senate.

In addition, Denise Sinner, who once worked for Shepherd's law firm and was convicted earlier this year for embezzling $147,000 from the firm, claimed at trial that she had an affair with Shepherd and he allowed her to write the checks to herself.

Congress ready to vote on trade bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A House subcommittee hearing was held Monday to examine domestic violence.

The witnesses, who testified before the subcommittee, included a representative from the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence, a victim of domestic violence, and a representative from the Department of Justice. The witnesses discussed the impact of domestic violence on individuals and families, as well as the need for increased funding and support for domestic violence services.

The hearing was held as part of a larger effort by Congress to address the issue of domestic violence. The witnesses emphasized the importance of creating a safe and supportive environment for victims of domestic violence, as well as the need for increased access to resources and services.

The witnesses also called for increased funding for domestic violence services, including shelters, counseling, and legal advocacy. They emphasized the importance of involving law enforcement agencies in the response to domestic violence, and the need for training and resources to support these agencies.

The witnesses concluded their testimony by expressing gratitude for the opportunity to speak, and encouraging continued action and support for those affected by domestic violence.

Indians: Building on religious ground is violation of 1st Amendment rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Thursday that road building and logging operations in a national forest that has religious significance for some Indian tribes does not violate the First Amendment rights of the land's current owners.

The court, in a 5 to 3 ruling by Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, reversed a decision by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals that halted the project because it infringed on the First Amendment's guarantee of religious freedom.

O'Connor said that even assuming the road project would destroy the Indians' ability to practice their religion, the government simply does not provide a principle that could justify upholding (the Indian's) legal claims.

"However much we might lament, otherwise, government simply could not operate if it were required to follow the religious beliefs of those whose land it owned," O'Connor said in a broad ranging government activities — from evidence-tracking programs to foreign aid to conservation projects — will always be considered in the spiritual well-being of some citizens, often on the basis of sincerely held religious beliefs.

O'Connor was joined by Chief Justice William Rehnquist, Justices Byron White, John Paul Stevens and Antonin Scalia. Justice Anthony Kennedy, who recently joined the court, did not take part in the ruling.

However, in a sharply worded dissent, Justice William Brennan, joined by Justice Thurgood Marshall and Harry Blackmun, criticized the majority for holding that a "federal land-use decision that promises to destroy an entire religion does not burden the practice of that faith in a manner recognized by the Free Exercise Clause."

"Having thus stripped respondents and all other Native Americans of any constitutional protection against perhaps the most serious threat to their age-old religious practices, and indeed to their entire way of life, the court assures us that nothing in its decision 'should be read to encourage governmental insensitivity to the religious needs of any citizen."

The case involved a portion of the Six Rivers National Forest, which consists of about 176,000 acres in northern California.

The U.S. Forest Service sought to complete construction of a paved road and permit logging operations in the Blue Creek Unit of the Six Rivers National Forest consisting of 76,000 acres located in the Siskiyous Mountains. An area known as the "high country," which contains Blue Creek, is considered sacred by the Yurok, Karok and Tolowa Indians.

Indians, the state of California and environmental groups brought suit to stop the project. A federal court agreed with the Indians that the project would infringe on the free exercise of their religion, but appeals court upheld the ruling in July 1996.

Seeking high court review, the government said the "court of appeals' unprecedented decision conflicts with the decisions of several other courts of appeals.

Supremacists ask stockholders to retain minority hiring practice

DENVER (UPI) — Anti­Defamation officials Tuesday asked shareholders of American Telephone and Telegraph to vote down a proposal that seeks to end the company's minority hiring practices.

A resolution calling for the phasing out of affirmative action programs at AT&T will be presented at the company's annual meeting Wednesday in Denver.

The resolution was introduced by the National Alliance to Stop and Prevent Hate, which bought 100 shares of AT&T stock in 1966.

"In our knowledge, this is the first effort by this country's organized hate movement to influence corporate America and, as such, is a sophisticated effort to spread racist and anti-Semitic memes," said Saul Rosenfeld, regional director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'Nai B'rith.

Rosenfeld said it is unlikely the resolution, which has been rejected by AT&T's board of directors, will be approved by shareholders. But he said the effort could spark similar campaigns in boardrooms across the country.

"While we believe the resolution will be defeated at the AT&T meeting, they have succeeded in getting attention and for their cause," Rosenfeld said. "We are concerned about footloose this particular strategy being institutionalized in other less-publicized companies across the country."

Migrants: Officials lax on sanitary rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hundreds of migrant farmworkers suffer death, disease and toxic contamination because the government fails to enforce its own regulations, officials and lawmakers told Congress Tuesday.

"We thought the federal government was trying to save the country, to save the American farmer, to save the country," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who spearheaded efforts to get the regulations approved last year, said he was furious.

"We've had doctors, scientists, experts of all kinds, telling us of the absolute need to reform the law," said Metzenbaum. "Now that we get the standard, it turns out OSHA itself does not enforce it. What kind of sham is this?"

A parade of OSHA insiders testified Tuesday on industrial hazards ranging from blood-borne disease to grain dust. Most had found their regulatory experience frustrating.

"To work for OSHA these days takes a macho," said Jennifer Silk, a health hazards specialist. "To work for OSHA is to commit professional suicide."

Hijackers force Kuwaiti princess to plead for lives of hostages

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Sky pirates aboard a hijacked Kuwait Airways jetliner forced a young princess to plead for her life and the lives of 200 passengers aboard the plane, Western diplomats said Tuesday.

The diplomats said the princess, who they did not identify, was being held hostage by eight hijackers aboard a Kuwait Airways jetliner that was believed to be en route to Moslem west Beirut.

Other diplomats reported that a demand for the release of 17 convicted Palestinian prisoners was being chanted by the hijackers aboard the plane, which was reported by Islamic Jihad, a Moslem extremist group in Lebanon.

Islamic Jihad marks bombing anniversary

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The pre-Islamic Jihad Islamic group threatened to detonate a "nuclear bomb" against the U.S. Tuesday morning.

The statement said the group "pledges to support the U.S. in all its operations, and to persuade the American people to support us.

"We will support the U.S. in all cases, and we will support the American people in all cases," the statement said.

Support increases for U.S. attacks in Gulf

LONDON (UPI) — Support for the American strikes in the Middle East Gulf increased Tuesday among U.S. allies, and even Moscow slammed Iran's recent retaliatory attacks against neutral shipping.

Sixteen nations of the West European nations condemned Iran's charge d'affaires for a dressing down, and six other Western nations protested "mining and other hostile actions" in the United Arab Emirates, while remaining silent about the U.S. assets having been to blame for Iran's retaliation against a UAE offshore oil field.

The Soviet response was double-edged. The Communist Party newspaper Pravda condemned the "pirate actions" of Iranians who attack shipping but at the same time Washington's response "looks rather primitive."

The United States destroyed two Iranian oil platforms in the gulf in reprisal for a mine explosion that damaged an American frigate. In subsequent fighting, U.S. forces also crippled or sank as many as six Iranian vessels.

"For a great power to be busy with acts of revenge looks rather strange," said Dan Howard, a Pentagon source.

Other nations were less equivocal. Defense and foreign ministers of Britain and six other members of the Western European Union meeting in The Hague said they supported the deterrent measures in the busy gulf shipping lanes.

"Mining and other hostile activities against shipping in international waters... can call for measures of self-defense," said the WEU, which includes Belgium, the Netherlands, France, Italy, West Germany and Luxembourg.

Iran used them against the U.S. and its allies since September, with the first Iranian attack was a cruise missile strike against the U.S. frigate Joseph Strauss in the gulf Monday afternoon.

But U.S. officials emphasized the American naval and air strikes were direct retaliation for renewed mine laying in the gulf, which damaged a U.S. warship last week after it finished escorting oil tankers through the troubled waters.

Two American crewmen of a Cobra helicopter were missing in the gulf, the only apparent U.S. casualties in the series of engagements that left two Iranian oil platforms standing as gauged hulls, damaged or sank a half-dozen ships of the Ayatollah Khomeini's navy.

"The military reaction Monday was somewhat surprising in its ferocity. U.S. officials said, but the level of its rhetoric ran true to form — charges the United States has openly taken the side of Iraq in the long gulf war and stringent warnings that Iran "will provide a response which will sever the roots of the existence of America in the region."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said that the U.S. attacks against Iranian oil platforms in the Gulf Monday "the United States has openly entered the war against Iran."

Navy hunting for missing helicopter

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — The U.S. Navy pressed a search in the Persian Gulf Tuesday for two men from a seaborne American helicopter missing since naval clashes between U.S. and Iranian forces that Iran said killed 15 of its sailors.

During the battles, Iran for the first time fired missiles at the American vessels. Pentagon sources said "Silkworm coming..." cried the watch on the bridge of the U.S. frigate Jack Williams. The cry was shouted each time the American vessels maneuvered the sleek metal weapon's radar guidance system as the projectiles — visible to the naked eye — streaked out of the saure sky.

Allied missiles missed.

The Williams shuddered as its skipper violently maneuvered the sleek gray ship to dodge the missiles and launched decoy metal flashes into the air to fool the weapon's radar guidance system as the projectiles — visible to the naked eye — streaked out of the saure sky. Allied missiles missed.

The Williams was cruising southwest of the Iranian island of Abu Musa, shipping sources said. Pentagon sources said that Iran had installed Silkworm missile batteries on Abu Musa.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesmen said Tuesday that there was no evidence that the missiles were launched. The Iranian-claimed Silkworms, the 50-mile range weapons that Iran has shot at ships in Kuwaiti waters and has wielded as threats against U.S. forces in the gulf for years, has been in the U.S. Navy buildup there nine months ago.

American military officials cited the possibility that at least some of the missiles could have been Silkworms in what has been the first clash Iran used them against U.S. warships.

The missile strike against the Williams came less than 24 hours after U.S. ships and helicopters hit six Iranian ships, the Pentagon said.

Strickland should skip NBA instead of skipping school

By Randy Minkoff
United Press International

CHICAGO — Rod Strickland of DePaul says he has played his last game for the Blue Demons and will test his skills in the emerging world of professional basketball.

If it is, Strickland, a first team All-America guard in a poll of pro scouts out of college, Strickland is the top player in the All-American, is a wonderfully talented young man who decided to bypass his senior year because of a too-stiff-and-easy-to-eat problem. The NBA's money was too attractive.

No less an authority than NBA super-scout Myke Ramsey, faculty adviser said Green was "a top specialist in the open stock seat. Shiplett is a full-time student, which allows her to compete."

Tracy Bany and Jody Kerkhoff competed but didn't place. Team member Jeannine Vines did not qualify for the regionals but won a $500 scholarship through the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association for her academic achievement.

The Equestrian Club members Kim Green and Tracy McNamara placed sixth in the English hunt seat and fifth in the advanced stock seat. Assistant coach Gina Shiplett placed third in the open stock seat, Shiplett is a full-time student, which allows her to compete.

Cmdr. Michael Wallach, entering the game with a .598 average, chanted his second boner of the season to start the second inning and give Montreal a 1-0 lead.

The Expos scored seven runs in the eighth inning off reliever Les Lancaster. Raines walked and moved to second on a throwing error by Sandberg after getting caught behind the bases on a steal attempt.

Dj: I'll stay on air until Orioles win

Baltimore (UPI) — Frustrated by the dismal season, officers at the start of the Baltimore Orioles, a rock steady and consistent team, Monday said Tuesday they will stay on the air until the team wins a game.

"I feel as long as I possibly can, probably until the end," Johnson, a disc jockey on WYTI-FM, said Tuesday afternoon. "I think it's going to be rough. I'm tired already.

The Orioles entered Tuesday night's game against the Milwaukee having dropped 12 straight games and were 4-14 in the AL East in 1988.

Martinez lifts Montreal past Cubs for fourth win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dennis Martinez pitched a six-hitter and singled home a run during a seven-run eighth inning Tuesday, pacing the Montreal Expo to a 9-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs for their fourth straight victory.

Martinez, 2-3, struck out five and walked one in notchting Montreal's first complete game of the season.

The Cubs added a run in the third inning when Casey Candaele stroked a leadoff single and scored on Tim Raines' single to left.

The Cubs put together three consecutive singles in the third inning to score a run. Dave Martinez beat out a one-out bunt, stole second and moved to third on Ryne Sandberg's single. Andre Dawson hit an infield single to deep short, driving in Dave Martinez.

certainly bother his offensive performance. "I know the great thing about Joe Hall," Jones said. "He does have a great at- titude. It doesn't matter if he hits one out or if he gets hit by a pitch, he's not going to affect his hitting. When he's not hitting, he blames it on the fact that he's not swinging well. He doesn't blame it on anything else." While Hall would prefer to play in his home state of Illinois, he is used to the fact that the coaches use him wherever they feel he will be most effective.

In high school, after pitching and hitting, Hall's biggest challenge during his first two years, Hall was forced to play anywhere. "Coach Charlie Hilleman got injured. Another injury moved Hall to third base.

"Coach Charlie liked the way I played," Hall said. "I hit and played a decent third base. So after that I stayed in the lineup and proved I could play." When shortstop Jay Burch was having trouble defensively, Jones took advantage of Hall's versatility and inserted him in Burch's spot. With Hall at shortstop, the Salukis won seven of the last eight conference games.

Hall discovered the drawbacks of being a utility player when he played for the Decatur Blues two summers ago. "When it came down to the end of the season, when it was time to pick the all-star team, none of the people knew what position to put me in," Hall said. "I worried if I was going to make the all-star team. That's where I got to wishing I had a set position."

Hall returned to SIUC and was handed a catcher's mitt. With Hall as their regular catcher, the Salukis threw out 28 of 74 base stealers. After working to improve his bunting in the fall, Hall improved his average from a season ago by 23 points to .304.

"Last summer, Hall went to the Cape Cod Summer League with the intent of improving his defense at third base. While it immediately broke into the lineup as a designated hitter on the spring trip when Charlie Hilleman got injured. Another injury moved Hall to third base.

"When I got there we needed outfielders so I moved to center field," Hall laughed. He played the unfamiliar position well enough to be named the All-Star game. He was named the game's MVP after getting two hits and driving in the game winning run. Hall credits Jones with helping to improve his swing. Both of them have spent many hours in the batting cage.

"The biggest change I made was staying up after I hit the ball and not falling back," Hall said. "I make a big difference now." Jones points out that Hall has improved because he was willing to make the extra effort to get better.

"Joe's the type of young man that anything you think he needs to work on, he's willing to work on it and I don't mean for just five minutes," Jones said. "He'll work on it for as long as you want him to work on it. He made himself an excellent hitter. Hero status doesn't seem to affect Joe. He just wants to w.t." Hall said he sometimes thinks Jones wants him to step forward and take a leadership role.

"I'm pretty much a leader when you go out and set examples," Hall said. "I'm not too much of a leader by yelling at guys what to do. Sometimes I think I'm too relaxed when I play. There's not a whole lot that worries me. I don't show too much emotion. I just try to play the same way all the time. All I can do is go out and play my hardest." Wherever that may be.

in 1987. "I'm glad I came," she said. "This is my home."

Shoemaker sat out last season to rest, but is now firing away. She is 6-6 this season with a 6.76 ERA. She has a different role to play at Illinois State than she had at SIU. With Hall the Salukis she was throwing at least one game of every doubleheader, sharing pitching duties with Lisa Peterson. But at Illinois State Shoemaker is the No. 3 pitcher in the rotation behind senior Lori Vogel and Linda Wendi.

"Lori (Shoemaker) has a definite role to play on this team," Jones said. "I think she's accepting it. This is not to say we don't expect her to perform well this year, but we are really expecting her to step in next year." Shoemaker said, "The more games I pitch, the better I get. As the season has gone on, she (Fischer) has been letting me pitch more games.

snapped, Verschoore has batted just .194 (13-47).

"Chuck is starting to press a little," Jones said. "We thought we'd drop him down in the lineup and let him watch the other guys hit.

"When you hit lower in the lineup you're going to see more fastballs than you are breaking balls. So we tried to put Chuck in a position to help him. Like if it was a little pressure off him," he said.

Joe Hall was moved from the third to fifth to the leadoff spot. Dave Wroma moved to third in the lineup.

Wroma responded by hitting a two-run homer to put the Salukis ahead. After getting off to a slow start at the plate and in the field this year, the Saluki shortstop has steadily improved. He now is batting .303 and has committed an error in 12 of the last 12 games after having 10 in the first 25 games.

"David Wroma is an outstanding defensive shortstop and a ballplayer," Jones said. "He's playing now with the confidence he had a year ago. That comes with the fact that he's hitting better. David Wroma's putting it together."

Salukis face struggling EIU today

By Dave Miller

The baseball team will begin to prepare for its weekend first-place showdown with Creighton when it plays a doubleheader against Eastern Illinois at 1 p.m. today at Abe Martin Field.

After getting off to a quick 6-0 start, the Panthers (10-16) limp into Carbondale having lost 12 of their last 14 games. Outfielder Jeff Jettel (.371) and third baseman Stan Royer (.356, 10 HRs, 22 RBIs) have been the only consistent performers for an offense that is hitting .261. The team's weak hitting and its 4.73 ERA have caused the team's slide.

By contrast, the Salukis, 24-13, have won six of their last seven. Saluki coach Itchy Jones will use the doubleheader and Thursday's single game against Missouri-St. Louis to get his pitching staff ready for the weekend. Pitchers Rick Shipley (3-4, 4.67 ERA) and Dale Meyer (3-4, 3.77 ERA) are probable starters. Dale Kasten, Chris Beckman, David Brechtleibauer and Chad Matheney should pitch in the next two games.

Outfielder Chuck Verschoors' recent slump prompted Jones to drop Verschoor from the lineup and have him start in left field. The Panthers are trying to avoid allowing the Salukis' hitting attack a chance to get on base and cause problems on the bases.

Ring is also trying to help his team get on base more often. "We just need to put more men on base and we'll have a chance every time we go up to bat," he said.

The Salukis will be looking to keep their season-long hitting streak alive, having had at least one player hit safely in 35 straight games. But the team's hitting streak is in danger of ending tonight.

The Panthers are 2-10 in games decided by one run, but have yet to beat the Salukis this season. The Salukis will be looking to even their series with the Panthers today and Thursday.

Basketball inks forward from Indiana

By Dave Miller

The men's basketball team just keeps rolling them in.

Tony Gooden, a 6-foot-5, 185-pound high school forward, signed a national letter of intent Tuesday to play for the Salukis. Gooden averaged a team-high 18.1 points on 66 percent field goal shooting, and 8.5 rebounds per game for Snider High School in Fort Wayne, Ind., and was named in Fort Wayne's all-summit Athletic conference.

"Tony Gooden is as good as a player as you'll see in terms of athletic ability," Saluki coach Rich Herrin said. "He is a good rebounder, tremendous quickness and can shoot from the outside. To get a player out of Indiana, it's got to be something special for our program.

Gooden will play at small forward, Hermin said. Assistant coach Ron Smith has recruited Gooden since the Saluki signed the 5-foot-11, 185-pound Gooden's high school coach, Jim Rouesseau, said Gooden performed best under pressure.

"His best two games were against two of our best opponents this season," Rouesseau said. "I agree with Herrin that Gooden has great quickness.

Ex-Saluki pitcher back to Normal

By Troy Taylor

NORMAL — Just three years ago a 5-foot-10 freshman out of Normal Community High School was setting pitching records for the SIU-C softball team.

That player was Lori Day, and she was an overpowering right-hander with a bright future for the Salukis.

Day now is Lori Shoemaker, and she is a pitcher for Illinois State.

Ten minutes before Saturday's game, Redbirds' coach Melinda Fischer told the Press, "There is no better pitcher in the state of Illinois."

It was an unpleasant assignment for Shoemaker, but she didn't blink.

She shut out the Salukis 6-0.

"Sure, I wanted to beat them," Shoemaker said, "because I play to win. But I wasn't out for blood. There are a lot of my friends over there."

Then to show that Shoemaker and SIU-C coach Kay Brechtleibauer had no hard feelings toward each other, the pitcher accepted an invitation to have dinner with the team after the game.

"She's a very fine individual," Brechtleibauer said. "I'll always wish her the best."

Shoemaker played one season for the Salukis, establishing three school records that still stand. She had an 0.68 earned run average, 94 strikeouts and two no-hitters.

The following summer she left the team to marry Jeff Shoemaker, her high school sweetheart.

"It was a tough situation for Lori, and we hated losing her," Brechtleibauer said. "But she really tried to work things out."

"At one point 'Day even considered living halfway between Normal, where she worked, and Carbondale. But that wasn't feasible. She had a tough decision to make."

Shoemaker chose to go back to Normal, but left with positive feelings toward SIU-C and Brechtleibauer.

"I loved Coach B," Shoemaker said. "I really enjoyed going to school at Southern. I miss the players and the campus. I have nothing but respect for Coach B."

However, things didn't work out for the Shoemakers, and they were divorced. Married life turned out to be something she was unprepared for, she says.

We still remain very close friends," Shoemaker said. "He would have been here (Saturday) to see me play, except he had to work. I guess I was too immature for the responsibility, although nobody could have told me at the time."

Shoemaker originally planned to play for Illinois Wesleyan in neighboring Bloomington. But she didn't think the competition level at Division III Wesleyan would satisfy her.

Then at the suggestion of her ex-husband, she enrolled at Illinois State in 1988 under her maiden name of Lori Day.
