Roommate Investigates Roommate

Report on Free School Inquiry Reveals Maze of Contradiction

By Charles Springer

An attempt to clarify Free School has evidently enveloped itself into a maze of contradictions with the recent release of an investigative report by the Student Senate. The investigation began as the result of a number of statements by Stuart Sweetow, the school’s self-declared general director, who promised a transformation of the entire SIU educational process. He had claimed this change-over was the main purpose of Free School, later softened his approach.

Members of the investigating team were Gary Krischer, John Poor, and John Siedek. The investigation stemmed from a Senate bill introduced by Krischer which named himself chairman. He headed the team. Krischer also happened to be a roommate of Stuart Sweetow, director of the group to be investigated.

Krischer declares the investigation was conducted with complete impartiality saying “I did not talk to Stuart about many before the official interview with another member of the committee.” The report declares that Sweetow’s remarks were taken as those of an individual and not to be construed as Free School policy. The Educational Affairs Commission grants power to the organization’s policy, according to one of the investigators. At present, there is no Educational Affairs Commission on the campus.

Committee members also wrote that the atmosphere of Free School does not hinder the learning process. They said there was actually more interest shown than in general study courses.

But a coed who attended a Free School session and was later questioned by the team of investigators said otherwise. “The language used was repulsive and got worse as the session went on. They were cursing about everything that came up—they didn’t care whether it was Free School or Mickey Mouse. They wanted to do away with the present administration and forget about the old worn-out guidelines of Free School.”

As for other students questioned about Free School, one of the investigators said he had talked with two students in a Carbondale pool hall but did not get their names. A member of the investigating team said that the idea had gained widespread support from faculty members. When asked which faculty members had interviewed, he listed two instructors in Free School activities in addition to a graduate assistant who was also on the Free School staff. No other faculty members were questioned.

The report states that much of the criticism directed against the organization came from secondary sources. One of the investigators indicated that information in a letter written to the Daily Egyptian by David D. Marshall had been gained from secondary sources.

Marshall stated that he had interviewed the coed who had been questioned by the investigating committee. Marshall also attended a session of Free School this fall, he said, and had attended sessions for an entire quarter last school year.

The coed, who was the only person questioned officially, and not connected with the school, indicated that she had been on defensive throughout the interview which was conducted chiefly by Krischer in the presence of Poole.

“His wasn’t impartial,” she said. “I felt like I was on the defensive all the time...like anything I said would be met with a reply to make me sound foolish.”

Krischer had a different version of the interview. “She’s lying,” he said. “We asked her 50 times if she had seen anything in the meeting to indicate that the organization was trying to undermine the administration.

“She said no,” he said. The coed said she had answered “no” to all three of the questions the investigators had asked her. “Had she been abused during the meeting? Had she seen any subversive activities? Was she asked to leave?”

“They didn’t have to ask me, she emphasized. “I was glad that out of there.”

Coroner Rules Students’ Deaths Were Accidental

The deaths of two students, struck by a car Sept. 22 on South Wall Street, were ruled accidental Thursday night. Jackson County Coroner Harry Flynn made the ruling at an inquest held at City Hall in Carbondale.

Christine L. Olson, 18, and Brian E. O’Malley, 19, were killed as they were walking when they were struck by an auto driven by PFC John R. Watson, 23, Matamore.

A letter from Watson waived his attendance at the inquest. He authorized an attorney to represent him and legal interest at the inquest.

“Watson is scheduled to appear before a grand jury Nov. 1,” said Richard E. Richardson, Jackson County State’s Attorney.

“By all evidence Watson was driving under the influence of intoxicating beverage,” said Flynn.

Watson had been charged with involuntary manslaughter and driving under the influence of a 500 bond to return to his military duties at Ft. Meyer, Virginia.

One student was injured seriously and another slightly in the accident.

Kathleen Kahruse, 19, from Scottville, was treated at the University Health Service and released. Jeffrey Nesbit, 18, of Champaign, was reported Thursday evening for treatment for a satisfactory condition at Doctors Hospital.

Bonfire Fire Starts Sunday

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will build a bonfire Sunday on the parking lot south of the SIU Athletic Building. The bonfire has been ordered the lumber that will be used in the construction of the bonfire.

Last year, the bonfire structure was damaged by vandals. This year, pledges of Alpha Phi Ome ga will be stationed at the bonfire site until Wednesday night when the ceremonies are held.

A Homecoming kick-off aut opcade will start from University Park at 6 p.m. Wednesday. Riding in the cav­ e, Horace M. Alford, president, and Students who have completed the course and who are approved by the University Board of Trustees will sit for Homecoming queen and king.

Attendees are Sue Cramer and Josette Jones, who are seniors and SIU Pep Band will also participate.

Housing Difficulties Continue for Some

The Housing Problem Card is served as a temporary report of address and to inform students that their registration was not final without completion of the report documents, she said.

The four documents are University On-Campus Housing Contract, University Off-Campus Housing Contract, Report of Residence with Parent or Guardian, or Local Address Record.

AID Students Get Special Adviser

Fred J. Armistead, associate professor in the Department of Educational Administration, has been given a special assignment at the Student Services.

He will be adviser to the 40 international students at SIU who are sponsored by the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID).

Armistead will counsel the training programs of the AID participants and maintain contact with program officers in Washington, D.C.

For the past six years, Armistead served on the SIU education team in South Vietnam, where he was adviser to Vietnamese elementary textbooks. He had a special assignment with Armistead was awarded the Montagnard (tribal people) Medal of Merit, highest civil award given by the Vietnamese government.

Ex-Student Fined
On Dope Count

James J. Riley, a former SIU student, pleaded guilty Tuesday in Jackson County Circuit Court to a charge of Illegal possession of dangerous drugs.

Riley, 19, of LaGrange, was fined $500 plus costs and placed on probation for one year.

Riley was originally charged with illegal possession of narcotics, but the charge was later changed to illegal possession of dangerous drugs.

Riley was apprehended in a police raid on an apartment at 411 Hester St. on April 14.

After the last "long-hot summer" it should be extremely obvious to the greatest American public that much of the big city Negro irritation in this country is dangerously discontent.

Recently Chicago organizations concerned with locating jobs for Chicago's inner-city Negro residents in their studies that it is increasingly difficult to get Negroes to where the job openings are--in the suburbs.

No. 1 No More

A few years ago Chicago called itself the professional sports capital of the country. The giant of the Midwest can no longer make this claim.

Los Angeles, New York, St. Louis, San Francisco and a few others can fight it out for this honor now, but Chicago must stand back and think of what could and should have been.

For a city which has prided itself publicly for being the first at so many things, Chicago has shown amazing ineptitude in recognizing its situation.

It is a lot of self-deception, because while the above mentioned cities were riding themselves of antiquated stadiums, planning for improved parking and undesirable location, Chicago sat pondering the situation.

St. Louis is probably the best example of how a well-planned and constructed sports complex with locating jobs for Chicago's inner-city Negro residents in their studies that it is increasingly difficult to get Negroes to where the job openings are--in the suburbs.

New stadiums have created new interest in all the cities possessing them. They have also been a tremendous boon to professional athletics, one of America's most prosperous businesses.

What is the problem with Chicago? The big city with the impetuous attitude has used numerous excuses for continually funding the question. The city administration and the owners of major league sports teams have shown an amazing inability to get together on the issues. Bond issue suggestions have come and gone.

Meanwhile, however, any of Chicago's most prominent citizens stepped forward and offered to contribute substantially in time or money to such a civic project, which would net them a handy return in a matter of a few years!

It is a good enough for St. Louis and August Busch, who is largely responsible for the stadium which bears his name, is certainly good enough for Chicago.

The natives have awaited a new sports complex with eager anticipation but have been disheartened by the inability of so-called city leaders even to discuss the situation intelligently.

While Chicago sleeps its professional sports situation stagnates on traffic jams, lack of parking, scabrous incidents before and after games in parking lots and stands and lack of security cases, Chicago could be No. 1 in the sports world if it could combine its professional football--by the city administration soon to put that city back where it belongs.

And Romney Wants to Run the Country?

Many spokesmen for these organizations state that as a result of the transportation problem, both Negroes who need the jobs and industry who suffer those Negroes are suffering. And this is a nationwide big city crisis, not just exclusive of Chicago.

In Chicago, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, director of Operation Breadbasket, said, "The number of jobs in the metropolitan area has increased during the last few years. Yet unemployment among blacks has increased because, during that time, jobs have moved farther away."

Statistics from the Labor Department have backed him up. Between 1959 and 1965, according to the Labor Department, the number of service jobs in the Chicago metropolitan area increased by 24 percent in the area as a whole and by 60 percent in the suburbs.

For manufacturing jobs, the respective figures were 6 and 27 percent, and for retail trade jobs, 16 and 47 percent. (Milwaukee, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Jobs Now program, said, "We have much better job placement if there was transportation in between these jobs."

David Cowan, assistant director of Tri-Field Employment, said, "The problem shows that only 19 percent of the applicants who come into our offices have access to auto wages during working hours.

Better jobs has always been a demand heading lists of Negro grievances in this country. A possible answer has been conceived with the job opportunities in the suburbs. But the only thing is for transportation, and the need is right now.

Jobs for Chicago's inner-city Negro residents in their studies that it is increasingly difficult to get Negroes to where the job openings are--in the suburbs.

At long, last we have finally found what a rubber band is, and how it is supposed to be handled and used, thanks to the Post Office Department.

According to a copyrighted news article earlier this week the country's 700,000 post office workers have been fattened with rules and regulations on the care and use of the rubber band. It took two pages to explain all this, and Chrono knows how many hours of labor it took somebody in the Post Office Department to formulate these regulations.

The instructions from the office of the master of the postal system in Washington, D.C., tell the postal employe what a rubber band is, what it looks like, what to do with it, how to hold it, and what not to do with it.

The regulations are listed under section 0-1152, and entitled, "Post Office Band, Natural." The instructions follow:

1. First, rubber bands are to be used for the purpose of making new forms of mailing matter.

2. Second, rubber bands are to be used to hold the forms together, one at a time, and not as a bundle.

3. There is to be no use of natural rubber bands in the mail.

4. Rubber bands, post office bands, and natural rubber bands, section 0-1152, were designed for clerks, and in applying the band to grab the bands one at a time from a pile with less effort than to grab normally formed bands one at a time from a pile.

5. The boys in the master's house in the nation's capital are masters of confusion. We've read the above instructions several times on how to grab a band one at a time from a pile with less effort than to grab normally formed bands one at a time from a pile; and still don't know how to grab one band at a time with less effort than to grab another band one at a time.

6. This could mean that some "bands, rubber, natural," are "normally formed," with some bands not normally formed, and that with less effort is in a "normal" formed band to be used.

7. Picking up the bands from a pile is one thing, but how to apply them is something else.

Stretching a Point

At long, last we have finally found what a rubber band is, and how it is supposed to be handled and used, thanks to the Post Office Department.

"First," the instructions to the 700,000 postal workers state, "pick up the bundle, apply facing clip on top or bottom as required; second, pick up the rubber band, place over large dimension of bundle; and third, pick up second rubber band, place over short dimension of bundle at center."

By the time they carry out these instructions it is assumed the postal workers have already mastered section 0-1152, which taught them how to pick up a band one at a time from the pile.

The instructions are illustrated, showing how the bands are to be placed on the bundles. The instructions are followed with a word of caution, and warning.

"At no time," say the postal rules, "will the different types appear in use at the same time."

The employees are provided with proper receptacles in which to store used bands so that they can be used over again, in the interest of saving money and economy! The taxpaying money must not be wasted.

The underlings in the master's house in Washington, D.C., will expect "progress reports" on how "bands, rubber, natural," are working out in the various postal offices, and woes unto him who breaks or wastes bands!

Communist Birthday Party
Engulfed in Disunity

By Antero Pietila

With the 50th anniversary day of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution nearly, Soviet Union is preparing for a Communist summit conference still seen from far materializing.

In April, the secretary general of the Soviet Communist party, Leonid Brezhnev, called in general terms for a world conference of Communist parties to assure ideological unity. The answer from Peking's Jenmin Jih Pao (People's Daily) was clear in its content: Let us tell the Moscow gentle- men sternly: Under no circumstances will we use 'united action' with you who are a pack of rank traitors to the Vietnamese revolution, shameless scabs serving as advisors to United States imperialism and accomplices to U.S. gangsters in their efforts to stamp out the flames of the Vietnamese national revolutionary war.)

Even parties that were in principle favorable for this kind of a conference had reservations. The once monolithic Communist block today is not only in two hostile camps but there are also parties that try to warm around both camps in order to prevent further division. And yet the Communist parties in many countries have undergone severe internal splits.

The situation resembles that in countries where there is a state of war, where by the by the victorious are no longer satisfied with the established establishments which, in their opinion, have made concessions to secularism and have drawn further from their original role. The dissidents begin forming groups of their own to preach the gospel they claim is right.

Thus, even in Western countries of high living standard, Sweden for instance, there have been splits in Communist parties. Signifi- cantly, the Masons in Sweden have their staunchest boosters in Communist student organizations, which argue that the existing party has basically compromised with the capitalist system of living.

Small as these groups usually are, their voice of dissent is loud and often it is that of a general protest aimed more at the society as a whole than at ideological issues.

Things are different, of course, in developing countries with Communist movements of significance. There the sentiment is often somewhat similar to that among the different workers' parties in the West after the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917; impatience for an insistent world revolution.

Fifty-odd about 90 Communist parties today are backing the Russian proposed world conference. The general feeling is, however, that when once in session the meeting, be it without China, must not seek to excommunicate China from the international movement by a formal vote, nor must it seek to impose a binding line of Communist policy, strategy or tactics to all parties.

One of the main dissidents is Romania. It has been forming a line of its own, unmistakably diverged from that of the other Communist countries in the Middle East issue. And when it this summer celebrated its national day, it released in press releases minimized the Russian help in defeating Hitler's troops in the Balkans and took all the credit for itself. This independent nationalistic line has gotten stronger after a purge this spring in the Romanian state security service in order to prevent an alleged Moscow-inspired takeover of the party apparatus.

The news of Che Guevara's death was relaid by American news media as "a major blow" at the Communist exported guerrilla movements of Latin America. A major blow as it may be, it would be naive and self-deceiving to assume that the death of a single man would automatically end the war, which, some observers think, is not yet begun.

Alfredo Stroez, a veteran Latin American correspondent of the New York Times, now based in Mexico, has pointed out that a revolution of revolution cannot occur where there is no market for it. There is no market for it in Latin America where the increase in the gross national product has failed to keep pace with the increase in the population, where unsolved problems are dangerously accumulating; where many governments are still trying to hold the clock that is on its way already.

It took more than two years for U.S. officials to confirm a fact almost any Saloon-correspondent knew that Americans were building and increasing their airbases in Thailand for bomb- ing missions in North Vietnam and Laos. Similarly, it has been long known semiofficially that Americans are training guerrilla movements, from counterguerrilla units, but only last week it was"to this writer's knowledge for the first time, of- ficially disclosed.

In a speech in Washington, D.C., Sen. Robert W. Porter Jr., com- mander of the U.S. Southern Com- mand, confirmed that a U.S. Army team is on advisory duty in Bolivia. This, of course, caused some speculation about the role the U.S. played in caching Che Guevara but, according to Richard Gort of Britain's Manchester Guardian, the Americans did not show during the events following the death of that guerrilla leader.

However, Che Guevara's body was brought in a helicopter to Vallegrande it was accompanied by a quiet man in basic who, when asked where he came from, surly responded, "Nowhere." This man, the correspondents agreed, according to Gort, was a U.S. Intel- ligence agent and a Cuban exile. The Washington Post later disputed this claim and said it was based only on the fact that the man was heard speaking English, which, some observers think, is not possible for Bolivians to gather all the documents and photos needed to confirm Guevara's identity, and later to distribute this material worldwide as efficiently as they did.

Now Guevara is dead it is of minor importance whether Un- cle Sam had his boys involved or not. As the fiscal '68 military as- sessment bill is still in Congress, and reportedly subject to reduc- tion, it is in the interest of the U.S. to warn that Latin America is becom- ing another Vietnam unless the U.S. increases its military as- sistance so that Latin American forces can provide a shield to convert the whole world to the American ideology. Or as French Marxist Regis Debray, currently on trial in Bolivia, put it, "One Che died, Others will live in the hearts of all revolutionaries."
Persists in a financial pinch may get some relief by selling blood to the Carbondale hospitatals. Since there is no Red Cross blood bank in Alexander County, paid professional donors and free donors are sources for patient transfusions in Doctors and Holden hospitals.

Judy Johnson, blood technician at Holden Hospital, said over 250 units are used yearly at the hospital. She added about 40 persons are listed as paid professional donors and account for 15 per cent of donations. About 85 per cent of blood donated at Holden is classified free donation.

Doctors Hospital blood tech icnician Joyce Connett said some 300 persons are listed as paid donors at that hospital.
She added that the hospital is trying to increase payment by 500 per cent to develop a larger and more up-to-date list.

BH positive blood merits a price of $12.50 for each pint donated while AB and negative donors are paid $15. Patients pay $30 a unit which includes drawing and processing char-dern. Miss Connett said some 1000 units are drawn a year between Doctors and Holden hospitals. She added that about 30 per cent of the paid donors are students.

List added in the case of emergencies it is usually not difficult to acquire units. Students quickly volunteered to donate for those injured in the Wall Street accident in Sep-ember.

Miss Connett said that it is not as easy to get blood in stock for routine surgery. In these instances the patient usually tries to solicit donations from his family or friends, she said.

Miss Johnson said if donors cannot quickly be found in an emergency, St. Joseph's Hospital in Murphyboro is contacted. If units are not avail-bale at that source, the hospital contacts Herrin Hospital in hopes of getting units from the Red Cross or other donors.

If no units can be obtained from these sources, the Red Cross Blood Bank in St. Louis is contacted. Should no units be available, the hospital contacts either the Chicago blood bank at the Chicago Donor Ser-dvice or the Interstate Blood Bank in St. Louis.

Citizens for Kennedy in 1968
Plan Mock RFK-LBJ Vote

The recently reorganized Southern Illinois Citizens group for Kennedy in '68 has tentatively scheduled a mock election Nov. 3. According to the chairman of the local chapter, Al Blumenthal, the election will feature a head on clash between Sen. Robert Kennedy and President Lynd-

The Southern Illinois chapter, which is beginning its section, is one of over 100 chapters throughout the country. This year's primary purpose is a combined effort to defeat Johnson and nominate Kennedy for president in 1968. The organization's first effort toward the goal of ousting LBJ and nominating RFK will be to defeat Johnson in the New Hampshire primary.

The initial local chapter meeting will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Room D of the University Center. Present officers along with Blumenthal are: Jerry Finney, vice-chairman; Bill Potter, secretary, and Terry McKin-

SIU to Prepare Foreign Educator

SIU has been chosen to prepare a foreign educator for a top role in his country's education program.

Dean Elmer J. Clark of the College of Education said the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, through a grant from the federal Agency for International Development, will bring 18 foreign educational leaders to American training institutions to prepare them for leadership posts-college presidencies in most cases-and that SIU is one of the 18 centers selected to do the job.

Neither the person nor the country from which he will come has been selected for SIU. However, the University will have a part in selection of both country and the individual.

When the country is decided upon, John E. King, SIU professor of higher education, will spend three to four weeks overseas looking over candidates in their native land and surveying educational needs so that the most beneficial program can be established for the campus visitor.

The foreign educator will spend nine months at SIU and do some traveling while here, visiting other colleges, inspecting current educational machinery, and probably attending university administrative sessions, King said.

King, president of the AACTE in 1966, said the AACTE has inaugurated this program to assist in teacher improvement around the world. He said foreign trainees will be able to sit in on courses but will not be candidates for degrees. They can begin their work during the current academic year.

Inhalation Conference Sets Goal of Understanding Field

Inhalation therapy is a fairly new field, according to Robert J. Bell of the Puritan Compressed Gas Corp.

Bell, who headed the programming of the all-day Conference on Inhalation Therapy Thursday in the University Center Ballroom, said the field is one of para-medical specialty as opposed to professional nursing.

"The purpose of this conference is to further the understanding in the field of respiratory physiology as it relates to the practice of inhalation therapy," Bell explained.

A staff of 403 anesthesiologists and respiratory physiologists, all members of the American College of Chest Physicians, met for confer-

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The vanguard of an Army paratroop force that could reach 6,000 men flew to Washington Thursday as the Defense Department moved to protect the Pentagon against a massive antiwar demonstration planned for Saturday.

Sponsors hope to rally as many as 100,000 demonstrators for a march from the Lincoln Memorial to the huge department headquarters across the Potomac River.

The paratroopers would be charged with the security of the Pentagon while some 4,000 policemen and national guardsmen will be available to maintain order elsewhere. The Defense Department refused to acknowledge that the paratroopers are being brought in because of the demonstration nor would they say what the force might total ultimately.

13 Demonstrators Expelled

MADISON, WIS. (AP) — University of Wisconsin officials backed up a new get tough policy against unruly protesters Thursday, expelling 13 leaders of Wednesday's bloody anti-war demonstration.

Hundreds of angry students began an immediate boycott of classes and set up chanting picket lines outside buildings on the 33,000-student campus.

Chancellor William H. Sewell planned to meet with faculty members regarding the future of on-campus job recruiting by Dow Chemical Co., maker of napalm for the war in Vietnam.

After Wednesday's outbursts, Sewell ordered temporary halt to Dow recruiting.

Refusals of protesters to clear jammed corridors inside a building where Dow held its interviews triggered skull-bumping skirmishes between police and demonstrators Wednesday.

About 65 protesters and three policemen were treated for injuries, none of them believed serious, after helmeted police used riot sticks and tear gas to disperse jeering students who shouted slogans denouncing police, the war and President Johnson.

Sewell, who became chancellor this past summer, had vowed there would be no repeat of last February's anti-Dow demonstrations which led to 19 arrests.

Demo Governors Vow To Press War Vote

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, V. I. (AP) -- Democratic governors vowed Thursday to press for a resolution endorsing the Johnson administration's Vietnamese policy, despite a furor over a White House message that went astray and landed in Republican hands.

In another development, Gov. George Romney of Michigan said he might announce his candidacy for the GOP presidential nomination Nov. 15.

The wayward message was delivered by accident to Gov. Ronald Reagan of California aboard the liner Independence, where the governors were holding their 59th national conference while steam ing toward the Virgin Islands.

It accused Price Daniel of Texas, administration liaison man with the governors, of questioning two Republicans -- Govs. James A. Rhodes of Ohio and John H. Chafee of Rhode Island -- about their support of the President's war policy.

The Republicans cited it as evidence the administration was trying to strong-arm them into a declaration of support on the war for the Democrats' political benefit.

As the Independence cruised to shore between the cliffs and green hills of this Virgin Island harbor, debate stormed over the Vietnam issue.

"We have a duty and an obligation to take a position on Vietnam, and we're certainly going to run with the resolutions and I don't care how many votes we get," said Texas Gov. John B. Connally, a Democrat.

Republicans had lined up Wednesday in opposition to any resolution on Vietnam.

Information, Scheduling Center
Coordinating University Facilities

The Information and Scheduling Center has begun service this quarter. Headed by Joseph N. Goodman and working directly under the president of the University, the agency will provide information on the availability of University facilities.

Presently, the office is in building 1-33 (the third basement north of the University Center, but will move into Anthony Hall as soon as the renovation is completed.

Goodman said the new office is in full operation as far as scheduling is concerned. As of this quarter, individuals or groups wishing to use the University’s facilities should contact the Information and Scheduling Center.

At the last Board of Trustees meeting, a working paper outlining who was eligible to use University buildings was approved.

Goodman pointed out that up until this time ‘there was nothing in writing’ on the use of University property.

UN Correspondent
To Talk Oct. 24

Donald Gran, United Nations correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will speak at a United Nations Day public lecture Oct. 24.

The lecture, "The United Nations Crisis," will be at 7:30 p.m., in French Auditorium at the Life Science Building. A reception is scheduled in Morris Library lounge after the lecture.

Gran, a news reporter since 1929, has been a Post-Dispatch writer since 1945. He was a war correspondent in World War II. Since the war he has traveled extensively in Asia, Africa and Latin America. He was educated at Drake University, De Moines, Iowa, and attended Harvard University as a Nieman Fellow.

The public lecture is sponsored by the SIU government department and the International Relations Club at SIU in conjunction with the United Nations Association in the U.S.A.

Concern religious and political meetings.

The new office does not reserve space in the University Center, the Arena, Little Grassymon or the University Residence Halls.

However, events at these facilities will be coordinated with the Information and Scheduling Center. The Scheduling Center will then include them in the University Calendar and the daily schedule.

The "Information" section of the office will go into full operation after the move to Anthony Hall.

At that time operators will be on duty from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. to answer questions about students, faculty, staff and almost any other information concerning the University.

Goodman said his office is presently preparing a "bible" that will have all vital information in it.

His office will also act as official hosts for visitors to the University, providing them with tours and orientation.

Goodman is a retired Air Force colonel who was formerly with the ROTC Department at SIU.

Drink Sprite and be somebody.

Take heart. Take a dime.
Then take a bottle of Sprite from the nearest pop machine.
Suddenly it’s in your hand. Cold. Biting. Tart and tingling. You shake friendly and rub your hands together. (You should; they’re probably chilled to the bone by now.)

You tear off to a corner, alone, but within earshot of your fellows.

And then? And then? And then you unleash it. SPRITE! It fizzes! It roars! It bubbles with good cheer!

Heads turn. Whisperings. "Who’s that strangely fascinating student with the arch smile and what’s in that curious green bottle that’s making such a racket?"

And you’ve arrived! The distinctive taste and effulgent character of Sprite has set you apart.
You’re somebody. uh...uh, whoever-you-are.

40 Firm Representatives to Attend
Annual SIU Career Day Wednesday
Representatives from 40 firms of a nationwide section of business and industry are expected to attend the annual Career Day at SIU Oct. 25. "Career Expo 67" will be in the University Center ballrooms from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Representatives will set up booths and offer information on the job opportunities their firms have to offer. S.E. Richardson of the SIU Placement Service said, "this is an excellent opportunity for interested students to meet representatives of business and industry and discuss with them possible careers in their fields."

Student chairman for the Career Day is Glen Heller of Elizabeth, who is coordinating the efforts of 10-man student committee.

The Career Day is free of charge and open to all students.
Salukis to Meet Potent Eagles

By Tom Wood

The Salukis will get a taste of the cream off the top of the Missouri Valley Conference football during the next two weekends when they play host first to North Texas State and then Tulsa.

North Texas moves into MacAndrew Stadium Saturday undefeated, once tied and heavily favored not to lose any prestige against Southern. "I guess the only people who think we can win this one are our boys and the coaching staff, North Texas has to be considered, along with Tulsa, as the team to beat in the Valley," said SIU Coach Dick Towers.

The Eagles shared the crown with Tulsa last season. They've already disposed of one chief foe in Louisville. 513 yards rushing. And that's what beat us, said Towers.

"They're not as good a team as last year, but the one that beat us last year 53-6, I don't see how they could be with Love and Carlin gone," Towers said.

He was referring to John Love, now with the Washington Redskins and one of the top punt and kick return men in the National Football League this year, and Vidal Carlin, a quarterback drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Also gone is Corky Boland, the reserve signal-caller who looked like John Unitas against the 1966 Salukis. He did Love, a flanker then, marched North Texas up and out of the field with discouraging ease.

But the people who have manned a graduated backfield for the Eagles are taking up where their senior counterparts left off last season, Soph quarterback Steve Rainsey is a big, rangy, sprint-out passer. But the Salukis will play him like a drop back thrower because, according to Towers, he doesn't run very often.

He doesn't have to with receivers like James Ranker, Ken Kidd and Vicker Williams to throw to. This trio is in the habit of spending a lot of time in the wide open spaces.

A huge defensive line is back almost intact for the Texans. It was the most effective in the nation at defense against the run last year. Opponents gained 513 yards rushing. And that's what the Salukis do best.

But the Eagle secondary has been had on occasion this year by the forward pass. Vidal Carlin, one of the top defensive backs, also is a standout of the passing game.

A big offensive line is back almost intact for the Salukis.

The other big line is way too prepared for a Hurricane.

The Salukis can't win by a SIU grid team. They've been over the 50-point mark twice, and won in 1962 55-3 and again in 1964 14-13.

They haven't been held to under 30 points this season. The Saluki defenders have a Texas-size job cut out for themselves. It's a heckuva way to prepare for a Hurricane.

Mascot Tryouts

Scheduled Sunday

Tryouts for the Saluki mascot will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Women's Gymnasium.

The mascot is a male student, who must have some basic abilities in gymnastics and tumbling. He performs at SIU football and basketball games.

Lack of Veteran Swimmers Poses Problem

SIU Swimming coach Ray Essick figures his problems will, which him all year in dual competition— not enough veteran swimmers.

"We'll be lacking in quantity, not in quality," Essick said. "We have some very good men.

And the team will consist of four seniors, who anchor the squad, and a few others."

The squad has no experience with veterans, as Essick is the only one who has

But he isn't making any excuses for his team because he doesn't feel it will need any.

Essick feels both Schloetzer and Thomas could become nationally ranked swimmers again.

This will be a good squad in multiple-team meets, the NCAA and AAU for example, but we'll be plagued by that numbers problem in dual meets. We could see it coming last year, it's just a matter of trying to live through it," Essick said.

One of the highlights of a rough schedule, includes Oklahoma, Indiana, Iowa State, Cincinnati and Missouri, will be the fresh-varsity meet Nov. 17.

Board Will Hire Lynd

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities agreed Thursday to hire Dr. Staugus Lynd, a controversial history professor, if he drops a suit against the board.

Lynd brought the suit because of rejection of his appointment to teach history at Chicago State College.

The board had rejected his bid for a job July 17 and refused to reconsider his rejection.

Lynd, a former Yale professor who criticized the war in Vietnam, had an unauthorized trip to North Vietnam and Red China in 1965.

Frederick H. McKeIv, board secretary, issued a statement saying the board negotiated a settlement embodying new contract terms.

Lynd would be an associate professor of history to work with graduate students engaged in research in history for the 1967-68 academic year.

State School Sup. Ray Page and Leland Webber of Chicago were members not present.

The terms provide:

- Lynd and the Cook County College Teachers Union withdrew the suit.
- Lynd withdraws his complaint to the American Association of University Professors and advises the Committee for Academic Freedom in Illinois and other befriending groups the agreement met with his approval.

Page had said he would "never condone any action which gives aid and comfort, and worse yet, employment to someone whose weird concept of protest includes fraternity with our known enemies."

Will Drop Suit: Lynd

DE KALB, Ill. (AP)—A spokesman for Dr. Staugus Lynd said Thursday the controversial history professor will drop his suit against the Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities since the board has agreed to hire him.

Lynd, a former Yale professor who criticized the war in Vietnam and made an unauthorized trip to North Vietnam and Red China in 1965, brought the suit because his appointment to teach history at Chicago State College was rejected.

Thursday, Frederick H. McKeIv, board secretary, issued a statement saying the board negotiated a settlement by which Lynd would be an associate professor of history working with graduate students doing research in history for the 1967-68 academic year.

Professor Alfred Young, who teaches history at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb and is co-chairman of the Commission for Academic Freedom in Illinois, said Lynd would drop his suit.
