Library Gets Shakespeare Rarities

Folio, 'Pericles' Acquisition Marks Bard's Anniversary

Morgan Library has acquired the rare Shakespearean items.

Once a Fugitive of the disputed play, "Pericles, Prince of Tyre," only nine copies of which are known to exist.

This Folio is a Fourth of Shakespeare's collected works, garnered a short time after his death.

The SUI acquisitions were in recognition of the bard's quadricentennial anniversary, according to Ferris S. Randall, acting librarian.

The Fourth Folio was published in 1675. The first was published in 1623, the third in 1633 and reissued in 1636 with additional material and the fourth in 1645.

They represent what many scholars call the most important volumes in English literature because they provide the collected works of one of the world's greatest writers and were gathered within a comparatively short time after his death.

Scholars disagree about the authorship of the play, but the consensus is that Shakespeare was probably responsible for most of the lost acts.

The two new acquisitions are of interest in this main hall of Greek letters. Eventually they will be housed with the Rare Books collection, along with the Shakespearean items.

Southern to Mark Shakespeare's Birth

SIU today joins in the observance of the 400th anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare.

Thomas J. Baldwin, professor of English and a noted Shakespearean authority, will speak at a public lecture at 3 p.m. today in the auditorium of Morris Library.

His subject will be, "William Shakespeare, Scholar.

Throughout this year, SUI has joined the universities of the western world in presenting a series of special events in commemoration of the quadricentennial of Shakespeare's birth.

Today is the actual birth date. A quadricentennial committee arranged tonight's public lecture.

Baldwin moved to Southern in 1958 after a distinguished career as a professor at the University of Illinois. He is author of many books and articles on Shakespeare and is currently preparing "The Comedy of Errors" for the Variorum Edition of the works. SUI Press has announced his book "On Acts and Scenes in the Shakespeare First Folio" for fall publication.

Baldwin is serving as honorary chairman of the SIU quadricentennial committee.

Actor Philip Hanson to Stage One-Man Show at Convocation

Actor Philip Hanson will appear in the program "Convo- cation at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. today in Shryock Auditorium. The show is a one-man, one-woman play, "Wills and Tales," in which he plays 25 of William Shakespeare's famous and infamous characters.

Hanson is a veteran of more than 10 years of Shakespearean role play at the Shakespeare Festivals in Oregon State University. This experience along with 2 years' observation of repertory company in France and Germany paved the way for his initia- tion of a living reper- toire on campus in his seven-one-man shows.

Grand Ave. Traffic Blockade Extended 60 Days by Council

SUI has been given permission to extend its blockade on Grand Avenue an additional 60 days.

The Carbondale City Council and the Carbondale Traffic Advisory Committee decided to extend the street closure an additional 60 days.

Due to unfavorable weather and union problems, the University extended the additional time to finish construction.

The extension means Grand Avenue will remain closed.

The motion was made by Councilman L.E. Todd and seconded by Councilman O.C. Winbush.

The Council also agreed to formally withdraw its offer to sell the University to a maximum of $7,000 for the installation of an oil pipeline to the city's reservoir.

The motion was based on the discovery of a 1959 contract wherein the University agreed to build the pipeline on its own.

A letter of protest from four Carbondale residents was read. The letter objected to plans to build a dormitory at the corner of Mill and Poplar streets. It stated that the site is not large enough to allow adequate parking facilities in the area, which already has serious traffic problems. It further stated that the dormitory site did not include sufficient recreation area to keep the students off adjoining private property.

The letter asked that the Council deny a petition on file requesting rezoning of the Mill and Poplar sites to allow building of the dorm. The Council referred the request to the City Planning Commission.

$4.1 Million Lab Building to Mark Start for Physical Sciences Home

Construction of a huge laboratory wing of a new SIU Physical Science Building is scheduled to start this year.

University Architect Charles Pulley said the structure, to be used by the Department of Physics, Chemistry and Geology, will be constructed south of the University Community Center.

Three houses will be razed before construction starts and one used by the School of Technology will be torn down when the laboratory wing is completed. Work is proceeding on this project south of the projected Physical Science Building.

The Phase I construction of the Physical Science, for which $4,100,000 has been set aside by the Illinois Building Authority, will be a four-story wing, built of brick and precast concrete, and will be win- dowed at the back and side.
SCHOLARSHIP CHECK - I. Clark Davis, director of student affairs, accepts a check for a $71 scholarship from Byrns Taylor, Phi Kappa Tau, and Judy Pope, Sigma Kappa. The money represents funds that were saved by not giving trophies at this year's Greek Sing. The scholarship will be available in September to a deserving sorority or fraternity member.

Survey of Purchasing Habits Of Students Underway Today

Forms are being distributed beginning today to five percent of the student body in an attempt to conduct a comprehensive survey of the purchasing habits of SIU students.

The market study is being conducted by David J. Luck, professor of marketing at Southern, who will be assisted by 25 graduate and undergraduate students in his marketing and research course.

The Daily Egyptian and several university offices are cooperating in the study.

Purpose of the study, Luck explained, is to supply data concerning student purchasing habits, for use by universities and businesses.

American university students are the fastest growing segment among consumer market groups, according to Luck, with a growth rate of eight percent per year.

"Strangely," he noted, "there have been no comprehensive market studies of the southern Illinois area, in which SIU is located and in which the study would contribute to the economic planning of the southern Illinois area, in which SIU plays a very important part.

Results would also be useful to university officials, who need facts about the cost of living on campus to pass along to prospective students.

The greatest incentive for student cooperation in such a study, Luck said, was the fact that it would provide one of the best ways of spurring local development of suitable facilities for students by registering students' impact.

Two forms will be used. The first is a diary of weekly purchases; another will require the student to record his major purchases over a year's period.

Romeos Make Scene on Roof But Get Probation -Not Juliet

Two freshmen Romeos, who played the big scene on a roof instead of a balcony, have been placed on disciplinary probation through this quarter by the Office of Student Affairs.

The office said that Lawrence Tucker, 22, of Teutopolis, and Paul Pals, 19, of Teutopolis, would be suspended if they are involved in further behavior problems associated with alcoholic beverages.

Housing Contracts Ready Next Month

Fall contracts for on-campus housing will be offered the first part of May, according to the Office of Student Affairs. Contracts will be sent to freshmen and upperclassmen at that time.

Glee Club to Hold Tryouts;
Eligible Students Invited

The University Male Glee Club will conduct auditions for the 1964-65 school year beginning Tuesday in Room 115 of Altgeld Hall.

Students eligible are upperclassmen, including graduate students, who have at least 96 hours and are in good standing at SIU. Credit for participation is one hour. Previous musical training is not necessary for the Glee Club.

"Many of the men in the Club cannot read music. The important thing is their desire to sing," said Robert Kingsbury, director of the Glee Club and university choir.

Faculty Club Talk

George S. Counts, professor in administration and supervision, will be the speaker at the Faculty Club Seminar at noon Friday.

Johnson Opens Fair While CORE Chants

NEW YORK — President Johnson, speaking over the chanting of racial demonstra­tors at the opening of the New York World's Fair, said Wednesday that "free and un­bindered criticism of men and ideas" is the "vital nourish­ment of freedom."

Johnson opened the huge United States Exhibition build­ing, where representatives of the Congress of Racial Equal­ity were waving placards and chanting "Freedom! Free­dom!"

Perhaps 15 or 20 persons were assembled 75 years from the chief executive. They were blocked by a pool and by police barricades from the pavilion entrance where Johnson stood.

They waved aloft red and white banners. One said "CORE demands a fair share."

The multimillion-dollar fair opened with its interna­tional flight of ideas, Johnson declared Wednesday that "free in time to disrupt the opening."

"CORE" factoid did not mater­nalize on the complex maze of highways leading to the fair in time to thwart any interference.

Nobody's a Loser

We're glad to see there were no snipers in the recent TP elections.

Often we soon forget the nonwinning candidates and they're lost in the background, their talents unscathed, their energies unused.

Fortunately, Ron Centanni, TP president, apparently has appointed his chairman on the basis of their ability, rather than as political favorites. Centanni has chosen Joe Beer, his presidential opponent, as chairman of the Judicial Board and Tom Gaigie, a nonwinner in the vice-presidential race, as cochairman of the Education Programming Board.

And, from what we hear, Larry McDonald, the only other nonwinning candidate, hasn't given up politics either.

Our superiors would do "11 to take note of such action. Their political ostracism of past presidents and nonincumbents is one of the most unreasonable policies we know.

We're of the theory that there should be no such person as a loser; only runners up.

For the past several years there has been talk and some constructive progress toward placing a closed circuit radio station on the campus. The last such attempt was defeated by the University Council at its meeting January 11 of this year with the recommendation that the Communications Council study the feasibility of placing a closed circuit radio station on the campus with the programming of state that of the University's radio station, WSIU-FM.

In doing so, the University Council ignored the needs and the wants of the students of the university. Numerous surveys taken at various stages of the students living in the campus residence halls have continually indicated that they wish to have a student-operated closed circuit radio station on campus. WSIU-FM, due to its objectives ast forth by the University, is aimed primarily at the communities of the area and NOT at the students on campus, therefore a minority of students listen to WSIU-FM.

We feel that the University Council has two alternatives it can take: One, to continue, with this short-sighted approach to the problem by placing WSIU-FM programming on a closed circuit radio station. If this is done, they should give the students a stronger voice in the programming policies of WSIU-FM. Or, two, pass a resolution creating a student-operated closed circuit radio station, which would, in effect, give the students control over the programming policies of both stations clear and distinct, allowing WSIU-FM to fulfill its responsibility to the area communities, and the closed circuit station to its responsibility to the students.

Closed-Circuit Radio Urged For Operation by Students

As the world we live in changes, so must our educational system. With the speed, the need for a faster means of communication also increases. Such a means for faster communication is a radio station.

IRVING DILLIARD

Congress Wasting Time

One of the worst aspects of the filibuster against the civil rights bill is that a tremendous amount of valuable congressional time is going down the drain. Were this time constructively used, urgent legislation could be considered and passed.

There is, for example, the matter of Presidential recess appointments. It is also the matter of Presidential disability. Each deserves consideration and action by Congress. How can our members be so short that we are not demanding of Congress that it face these potentially grave issues?

As everyone knows, the country does not have a Vice President. We have not had one since Lyndon B. Johnson moved up to the Presidency after the tragedy in Dallas. We will not have one until next January, when the Vice Presidential choice is November is inaugurated.

Old, Dangerous Story

This is an old as well as dangerous story. Some one has totaled all the years when the Speaker was an elected official. But now the speaker has not had a Vice President since Lyndon B. Johnson moved up to the Presidency after the tragedy in Dallas. We will not have one until next January, when the Vice Presidential choice is November is inaugurated.

Newer, Dangers Issue

Another matter involves the possibility of making the President more capable of handling a crisis. The Constitution says plainly that "Con­gress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected."

This constitutional provision not only gives Congress power to meet the problem. It obligates Congress in act. Congress ignores a sworn duty when it does not act. One sure way for this session to go down in history as a constructive Congress would be for it to eliminate the blowholes that now endanger national security with respect to Presidential succession and Presidential disability.

Old, Dangerous Story

This is an old as well as dangerous story. Some one has totaled all the years when the United States has not had a Vice President and it amounts to 38 years. That is a substantial part of the nation's history.

The belief is increasing that the 1947 succession act was a mistake. Under sponsorship of President Truman, Congress placed the speaker of the House next in line after the Vice President on the theory that the speaker was an elected official. But now the possibility that the country might turn to a speaker who was not equipped for the President has caused citizens to take a more favorable look at the 1886 succession act which put the secretary of state in line after the Vice President, followed by other cabinet officers in seniority.

A proposal that is gaining favor is to give the President authority to name a Vice President when that office becomes vacate, the appointment to be approved by both branches of Congress. Former President Eisenhower has sponsored this plan. An expert on Presidential problems, Richard E. Neustadt of Columbia University, calls it "most sensible."

Attorney Frank E. Moss (D., Utah) urges its adoption. A committee of the American Bar Association also has dealt with this problem.

Can't Risk 'Sick Room' Rule

No less urgent is the need to provide a sure means for handling Presidential disability. Presidents Garfield, McKinley and Eisenhower all were disabled. During these periods of disablement, those around the sick or injured Presidents governed as best they could. We should not risk a "sick room" administration again.

The Constitution says plainly that "Con­gress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected."

Eyes Upset at Drake Relays

Woods Faces Texas Foe Again

Shot putter George Woods faces an old friend—or maybe a new one—when he leads the Salukis in the annual Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa, tomorrow and Saturday.

Wood will come face-to-face with Texas A&M's Danny Roberts for the second weekend in a row and is determined to stop the Aggie star's bid for a repeat championship at the Drake affair.

Roberts topped out Woods for the championship at last week's Kansas Relays with a toss of 60 feet 2 3/4 inches—two and one-quarter inches better than the Salukis' heart.

Woods, who lost two years ago was hospitalized after an accident shooting himself while hunting and was in a car accident involving members of the track team last year, has gained new confidence after hitting the 60-foot mark for the first time outdoors.

The Salukos, Mo. junior established new indoor Center Hall Conference and U. S. Federation records of 60 feet, 7 inches and 60 feet, 6 inches, respectively, earlier in the year.

Both Roberts and Woods have shown marked improvement over last year, when the Salukos won the coveted Drake Relays title with a 56 feet, 7 inch mark and Woods was fifth at 585 feet 2 3/4 inches.

Southern's other entries in the Distance Classic include Jim Dupree in the open mile run, Jon Jaeger in the three-mile open event and Herb Walker in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles.

Depree, a former NCAA half-mile champion who still runs for SIU in open competition although he has completed his intercollegiate eligibility, will be competing against Loyola's Tom O'Hara.

Both Jaeger, a freshman, and Walker-both have shaved their 880-yard times and appear to be running for the top spots in the event.

The Salukos, who have applied their knowledge of intramural volleyball games to be played tonight in the Men's Gym.
