An ordinance that will permit the parking of four motorcycles in a single parking space will come up for final reading before the Carbondale City Council next week.

As the law now stands, a cycle must use an entire parking space.

City officials have been treating cycles like cars for parking purposes.

The new ordinance, which was scheduled for adoption at the March 28 meeting of the council, has been revised.

The revision specifies that each regular parking space will be painted to indicate four motorcycle stalls within each automobile space.

The original ordinance did not specify this parking. Some parts of the proposed ordinance remain unchanged.

According to the new plan, if more than four cycles are parked in one regular parking space, all will be ticketed.

If meter time expires, all cycles parked will be subject to overtime summons. All cycles must be parked parallel to the curb.

In council action earlier this week, an ordinance restricting the seating position of a second rider was passed. Passengers on a two-seater vehicle are required to sit astride and not "sideways."

1 Man, 1 Vote ls Bill Philosophy

The first plan to restructure representation of the Campus Senate will be presented at the Senate’s first meeting of the spring quarter. Several plans were discussed in February at a retreat at Little Grassy Lake. Dave Wegen, one graduate student senator, will introduce a bill to divide representation into four geographical areas created by the intersection of four streets.

Under Wilson’s plan, the rules and coordinating committee of the Campus Senate would then award a senator to each "defensible unit." Possible units would be University City, Small Group Housing and others.

The remaining number of senators—from a total of 16—would be apportioned to the districts. Districts would be set up within the geographical areas. Each senator would be elected from that area.

At a result, the Campus Senate representation would be apportioned as closely as possible to the “one man, one vote” concept, while still allowing for special interests of housing groups such as University City, Wilson said.

Wilson said he hoped the plan could be in effect for the Senate’s election on May 10.

In other business tonight, Bob Gruese, Liberal Arts and Sciences senator, will introduce a resolution establishing a temporary committee for participation in student government and other student activities. Presently the grade point average required to try out an organization, according to Gruese, Student Body President.

Student Hurt In Collision Of Cycle-Car

James M. Helm, Dongola, received minor injuries in a car-motorcycle accident at about 10:45 a.m. Tuesday on the Campus Drive near the Arena.

Helm was a passenger on a motorcycle operated by Daniel J. Maloney, Chicago. Maloney was not injured.

According to Maloney, he was driving east on Campus Drive when a car driven by Eugene L. Flasser, Fairmont, which was headed west, turned in front of him.

Maloney swerved the motorcycle to the left to avoid hitting the car, but a minor collision occurred, knocking both motorcycle riders to the road.

The car passed over Helm’s leg, but he received only bruises and contusions.

Hospital Administrator Cites Advantages In Placing Blood Type on Student IDs’

By Bob Smith

Second of a Series

"Basically, having all students’ blood typed is a good idea," said Glen E. Zilmer, administrator of Holden Hospital.

"And putting the type on student IDs would have some advantage, since it is the one thing students almost always have with them."

Its chief advantage, said Zilmer, is that if a general call for blood were sent out, the University, many students would volunteer if they knew their type.

Holden Hospital has always received excellent cooperation from the University when blood was needed, he pointed out, but chances of getting enough volunteers would be greatly increased if all students knew their blood types.

Zilmer cautioned that students’ knowing their blood types is a only a starting point.

First of all, Zilmer said, there are enough errors in blood typing to make it necessary for a hospital to retype blood to make sure it is of the type needed. Then, if the blood is of the correct type, it is cross-checked for compatibility. This is a check made to be sure many small details in the donor’s blood match those of the person receiving the blood.

Because of this, Zilmer added, blood of a person donating a donation is always checked before the donation is given. Thus, if a student were injured, knowledge of his blood type would be of no direct value because the hospital would re-type it before giving a donation to him.

On the other hand, vital time could be saved if the hospital could start with a group of volunteer donors who probably had the correct blood type.

Zilmer said. As it is, the hospital often has to check many volunteers to get a few with the needed type.

The idea of allowing home-town doctors to do students’ blood typing on a general scale has been questioned because of the possibility of the results being incorrect.

Zilmer said he saw no reason to worry too much about who does the original typing since it is resyped. Again, he pointed to the fact that this original typing is "only a beginning place which could save precious minutes in time of an emergency."

The idea of placing students’ blood type on their IDs was considered as "something that should be done and should not be too difficult" by Larry D. Roth, project supervisor at the Data Processing Center.

"So far as I can see it would just be a case of the Data Processing Center getting the information," he said. "If not all students had their blood typed, it would still be possible to put the information on the cards of those who did if it were available on an efficient basis, he added.

SIU Educator Named Officer Of Hcad Start

An SIU educator has been named regional training officer for Project Head Start operations in the lower half of Illinois and the southwest quarter of Indiana.

Rebecca E. Baker, associate professor of elementary education, said her work will be in Illinois counties from Springfield and Decatur south and in 35 counties of Indiana. It will be done under a grant of nearly $35,000 awarded Southern Illinois University by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

The SIU program, Miss Baker said, is involved with in-service training in community action projects that already have been granted funds. They are primarily year-round projects, she said, dealing with persons who work with children from three years old to school age. Her work will be with project directors.

Misa Baker, who is on special assignment from the College of Education, will spend 20 per cent of her time with the University under the arrangement.

Everybody Welcome - Questions After Talks
Privacy Deserves More Protection

By Robert Hutchins

Not long ago an advertisement appeared in the New York Herald Tribune featuring a device that enables more people to listen in on a phone conversation without the other party knowing it... A fun buy at $4.75."

This kind of Federal Communications Commission has now caused breeding equipment. Where there are laws or regulations prohibiting use of the police notoriety violate them. The Federal Communications Commission may have thought it not have the power to interfere with other agencies of government—but Congress and the Supreme Court should give somebody the power to do so.

In the second place, the FCC has proposed no adequate program to enforce its regulations. Evidence illegally obtained is inadequate to securing indictment and prosecution. But this rule applies only to the introduction of evidence into court. It does not except cases where evidence is illegally gathered; it does not, for example, except cases where evidence is found in a case illegally, a case founded on knowledge obtained by the methods of espionage, or otherwise.

The executive procedure and no effective penalties have been devised to bring offenders of the law to justice. This so-called "law enforcement officer," so often cited in the Defense Industry, if its program of enforcement will do little to diminish the extent of these offenses, the legislature must take up the task of privacy.

This so-called "law enforcement officer," so often cited in the Defense Industry, if its program of enforcement will do little to diminish the extent of these offenses, the legislature must take up the task of privacy.

For years, as you know, the Department of Justice has been subsidizing farmers to encourage them to grow tobacco in order to increase domestic supply. This was done in order to prevent the need for a foreign policy that might cost us lives and treasure in pursuit of our national objectives. The Supreme Court of the United States declared this program to be illegal.

The dilemma seemed in any case, illegal, a case founded on knowledge obtained by the methods of espionage, or otherwise.

In the third place, the field in which the FCC is moving is a small part of the whole, the entire communication is involved, with devices that emit radio waves or that use public communication systems. Naturally, these add up to a lot. There are celluloid microphones, tattoo pen microphones, throat microphones and earpiece connectors dangling from fishing lines. A microphone was patented the other day that is the size of an aspirin tablet.

The world is awash with tape recorders that are for all practical purposes useless until that can be started by the sound of the human voice. These tape recorders cannot be reached by the commission under its present definition of "power." Not even the most imaginative person can dream of enforcing the FCC regulations on these machines. This is the case.

One way there are tape recorders that are for all practical purposes useless until that can be started by the sound of the human voice. These tape recorders cannot be reached by the commission under its present definition of "power." Not even the most imaginative person can dream of enforcing the FCC regulations on these machines. This is the case.

For example, experiments are now being conducted that demonstrate the transmission of telephone communication in which the computers make all the decisions, and the evidence of the FCC is irrelevant. The tendency will be to develop a computerized record of action of every citizen's life.

The constitutional law of the United States is that the right to work, as far as the Connecticut birth control case, some among the justices, Supreme Court began to insist that privacy was protected by the Constitution. The justices held the statute unconstitutional, and the court could not be enforced without putting a policeman into every home.

This new attitude in the court and the new rule of the law, that it is the day, because we're only going to show how we work.

The Department says the film will be shown in Japan, Holland and Austria as a "promotion program to discourage the use of American tobacco sales" caused by the cancer scare in the United States. No one says what the rest of the program.

Actually, I've received another letter from the L.A. Times, Horace Putman, Joll, '05, which may further light this on the subject. The letter concerns something else.

"'I've been in Japan these past few months on loan to the United States government, service, old bean," he writes. "One of the problems and I don't mind telling you it's been pretty rough. I don't know if any of these kids' eyes light up, it shows positive value of sharing, doesn't it? But I must say, I do hope the Chief doesn't take too much of our nose even on the ashen detail. I recall the truth, the motto of us dedicated agents in the Marijuanaphile Branch appeals to the government, America, help the world go on to."

Cynicism Among Soviet Youths

By Ernest J. Simmons

Reprinted from The National Observer

They paid no attention to the huge, illuminated, white-lettered signs against red bunting that covered the sides of buildings with blown-up portraits of the leaders. And many a time, as at the end of the day on peace, the glories of communism, and achievements of the party. They were a peaceful populace, peace-loving, patiently waiting for their bread, butter, and the exchange of gifts.

They were sons and daughters of affluent parents repaid to fashionable restaurants. There, at tables reserved for them, they richly dressed, gazed into empty diners, drank copiously, and danced far into the night to jazz bands. Youngsters of less affluent parents crowded into the slightly larger apartment of one member of the group for co-operative entertainment, to which they were accustomed. They could in food and liquor. The poor found their fun in the streets, sometimes ending in belligerent antics.

The special attention paid to the large segment of the youth that is involved in higher education is some measure of the party’s deep concern for them as future leaders of the country and ideal models for New Soviet Men and Women. But the difficulty of directing effective propaganda at this group is the usual difficulty in trying to educate them, even along Marxist-Leninist lines, and still prevent them from using their intellects.

It is as hard to generalize about Soviet university youth as it is about those in the United States, which is perhaps a truism since the nature of higher education has not undergone much change in the Soviet Union; but that information on so many Soviet students is still limited to that which the government is willing to disseminate, and that which students are willing to reveal, is itself a fact of life.

Most university students, even though they may be less refractory in their reactions to contemporary environment, are less disposed to the kind of activity that can be described as protest. In the last analysis, the young usually come to the political positions accreted by their parents. The children of peasants and workers can achieve university status if they are willing to be unhappy, though their progress will not be made easier, as the Soviet regime as a whole, but with what they consider to be more or less determined by their parents, who are now often supported by the movement.

The special attention paid to the young is reflected in the way they are treated in the media, in the way they are treated in the country, in their reactions to contemporary environment.

The recent widespread revival of interest in Soviet writers of fiction today. They are considered the more extreme aspects of Western literature, in its scientific symbolism of the uncontrolled upsurge of enthusiasm for the New Left Movement, a favorite entertainment is group singing.

The recent widespread revival of interest in Soviet writers of fiction today. They are considered the more extreme aspects of Western literature, in its artistic and literary. The most vigorous expression of this sentiment is the creation of the Young Communist League university bulletin boards or the abbreviated mention of the most radical of American imperialists in Viet Nam, and insist on calling everything by its real name.

When the older hero of a recent novel gallantly tells the heroine how he would conquer her, that she is a woman before whose feet a man might throw a cloak in the mud, she tartly replies "Not now. Give me the first place in the mosque. We’ll throw you under your feet only the wrapper of a chocolate bar, please." This saying is typical of the present generation.

The attitude and activities of New Left students are more vigorously expressed in intellectual causes and in art and literature. They view with a fervid nostalgia for the 1920s, the only real revolutionary period in Soviet arts and literature, when there existed an uncontaminated upsurge of experimentation in artistic form and content. They maintain that this whole period is a response to demands of youths, although older liberal writers and editors have also supported the movement.

On the other hand, among the "angry young men" of a few years ago, the party’s condemnation of a widespread propaganda in the Soviet Union. Children of peasants and workers can achieve university status if they are willing to be unhappy, though their progress will not be made easier, as the Soviet regime as a whole, but with what they consider to be more or less determined by their parents, who are now often supported by the movement.

The students also praise certain stories of Tennyson, Kafka, Gogol, Gorky, and Gombrowicz, whom they deal with anti-heroes and anti-heroes frustrated by vicissitudes of Soviet life that seem to bear a sensible relation to their realities.

And in translation they gobbie up the tales of Sartre, probably because he appears to be sympathetic: with the psychological complexities of youth living in a society whose conditions of existence constantly challenge their own groupings for values.

The recent widespread revival of interest in Soviet writers of fiction today. They are considered the more extreme aspects of Western literature, in its artistic and literary. They have a taste for the highbrow, for the sophisticated, for the intellectual. They have a taste for the sophisticated, for the intellectual. They have a taste for the sophisticated, for the intellectual. They have a taste for the sophisticated, for the intellectual. They have a taste for the sophisticated, for the intellectual.

The traditional struggle between fathers and sons, which the party press wishfully scoffs at, seems to be particularly virulent in the Soviet Union and especially among youths of the New Left. There is perhaps more truth in fiction than in their portrayal in literature as anti-heroes whom party officials consider devoted to the type of the New Soviet Man stigmatized as losers, morally deprived, alienated youths consumed with phoney angst and given to self-communings on who they are and how they should live. They consider the party’s unwarranted interference in freedom of expression and in the right to live their lives as they wish to do so.

The party’s highly moral parental attitude, its aggravating posture that it always knows what is best, serves only to intensify the cynicism among young men and women of the New Left. Johnson to Seek Tax Boost If Prices Continue to Rise

day he will ask Congress for a tax increase if prices continue to rise.

He mentioned a possible hike of $5 billion "more or less" affecting both individual and corporation taxes.

Johnson said no one likes to seek a tax increase—"especially in an election year—but if we need to take ac­tion, we'll take it."

While emphasizing he had made no decision on the ques­tion, Johnson expressed this view: "Congress would rather have a modest tax increase of 5, 6 or 7 per cent of the tax bill, corporate and personal, than to see inflation and the value of the dollar go:
down."

While holding an impromptu news conference in the state dining room of the White House, Johnson said most of his advisers believe anti-inflation measures taken so far will not do the trick. He said they are talking about government controls, a federal spending cut of $5 billion to $10 billion, or a tax increase of "5 billion more or less."

Johnson said no one wants controls and be argued that any massive spending cut would be impossible.

The President said the Budget Bureau will make a survey next month of possible economies in government. After that, he said, "if prices are still going up, we will have to see if we have a tax bill."

The news conference devolved in the middle of a coffee and cake reception for

White House Fellows—young people chosen to work one year asides to top federal officials.

Johnson invited their ques­tions and swung into a regular news conference.

On other topics, Johnson said:

-The United States this year may ship to famine­ threatened India more wheat than it consumes at home.

-Communist China, not the United States, is blocking more open dealings between the two countries.

Rise of Living Costs Highest Since End of Korean Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government reported Tuesday the steepest February rise in living costs since the Korean war. The upswing was led by soaring food prices which in the case of meat climbed off the top of the Labor Department charts.

The rise of one-half of one per cent in the consumer price index for typical family living costs put the index at 111.6 meaning it took $111.6 last month to buy items that cost $10 in the 1957-59 period.

Meat prices went up another 2 per cent to 19 per cent above a year ago, edging off the top of the chart at 115.7 per cent of 1957-59 prices.

Pork alone was 37 per cent higher than a year ago.

Fresh vegetables soared 10.5 per cent, poultry 8 per cent and eggs nearly 4 per cent to lead the rise in food prices that made up 75 per cent of the February increase.

The rest of the rise was in housing, clothing, medical care and virtually all consumer services.

The only major item in the index that dropped was transportation, which edged down one-tenth of one per cent, largely because of lower auto prices.

The decline in transportation costs was less than usual for February.

tempts would be made in Congress Wednesday to re­

Brezhnev Sets Conditions for Fresh Amity

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev said Tuesday the Soviet Union wants better relations with the United States and Red China. But he set conditions both nations have rejected.

On the home front, Brezhnev told the opening session of the Soviet Communist party's 23rd congress that the name of the all-powerful party Presidium has been changed back to Politburo—the name used in Joseph V. Stalin's time.

Brezhnev said the Soviet Union is ready to develop relations with the United States if the United States abandons its war in Viet Nam.

He declared the Moscow-Peking dispute will be overcome eventually if China gives up many present policies. The dispute can be discussed either in Moscow or Peking, he said.

Brezhnev spoke for more than four hours to almost 5,000 delegates representing the party's 13,471,000 members and 1,000 guests from 86 other Communist and Marxist parties in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses.

His remarks on the United States and Viet Nam repeated comments he made last September about better relations with Washington being blocked by the war. The remarks Tuesday were milder than previous Soviet criticism of the U.S. role in Viet Nam.

May Draft Call Raised to 34,600

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department issued a call Tuesday for a draft of 34,600 men in May, the highest monthly quota since January.

All the May draftees will be assigned to the Army, the Pentagon said.

The April draft, also for the Army, totaled 21,700.

In January, a total of 32,280 men were summoned to service, 8,900 of them with the Marines.

In February, the quota dropped to 29,900, with 3,000 for the Marines.

The March quota originally was set at 32,900 but was cut to 22,400 when enlistments exceeded expectations.

Ecuadorian Junta Bows Out; Civilian to Head Government

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Ecuador's military junta was ousted by the armed forces, chiefs Tuesday and replaced by a provisional civilian president, economist Clemente Yerovi Induburo.

The change came swiftly after the military high command announced it was taking over to pick a president with the advice of political leaders.

The command said it fully supported Yerovi.

The junta's overthrow climaxd a wave of violence and anti-junta demonstrations. Yerovi, in the port city of Guayaquil when notified, accepted and appealed by nationwide radio for a return to calm.

Senate Hearings Begin On New Transportation Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate hearings on President Johnson's plan to bring all modes of U.S. transportation under a single new cabinet department began Tuesday with a warning that some forms of transport are in shocking decline.

That came from Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., sponsor of the bill, who spoke of a 50 percent decline since 1950 in railroad passenger miles and declared: "Our merchant marine is in dire need of improvement...it is to survive."

Magnuson was the first witness before the Senate Government Operations Committee on what he described as "a very major, complete piece of legislation."

He agreed with Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., who opened the hearing with the comment that "no one need expect us to report out this bill in half a dozen days."

The new department which Johnson proposed in a special message to Congress March 2 would weld together various independent agencies which now employ almost 100,000 persons with annual budgets that total $6 billion. The President's main focus was on the need for one agency to promote travel safety.

Eoin O'Mahony Is Visiting Professor

Eoin O'Mahony, well-known Irish barrister, journalist, commentator and artist, and contender for the presidency of Ireland, is at SIU this term as an artist-in-residence and visiting professor of journalism.

A leading expert in genealogy, he has been featured for years on Radio Éireann as a commentator on Irish families. While touring the United States last fall interviewing Irish-Americans for his program, he spent some time at SIU. Along with his work in the Department of Journalism, he will work with the staff of the Rare Books Room at Morris Library on its extensive Irish collection.

He is bidding for the presidency of Ireland because "I want to restore the idea that the president is above politics," he said. "If the president is in politics, he serves no purpose."

He also interested in bringing southern and northern Ireland back together. At present northern Ireland is under British rule while southern Ireland is an independent state.

He conceded that there is little chance for his nomination as a candidate for the presidency since "nominating procedures are set up to prevent northern Ireland county councils from nominating candidates."

By running for the presidency, O'Mahony said "I have demonstrated that the small man cannot be nominated. I know local council members are willing to vote for me to put me in the field, but they are forbidden to by party bosses in Dublin." Should O'Mahony be nominated he feels he could put up a "quite respectable show, since many people are tired of politics."

Valuable Teaching Experience

Coeds Apply Their Training By Teaching Clothing Class

Coeds in the School of Home Economics who plan to teach after graduation applied their training by helping to give demonstrations and teach clothing construction to a class of homemakers organized by the Jackson County Public Aid Department.

The 13 girls met, four or five each Monday night during winter term, with the 16 women enrolled in the class in the community room of the public housing project.

"Few of the women enrolled in the class are even sewed before," Mrs. Myrtle Juhlin, department case worker, said. "They are delighted to find they are learning a skill that will help them stretch the family clothing dollar."

All the women have children at home. One has seven; another has five of her own and four of her husband's young brothers and sisters to care for.

"Our students feel this is a valuable teaching experience for them," said Mrs. Vesta Morgan, supervisor of home economics student teaching. "It gives them an opportunity to work with adults, to work in a different environment than the school classroom, to work in a cooperative community program. "

"But I think primarily they volunteered because they wanted to use their training to help low-income families use the resources they have to better advantage."

Girls doing their student teaching work term, students who plan to specialize in extension service and several students from a class in home economics teaching methods took part in the program.

It is the workshop's goal to help each woman enrolled to complete one garment.

Mrs. Juhlin and Mrs. Morgan agree that the class members have shown keen interest in the project and are eager to learn. They are already asking for a second workshop to follow the current one.

"We have had to turn away others who wanted to join the class, because of lack of room and equipment," Mrs. Juhlin said. "We have only six reconditioned sewing machines and really need one for each class member."

The student volunteers have demonstrated and given supervision to the women in every phase of clothing construction—from selecting a pattern, cutting and use of a sewing machine, to fitting sleeves and collars, inserting zippers, making buttonholes and the final pressing.

7 SIU Chemists Attend Meeting

Five faculty members in the Department of Chemistry and two chemistry students are attending the annual convention of the American Chemical Society this week in Pittsburgh.

Faculty members are Roger E. Bayer, Melvin D. Joesten, Boris Musulin, Donald W. Slocum and James W. Neckers. Slocum will present a research paper.

Students are Savio C. Vigilimo, Chicago, and Scott W. Himmers Jr., Carbondale.

SIU's baseball team, back from a fast-paced Texas tour, is getting set for its home opener Saturday when the Salukis meet Memphis State in a doubleheader. The game is slated to start at 1 p.m. on the SIU diamond south of the Arena.

Headed by Coach Joe Lutz, the squad came back from the nine day, 13-game spring trip with a 3-8 record. This, however, may not indicate the real strength of the team. Errors proved costly, as the Salukis committed a total of 37 during the trip. One-run games also figured in, as Southern dropped five games by that margin.

The team hit a .223 clip overall, with three runners topping the .300 mark, Wayne Sramek, a left-handed junior from Chicago, led the pitching staff, hurling 13 innings without allowing an earned run. The first three games were one-run losses by the Salukis, as St. Edwards University and Sul Ross College won by 5-4 scores and Randolph Air Force Base took a 7-6 decision. Southern then dropped Pan-American College in 12 innings, following that with a shutout over Fort Sam Houston.

Four losses followed, as Randolph AFB, Trinity University, Sam Houston State and Baylor University took the Salukis, SIU. Then won over St. Mary's, dropped a 5-4 contest with Texas Lutheran, and ended the trip with a double win over Fort Sam Houston.

Committee to Study Visitation Rules

A student committee to study regulations concerning visitation in student housing will begin work next week.

George Paluch, student body president, said Tuesday he has sent letters asking students to serve on the committee. They will meet Monday morning, he said.

A bill passed winter quarter by the Campus Senate asked Paluch to appoint the committee of eight students. The committee said the group is to study the University rules towards a possible relaxation, Paluch said.

Hartman Has No Plans to Go, Is Charting SIU's Cage Future

By Bob Reincke

Basketball Coach Jack Hartman said Tuesday he has no plans to leave the Southern Illinois University campus. It has been rumored during the recent NCAA college division-I basketball tournament that Hartman had received attractive offers to coach elsewhere.

The rumors were probably bolstered shortly after the tournament when Hartman left on a recruiting tour.

"No, I wasn't looking for another job. Our school has a lot of potential for the future in basketball, especially if we can establish ourselves instead of being a middle-ground between being a small college and a major college," Hartman said.

The 39-year-old coach said it is hard to evaluate the season because the Salukis did not make it to the NCAA tournament since the end of the season.

"Most of the boys won't say anything definite this early. Our main interest is mostly to check on their ability and whether or not their grades are good enough to make it in college. After doing that, we will most likely try to keep in touch with them," he said.

While going through the NCAA, Hartman also attended the NCAA university finals and the national junior college tournament.

Hartman was particularly interested in Texas Western, the team that won the national championship by upsetting Kentucky in the championship game. He and the Miners' coach, Don Haskins, were college teammates while playing basketball at Oklahoma State.

It was announced Monday night at a banquet honoring the Salukis that Southern would be competing in a holiday tournament with Texas Western in the Sun Bowl Classic, will be held in El Paso, Texas.

Although Hartman may not have any plans now for leaving SIU, it is probable that he will move on in the near future if his present success continues.

In four years here, his teams have racked up over all-time records of 78-35, and have gone to the national finals three years. The only year Southern didn't make it was when the Salukis were beaten by eventual national champ Evangeline in the regional finals.

Before coming to Southern, Hartman led Coffeyville (Kan.) Junior College to the national championship with a record of 32-0 in 1962. Also that year, he was named "Junior College Coach of the Year."

Soccer Meeting Set for Sunday

Students interested in entering an intramural soccer tournament will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday in the East of the Arena. It is important to present at this meeting, according to Capt. Joe Lutz, as this will be the only head of intramural athletics, because the tournament or the tournament will be set.

A volleyball team had been recruited last week, and according to Capt. Lutz, the tournament will be held Dec. 29 and 30 at El Paso, Texas.

Ex-Saluki Standouts Help 700 Dropouts

There are nine former SIU athletic standouts working with the more than 700 trainees, mostly school dropouts, at the Breckinridge Job Corps Center near Morganfield, Ky.

Three of the athletes are connected with the center's sports and physical education program. The others are employed in administrative positions, such as processing new students and community relations.

Saluki sports fans will recognize the names of Seymour Bryson, Harold Baro, Paul Henry and Thurman Brooks, all former basketball players at Southern.

The track team is represented by former trackmen John Flamer, John Saunders and Al Pulliam. Two former gymnasts, Gene Salmon and Jerry Oettle, complete the roster.

Bryson, now coordinator of student processing and records at Breckinridge, was named the most valuable player during his senior year at SIU after compiling a career total of 1,355 points.

Henry coaches the junior varsity basketball team and is a physical education instructor. During the 1963-64 season he was Southern's second leading scorer.

Baro won three varsity letters in basketball and three more in track while at SIU. He now is a student counselor.

The fourth former cage star, Brooks, played in three NCAA tournaments for Southern and now is in charge of student loans.

Saunders, now head of the vocational skills program for students interested in becoming recreational aides, still holds two SIU records in track.

He set two conference records and nine school records at SIU.

Sub Landrum Likes Filling In For MVP Mays

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP—Don Landrum holds a unique position in baseball this season as substitute for the National League’s Most Valuable Player, Willie Mays.

The former Chicago Cub centerfielder, who came to the San Francisco Giants with pitcher Lindy McDaniel in a winter trade, sees many advantages to his current position.

"I knew the job they had in mind for me," Landrum says. "You know everybody likes to play regularly, but here I’m coming from a loser to a winner.

"And I’m going to be playing in my home town area.

Landrum was born in Santa Rosa, north of San Francisco, and lives in Pittsburgh, across the Bay.

"It’ll do anything as well as I can do it as long as I can stay with the club and be tickled to death they want me on this team," the 30-year-old outfielder declares.

Mays can’t play all 162 games at age 30 and didn’t last year when the Giants had Matty Alou and rookie Ken Henderson to fill in for him in center field when necessary.

Now Alou has been traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates and Henderson sent down to the Giants farm system for needed seasoning.
