Somit rejects post

Brandt next in line for president

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In a surprising turn of events Friday, it was announced that Albert Somit had first accepted, then rejected, the position of permanent SIU president.

Somit's rejection moves Warren W. Brandt into the likelihood as SIU's 11th fully-chaired president.

In an hour long press conference Friday morning, originally scheduled to announce Somit's appointment, Board of Trustees Chairman Ivan A. Elliot, Jr. explained the sequences that led to Somit's refusal to accept the Carbondale post.

Contract negotiations broke down Thursday evening after an apparent discrepancy in interpretation of a contingency salary clause was discovered. Elliot said the clause is known as a "shadow salary," which spells out the salary be broken contingency salary clause.

"I want to indicate that Mr. Elliott was being completely candid with us in his statement Friday morning," one believes the board was correct in resisting Mr. Somit's demand for extraordinarily high shadow salary.

"As it is, former administrators at SIU are paid far too much compared with their teaching colleagues, and I am encouraged from this that perhaps the board is on its way to correcting this unconscionable practice," the statement said.

The statement concluded that its remarks "should not be interpreted as a negative reaction" to Warren Brandt's subsequent candidacy for the SIU post.

After dictating the statement over the phone, Donow said Somit "may not have been all that eager to come here..."
WIDB advertising policy progresses

By Wes Smith

The proposal which could bring advertising to campus radio station WIDB got a boost Friday when representatives from SIU-C and SIU-E met and discussed problems.

C. Thomas Buseh, assistant dean of students at SIU-C and chairman of the ad hoc Media Advertising Policy Committee, which drafted the original proposal, said the meeting in Edwardsville was "well worthwhile."

"The Edwardsville people were exceedingly cooperative," Buseh said. "We have rewritten the proposal and it will now go back to our committee for a cursory review but I doubt if there will be any problems."

Busch said the revised proposal attempts to spell out a policy fit for the two campuses. The policy he said would require adherence to specified codes of standards and for a method of review in the event of a complaint.

Busch said his committee would probably be meeting early next week.

The committee's original proposal was deferred for further study by the board at their October 10 session.

SIU-E President John E. Rendleman and Trustee William Allen opposed the proposal. Rendleman didn't think it was applicable to SIU-E campus media and Allen said "the educational benefits" involved with allowing advertising on campus media.

Busch said the revised proposal would show the educational benefits of the medium.

Busch, Dean of Students Bruce Swinburne and William Allen, assistant university legal counsel, attended the meeting individually with representatives from SIU-E's news and the media administration.

Property licensing before council

The Carbondale City Council will vote Monday night on an ordinance for rental property licensing.

The proposed ordinance will require that landlords register their properties with the city's code enforcement department. Buildings will be subject to inspection prior to licensing, according to the ordinance.

Rental property should be licensed to protect tenants and the city's tax base and to prevent fire and blight, the ordinance states.

Audit reveals Rockefeller must pay $820,718 in additional income taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller disclosed Friday night he will owe to pay $820,718 in additional federal income taxes for the past five years as a result of audits by the Internal Revenue Service.

Rockefeller said in letters to the two congressional committees considering his nomination that the IRS had substantially reduced deductions he had taken for office and investment expenses and for charitable contributions.

The main IRS adjustments in tax totals Rockefeller had earlier supplied the Senate Rules and House Judiciary Committees, subject to final audits, were a reduction of $424,506 in deductions for office and investment expenses and a reduction of $400,000 in deductions for charitable contributions.

Rockefeller said that at the time he submitted the figures to the two committees, federal tax audits were in process for 1969, 1970 and 1971 and had not yet begun for 1972 and 1973.

"Through intensive work by the Internal Revenue Service," he said, "these audits have now been completed and have resulted in adjustments, as in the past."

The additional taxes includes $104,180 for 1970, a year in which he had previously not paid any federal income tax because of major shifts in income, the IRS said, which the former New York governor receives the bulk of his income.

Pipes move to new spot after 6 years

What were destined to become university landmarks are now serving a useful purpose 20 feet below the intersection of East Grand and Marion Streets.

For the past six years, 21 pipes, 86 inches in diameter have been decorating the landscape of a strip of land west of the Communications Building south parking lot, number four.

However, now one of the massive pipes are either buried under Grand Street or are awaiting placement to complete a utility system for SIU's planned multi-million dollar Recreation Center.

"The last pipe will be moved soon," according to D. Paul Project Engineer Jack Moore, and all the pipes are planned to be used in the formation of the utility system.

The pipes were salvaged from the construction of Life Science II to be used to complete a steam tunnel between Thompson Point and Communications Building.

The funds had never been obtained to start work on the steam tunnel during either of the administrations of Robert Leyer or David Derge so the pipes sat on the little strip of grass until this past week.

According to Moore, several requests were made by the Derge administration to move the pipes, but the costs proved to be prohibitive.

Electronics whiz hates math

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

At Brush Elementary School, there is a second, wavy-haired boy who hates math.

Electronics whiz could probably fit a number of fifth graders at the school. Evidence for the fact that there is only one blond, wavy-haired 11-year-old who can fix a radio, hi-fi speaker, or any of a number of electronic gadgets.

The interesting four-footer is Greg Rossel. When you tell him he said, he probably laugh at you.

"I've been learning about batteries and electricity since I was four or five," he said. Usually not sure if he would care.

When he "gets grown up," which he will probably be the age of 20, Greg plans to open an electronics repair shop but adds his prices "are gonna be pretty cheap."

With a huge grin, Greg said the best thing that happened in the form of payment for his services was when Barbara Seamon, his fourth-grade teacher, gave him a big hug for fixing a headset used in her classroom.

Barbara discovered his talents when she was told to throw away an old record player which her principal felt was beyond repair. Greg found it in the garbage and fixed it. Since then, teachers at Brush School come to him when they: have a problem with their electronic equipment.

The son of a chemist, Greg is the oldest of four boys at home. Greg said his four-year-old brother thinks of "neat!" that he is so handy with electronics, but added, "I don't brag about it."

"I found it attracting to look at the back of something and see all the little things. Televisions are pretty complicated, though," he said.

Greg is working on about ten projects, which he collects on "national junk days," one of his favorite days of the year.

"National junk day," Greg explained, occurs during the city's clean-up week. Most of the time, people throw out electrical stuff it's simple stuff, he said.

"I don't know. I'll probably know that next year," he answered.

Mexican farm town spruces up for Ford-Echeverria meeting

By Dave D'atra
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A three-year spending plan for $8.1 million in federal funds earmarked for Carbondale must be in Washington by March 1, 1975, or the city will lose the grant, a planning division official warned Thursday night.

Speaking at the first official meeting of the Citizens Community Development Steering Committee, Donald Monty said, "The first year's application has been done and submitted so far from March 1. If we don't meet the timetable, the $8 million becomes zero dollars."

The citizens committee will help prepare the spending plan. The city council approved last week a list of 30 citizens, including nine students, for three-year terms on the committee. A program development and budget unit comprised of Carbondale residents, Monty, Jane Hughes and Earl Ward, will serve as liaison between the committee and the city administration. Monty said.

Monty outlined a tentative timetable to the committee.

By Dec. 2 the committee must submit to the city council a list of community needs, Monty said, adding, "Getting from here to Dec. 2 has yet to be worked out."

He suggested that the committee hold two neighborhood meetings weekly.

By Jan. 20 the committee must submit to council a draft of the formal application. Monty said. The city council will then hold public hearings on the applications, he said. By March 1, 1975 the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) must have the plan on file.

If approved, the first $2.9 million of the $8.1 million block grant will start flowing into the city at the start of the 1975-76 fiscal year, according to stipulations of the Community Development Act of 1974.

Sources in Mexico City say the meetings will have no formal agenda, but among the topics likely to be discussed will be drug trafficking and U.S. citizens in Mexican jail.

Echeverria wants to increase Mexican sales to the United States to offset drug-trafficking trade balance.

He also would like some formal agreements with the United States to ensure that who cross the border illegally seeking work in the United States. Mexicans of drug-smuggling activities, he said.

"I'll probably know that next year," he answered.

"It's a tight timetable," Monty said.

"The most we can slip from the timetable is one week."

After funds are released the citizens committee will monitor and evaluate expenditures, Monty said. To keep the funding the committee must submit a revised three-year plan annually to HUD, he explained.

"To determine eligibility for funding, the citizens committee must elicit suggestions from the community, city of fiscal have said. The Rev. Mr. Charles Watkins, committee chairman, proposed five channels for citizen response.

Formal public hearings attended by committee members.

Smaller meetings with community groups.

weekly public meetings of the entire committee.

individual contacts between committee members and residents.

the mass media, through radio talk shows, newspapers and letters to editors.

The committee must "help people understand this is their money and they're going to be responsible" for it. Therefore, committee members should let it be known," Watkins said.

To identify needs the committee must first accept a definition of blight. Monty stated. "Blight includes substandard housing and deterioration hazardous to health and the environment, according to the broad explanation provided by HUD."

Though the present definition is deliberately loose, the committee may "tighten it up," Monty said.

Committee member Richard Haynes, 917 Marion St., said, "I'm kind of hung up with it, but I'm willing to live with it, as we have lived with other lesser."

"I'm sure we have benefited lower income people."

But before establishing sub-committees, the committee must adopt rules of procedure, Watkins said. Watkins appointed Hayes, Still student member Al Turner and Sharon Cahill, 316 Birch Lane, to a bylaws subcommittee.

Headed by Hayes, the subcommittee will report back to the parent group at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22, in the City Hall Courtroom, Watkins said.
Parents should show more school interest

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

At Thursday night’s Carbondale Community High School (CHHS) Board of Education meeting, the members discussed the proceedings at a public hearing regarding a referendum.

Approximately 75 people attended that meeting, and one board member commented that at least half of those people were either teachers or administrators.

The hearing was not spontaneous. Letters were sent to every parent and notices were published in the media about the hearing.

Of the nearly 1,460 students enrolled at CHHS, only about 36 parents showed they cared enough about what their children are and are not being taught. That’s pretty bad.

Board President Charles Hindersman commented at Thursday’s meeting that a few people, after they read accounts of the hearing in the newspaper, called him to offer their suggestions and comments.

Why weren’t those people at the hearing? Or if they honestly could not make it, what a preventing them from showing up at a board meeting?

 Granted, the CHHS meetings or any public meetings for that matter are seldom lively. They sometimes border on a cure for insomnia.

But how many people realize what thik of their tax dollar ($1.57 per $100 of assessed valuation) is paying for CHHS?

Do these people have any idea of the amount of money routed through each month? For example, an average of $706 is spent each month for telephone service, and that doesn’t include long distance charges.

Who elected the board members?

Are the voters concerned about the job they’re doing?

And what about the jobs the teachers and administrators are doing? At the aforementioned public hearing, those who did attend were informed that the CHHS board is hearing a series of presentations on the various curricula, and many expressed interest at the hearing.

But who was there Thursday night when department chairmen of the business and physical education departments told the board of their programs? Only the people directly involved were there.

But, then, maybe that’s the key word, “involved.” Some people in Carbondale and it seems to be the majority, are content to merely pay their taxes and once in a while go to the polls to elect a few board members. That’s the extent of their involvement.

Election day is not fun, one would think people would be curious as to how it is being spent.

Cumulative voting decreases competition

By Mary Whiter
Student Writer

Illinois should abolish the practice of cumulative voting because it tends to reduce competition for the Illinois House of Representatives.

Illinois law now gives the voter three votes for the three seats in each House district. Voters are allowed to split their votes in any way they desire. This means that one voter may give one candidate one, one and one-half or three votes. Giving one candidate three votes is known as plumping.

Each political party is allowed to determine the maximum amount of candidates it will run, but each party must run no fewer than two candidates.

John R. Commons in his book “Proportional Representation” lists three characteristics of cumulative voting in Illinois. First, representatives of third parties in Illinois do not, as a rule, secure elections. Second, votes are wasted whenever a popular candidate receives “plumpers” beyond the number necessary to win. Third, in order to avoid wasting votes, the party machine tries to regulate the resources of the party. The party machine determines how many candidates generally run in a race. A candidate who receives too many votes is dangerous to his party. If he receives too many votes, he may keep his fellow party member from being the opposition candidate.

In “Democratic Representation,” Robert Dixon, Jr., said that under cumulative voting, as successfully practiced in Illinois, the majority party normally cumulates its votes on one candidate. The almost universal result is that in each district the legislators are split two to one between the stronger and weaker parties, and each party thus has political life throughout the state.

In practice, cumulative voting tends to decrease party unity. Candidates attempt to win as many votes from the voter. Thus, in effect, candidates campaign against party members.

In practice, cumulative voting results in four candidates running for three seats. Voter choice would be increased if there were more candidates running, however. Consequently, in order to insure electing their candidates, party machines generally limit the candidates to two. Cumulative voting is favored by the strong party because it virtually assures winning two of the three seats.

Cumulative voting can be opposed by the public. The public is opposed to a constitutional amendment and call for the abolishment of cumulative voting. In order to have the question put on the ballot, the public needs signatures of 8 per cent of the voters voting in the last general election.

The question was put on the ballot in 1979 by the Committee for Legislative Reform, and was defeated in the November election. It would take enough signatures to put the question on the ballot.

In 1978, the people of Illinois will once again have a chance to eliminate the practice of cumulative voting. It should be abolished.

Elementary board approves adding five teacher's aids

By Mary Gabel
Student Writer

The hiring of teacher aides for elementary and junior high schools and reimbursement for part-time clerical work were items of controversy at Thursday night's Board of Education meeting.

About five aides to be assigned to the district were discussed and an all-day length discussion among board members, along with school superintendent Lawrence W. Martin, the Maricopa County Department of Education and Superintendents James Z. Drake, principal of Winkler Elementary School and Daily Murray, currently the only development teacher at Winkler School. They asked for a part-time additional reading instructor.

"The number of children is more than the reading teacher can handle," Smith said. According to estimations, 13 children presently are under the care of daily Murray because of problems with the kindergarten teacher.

Martin, when asked his opinion by Chairman Charles Hines, asked rhetorical questions to illustrate his opposition to "permissiveness in education."

"Why must the board be concerned? In the business of teaching and research instructors, why are childrenmallow? They can't read at their grade levels?" he booted of it. In his opinion, the double standard is used in "socioeconomic issues."

James O'Donnell, board member, said he had received a letter from a group of special instructors for children with learning disabilities but was doubtful the problems were serious. He questioned the issue of being able to grade levels and said he was not satisfied with the program. He was returned to be studied at the next meeting. This motion carried unanimously.

The board then retroactively approved the employment of Linda Green, a special education aide. Work days will vary from 8 to 10 per hour.

Other aids approved are for Daryl Weller, special education instructor at the junior high school. The aide will serve second semester to Linda Wilson and Amelia Jama, elementary school aides. They will also have aides. It was said aides are needed for "classroom manipulation, assessment, grading and student services, and finances.

Hodler also suggested that aides be assigned in the next meeting on the budget, saying the budget reductions could be accomplished without affecting the curriculum or creating apprehensions and uneasiness among dedicated staff.

The report also touched on taxes, saying the taxing in the district have been relatively stable. Hodler said by 1980, making possible continuing the present tax rate of $1.15 per $1,000 of assessable valuation.

Hodler said that $10,000 in budget reductions could be accomplished "without affecting the curriculum or creating apprehensions and uneasiness among dedicated staff." In order to accomplish the reduction, he suggested review of the computer utilization, managerial and administrative expenses, partially funded projects and utilization of part-time staff, staffing of study halls and extended time of teachers. Also needed to be reviewed are cafeteria costs, departmental budgets, feasibility of class consolidation when classes are small, and the reviewing of miscellaneous expenses.

Hodler pointed out "a few good years" left in the 1972 central school building and said the district should consider construction of new buildings "only in an emergency situation.

Hodler told the board a "deeply involved" exists for central facilities, refurbished restrooms facilities of the athletic field, instructional office space, facillitting of unique school, and improvements to storage, lounge, track and the girls gym facilities.

In other business, the board heard reports from department chairmen of the Board of Education, physical education departments, and from Shirley Miles, high school rehabilitation counselor.

The board also-

-tor American Black, principal, clarify the concept of open campus at the central high school saying students may leave the school grounds only during lunchtime without permission. Students with study halls first or eighth hours, may be excused during these hours.

-approved the purchase of typewriters for the business department of the IBM Corp.

Sexuality workshop planned

A Sexual Awareness Weekend Workshop sponsored by the Counseling Center and Human Sexuality Services will be held Oct. 25 and 26 at the Southern Illinois Mental Health Center, 604 E. College, Carbondale, University City), according to Donna Harris, group facilitator of the workshop.

Anyone may participate in the workshop which will begin 8 p.m. Friday and end midnight Saturday. Harris said. Participants should plan to be involved in the entire session and should bring sleeping bags and whatever else is needed for an overnight stay. Harris said. Participants are responsible for meals and must pay a $10 fee at the beginning of the session.

Participants will have the opportunity to explore and discuss attitudes and feelings toward sexuality as a dynamic life process, Harris said. The workshop will provide participants with a chance to not only become aware of the full scope of human sexual behavior, but also with their own sexuality, she said.

During the week-end sessions major attention will be given to other areas of sexuality, masturbation, homosexuality and heterosexual relationships. Sexually explicit audio tapes, films and film strips will be used throughout the workshop, Harris said.

Registration forms for the workshop are available at the Counseling Center, Building A, Washington Square and Human Sexuality Services, 900 S. Elizabeth. Registration will be accepted on a first-come-first-served basis.

Richmond reveals campaign income

By Pat Corson

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, disclosed his post primary campaign contributions of $6,290.35 and his expenses as $3,415.32 in Friday morning press conference.

Richmond, state house of representatives candidate from the 58th district, included his personal income and said: "Neither of my opponents have done such a thing to date."

"This has been a bad year to raise money," Richmond, presently Mur- physboro mayor, said.

He cited the campaign disclosure law as a reason for the slowness in raising campaign money.

"Many people don't want to see their names listed as contributors. Many Republicans said they wanted to contribute to my campaign but did not want their names disclosed," Richmond said.

Although the campaign financing law requires listing of disclosures over $100, Richmond stated he is disclosing amounts down to $10.

Referring to recent attacks made by one of his opponents, Gale Williams, R-Murphysboro, Richmond said his disclosure proved he was paying his share of real estate taxes. A Democrat-Jackson county tax review board unanimously agreed he was paying a fair share of taxes, he added.

"The State's Attorney, Howard Hoyl, had found no conflict of interest in the city of Murphysboro hiring my business, Aircraft Signs Inc. to do occasional sign work for the city," Richmond said.

His company originally was doing the work for the city at cost but was now performing the service free of charge, he added.

Other candidates for the three district seats are Vincent Birchler, D-Chester and Ralph Durr, R-Doig.

Richmond denied he was running a campaign for a third place seat against Williams with the other two candidates already "there." But he admitted Birchler and Durr were "doing" but while his race continued to heat up.

"The Democratic county chairman of Randolph County Birchler's home county I had my county chair- man he would be best if people in both counties voted one shot for the respective candidates," he said.

"Voting one shot means giving all three the cumulative strength to one candidate," he explained. "That way 112 receive the Jackson County vote and Birchler will get the Rand-olph county vote.

Peace in Mideast hinges on new Palestinian state

By The Associated Press

The Soviet Union and Egypt agreed Friday to support the creation of a Palestinian state as a requirement for Middle East peace. They called for seating the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), at the Geneva talks as a full participant.

The PLO is trying to set up an independent Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip, both occupied by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

The PLO, headed by Yasser Arafat, is the umbrella structure of major Palestinian guerrilla groups. It was invited to take part in the U.N. General Assembly's debates last month on the Palestinian question.

In a statement issued after a visit to Moscow by Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy, the official Soviet news agency Tass said: "The USSR and Egypt have come to an understanding that full and ultimate political settlement which must be accomplished within the framework of the Geneva conference with the aim of establishment of a just and lasting peace in the Middle East is possible only on condition of securing the legitimate rights of the Arab people of Palestine, including its right to creation of its national state."

The sides declare for independent participation of representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization on equal terms with its other participants at the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East, for the resumption of which at the earliest date they will work.

Russia and Egypt also lauded the U.N. decision to invite the PLO to take part in the General Assembly's debate as "international recognition of the political importance of the Palestinian problem"

SIU to host music meeting

Eight chapters of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, professional music fraternity, will attend the annual Fraternity Workshop Monday in Student Center Room C.

The workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and is hosted by the SIU chapter of the fraternity.

Keynote speakers will be Robert Howie, director of the SIU School of Music; Alan E. Adams, executive secretary of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, and Henry Charles, vice president.

A general business meeting will be held during the morning session. John B. Kovack, music education major, will be initiated into the fraternity.

In the afternoon 20 members of the fraternity will give recitals.

Sexuality Service will hold second discussion session

The second human sexuality and identity workshop sponsored by Human Sexuality Services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Newley Hall lobby, according to Robin Capkin of Human Sexuality Services.

The topic of discussion is sexual identity, the role of an individual, "Where do I fit in?" and "Where can I go to find these answers?"

The series of evening workshops are open to everyone and are held in small informal rape sessions, Capkin said.

An evening workshop on birth control is being planned for Wednesday at Thompson Hall, Capkin said. Anyone interested should call Human Sexuality Services at 432-5855 for the specific location, she said.

The awareness of one's self sexualiy and sexuality will be discussed Oct. 20 in the Jae Smith lobby, Capkin said.

The regular scheduled Tuesday evening rap sessions at Human Sexuality Services will begin in November, Capkin said.

The SIU Pollution Control Pilot Plant removes 80 per cent of the sulfur dioxide content of the 50,000 cubic feet per minute of emissions it receives from the SIU Steam Plant chimney. This is only 1.5 per cent of the 12 million cubic feet per minute that is the Steam Plant's stack.

As a result in Friday's Daily Egyptian incorrectly stated the Pilot Plant consistently clean 90 per cent of the sulfur dioxide emissions from the Steam Plant.

Police seek help in search for abductors of SIU coed

Carbondale police are asking for help from persons who might have seen an abduction of a female student on Oct. 13.

The woman was abducted and raped by three white males in a dark, American made, compact car, possibly a Ford.

Detective Kent Parrish said the girl was last seen near the intersection of Grand and Marion streets. He added the girl was "a large, white, late-model car, car, car, car, car, " quite a bit of chrome on it, stopped in a patch of grass."

Parrish believes the occupants of the vehicle are the abductors. He said if the people in the vehicle are the abductors they should contact the Carbondale Police Department. The police also released the following investigation section at 204-2212.

'People to People' helps train others

By Bruce Hackel

"People to People" means learning how to get to know each other. As is evident in the context of a new program designed by graduate students Nechama Lu-Levinson and Billy Levinson to help people develop social skills.

According to Levinson, "People to People" is a group of volunteers wishing to help train others in relating to each other in a relaxed atmosphere.

"People who do not have major emotional problems but suffer from loneliness or anxiety over meeting new friends should benefit from one program," Levinson said.

Levinson said they have already run the program once this past summer, and found the response to be really favorable. As a matter of fact, one person from the summer session was so enthused with the program that he is now a co-ordinator with the upcoming group.

According to Levinson, the program operates with a staff of about 10 volunteers, most of whom are graduate students in Psychology.

"We don't consider it a therapy program," said Levinson. "It's more of an exercise in relating to one another for mutual benefit."

A typical evening begins with a brief introduction to the program, followed by a series of small group meetings aimed at working on specific skills.

"Each small group consists of about eight people and two facilitators," Levinson said. "The group then works on some specific skills that the facilitators are trying to teach, how to meet people, what to say to someone when you first meet, how to handle rejection, and how to relax in an interpersonal situation."

"Role-play exercises are also often utilized," Levinson said.

The groups are then combined into one large one, and the participants are given the opportunity to try out what they've learned, he said.

"One exercise which has proven to be successful is an interpersonal problem-solving exercise," Levinson explained.

The people are placed in pairs and given a long list of things to find. Levinson explained. The pairing forces the people to interact with each other, as well as with outside people to contact and obtain the items on the list.

"We've found that participants learn to relax and communicate with one another as they pursue common goals," Levinson said.

"There exists a common misconception that people just naturally know how to strike up new relationship," Levinson said.

"But we have found that many people are unusually uncomfortable in this type of situation, and as a result sometimes fail to succeed in making new friends."

"Our primary goal with this program is simply to help people learn how to enter into relationships and maintain them," Levinson said.

"This applies to male-female relationships as well as to members of the same sex."

One woman who participated in the group over the summer remarked, "This is the first group I've been in where I didn't end up crying."

Levinson explained that the pairing exercise is free, completely voluntary, and "safe and enjoyable experience."

Often an individual can come to realize this and will not continue to attend because of the related spontaneous responses. On the other hand people will continue to come and feel they have progressed far enough to make further attendance unnecessary, Levinson said.

The program begins Monday, Oct. 21 at 5:30 p.m. and will continue for five consecutive weeks. Free refreshments accompany each meeting held at the EAI-N Coffee House, 435 S. Illinois.

Go-going coed says money, fun gives dancing appeal

By Good Skinner

"Why did I do it? The other girls looked like they were having fun. And it was a good way to make money. I guess it's mostly the money."

The speaker sat on a worn, black couch in a cubby hole of a room. She was clad in a blue jacket that covered a white bikini. On her right wrist rested a silver bracelet. Her music from the 60s and 70s blared into the cubby hole.

Lynn Ellis brushed blonde hair back from her forehead:

"I'm doing it for my job. It's disappointing for me," she said. She said she worried about saying the right thing.

"Lynn Ellis is a go-go dancer at the Peppermint Lounge, a Carbondale night spot that thrives on nostalgia. "Golden oldies" from the 50s and 60s are the main musical serving.

But the real attractions at the Peppermint Lounge are the girls, dressed in bikinis.

"This place was kind of novel. But people don't come here to reflect on the past. The music brings people into the Peppermint Lounge," Ellis said.

"The guys are always treating us as objects," she said. "All of the guys don't come in looking for a place, but it's what a lot of them are here for."

Even with all of the male attention, Ellis said she does not consider the job exploitation.

"People don't understand. It's just a job. It used to be fun, but now it's well. mechanical I guess," she said.

Ellis said she pays her $8 an hour and she dances several nights each week. She started dancing last April, shortly after the Peppermint Lounge opened.

Each night, she dances about two hours, which works out to about $5 an hour.

"It's the best job to have in the hair. It's better than being a waitress. They really get hassled a lot by the crowd. We are really protected," Ellis said.

Fairy tale, opera set in Shryock

A short choreographed opera and a fairy tale will be performed by the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater at 5 p.m. Sunday in Shryock Auditorium.

Dancing and singing will highlight "Birds of a Feather," described by its author Jean Berger as a "musical entertainment in one act." The opera theatre will also perform "Cinderella," an abridged English version of Hasseloff's opera "La Cenerentola." Mary Elanee Wallace, opera theatre director, adapted the original for touring with the "Opera on Wheels Program."

The performance is open to the public. Admission is free.

Hectic, busy lifestyles leave only Sundays for brooding

The Hunter Trials attract people from the entire Midwest, who said they couldn’t do anything better. From 25 to 30 people will ride in the formal hunt, depending upon the weather, Smith said.

The hunt will open at 8 a.m. with the “Bowing of the Hounds” by the priest. The public is invited.

The hunting association is one of the oldest in the Midwest.
The first formal hunt, recorded in the papers, was won by breeches, vests and black bowler.

The informal hunting season, Sept. 15-Oct. 15, leaves the time clothing and is designed for the hunter, Smith said.

Smith said after a rider has proven himself on a formal hunt, he receives the colors and buttons. The colors of the Southern Illinois association are bottle green velvet with a yellow color of the riding coat.

The buttons are silver for women, gold for men, with the hunt insignia.
Insignia has a foot in the center, an “S” on the left, “10” on top and a “1” on right. “1” is shaped like a huntsman, Smith said.

The association was started 16 years ago by Smith. In 1961, the Southern Illinois Davenport Hunt was named the champions of the Foxhounds Association as an established hunt.

Sixty bright-eyed riders and their dogs galloping through the brusk,

And that is the way it should be, the dream will come true for the Winners will receive a $100 cash award and will be featured as soloists with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in a special concert at Powell Symphony Hall. The competition is open to students of a recognized teacher, school or college.

Pianists and vocalists must live within a 130-mile radius of St. Louis.

21 stores will join in opening

A short ceremony will highlight the opening of the University Mall, located in Carbondale on Route 13. Oct. 30 at 9 a.m., Phil Favreau, mall manager said.

A band will escort persons waiting for the mall to open inside. Sears officials and representatives from the Hooker and Spiegel Co., the mall developer and owners, will deliver short speeches and declare the mall open, he said.

He said Walden Drugs is open, but will celebrate the opening with 21 other stores.

The stores that plan to open include: Walden Banks, Karlin’s Cards, Cloud Nine Gifts, Candles and Staff; The Record Bar; The Karmelkorn Shoppe, Baskin Robbins; General Nutrition, which will sell health foods and vitamins; The Orange Bowl; a small restaurant; Zane’s Jewelry; Dresdner Jewelry; So-Pro Fabrics; Regis Beauty Salon; Brooks Fashions; Walker’s Men’s Wear; Phillips Ladies Wear; Just Clips; Hechts Ladies Wear; The Fly; a men’s and women’s clothing store; and Sears.

Favreau said other stores have leased spaces, but will not open Oct. 30. Less than 20 per cent of the mall’s space is available to lease, he said.

“This is the first regional shopping center for Southern Illinois. We hope to provide complete shopping under one roof,” he said.

He said Sears will build a 14,000 sq. ft. automotive and service center which will repair appliances sold by Sears in the Southern Illinois region.

Most of the stores have out-of-town managers, but they will hire local employees, he said. Sears and Waigren’s have hired all of their help, but other stores are still hiring. The mall will employ about 900 persons, he said.

The mall’s regular hours will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 12 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

The special, DRINK, DRANK, DRUNK produced by public television with a grant from the 3M Company, also features Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna, E. G. Marshall and The Electric Company’s “Easy Reader.” Morgan Freeman, who, with Carol Burnett, will present music, skits, films, encounters and common-sense advice for those who live with alcoholics. How to help yourself first, then the alcoholic.

Students told they can change pot laws

By David Husberg
Daily Jeffersonian Staff Writer

Marijuana will be "decriminalized" within two years, R. Keith Stroup told a packed Student Center Auditorium audience. "You have it with your power to change the laws."

On campus with John Finlator, retired deputy director of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, Stroup said NORML is fighting war on narcotics.

Some people think it is immoral to smoke marijuana. It's that attitude we're fighting," Stroup said.

Stroup emphasized that NORML does not condone the use of marijuana, but does promote its legalization. Instead, he said, it seeks to reduce the penalty for use and possession from a criminal offense to a misdemeanor.

Stroup cited Oregon's new marijuana law as a "good step in that direction.

The penalty for use or possession of the drug in Oregon is a civil fine costing from five to 25 dollars, according to Stroup.

Stroup said "a lot of police support for decriminalization, exists and those law enforcement agents are getting used to charging the eight million people who say they're smokers.

Furthermore, Stroup said, we should take the user out of the criminal law. They should pay a fine, but not go to jail, and, "It's a foolish thing to do anyway, eliminating recreational drug use," Stroup said.

A non-profit lobbying organization, is trying to change the attitudes of legislators.

Dark to quit?

CHICAGO (AP) — Alvin Dark plans to resign as manager of the world champion Oakland A's, the happy Oakland A's, the SIU journalism graduate student Rod Huey, a former batboy under Charlie Finley at Kansas City, was one man happy with the Series’ outcome. (Photo by Chuck Fishman)

By Ron Satun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

One of Charlie Finley's former employees glad he won the World Series again.

That's right. Of course, Rod Huey served in a position from which even Finley doesn’t fire personnel: batboy.

Huey, an SIU journalism graduate student now, worked for Finley in 1964 when he operated his club in Kansas City—after getting the job in typical Finley manner—because Huey coached Dick Lefevre, and Huey explained in his still-obscure Southern accent, "Finley came back to Birmingham on this occasion to donate some money to a church he had attended as a boy.

"He was on a long-distance phone call at our home when I walked by. He turned around and asked me if I'd like to be his batboy for the summer.

"It was impulsive. He always was like that.

"Huey, of course accepted the invitation, becoming a second batboy for the team in a typical Finley gesture, Huey, rather than the first batboy, was tabbed to make the road trips to the nine other major league cities.

"I came in and sort of usurped this kid's job," Huey recalled. "There was a little competition for about a week, before things straightened out. I still feel guilty about not getting to travel.

"To say the then-17-year-old was treated well by Finley would be an understatement. Not only did Huey receive $10 a day road trip money, but he was treated like a regular coach or so to check that he had plenty of money. Huey did not receive a salary, but Finley paid his rent—in the same hotel where present A's Players Campy Campaneris, Dick Green and Catfish Hunter lived.

"The players really treated me well—and that's not a coper," Huey emphasized. "Catfish was just a really nice guy. He was just out of high school, so he was only a year older than me. We went to a lot of movies.

"Green, likewise, invited Huey to accompany him and a group of players to dinner several times. Camperinis, out of natural problems, was hard to talk with.

"He could hard-scrape at English at all back then," Huey recalled. "When he wanted to call 'mine' or 'his,' he always messed up a couple of times and the ball dropped in. What I really remember though, was hitting a home run his first time up."

"The only other present A's characters that Huey encountered were broadcasting Mandy Moore and Wes Bock, then pitcher, now pitching coach. But he met many other personalities whose only claims to fame now are as answers to trivia questions.

"Crazy Mac Drabowsky... speedy Jose Tartabull... powerful Rocky Colavito... second baseman Wayne Causeo... reliever John Wyant and Gentle Jim Gentile... just to mention a few. Eddie Lopat gave way as manager to Mel McGaha in midstream.

"I got a Christmas card from Causey the next year." Huey said. "Then some years later, the team came back to Birmingham for an exhibition game, and I talked to several of the guys. Two summers ago, I stopped at Kansas City and saw a few people I knew still working at the stadium.

"Whether or not the guys would know me now I don't know. I haven't seen some of them in eight years."

"Finley will remember him, though. Huey comes from the family whom Charlie once embarrassed by leaving its Texas motel. 'Charlie had a small yard—draped in his green-and-gold A's robes...'

Finley has worked his way up from the bottom. From batboy with the Birmingham A's to owner of a last place American League team to owner of a three-time world champion.

"He always said one of his dreams was to own a team. He did that." Huey said. "Then when he got one, he said he wanted to handpick a team and make them world champs. Back then, I didn't think he could do that."

"You have to admit, he's added a lot of color to baseball," Huey pointed out, though not making any pretenses to being a Finley fan. He's added a lot of color elsewhere, too—like Birmingham's Pleasant Side Baptist Church to which he returned to dedicate a bronze plaque put on the church wall that day, with words to the effect of 'Finley glad to be able to furnish the inside of this church, where as a child I always wanted to be a priest.'

Charlie Finley never could do anything without recognition.

"He's a real showman," Huey said. But who else can claim three straight World Series victories—aftet taking over a last place team?

Salukis find Missouri tough yuccaeds

The top match of the afternoon was between Ampon and Missouri's Jack Mitchell. The match lasted some 90 minutes more than the rest of the singles matches. Hecker defeated Mitchell in the victory, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3. Gorshick was ranked sixth among all juniors in the United States, according to a USTA poll.

In the other singles matches, Mel Briem defeated Returning Star Cleveland's Dick Mitchell defeated Fielding's Joe Hunsaker, 7-5, 7-4, 7-5. Brian Mitchell defeated 6-2, 4-6, 5-7, with a singles victory over Salukis, 6-2, 4-6, 5-7. Brian Mitchell defeated 6-2, 4-6, 5-7.

Veterans of the University's tennis team were successful, including Hecker, who beat Saluki Gary Staines, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5. Saluki Greg Vinblad lost a close match to Fielding's Brian Mitchell, 6-4, 6-3. The Salukis probably had the one vector for SIU in singles whipping Bob Walters, 6-4, 6-3.

In doubles competition, SIU came out on top winning two of three matches. James and Mabry teamed up to beat Frank Mitchell and Flack 7-6, 9-7, 7-5. Saluki Rick Flegg lost from behind to beat Saluki Gary Staines 2-4, 6-4, 7-5.

Valley Commissioner visits Salukis

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Finding open dates at city owned auditoriums is the biggest problem the Missouri Valley Conference is having working SIU into the 1975-76 basketball schedule, Mickey Holmes, MVC commissioner, said Friday.

"Several teams in our conference play their basketball games in municipal owned auditoriums," Holmes explained, "This is the biggest problem we are having in scheduling SIU basketball in 1975-76."

The commissioner added, "It is very possible that SIU will be playing for the basketball championship in 1977 but the scheduling should know in about three weeks."

Holmes said that after looking over the schedule options of the Valley, it is very probable that SIU will be playing Valley basketball in 1978.

SIU will compete for the Valley championship in tennis, baseball, track and field and football. Next year SIU's cross country and swim team will contest for the Valley crown.

Holmes talked about splitting the Valley into divisions. "We are pursuing the idea of a divisional set up," Holmes said. "Now that we have achieved our number one priority of having eight division one football teams, we can now take a long hard look at division play to determine when it could go into effect.

"Divisional play could cut some of the expenses of traveling and add extra revenue from playoffs."

After SIU became a member of the Valley in September, the schedule had circulated that the Valley would continue to expand in the near future, however Holmes did not commit himself.

"We are scheduling now with the idea that SIU is a full member of the conference for now," Holmes said. "We have moved our basketball conference affiliation toward the east because we were reaching a point where Louisville was left dangling from a geographic view."

Besides Louisville, Drake and Bradley, the rest of the Missouri Valley teams are in the Southwest portion of the United States.

The fighting A's will be back next year after their usual off-season troubles with the IRS, the wine owners who still have to do this winter. Mike Andrews is being run in the Spring." The Illinois paper would become a free agent. Gene Tenace wants to be traded and Kenny Holtzman has had a disappointing season.

With all of these internal problems, Mikey must still sign his world championship contracts for the 1975 season. That's not going to be an easy task because the A's are the best team in baseball and they want to be paid as such.

Saluki football has had a dynasty of its own in past years—a losing one. After four years of the season it was beginning to look like a real football season. SIU lost the first three games of the season, however it played well after that. They are a good team Health, Education and Welfare then Intercollegiates as we know them today will cease to exist," Holmes said. "I don't think that the act was to apply to those activities which are federally funded. "HEW went all the way out in left field to include intercollegiate athletics," Holmes said.

A committee is now going over protests that have been made concerning NIC championship for women, Holmes said. "This year women will be competing for conference honors in golf and tennis. We feel sure that these championships will expand in the future.

"I hope that we will achieve an athletic conference that will not be undervalued by sex," Holmes said.

After five games on the road, the Salukis will open the 1975 home football season Saturday at McAndrew Stadium. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

Traditionally, all Saluki football games have been played during the day to allow the renovation of McAndrew Stadium, football under the lights has been a nightmare.

"By discontinuing night football, we have saved $180,000," Butch Henry, SIU's sports information director remarked, "If we were to continue playing at night the lights would have to be set up behind the new seating and that would have cost a lot of money."

Henry added that the move to play during the day will make it easier for the Salukis to build their audience.

"I'm real excited about being home," remarked Saluki head coach Doug Weaver. "I think we'll be able to build our home crowd much faster than if we played at night." Weaver said.

He added that giving them a chance to see Weaver in action since he took over.

Weaver has named Fred McAlley as his starting quarterback, with Joe Lawes and Lawrence Boyd in the backfield. For the past four games, McAlley has gained over 100 total offensive yards. SIU, 14, is looking to get back on the winning track after losing to Temple last week.

"We had a great week of practice," Weaver said. "This team still has a lot of fight left in it."

The Huskies of Northern Illinois are 2-4 on the season, defeating Marshall last week in the last eight meetings.

Northern has been plagued by injuries thus far this year. "This is the worst injury situation I have ever had," Huskie coach Jim Ipolito remarked.

Ipolito will probably not name a starting lineup until game time. "We have a lot of players who are question marks," Ipolito remarked.

Northern leads the series, 19-11-1. Last year the series was resumed after an eleven-year lapse. SIU has won seven of the last eight meetings.

The Huskies defeated SIU 34-28 last week. Saluki fumble in the last minute killed an SIU comeback.

Northern Illinois is a member of the Midwest Conference. The Huskies joined the conference March 7, 1973, and are competing in seven of nine sports this year. Northern will not begin playing for the conference football title until the mid-to-late 1970's.
