Judicial hearings halt Rich's Board duties

By Debbi Raterman

Student trustee elect Matthew Rich has been ordered to "discontinue participation in all activities related to the Board of Trustees" by the special sub-student judicial board appointed to hear student trustee election complaints.

"Until otherwise advise until the judicial board makes a decision on the two charges pending against him," said Ms. Day.

"I've closed my office and locked the door," Rich said Monday afternoon. "I was not invited by the judicial board to discuss this. I don't know why they did it."

Judicial board chairperson Mary Day announced the decision Monday, but declined to comment. "The judicial board agreed we would not discuss anything we said in executive session," Ms. Day said.

Rich said he received a short letter Monday informing him of the judicial board's decision. "I did not receive a copy of their full statement," Rich said. "Now I'm not going to be able to keep up with all the work; it's going to impede the work."

The judicial board will hold a preliminary hearing and executive session this week and begin hearing the appeals Saturday. All hearings and executive sessions are closed, Ms. Day said, except for the final hearing. The judicial board expects to announce their decisions Feb. 1.

One appeal was submitted jointly by Daniel Scheuring and Ron Russer. They list 15 separate campaign violations they say were committed before Dec. 5 trustee election.

The other appeal was submitted by Larry Rafferty, who was declared ineligible in the election because of forgeries on his petition.

Rafferty claims the forgeries were made after he turned in a legal petition.

Walt returns for one more SIU ovation

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Walt Frazier strutted out to a standing, screaming ovation in the Arena during halftime of Monday's SIU-State basketball contest.

The flamboyant, 6-4 All-Star back-court gun was wearing the same warm-up he earned for leading the New York Knicks to their first National Basketball League championship in 1970.

But Frazier had gone that route before. In 1967 he sparked SIU to a National Invitational Tournament championship in New York with a four-game performance that earned him tournament Most Valuable Player honors.

Seven years later, Frazier traveled back to Carbondale to retire his old jersey. No. 55, an odd number for a guard. "That's just the number they gave me," Frazier told reporters at a pre-game conference. "At that time I would have taken any number."

Frazier said he never expected SIU to go to some lengths to honor him. "I know I must be very, very out of sync, I haven't eaten all day," he said, trying not to be serious. "I usually don't do that."

Frazier's experiences with the University were not always so pleasant. At a noon luncheon and again at the press conference, he talked about some harder times at SIU, which drove him to nearly transfer out, but which ended up transforming him into the synonym for defense he is now.

Frazier was a shooter as a freshman, averaging 23 points per game, but his firing hand was silenced during a year of fleeble time, 1965-66, in college basketball. Coach Jack Hartman allowed Frazier to practice with the team that season, but not until Frazier put him through a difficult drill.

"When I realized that Hartman was going to allow a junior varsity to decide to become the best defensive player, and made it my goal to disrupt the offense" Frazier said.

He said he got to be so good that one day Hartman told him to sit down and let his regular play.

Even though he carries a reputation now as a complete ballplayer, Frazier said he still takes the most pride in his defense.

"Anybody can score if they take enough shots," he contended, but emergencies.

Brown made permanent chairman of SIU System Council by Board

The Board of Trustees gave Chief of Buring Staff James Brown select administrative muscle Saturday, claiming his new position over the University presidents would encourage SIU system uniformly.

Brown was named permanent chairman of the SIU System Control Board Chairman Ivan Elliott Jr. said Brown's major duties would be to supervise "major external relationships," interpret Board policies for the administration and form task forces for the study of system policies and cooperation.

"This is not a step toward a 'super president'," said Trustee Harris Howe summarizing the board majority stance. Richard Haney, board representative of the Illinois superintendent of public instruction, said his lone dissenting vote in the 6-1 adoption of the change.

The two SIU campuses will remain under the operational control of Presidents David E. Derge and John Rendleman, Elliott said. Brown's role, of strengthening the system is needed to "get the most out of our educational dollar," Elliott said.

Board chief gets power over SIU system

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

There were numerous denials by the Board of Trustees Saturday that Chief of Staff James Brown's new power was in any way a "super presidency" of the SIU system.

"But rhetoric to the side, Brown came away from the meeting with explicit power over system affairs and policies. As permanent chairman of the SIU System Council, Brown is given broad control over making SIU, as a system of two schools, work.

The administrative shuffle worked Saturday does not detract from the power or functions of SIU's two presidents so much as expand Brown's duties. The committee report on the board-administration relationships said coordination of programs and policies between the board and the campuses is "vital.

The report indicated that maintaining the SIU system in league with other state school systems will be important in future fights for educational dollars from Springfield. "Unified Efforts and policy (between the two campuses) are essential to accomplish this," the report said.

Brown has a big job ahead of him. Preventing duplication of programs at SIU-C and SIU-E, supervising major relationships the University may have with outside agencies, interpreting policies and developing new ones are only surface indications of the man's job.

Carrying out a job like that needs the blessing of the Board of Trustees, and more than a modicum of leverage under the two presidents, David R. Derge and John Rendleman. Brown has been given both.

The most immediate example of this lies in item eight, under "Concerns" of the System Council:

"Contacts with individual legislators..." will ordinarily be handled in a reasonable manner by the individual approach. If the matter involves a system interest, it should be reported to the Chief of Board Staff. Rendleman's active interest in setting up the Edwardsville campus as a separate school is well known. His intentions are honorable, but do the system no good.

The operational and educational autonomy of the two campuses is retained by Derge and Rendleman, the other members on the System Council. But perhaps the most telling change from the former operating guidelines is the deletion of a phrase referring to "the sovereignty of the presidents in the operation of their respective Universities."

The presidents must now go through Brown with proposals for system statutes, bylaws, policies and procedures. And the presidents no longer answer only to the Board of Trustees. Rather than each president, having "his" University, the report now refers to "the" University each president administers.

Brown, as chief of board staff, is the man to see for interpretations and directions of board policy. Instead of approaching the board with those questions, each president must listen to Brown, or ask the board to rescind Brown's decision. Brown no longer merely warns the presidents when their actions may be "in contradiction to board policy."

The power given to the job Brown holds "does not create a president," Board Chairman Ivan Elliot Jr. told reporters Saturday.

Other trustees joined Elliot in emphasizing that Brown is not to be considered a system president.

But the guidelines adopted Saturday are at least a nominal move towards centralization, as Trustee Willis Moore said.

"The structure of the system is essentially sound, the report assumes. There are no indications of conflicts of interest among the board's members, either."

Leadership hopeful on new council

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Three campus constituency leaders said Monday they are hopeful the administrative changes made this weekend by the SIU Board of Trustees will work out.

Changes made by the board, in a five-month delayed report, give James Brown, Chief of Board staff the title of Chairman of the SIU System Council. Brown was also given the right, "In the exercise of operational and educational means, to supervise major external relationships and to interpret board policies," according to the report.

Joanne Thorpe, chairperson of the Faculty Senate, Mike Carr, student body president and Sharon Yearyn, executive secretary of Graduate Student Council (GSC) said their organizations will come up with evaluations of the changes near the end of the 94-95 trial period.

"We will be eager to be involved in submitting input to the board," Ms. Thorpe said. "We are entering this with an unprejudiced view and will deliberate on it as long as we can so that there will be every chance for a fair evaluation."

Ms. Thorpe said she thought the report of reorganization was vague because "it does not explicitly apply to the changes the system council would make."

"We'll just have to wait and see how decisions are made before we feel the changes," she said. "There's still the possibility the three personalities involved worked cooperatively in the decision-making process."

Carr said he hopes the Student Senate will go along with other constituency groups in.___recommending the external relationships."

"Personally, I don't think there has been a change," he said. "So far the structure hasn't been altered, the board just formalized something already in existence."

Ms. Yearyn said, "I hope it solves the problem of cooperating on common work that is important to the University's two campuses."

She said a committee would be set up at the Jan. 29 meeting of GSC to evaluate the report and come up with a recommendation for the board.

SII dinner honors Goffrey Hughes with first Citizenship of Year Award

Television in New York City, made the presentation.

Ms. Marmaduke, also the former director of television with the Southern Illinois University Sports Information office, said Hughes started "with the goal of establishing a new image for Southern Illinois with a skinny kid from Franklin County as leader."

"Goffrey and SII should take credit for industries in Southern Illinois ranging from simagin to washing machines to instant puddin in Pinckneyville and the 15,000 new jobs these and all the other new industries brought here," Ms. Marmaduke said.

During his acceptance speech, Hughes held up a gavel made for the SII office. He told the audience it was made from a piece of wood salvaged from the Old Main Building.

In his welcome, Carbondale Mayor Neil Nottnagel said, "(Mr.) Goffrey has been for SII the 290 people here who would have to eat out under the stars. This shows the impact of SII on us and the area."

Bill Bowley, new president of the SII student properties, said members of the regional development organization would be flying to Washington, D.C., Friday to hold a previously postponed meeting with a Department of Interior official. The meeting is to discuss the possibility of locating a coal gasification plant in Southern Illinois.

Hughes was also given the SII System Council's most prestigious award, the "Citizen of the Year Award."

the special meeting was called because further delay in making the administrative change would have undermined the further governance problems.

The motion was approved by committee members Elliott, William Allen and Victor Rouse. Said Brown is "responsible for the performance of these functions in accord with Board guidelines and to ensure the complete review of budgets and policy proposals. Brown is expected to handle "problems within the system."

The committee report is a revision of previously made guidelines adopted last March for the board, the staff board and the two presidents. Under the previous report, the board had the same problems and vagueness as to "what is directed and what is not directed."

In making new guidelines, Elliott said the committee discussed "every possible idea, from complete separation of the Universities to an overall statement like 'Morris.'" Following Brown, Derge and Rendeliman was brought up. Elliott told a press conference, but the committee felt restructuring was the "desirable answer."

The new guidelines retain the same members on the System Council: Brown, Derge and Rendeliman.

Council going to court to enforce ordinance

By Dan Haar

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council directed City Attorney John Womick to obtain a writ of mandamus from the circuit court in Jackson County requiring the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners to comply with a city ordinance transferring its administrative functions to the city manager.

Council action Monday night came after the board informed the council members that it intended to comply with state statutes governing the board and to reject any city ordinance which conflicts with the state statutes.

The ordinance, which amends the Illinois Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Act, was passed by the council Dec. 17 but did not become law until Sunday.

The board has insisted that the council does not have the authority to transfer the board's administrative functions to the city manager.

In a statement read by board chairman William Allen, the board said it believed that the ordinance involved an alteration in government which, according to state law, must be passed by a referendum.

The board said it would not comply with any ordinance that conflicted with the state statutes and therefore it rejected the city ordinance.

The ordinance would authorize the city manager to hire an employee of the police or fire departments from a list of three eligibles provided by the fire or police board. The city manager also has the power to discipline any firemen or policemen with the board holding a hearing into the causes of the disciplinary action.

The board's decision would stand pendently in legal action by the city manager or the person involved.

After the board's statement, Womick said the council could either seek a writ of mandamus from the courts requiring compliance with the ordinance or it could dismiss the board and appoint another one that would comply with the directions of the city council.

The writ of mandamus, Womick said during a break in the meeting, is similar to a civil suit in the court order forcing something to be done instead of ordering something stopped.

Womick said the court could either order the validity of the city ordinance or could rule on the right of the board to contest the ordinance.

The case will go to one of the four circuit judges in Jackson County. Womick said.

After the board left the meeting, Zimmerman emphasized that the board would comply only to the state fire and police board act.

Zimmerman said the board acted on the advice of an E. St. Louis attorney, H. Carl Rungen, who has been conferring with the council since November.

Zimmerman said the board would first have to formally hire an attorney and then plan what it will do. He added that he did not know what the board would do if the court should decide in favor of the city.

In other action, the council approved an ordinance amending the existing animal control ordinance. The ordinance requires that all dogs be properly restrained with a leash when off the premises of the owner.

The only change requested by the council was that the license fees be charged to $4 for neutered animals and $7 for unaltered animals.

Hastings said the present power structure is "neither effective, efficient and progressive formation."

Hastings' memo drew fire from Trustee Allen, who disagreed "rather strongly with interpretations Allen asked for, and was granted, space on the next board agenda to comment on Hastings over the memo."

After the short meeting, Derge said he agreed with Elliott that no basic changes were involved in the office of president. The board remained open to the intent to facilitate an "efficient, effective and progressive administration."

mediately after the meeting.

The report had been in the works since the board's September review of administrator performance. Questioned about the delay, Elliott said it was "not in the University's best interests, to-discuss the revisions in public."

He would not say whether the report had been discussed in the board's closed meetings since September.

The board decided on a 90-day trial period for the guidelines adopted Saturday. The board will then review the report.

Elliott said the board is "very serious" about gaining input on the changes from campus constituencies.

"If the constituency heads can come up with better alternatives, I think the board will listen to them," he said.

750 grand needed for books

To the Daily Egyptian:

The January 17, 1974, issue of the Egyptian carried a story which dealt with the IBRE funding recommendations for Morris Library for Fiscal Year 1975. The complexities of the budgetary process apparently led the writer, Ms. Titone, to the erroneous conclusion that the IBRE had recommended that $100,000 be added to the library's request for $750,000.

The IBRE did recommend that $100,000 be added to the Fiscal Year 1974 base which is presently $450,000 and which we hope to move up to $500,000 before the year ends.

This recommendation for a funding level of $500,000 will help, but it remains short of the $750,000 which Dean McCroddy feels is necessary to maintain the status of our library.

Road rules for bikes, too

To the Daily Egyptian:

In your column in the Daily Egyptian, January 16, 1974, Mr. Christiansen stated that the basic idea behind registration however, mainly to apprehend bike riders who break the rules and regulations of the road and who hit unaware pedestrians without even turning around to see if they have hurt someone. I have been hit by bicycle riders from behind. I have almost hit or been hit (while driving a car) by bicycle riders running stop signs, pulling out in front of me and blocking traffic on my way home. I talked to the Security Police and they said they could do nothing until all bicycle riders who break the rules of the road and the rules of common courtesy are apprehended and fined. I hope that the registration can accomplish this, and that bicycle riders will soon realize that they are not pedestrians and must obey traffic regulations.

I share your dream

To the Daily Egyptian:

I realize that many events which pass through an individual's life as he pursues his career or profession. Some solid feelings of pride and others extreme disappointment. The recent act of censure concerning President Derge has resulted in the latter with me and many individuals with whom I have contact. At a time when we at the University need to rally to each other's support and in a united front to the state board of Higher Education and to the Governor, a group has been actively dividing us and reducing the effectiveness of our position. Their censure is unfair, misdirected, and is aimed at an individual and the institution of the University. Illinois University-Carbondale, at hand. A man who has a dream for Southern, a dream for us.

Dr. Derge's efforts have been to create a University that would allow student, staff, faculty, and all concerned to be proud and faithful of the finest institution of which they are a part. He sought to reach for this goal in a climate extremely unfavorable to education on a national scale, and one that is continuing to be such.

In order to achieve such a challenge a man must have a strong belief in the values of education, and in the people who serve her. Such a man must be dedicated and must possess the backbone not to falter when the pressure is being applied. Well I see such a man in David B. Derge and I can only express my thanks to him for enhancing the value of my degree and by helping to establish our fine institution of the better universities in this Country. Dr. Derge I share your Dream and I say publicly, "thank you very much for your efforts."

Freedom to speak?

Freedom or speech is a right many college students take for granted, but it could cost Student Senator Diane Johnson her job as an S.U. student worker.

Ms. Johnson works in the vegetable section of Lentz Cafeteria at Thompson Point. An active member of the Young Socialist Alliance and the Alliance for Radical Students, Ms. Johnson is aware of the recent hardships endured by many union lettuce and grape pickers.

Naturally, as she stood shedding lettuce for $1.40 an hour in the steamy kitchens at Lentz, it bothered her that the hundreds of heads of lettuce this University buys each week are non-union or "scab" lettuce.

Ms. Johnson was overheard discussing the "scab" lettuce with one of her co-workers, and ordered to report to the Lentz food manager, Ruth Ellis.

"Ms. Ellis told me I would be fired if I continued to speak about the non-union lettuce," Ms. Johnson reported. "I told her I was sincerely interested in talking to someone who is buying, but she said if I did I would lose my job."

Ms. Johnson was told by another Lentz manager, Greg Bowden. "We don't have to listen to your political views."

No $$$ for Kol Shalom

To the Daily Egyptian:

I wrote an editorial at the end of last quarter concerning my opposition to the funding of Kol Shalom. I was rebutted in a subsequent editorial by Jiminy Mann, editor of Kol Shalom, and also received a letter from Rabbi Vinecourt supporting the views of Mr. Mann. As the issue has again come up in the Student Senate, I must clarify my stance.

Mr. Mann stated that student activity fees are unrelated to the salaries of S.U. faculty members, monies which I commented were in short supply. This is an obvious fact, but it is not the point. The point is that in these times of tight financial budgets, activity fees could be used much better than for a limited-appeal newspaper.

Mr. Mann states that many minority groups receive large amounts of money from fee allocations. However, previous funding for minority groups does not restrict other minority groups from receiving equal allocations. Funding Kol Shalom would not be fair in this respect. Kol Shalom is asking for $5,000, the largest amount ever requested. Can the Student Senate realistically be prepared to fund alternative newspapers, such as The Breeze, Catholic, Oriental, Arab, blind students, or any other minority with equally as much "culture" with a small "c"?

Rabbi Vinecourt's letter stated that Kol Shalom's membership is open to all, regardless of race, religion, creed or color. He later goes on to mention that "our editorial policy is determined by majority vote of our members". Does not Kol Shalom's predominantly Jewish membership leave little voice for others, Rabbi Vinecourt?

I cite Kol Shalom's "Events" column in the last issue. Except for an enlightening reminder as to when finals week would occur, the column consisted entirely of a Jewish social events calendar. Recently, it was stated that half of Kol Shalom's next issue would be devoted to non-Jewish news. Highly commendable for a "cultural journal open for membership to all."

Lastly, Mr. Mann related in his rebuttal that, because Jews are a minority, people in Southern Illinois need to know more about their culture. This is a university. Mr. Mann. We all need to know more about all cultures, as well as sciences, languages, philosophies, as well as any other intellectual pursuit. If one chooses to learn more about Jewish culture, Morris Library surely has a fine collection of books on the subject. Also, Kol Shalom could be sold to those interested, at a price that would defray the costs of producing it. I, for one, am not interested.

SU needs an alternative newspaper. Let's have one which tries to emphasize all cultures, races, religions, minorities, and individuals on a personal but equally shared basis.

The fiasco of the Vietnam war mistakes in the financial procedures, University Professor Charles Tenney believes the financial procedures, which is the first to feel the impact, and eventually the whole disadvantage, "Our institution has really not lost any grounds intellectually, as a result of the present kind of a world in which you are heading for a dead end, when you do not see a thing is the present kind of a world in which we live, the point in going to college in the ally age of technology is.

Professor Tenney feels the problem of "bigness" is likewise stated, "due to selfishness in high places, higher education seems to me that we are at the end of an era, the big living, the big cars, the big houses, the big cars, the big luxury, the big energy, the big power, the big money, the big influence, the big social status, the big social situation, square, but it can only do it success fully by not simply reacting to change but by anticip ating change and preparing for it far in advance. That's one of the real functions of research, of scholarship in general, I think.

He said that as a part of his determination to help in this preparation, he spearheaded the establish ment of "Resources For Tomorrow" program to act as a university-wide research bureau for policy plan ning. The agency, which came into being in 1975, the year that Professor Tenney retired as vice president, is charged with the responsibility of devising and disseminating new methods of long-range planning. It is not concerned with actual planning but only with making available the necessary information and data to departments and organizations engaged in planning.

It thus resembles the Washington-based "Research For The Future," a federal government agency made up of economists who spin out data on the economy by federal agencies responsible for economic planning and projection.

Professor Tenney said the idea for Resources For Tomorrow, which he calls "a labor of my inter ests," grew and matured while he was vice president. "As a senior official responsible for planning and evaluation," he explained, "I knew that our planning procedures were very inadequate, because they were unscientific. As an example, there was a baby boom around the 1940's, but we didn't have enough foresight to plan ahead to meet the potential enrollment that would result from that boom. Changes in the curriculum were not figured out ac curately to prepare for it. That was why I decided that something must be done to guard against such mistakes in the future."

There was a previous planning program at SIU, which was slightly different in that it engaged in direct planning. But its functions were distributed to various departments at the end of SIU President Delyte W. Morris's tenure in 1976. Professor Tenney works on Resources For Tomorrow with Dr. Loren B. Jung, who is director of Institutional Research and Studies. He said they plan to develop a book, or books, on the methodology of policy planning from their research. "We hope that our efforts will yield something really useful not only to SIU but also to other institutions, too," Professor Tenney said. Wherever the University is heading, Professor Tenney will continue to play a prominent role in leading it there, for he is one of the architects of the institution's new campus. Before the change from Southern Illinois Normal University to Southern Illinois University, he was among the senior officers who marshalled out strong evidence in support of the change-over. In July 1955, when the Governor's Trustees decided SIU should have a statement of objectives, Professor Tenney was a member of the three-man committee that drew up the statement which reads in part:

To exalt beauty in God, in nature, and in art; to teach people to love the best but to keep the human touch; to advance learning in all lines of truth wherein they may lead, showing how to think rather than what to think, assisting the powers of the mind in their self-development...." the University Professor has just knocked out a manuscript of a close-to-one-thousand-page book titled "The Discovery of America," to be published by the SIU Press this summer. "The book is about how people approach their activities," Professor Tenney explained. "I have tried to show that they can be real experts. This is a book on methodology, and I hope that it will be read by people in various disciplines." He says the 15-chapter book took him three years to write.

Scary reality found in ‘Sleeper’

By Michael Hawley
Student Writer

If Woody Allen isn’t writing history books, 200 years from now readers would be learning that Sleeper, which he always had to check the White House silverware before being served anywhere.

Now, Woodi Allen also would remind us of how you broke a law in the old days, your punishment would be to sit in front of a television set and watch Howard Cossell.

Fortunately or unfortunately, Woody Allen isn’t writing history books. However, he should be written into them as being one of America’s greatest writers, who has proved himself a comical craftsman in books, nightclub, off-Broadway and movies. If you don’t like Woody Allen you’ll hate his new movie. If you do like Woody Allen you’ll love his new movie. “Sleeper,” will most likely keep his streak intact.

In “Sleeper,” Allen stars as the most Miss America fellow of some of the Happy Carrot Health Food Store in Greenwich Village. After an unsuccessful peptic ulcer operation in 1975, Allen is wrapped in his foil, frozen and filmed for future reference.

In the year 2175 he is thawed out by a group of scientists who need his help in overthrowing the evil lord of the world. With the aid of a space age symptomame named Luna (Diane Keaton), Miles kidnaps the leader of the group to use him as a steamreader, and saves the world from tyranny.

As in any success story, all does not come easily to Miles. It was first necessary for him to escape near decapitation in a robot factory, confront a dangerous 10-foot banana peel, and ward off possible psychological addiction to the 21st century’s mechanical solution to sex hang-ups, the Orgasmator. Like most of Allen’s films, “Sleeper” is a one-man show which he has written, directed, starred in, and for which, for the first time, composed the musical score. Take his other films, Sleeper survives on Allen’s unique ability to stick un- liners and humorous situations almost anywhere at any plot and usually get away with it.

Two of Allen’s best comic devices, gross exaggeration and smug understatement, are frequently used in “Sleeper.” In one dinner scene after Miles has burglarized a colonial vegetable garden, Luna asks him to pass the celery. He hurts her a stalk that resembles a free telephone pole. In another scene which is reinterprated “I Love Lucy” in its approach, Allen beats a giant instant pudding to death with a broom.

At 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel, Violinist Mel Miles Monroe will give a recital consisting of Nardini’s Concerto in F Minor and Beethoven’s Sonata Op. 12 No. 1.

Both recitals are free of charge and open to the public.

Music solos slated this week

Pianist Kay Pace and violinst Carol Sanders will give solo recitals this week, sponsored by the School of Music.

Ms. Pace returns to SJU as a great artist and alumna. She was a student of Steven Barwick while working on her degree. Ms. Pace is currently on the School of Music faculty.

Ms. Sanders will give her first recital in Shryock Auditorium features a program consisting of Nardini’s “Soviet with Variations.” Haydn’s “Fantasia in C Major” and Rimskii-Korsakov’s “Sonata in C Major” and Hindemith’s “Sonata I,” “Der Mann.”

The second half of her program features Violin Concerto in G minor by Tchaikovsky.

After her SU recital, Ms. Pace will perform the same program on Jan. 27 in St. Louis, for which she recently was a competitive sponsored by the St. Louis Arts Presentation Society. Ms. Pace is on the music faculty of Alabama State University in Montgomery.

Calcutta lecture by Indian native set for Tuesday

“Calcutta: The Story of a City” a lecture sponsored by the Asian Studies Association, will be presented at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the Student Union Ballroom.

Walker and B. Mike Duesenberg, program director of the Association, said Monday.

He said the lecture will be given by Arpit Gupta, assistant professor in the Department of Geography, who is a native of Calcutta.

“Dr. Gupta is one of the few professors at SJU that is able to give any type of academically rewarding lecture on India,” Duesenberg said.

Gupta said his lecture will discuss how large parts cities evolved in South and Southeast Asia and how they have developed in the last 200 years.

He said he will use Calcutta as an example and will provide facts about the city.

The lecture will also include the showing of maps and slides. Gupta has

3 more J-Board members needed for Senate hearing

Complaints about the Dec. 5 Student Senate election cannot be heard until three new Campus Judicial Board members are found. Student Body President Mike Carr said Monday.

Carr said three members of the original six-student undergraduate board are not available to hear the complaints of class con-

After three new members are found, they must be approved by the Student Senate and sworn in by Carr.

His understudies usually take the form of scholarly remarks which Allen dishes out matter-of-factly. After an argument between Miles and Luna, he tells her, “You know, you remind me of a girl I knew in Greenwich Village. She was a Trotskyite who became a Jesus freak, and was then arrested for selling propagandistic connect-the-dot books.”

The only area where Allen can be criticized is in his occasional use of material that we have seen too many times before. So one is expected to be original all of the time, at least in “Sleeper.” Allen again reuses material from his previous films.

Even though Sleeper isn’t Allen’s best picture, some of his future predictions contain a scary reality, and maybe that’s why we laugh so hard at it. We can only hope that he is a better film director than his is a clarionvant, & it will be goodby in-

Second coming of 'State' pruned

By Tom Plan Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The return engagement of SIU student play "The Element" last weekend demonstrated Bateeman's mastery of one of the most difficult and integral necessities - the rewrite.

When the play first opened in November, although displaying solid quality, it was obviously flawed. Bateeman has not only rewritten that engagement as the "out of town" opening of the play.

In first production, while performed with great tragic-comic moments, the play was overwritten and sometimes resembled an afternoon tuba soap. In the return engagement Bateeman has obviously pruned his script, but the prunings is a subtle as the Japanese art of Ikebana - he has cut so carefully that it retains the clarity of the original script while remaining minute in size.

The major improvement in the script is the elimination of some inherent traits that seemed to cheapen the validity of the play's theme.

The plot involves a male and female homosexual couple which have moved into two married student housing units under the guise of relatives.

Complicating matters are the relationship of one woman who discovers the truth in a Neil Simonish scene. A former student of one of the men who is still secretly, his lover, returns which leads to the temporary end of a crumbling relationship.

The characters of the mother (played brilliantly by Katie Hollis) and the young student (Terrance Thomas) have improved greatly in the new production.

Ms. Hollis' character, as did those of the male's boyfriend and the pregnant neighbor of the two playwrights, in the previous production to be as stereotypes as homosexuals have been in past roles written by straights.

Alan, lover of Paul, his former high school biology teacher, was a sophisticated demagogue in the original writing, and the viewer wanted to consider the play as a serious commentary instead of a piece of Gay Liberation propaganda ignored as such.

This time the character of Alan has been reworked to show his frailties as well as his strengths which include classical Greek quality of knowing he doesn't know all the answers.

Many who saw the play the first go round felt it could have been ended without regret at the close of Act Two, when the women's conflict is resolved. This of course would have left the problems of the men unresolved, but the length and antacticmic aura of Act Three seemed like so much baggage in its original form.

In the rewrite Bateeman does a splendid job of emphasizing an additional theme besides the basic one of the lies in Gay lives, namely the fear of growing old alone.

NAACP chapter invites candidates

By LaVern Ollie

The local chapter of the NAACP discussed plans Sunday to invite candidates for county offices to appear on a program at the next meeting.

Candidates will be asked to state their platforms and to answer questions from the audience. Elbert Simon, president of NAACP, said.

Simon said this direct personal contact with the candidates, might help voters to select the best candidates.

"We must try to do our best in utilizing the one weapon we have, the vote," Simon said.

He added that he did not know which candidates were to attend, but hoped to get some to speak at the next meeting.

The group voted to discuss possible discriminatory rates being charged to residents of the northeast side, by Central Indiana Public Service Company (CIPS) at the Feb. 3 meeting.

Letters will be sent to residents of this area urging them to attend the meeting.

Several members said many residents had complained to CIPS about high bills, but the company had nothing to investigate on the matter.

Simon announced a regional NAACP meeting will be held Saturday, and a state meeting on Sunday, both in Chicago. He expressed his desire for anyone who could possibly attend to go and learn more about the purposes and functions of the NAACP.

The NAACP chapter in Indianapolis was formed last Nov. 25, Simon said. It is not the first chapter to form here, though.

"NAACP started an up and down organization for some time in Indianapolis, but in picking it up this time we would like to see it stay up," Simon said.

The organization is still in its planning stage, he said. Committee members said the backbone of the organization, need more members before beginning their work, Simon said.

"I'm hoping that we will get some response from the college community, not just the students but from professors and administration too," Simon said.

Presently, the chapter has about 15 persons attended the meeting Sunday at the Jackson County Housing Authority building.

"It's as simple as that. The main thing I do is find a classroom," said.

He said he personally is interested in prisons so he plans to teach a course about American prisons for Free School.

"I'm also interested in teaching a course or wanting a list of the courses available to Donath at the Student Government Office, Student Center, 3rd floor, 305-333.

Donath said that Free School has some definite advantages over regular classrooms instruction. "In Free School classes, people can learn exactly what they want to learn," he said. "There's no pressure for grades and no requirements. If a person sees a class he likes he can take it.

The attendance in Free School fluctuates a lot depending on the courses offered, Donath said.

"This year I think the attendance has been good. The classes are more diversified and it seems to be growing," he said.

He said his main problem hasn't been getting students to attend the classes but getting instructors to teach the classes that students show an interest in.

"One of the biggest demands in classes is for ceramics and pottery," Donath said. "We're also trying to get a fire and ice course, but we can't get anyone to teach them."

He said another problem is getting students know about the classes. "I've had students come in and find out about them. They didn't know about it," Donath said. "Some of them really got excited and they say something like 'We've needed something like this for a long time.'"

And I always tell them, "It's been around."

He said his main method of advertising is placing ads in the DE, distributing bulletins and urging Free School instructors and students to tell others about the courses.

He said Free School is financed by student's activity fees. It is not a radical and is non-political he said.

"Free School is totally neutral," he said. "Anybody can teach anything they want."

Donath encourages students to attend Free School as he thinks it broadens their range of thinking. "I just think that if someone wants to learn more about the world they live in, they should attend Free School," Donath said.

Floating French franc to add world currency union.

The floating French franc is vital to set back plans for a united Europe for reforms of the world monetary system and for resolving the energy crisis.

One of the first casualties might be the meeting President Nixon has called for Washington, Feb. 1 to discuss how oil consuming nations can cooperate against the Arab price squeeze.

With the British, the Italians, the Japanese and now the French all floating their currencies separately, there seems little chance of an agreed line on how to handle higher oil prices.

In Europe, the French action is sure to set back Common Market plans for an economic union by 1980, a key step toward possible political union. In the meantime, there is the distinct possibility that the community's joint agricultural policy could fall apart.

For France, however, the most severe consequence could well be the setback it implies for reform of an international monetary system that finances international trade. The choice is stark. Either nations cooperate in working out a way for stable currencies and steady prices in world trade, or they go it alone.

With the kind of competitive devaluations and trade restrictions that befell much of the depression years of the 1930s...

Countries tend to choose the same courses disregarding their interests. The United States, for example, began to see the dollar fall in recent years, despite the shock waves this sent through the international monetary system.

...Dear Mr. Gams: This sounds like a rip-off to me. I am asking Dean Herbert Fink to investigate the matter so we can be assured that in our capacity we shall not inadvertently violate the rights of a student and ignore the regulation procedures.

Dear President Dorje:

As a student I am concerned about locating employment for the summer and eventually after graduation. However, it is a little difficult for most students to know where to start looking. Is there any place on campus that can help students in seeking a suitable job? Dale Noeld-paul

Dear Miss Niederstad:
The Career Planning and Placement Office is available for all students and alumni to answer questions and provide assistance.

It is essentially a program that has consolidated numerous services for the purpose of providing help in the area of personal and professional development in this program to assistance in job placement, vocational occupational counseling and general educational development styling.

Throughout this program current students are provided with assistance in exploring academic program alternatives, which supports efforts in retaining our students. This function will assist students in self-assessment of employability skills, self-conceptualized placements of individuals in sundry areas, and career information.

This program serves a two-fold service to the University. First, it aids current students in finding a meaningful place within SUI with the intent of receiving a quality and personalized education. Secondly, it provides our alumni with the opportunity to achieve desirable employment.

Graduate Student, Computer Science

Dear Mr. Frank:

As a student in your new area, the Vehicle Policy at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale has been drastically revised. As all major changes, options were mixed as to how effective such a move was, but the fact remains that the vehicle fleet (as it has been reduced by 100,000 and further reductions will be made between now and July 1974) will be maintained.

It is estimated that $40,000 will be saved because of this new vehicle policy during the first year. The savings has been shifted from staff unto one in higher priority areas.

The vehicle fleet is no longer available for utilization by faculty and students in meeting university needs. Most of the vehicles now will be used in the various Carbondale limits, e.g., Chelsea, Marion, and other off campus needs.

I agree that bicycling is indeed a healthy, economical and pleasant way to travel and encourage this mode of travel whenever it is practical.

Dear President Dorje:

I do not believe that all faculty on campus are invited to your office every two or three times an Open House Coffee. This seems like a good form of communication that should be expanded. How about inviting students for an Open House Coffee sometime?

Karen Cline
Senior, Speech Pathology and Audiology

Dear Ms. Clabaron:

Starting in the fall of 1773 my office initiated an Open House Coffee for all interested faculty on campus. The faculty were invited to drop by and visit. My staff and I have throughly enjoyed these visits. From these get-togethers I have gleaned an immediate number of good ideas and constructive comments.

Recognizing that students may also enjoy such an informal get-together we are planning an Open House Coffee for students during the coming weeks I will announce the date and time for this event in this weekly column. Thank you for sharing a good idea.

Dear Mr. Bath,

First, all individuals registering their bikes receive a copy of the Southern Illinois University bicycle regulations, the first step in deterring the many problems pertaining to bicycling and the Bicycle Rules of the Road. These pamphlets should show every bicyclist the opportunity of being aware of all guidelines he or she must follow.

Secondly, the registration fee of $1.00 charged for each bike placed in the University Bicycle Revenue Fund.

The real must be paid for as the parking lot is located in the University Bicycle Revenue Fund.

I also hear that many pedestrians will become frustrated by ignorance and inconsiderate bicyclists; in what form will this happen if they have available to them? Please answer my questions in terms of the now and immediate future of the present school term. Your complete and correct reply will be greatly appreciated by all students.

Steven Budge

If you have any questions, ideas, suggestions or problems write to me. I will be happy to respond.

Answering Letters with David R. George

Dear President Dorje:

I wish to express concerns every student that plans to take any class that is offered by the Radio and Television Department. It seems that a departmental role exists where if a student does not attend the first week of classes, the remainder of the semester is without any previous notice that this will occur.

My personal problem in this school started Wednesday night the second and I first attended classes on Monday. January 14th. As part of one two-hour section of Dr. Dyberg's class on Thursday and Friday, Dr. Delbaught counted these two days as the first week of class and threw out eleven students, one-sixth of his entire class. He said that all these people in class were there out of a slight idea he made his own enrollment sheet consisting of the people who are registered in the class, but simply of the students that were enrolled in the class.

In my opinion, there were only a few question marks I would like you to answer. If this is the case, what is the purpose of the whole registration process if it doesn't guarantee you a place in the class? Is it a valid class schedule a receipt for your classes? Does Dyberg have the right to throw out one-sixth of his class for missing the first two hours? Let's not walk a walking Woody Hall.

Nonunion produce topic of discussion

By Leah Yates
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student Sen. Diane Johnson, who sponsored Lentz Cafeteria's policy of buying nonunion lettuce and grapes last Tuesday, said Monday she had been fired from her job in the vegetable department at Lentz.

Ms. Johnson said she had been fired after working for two weeks at Lentz and has scheduled a press conference for noon Wednesday to explain the situation.

"I have also filed a grievance," she said.

When contacted at home Monday afternoon after the firing, Ms. Ruth Ellis, a Lentz supervisor said, "I refuse to discuss business, I'm at home.

A student worker at Poyrall Office said Monday that no termination notice has been received for Ms. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson introduced a bill to the Student Senate urging the University to stop buying nonunion-harvested grapes and lettuce.

"No action will be taken on the bill until the Senate's Wednesday night meeting," Ms. Johnson said.

George Toberman, director of campus security, said, "State law forbids the University from discriminating between union or nonunion-harvested produce when awarding contracts. We are required to take the lowest bid meeting specifications.

James Cook, purchasing representative in charge of food buying, said earlier Monday he could not release information on the subject. He said he had been told to refer all calls to Toberman. When asked if he had received many calls about the lettuce, he said, "No, I have not.

Mr. Johnson said she was not familiar with the state food purchasing policy but, "It is something to be looked into.

Ms. Johnson said, "I am interested in seeing that the farm worker has a decent chance. It is much more important to consider the right of a farm, and just union.

She said she had not been associated with any farm workers but she had read "a fair amount" on the subject. "I have seen farm workers up in Champaign," she said.

Coed describes rape assailant, police on lookout

Jackson County Sheriff's Police are looking for the man to this drawing in connection with the rape of an S.U. coed last Tuesday night. The coed described the man as a white male, age 20-25, 5 feet 6, 120 pounds with dark brown, straight hair and wearing a dark blue jacket, black pants and a plaid shirt.

"The man was screaming," she said.

He had been served in school, she said.

The incident took place between 2 and 6 p.m. near a "small college town" on the outskirts of Carbondale and Carbondale.

"I don't know what he looks like," she said.

James Siebert, assistant superintendent of Unity Point, said students will give speeches, exhibits, and demonstrations about their countries and their dress.

Countries represented will be, Argentina, two African nations, Brazil, Canada, India, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Korea, Mexico, Morocco, one South American nation, the United Kingdom, three or four European nations, and Switzerland.

Saturday will be "Country Day," Siebert said.

He said students from Friday through Sunday will participate in International Week. He said students chosen the day they wish to represent and study the customs, dress, and other aspects of the countries.

Rosemary Troester, bookkeeper at the school, said each teacher devises a program for her class.

Sibley said most classes have been working on the project since the first of the year, and that activities have been going on all week.

Meals from each country have been served in the school's cafeteria and students have been wearing the dress of their countries, Siebert said.

Unity Point School has been housed in International Week activities for the past three years, Siebert said.

"We have the students give speeches, exhibits, and demonstrations about their countries and their dress," Siebert said.

"Anyone with an interest in foreign lands," is invited to attend, Siebert said.

Work-credit available for departments

Assistant Provost John Baker and the Regional Committee for the student-work-credit program decided Monday to have guidelines for the Program available to all departments within the next month. Baker said the group discussed different kinds of guidelines and looked at examples of working experiences gained by students before entering SIU.

The departments have been asking for guidelines to implement the programs within their departments. Each department has a different situation, he said.

"We will probably send the guidelines to the deans of each area to distribute to each chairman," Baker said.

Campus rumors force Rich to reveal epilepsy

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student-trustee-elect Matthew Rich said Monday he is an epileptic but has not had an attack "of any kind for about five years."

Rich said he wanted to make the public announcement because of the many rumors being spread around campus that he had an epileptic seizure and fabricated the story of his being stabbed on Jan. 13.

"The last time I had an epileptic attack of any kind was about five years ago," he said. "It's nobody's damned business but so many people have been asking about it that I wanted the rumors all over campus to be settled once and for all.

He described the magnitude of his illness as being "the very, very, very lightest form of epilepsy." When Rich used to get attacks, he said, they began with a bad headache, followed by a nauseous feeling and a desire to sleep for awhile.

"I'm not ashamed of it in any way--nobody should be," he said.

Rich speculated that the rumors began when someone apparently ripped his personal file from the Student Life Office. He said Kris Haedrich, ombudsperson, advised him to make a public announcement so the rumor would be suppressed.

"I'm extremely outraged that the people spreading rumors had such free access to my personal files," he said.

Rich said he and two of his friends have been getting harassing calls but is sure they will be traced.

Asked if he knows who stabbed him on the hand, he said, "Seriously, I don't know who they are. I wouldn't lie to the police."
AISG seeks 60,000 signatures

By Debby Raterman
Daily Record Staff Writer

The Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG) hopes to collect 60,000 signatures on a petition urging Gov. Dan Walker to use state funds to pay for Illinois' higher education budget shortfall.

Jeff Lorhmann, AISG representative for the University of Illinois, said the drive will begin at UI on Wednesday morning.

"We're going in to have tables in Wain and the Student Union after 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. beginning Wednesday, continuing Monday to Friday until Jan. 31," Lorhmann said.

AISG hopes to win the support of the petition to Walker Jan. 31 in Springfield. Walker said, "As you might have heard, Lorhmann said, "so if we can win 60,000 signatures, we'll have good foot in the door. He says he wants to listen to the people." Lorhmann said AISG feels tuition increases are a "selective taxation" on a specific part of the population.

"Students' costs have risen 25 per cent over the past four years," Lorhmann said. "The place to stop is with tuition.

Lorhmann said volunteers are needed to staff the petition tables and go door-to-door collecting signatures. Anyone willing to help should call Student Government at 535-3904, Lorhmann said.

AISG is also mounting a letter drive to state legislators and Walker urging them to halt tuition increases.

"Have your parents write letters," Lorhmann said.

Tidwell's event-high 9.05, and 8.8 by newly-activated Bill Anderson and Jack Laurie's 8.7.

In individual competition a high-scoring duel on the rings apparatus brought the most responses from the arena spectators. Laurie won the event with a 9.4, oursing out Michigan challenger Joe Pomeroy's 9.31 and Monty Fahl (9.25).

Neumann won over the crowd by executing a strength-sapping pull-up from an iron cross. Despite this, his routine was eclipsed by the Salukis' high bar routine that raise that evoked applause in midrotation.

Meade's infusion of new faces into SIU's lineup turned out more be a transfusion. Kevin Aten Albice and Lance Garrett bailed out the vaulling event after McFaul sprained his ankle in the 600-meter, a 5/22.3. Aten Albice scored 8.96, Garrett 8.7.

McFaul got back in action on the high bar, but hit the apparatus with his body and fell once more.

Despite his misfortune on the side horse, Tidwell still turned in another all-around performance finishing with 50.10 points. Wall scored 49.55, and Jon Hallberg dipped to 49.40, partially the result of falling off the parallel bars.

Michigan's Jean Gagnon captured all-around honors with 52.56 points, and also worth the high bar event with a 9.2. Pierre Leonard followed Tidwell with 49.85 points in all-around, including a 9.2 top score in vaulting.

Wolverines bite Saluki gymnasts

The SIU gymnasts managed to tie their season's high point total against Michigan Saturday night in the Arena, but the Wolverines added more than three points to their previous best and outdistanced the Salukis 160.10-156.45.

SIU had difficulty completing routines without falling or breaking form, Michigan's free exercise and pommel horse launched Michigan into a two-point lead after two events, and the Salukis never got any closer.

Jim McFaul, SIU's top free exercise man, crashed-dived on an opening tumbler after being on a double bar somersault. McFaul later said he didn't think sure enough going into the dismount and opened up too early. The miscalculation sent him into a five-point landing, with his head as one of the points.

Coach Bill Meade said McFaul's fall cost SIU a half point in the event, explaining his probable 9.6 had to be replaced by an 8.5. Andy Karl scored 5.5. Ron Hallberg and Carl Wilt both had 8.5 for a 25.88 floor score.

Michigan's Jean Gagnon and J.P. Bouchard both scored 9.0, and Randy Stanczak 8.86 pushed the Wolverine floor total to 27.05.

The Salukis had a chance to recover in the horse bar, but the Salukis' entry, a pool only 25.05 points between them. Glenn Bell 11.0 didn't help prior to his dismount, and specialists Tony Harmon and Ed Hembd were penalized for breaks in their routines. Meade said the horse bar game the cost the team a point instead of an earning one. Hembd and Harmon each had 9.0 for top score in the event.

SIU outscored Michigan in only one event: 26.35-25.60 in parallel bars, behind Michigan's 25.9 in the floor.

The Saluki grapplers took it on the chin once again losing to the Wolverines of Michigan State 25-29 Saturday night.

The struggling Salukis are now 2-6-1 on the season, the Wolverines remain unbeaten with an 8-0-0 record.

SIU captured three of the 10 matches, with senior Andy Burge getting the Salukis off to the right start with a 6-2 decision over the Wolverines' Randy Miller in 9.8 pounds.

The lead didn't last long as the Wolverines grabbed the matches at 126, 134, 143 and 150 pounds. Michigan State's Conrad Callender took a supposed first point decision over senior Bill Haider.

SIU captured the next two matches and moved to within 13-13 of tying the Wolverines Michigan State 13-9. At 158 pounds, sophomore Jim Horwath decisioned Rick Greene 7-0.

Senior Don Stumpick piled up his 12th victory of the season at 167 pounds, with Hersha 6-0 in the 167 pound match.

But all hope of a victory vanished as the Wolverines dropped the last three matches. The Wolverines' Jeff Zindel decisioned sophomore Mark Weisen 4-0, senior Wayne Rice was blanked 0-5 by Scott Wickard and heavyweight Kevin Bergman was pinned by Larry Avery at the 3:54 second, included in the 150-pound, 0-5 decision bout.

Salukis halt Florida State

Before the largest crowd of the season (6,569 paid) and the presence of honored alumni Walt Frazier, the SIU Salukis fought their way to a 77-76 victory over the Florida State Seminoles Monday night in the SIU Arena.

Trailing most of the first half, SIU took the lead 41-39, on a 20-foot Dennis Shidler jump shot as the buzzer sounded the end of the opening period. The Salukis never lost that lead again.

The Seminoles raced out to a 6-0 lead as their deliberate yet fast-paced play forced the Salukis to call time out and regroup. SIU had trouble getting their shots to fall, but warmed up as Shidler and Mike Glenn began to click from the outside. Seminole reserve Wayne Smalls entered the game and sparked Florida State, firing in all five of his shots from the floor in the first half as well as his only two free throws.

SIU chipped away at a seven-point Florida State lead and finally tied the game at 22 when Glenn hit a 16-foot jump shot. The rest of the half was nip and tuck with the Salukis tying the game six times and taking the lead on Shidler's shot as the half closed.

Saluki center Joe C. Meriweather was called for two personal fouls, his second and third, in the first two minutes of the second half. But his battle under the boards with 6-11 Lawrence McCray and 6-9 Greg Grady continued.

The aggressive play of Shidler and the Salukis opened up a 66-55 lead on Meriweather's lay-up. But within two minutes, Meriweather had been nailed with his fourth and fifth fouls, sending the 6-11 junior to the bench with 5:39 left in the game.

SIU Coach Paul Lambert moved freshman Corky Abrams into Meriweather's vacated spot and brought in Shar Nixon to help with the rebounding. Florida State put pressure on the Salukis, trying to get the ball and close the gap.

The Salukis went to a slow-down, running down the clock, but the Seminoles narrowed the margin to 76-73 with 56 seconds to play. The Seminoles were kept in the game by Small's outside shooting, as the freshman ended the night with 22 points hitting 10 for 14 from the field.

Florida State appeared to have closed the lead to a single point, but before Larry Warren's 30-foot shot swished through the hoop, the referee had whistled him for traveling, and the ball went over to SIU. Himes free throw iced the final score, 77-76.

"Nixon and Abrams got some tough rebounds when Joe fouled out," Lambert said after the game. "It was really a great college game.

Shidler and Glenn led the Salukis with 16 points apiece, and Meriweather hit 15 points and 15 rebounds.

The Salukis face Indiana State at 7:30 p.m., Thursday in the SIU Arena.

Frosh Swenson leads SIU tank win

The Saluki swimmers put it all together Saturday afternoon, capturing their first dual meet of the season with a 61-52 decision over the Buckeyes of Ohio State.

The Salukis dual record now stands at 1-2, Ohio State is 3-2 on the season.

In the 13 event meet, SIU captured first place in seven events, including the crucial 400-yard freestyle relay which decided the winner of the meet.

The Saluki team of Dave Boyd, Rick Fox, Pat Sullivan and Rob McGinley combined their talents to narrowly beat the Buckeyes. SIU finished with a time of 3:15.40 and Ohio State was right behind with a time of 3:15.8.

In the 400-yard medley relay, Mike Salerno, Paul Schultz, Dennis Roberts and McGinley joined forces for a time of 3:57.6. The finishing time was equaled by the Buckeyes but a judges decision gave first place to the Salukis.

Froshman Dave Swenson was the star of the meet for the Salukis. Swenson brought home two first place finishes and one second place. The 170 pounder from Tacoma, Washington finished first in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 53.2 and in the 200-yard butterfly with a time of 1:53.8 and took second place in the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 4:47.8.

Saluki swimming coach Bob Steele credited Swenson with doing a good job. "The 100, 500 and 200 are tough trips for a freshman." Steele said.

Sprinter Dennis Roberts set a new SIU freshman record in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 22.0. The old record was set by Ed Mossott in 1965 with a time of 22.2.

In the 200-yard individual medley McGinley and Boyd combined for a one-two Saluki finish. McGinley finished first with a time of 2:08.4 and Boyd was close behind with a time of 2:08.7.

Steele said it was difficult to pinpoint the overall performances of most of his swimmers was highly critical of his breaststrokers. "The breaststrokers really stunk," Steele said. "They just fell apart at the seams.

"I have to get the breaststrokers moving, they're killing us," Steele said.

Steele has four days for his breaststrokers motivated because SIU takes on the Badgers of Wisconsin at 7 p.m. Friday in Pulliam poll.

UCLA's Gaschler named assistant grid coach here

Randy Gaschler, UCLA's most valuable football player in 1972, was named Monday as offensive line coach at SIU. Gaschler, 22, becomes the fourth assistant coach named to the staff of Athletic Director and Head Coach, Doug Weaver.

After ending his career as a second team All-America center, Gaschler worked as a graduate assistant coach at UCLA last year. Gaschler lettered in three sports in high school including football, track and basketball. At UCLA, Gaschler played football and rugby and played on the same team that Weaver coached defensive end.

Gaschler participated in the North-South Shrine game and the Hula Bowl in post-season play as a collegian.

"As a player, Randy was one of the most effective offensive linemen I ever observed," Weaver said. "As an example, the job of blocking he did on Rick Glover of Nebraska was instrumental in UCLA's 37-17 win over Nebraska which snapped their long unbeaten streak.

"Randy brings to coaching the same qualities he has as a player-intelligence, talent and dedication," Weaver said.
