CFUT passes resolution

Mrs. Canut-Amoros receives support

By Sue Ball
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT) passed a resolution Wednesday supporting Professor Fred Schulte and censured the SIU administration and Board of Trustees for the handling of his contract disagreements.

Mrs. Canut-Amoros has disagreed with Schulte on her representation, having also charged the University with several counts of sexual discrimination.

In a handwritten note to the dean of the School of Technology, she resigned from the school in May but later asked to withdraw her resignation upon learning that one can only resign from the University and not a particular school.

Her request was denied, as was a request for a hearing on her resignation from Chancellor Robert G. Layzer.

The Board of Trustees approved her resignation at its July 5 meeting.

The CFUT, a local of the American Federation of Teachers, said it protests "the arbitrary action by the [SIU] administrators and the Board of Trustees in not following what was essentially a request for reassignment to another academic unit as a pretext to fire a tenured professor.

"We consider this administrative action to be an attack on the concept of academic tenure and a threat to the safety of every faculty member who criticizes in a substantial and serious way the practices and policies of the administration and the Board of Trustees of Southern Illinois University."

The Carbondale Federation of University Teachers strongly supports Mrs. Canut-Amoros in her struggle to retain her position as a tenured professor at SIU and censures the administration and members of the Board of Trustees of SIU, who have violated their own statutes.

The resolution was passed after Mrs. Canut-Amoros' case was summarized at Wednesday's CFUT meeting by her husband, J. L. Amoros, professor in the School of Technology.

John Seiden, president of the CFUT, said Mrs. Canut-Amoros is eligible to receive assistance from the union's defense fund, which is set up to help defend teachers whose jobs are threatened.

Also, Seiden said if she has trouble getting a lawyer, the union can refer her to a law firm in Chicago experienced in such cases.

Activity fee budget sent to Layzer

Student activity fee budget allocations were presented Thursday to Chancellor Robert G. Layzer for his approval by members of SIU's student government.

Sixty-one allocations to student organizations are made in the budget, which was prepared by the Student Senate and the Graduate Student Council (GSC).

Jim Peters, Student Senate vice president who prepared the final report, said allocations were made from a sum of $380,000, which will be generated by the new five dollar student activity fee. The fee is now before SIU's Board of Trustees for approval.

Peters said the suburb of 61 groups for 1971-72 represents a 100 per cent increase over 1965-71, when only 34 accounts received funds. Four groups were denied allocations this year. The funds will also be produced by a five dollar fee, as compared to the ten dollar fee assessed last year.

Other cuts were made because of uncertain status of an organization, service to a small number of students and excessive past spending.

Peters said groups which have received allocations in the student activity fee budget should submit their revised budgets to the Student Government Office by Monday, July 31. If Layzer passes the allocations, the final budgets will be presented to the Board for approval at its August meeting.

The following table shows what an organization requested in funds, what it received in 1970-71 and what it will be appropriated for it in 1971-72.

New name brings changes at Center

The question was raised at the Board meeting Friday when Senator Sargent's president, George C. Sargent, alleged that a "University Center" should be paid for by all members of the University, rather than from the student's "University Center" fee.

Board Legal Counsel G. Richard Grady, after reviewing some documents, noted the term "University Center" had never been of officially used in connection with the building. It had been called either "student center" or "student union.

The change in name to Student Center marks changing nameplates, signs, publications and any other materials formerly designated "University Center". The major cost would be in changing all the directional signs leading to the Student Center, as well as the interior nameplate, fastened to a brick wall outside of the Center.

Daugherty said no materials, such as publications, stationary or materials, "University Center" would be wasted in the transition.

"We'll use up everything we now have and just want new printed materials to arrive," Daugherty said. "We don't plan to throw anything away.

Daugherty added that he did not know when the University would make the changes or what the cost would be.

One cost cut is for a certain, however. Besides changing the name of the "University Center" last Friday the Board also abolished its previous "University Center" fee of five dollars per quarter to the "Student Center Fee" of 100 per quarter for students taking six or more quarter hours.

The name change to "student center" will be used to help cover the construction costs of Center expansion.

East Pakistan may face famine

WASHINGTON (AP) — A series of confidential State Department cables released Monday said a "specter of famine hangs over East Pakistan"

Referred to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the cables from the State Department in Washington also cited rapid population growth in East Pakistan as one of the main causes of the food shortage in the nation. The cables also criticized United Nations efforts in the region.

"It is our view that famine conditions, involving widespread hunger and malnutrition, and perhaps starvation, will probably prevail in much of East Pakistan over the coming year," one cable dated July 6 said.

"A specter of famine hangs over East Pakistan and prospects for averting widespread hunger, suffering and perhaps starvation are not good," it said.

East Pakistan has been hit over the last six months with devastating floods and civil strife.

Kennedy, chairman of a Senate subcommittee which has been investigating the problem, said Monday he had yet to receive the cables. He said that he had requested from the State Department a copy of the documents to be released along with the cables.

Kennedy read portions of the cables to Undersecretary of State John Irwin during a subcommittee hearing Thursday.

"Certainly we must recognize the possibility of famine," Irwin replied.

He assisted for refugee matters. Frank Kigel, who represents the States Department, told the subcommittee that his department and U.S. official are doing all they can to reorganize the United Nations program for refugees inside East Pakistan.

Astronauts train hard for Monday's blastoff

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Steinning a chance to show their rigorous training, the Apollo 15 astronauts spent Thursday preparing key maneuvers of their voyage.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration had announced that David B. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden could begin relaxing in advance of Monday's blastoff at 9:34 a.m. EDT.

But Worden, who will be the busiest command module pilot ever to fly an Apollo mission, scheduled extra hours in a simulator retraining the 30-minute space walk before plans to make on the homeward leg of the mission.

Scott and Irwin practiced the lunar module and rendezvous and preparations for their moon buggy explorations at the base of the 15,000-foot Apennine mountains, tallest peaks on the moon. They are scheduled to touch down on the moon at 6:15 p.m. EDT July 30.

The countdown, proceed on schedule. Worden also went over seven complex experiments he will conduct during the 67 hours his flight spacers are on the moon. Then be simulated the space stroll he will take when the command ship En- deavour is 46,000 miles from the moon on the way home.

Performing before a television camera, Worden will climb out of the hatch and work his way back on handrails to an equipment bay which will be positioned before re-entry. In two trips he will retrieve film cassettes and hand them to Ir- win in the command module.
BAS to hold workshops

The Black Americans Studies Cultural Resource Center will con- duct political education workshops beginning fall quarter, Melton Hill, coordinator, said Thursday.

The workshops will be held on a regular basis to involve students, as well as local leaders from the surrounding area, Hill said. "We are going to hold the workshops because the students are going to play a very important role politically, provided they get the op portunity to vote in local election."

Hill said the center "won't be en- couraging any candidates as such, but we hope to keep pertinent community issues before the students so they will be well informed student body.

He said another reason for the workshops is the fact that many black students who attend while universities are educated away from their communities.

"For the most part, when they complete their formal education, they assume roles of inactivity and usefulness which has little or no value for the development of black communities," he said.

He continued, "Hopefully we will be able to help foster a certain type of reality and perspective among students here at the University.

"One of our primary aims for the coming year is to provide an array of meaningful learning experiences for students.

Hill said the center intends to help give experiences as a problem solvers and change agents dealing with real issues outside the University community.

"We want to enhance much of the theoretical orientation they get in the classroom. We will also be working with the Youth Administration Council of Attacks Multi-Purpose Center, assisting them in setting up a mechanism from other youth in the community.

"Hopefully we will be utilizing some ideas to help the youth attain a meaningful involvement in the city," he said.

N. Viets, VC want troops removed

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong Thursday served notice they are not prepared to begin negotiations unless the unconditional withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Vietnam.

Addressing the 122nd weekly meeting of the Vietnamese peace talks, North Vietnam's military and the Viet Cong's Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, informed President Nixon's announcement of his forthcoming visit to Paris.

They and Mrs. Binh brushed aside as "delaying tactics" all American efforts to clarify points of detail in the seven-point peace plan submitted to the Communist delegates July 1.

The plan calls for a total American withdrawal by the end of this year, simultaneous with a step-by-step release of prisoners held by both sides. It also demands the removal of President Nguyen Van Thieu and the creation of a government of "national conciliation" in Saigon.

U.S. Ambassador David Bruce reiterated his questions about the plan but got no reply.

Bruce asked whether the Communists are prepared to discuss various American proposals — including a general cease-fire together with their seven-point plan.

Mrs. Binh said details of the U.S. settlement and the liberation of prisoners would be negotiated after the United States has publicly com- mit itself to total withdrawal. The commitment must come first, she said.

newspapers inviting anyone with information about cases of sexual discrimination within the University or the handling of cases of registration in the past to contact the CFP.

The CFP also decided to request for analysis the pay records for all faculty members from 1889-1971 from the chancellor. If they are not released, it will consult the state attorney to see about proceeding in court order to release the records.

Essays connect SIU to the ‘war machine’

To the Daily Egyptian:

Another publication has appeared that documents SIU as an arm of the Government’s war machine. The book is a collection of essays compiled by the National Association of the Military-Industrial Complex (NARIRC) and is copyrighted by the American Friends Service Committee. Its title is Police on the Motherland: the Recent Invasion of Police Tactics Used by Our Government Against Domestic, Including College, Campuses, of Course. And just as the academic world is a part of the military-industrial complex, so too, the academic world is presently assisting this endeavor.

As SIU provides a three-month course in Penology and Corrections for foreign police under AID’s Public Safety Program, SIU also trains police from Cairo, as such, in the chance, although SIU’s name and corrections programs are often discussed throughout the book, one chapter of the book is especially relevant to SIU (Cairo) (Criminal Studies [CVS]).

After all the debate, condemnation, turmoil and ultimately, a majority vote of students, faculty, and staff that the CVS be removed from SIU, the recommendations range from typical police tactics. The University has recently drawn up a 180-page campus riot control plan:

· Shoot to kill on the Center for Vietnam
  Studies, almost quadrupled its campus police force.

The Center is still here. As police tactics are used abroad to control people from forcing their estimated 3000 to respond to their wishes, the SIU administration is attempting the same, here on this campus. In addition, they are training foreign and domestic police to do the same. Let us demonstrate to the world that it just won’t work by removing the CVS. And, let’s do it now.

Bias case marked by mistakes

The indifferent, almost contemptible, manner in which the Board of Trustees accepted the resignation of Professor Marsha Canuit-Amoros must not be overlooked by anyone at this University.

Mrs. Canuit-Amoros has built a thoroughly documented and reasonable case to back up her charges of sexual discrimination at the hands of the University. Her plan to ask the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to visit SIU to investigate those charges will bring to light the calculated discrimination employed by this University to deny her summer employment, support for research and salary equal to that of similarly qualified male professors in her school.

The chain of events leading to Mrs. Canuit-Amoros’ resignation was brought out again at Friday’s Trustees meeting. Mrs. Canuit-Amoros was fed up with the discrimination and lack of support from Thomas Jefferson, dean of the School of Engineering and Technology, and sought to transfer to the School of Design or the New College of Human Resources, both of which she said indicated an interest in having her on their faculty. Jefferson apparently understood this letter to be a resignation from the University and submitted it as such to the chancellor’s office.

Her name was routinely put on the agenda of the Trustees meeting of June 18 to be approved. Mrs. Canuit-Amoros, however, appealed to the SIU branch of the American Association of University Professors, and the ‘resignation’ was removed from the agenda.

That was the end of that, she thought. But, no, the ‘resignation’ was re-submitted to the latest Trustees’ meeting; Chancellor Layer was asked for a hearing, but denied her, saying...

...the resignation was accepted by the office effective June 11, 1971. As a result of your resignation, you are no longer a member of the university faculty and since the grievance procedure is only open to any member of the university faculty, your request to resort to the grievance procedure must be denied.”

Mrs. Canuit-Amoros asked the Board Friday to reconsider her resignation. The Board went into a short executive session, to which Mrs. Canuit-Amoros was not invited, and decided that her resignation was official and declared the matter to be closed. Mrs. Canuit-Amoros questions as to what had happened between June, when the “resignation” was apparently removed from the board agenda, and this month were not answered by the Board. She was told by chairman Harold Fischer that since the item had been removed from a report, rather than the board matters, he could not answer her question.

The time is not here when exceptionally qualified and dedicated professors like Marsha Canuit-Amoros are in excess and can therefore be carelessly discarded. SIU needs more of her kind. Apparently, the Board of Trustees does not. Anyone with a superfluous charge against the University, such as Mrs. Canuit-Amoros, which, if proven to the government, would result in SIU losing federal contract money, must be an enemy of the Board. Her mistake in submitting a “letter of resignation,” instead of a transfer request, is reasonable and should have been recognized as such.

Mrs. Canuit-Amoros deserves the support of every member this University to back up her charge of discrimination and to gain her reinstatement.

The Board of Trustees has made a mistake. Chancellor Layer has made a mistake and Mrs. Canuit-Amoros has made a mistake.

The injustice which has been done to a valuable faculty member should be reversed and a black mark against the University erased.

Laird pushes plans for 'double duty'

By L. Edgar Price

The Pentagon, by all and needing friends in an amiable era, appears to be seeking an image as a sort of “junior department of social welfare.”

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has undergone a 180-degree shift in his thinking on the merits of the role of the military establishment in solving domestic problems since he took office two years ago.

At that time, he had his doubts even as to the few steps his predecessors, Robert S. McNamara and Clark M. Clifford, had taken to involve the Pentagon on the home front. Now Laird is asking, in effect, this question of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

What can you do to abate pollution, alleviate poverty, prevent crime and racial discrimination and improve health and education?

The Defense Department and the military services—pioneers in equal opportunities for Negroes—are doing plenty, but Laird thinks they can do more.

"I look upon military force as the application of more military resources to double duty in peacetime as we assist in meeting the needs of civilian society in the areas of health, safety, communications, education and environmental protection," he said recently.

The secretary believes, for example, that the Pentagon’s annual purchases of approximately $40 billion can produce auxiliary social and economic benefits.

He has already set aside portions of contracts to assist areas with chronic unemployment.

Among the various forward initiatives Laird has taken are these:

Creation of a Domestic Action Council composed of high-level officials from the Joint Chiefs of Staff organization, the various services and his own office. Its purpose is that of the Defense Department, wherever possible, to make a positive contribution to the military establishment’s efforts to solve domestic problems, particularly in urban areas.

"Project Value," a joint effort with the Department of Labor, is designed to train for employment more than 17,000 disadvantaged young people in 41 metropolitan areas.

"Project Transition," to provide scores of thousands of departing servicemen with needed civilian skills.

Training for 200,000 reservists for 600,000odd jobs for the "back to school" program.

"Project Hire," in conjunction with the Labor Department and Interior’s Bureau of Indian Affairs, to provide reservation employment at defense installations for about 200 Eskimos.

The opening of military installations to provide recreational, educational and cultural opportunities to more than 500,000 “disadvantaged” youth through "Project 100,000.”

In addition, McNamara’s "Project 100,000," called the New Standards Program since the sharp decline in military manpower began with the winding down of the Vietnam war, has continued to accept, educate and train men previously considered unqualified for military service because of their failure to meet mental or physical standards.

Laird likes to point out that the Department of Defense is the No. 2 federal agency when it comes to education, training and related programs.

He spends more than $2 billion a year on education—not including recruit and pilot training. Noting that more than 100,000 people attended military dependent schools overseas, the secretary said:

"This makes me the superintendent of one of the largest school systems in the United States.

"According to Richard J. Barda, assistant secretary of the Air Force for manpower and reserve affairs, nearly 100,000 men and women in the armed forces completed their secondary education by studying while in service and were awarded their high school diplomas last year.

"This is more than double the number graduated last year from all the public schools in Louisiana," he said, not explaining why he used that state as an example while addressing an audience in Alabama recently.

"I would suggest that the most modern weapon system and the most highly proficient military personnel will be inadequate to insure our survival unless our society is keyed to the concept of steady domestic improvement in which all of our people participate and share in the benefits of that society," he declared.

"The Department of Defense should contribute to social improvement goals in a very positive way."

This theme is expected to be heard more and more during the final year and a half of Laird’s stewardship at the Pentagon.

A boy’s first hunt in the concrete jungle

By Arthur Hopp

The school day was over. The guard examined their permits and smiled tolerantly. “Taking the boy on his first hunt, Mr. Sanders?”

“That’s right,” said the proud father. “Jim here’s 15. Time to prove himself.”

“I hope you get one, kid,” said the guard, opening the electrified gate. “But keep your eyes peeled. They’re getting mighty scarce.

“Father and son, rifles at the ready, followed the narrow, marked path through the mine field, passed through a second gate at last reached the City. Much of it was fire-blackened rubble, upon which weeds and trees all trees had begun to grow, but here and there a gutted building still remained.

“Gosh,” said Jim, wide-eyed. “Everything seems so new, so crowded.

“Well, don’t forget, son,” said his father. “a million people used to live here.

“A million!” It’s hard to believe. Where’d they all go, Dad?”

His father looked surprised. “To The Suburbs, son. Leastwise, those that could. Don’t they teach you anything at school?

“Sure, Dad. But I never did quite understand some things. Did they all go at once?”

His father nodded slowly. “They started slowly, back in the sixties. Gradually, The City grew more and more unlivable. There were power failures and traffic jams and the smell of garbage.

“Worse yet, seemed like half the people were jobless born on welfare and the crime rate was so high it wasn’t safe to walk the streets in the daylight.

“Yeah, said Jim, nodding thoughtfully. “Now I understand how you decided who had to stay in The City.

“The schools were terrible. Full of knifings and dope. No decent parent wanted to raise his children in an atmosphere like that. So people began moving to the suburbs.

“Naturally, the merchants followed, opening shopping centers, branch banks and all that. As factories became clean and automated, they moved out of The City, too, to be closer to their workers.

“So, you see, there finally wasn’t any reason for anyone in The Suburbs to risk coming into The City any more.

“Why didn’t everybody in The City move to The Suburbs, Dad?”

His father frowned. “There wasn’t room, son. We had to think of land density factors and property values and all that. The riots in The Cities during the late seventies solved that problem and since then, of course, we’ve kept The Cities fenced and guarded. Now do you understand?”

“I guess so, Dad. All but one thing. How did you decide who get to move to The Suburbs and who had to stay in The City?”

“Hold it, son! There goes one! Quick, shoot!”

Jim’s rifle cracked. The quarry went down. Father and son hurried over to examine their kill. It was an emancipated black boy, not much older than Jim.

Jim stared at the dead boy, a strange look on his face.

“Don’t worry, son,” said his father. “You just put him out of his misery. That’s all.”

“Dad, he had a skin. I never saw anyone with black skin before.”

That’s right, son. And in The Suburbs you never will.”

Traveling homes number zooming

NEW YORK (AP) — If you are on the road, or just back from travel vacation, you have directly or indirectly in action the product of one of America's most vigorous in- novations and smart popular ventu-res: trailer homes.

There are now 2.5 million recreational vehicles on the highways, highways and byways of America. By 1970, industry officials expect sales of 93 billion and 1.5 million vehicles in use.

Movie houses testing lower prices

By the Associated Press

Movie house owners, in an effort to keep patrons back in the theaters, are cautiously experimenting with lower prices.

Though most movie prices have remained universally unchanged over the last year, an Associated Press sampling of theaters across the country shows a number of film houses reducing prices, with a resultant increase in business and reasonably higher grosses.

Leon Deery, manager of the New York-based Brandt Theaters, lowered the price of the reduced price experimenters, saying: "The dollar policy works."

The Brandt chain started a $1 Monday-through-Thursday admission policy about three years ago in its Satyr Theatre in the Bronx because grosses were down. Forman said Grosses slowly increased until they doubled, he noted—and the candy concession business tripled.

Others are cautiously trying the dollar admission in carefully selected situations and watching the results.

Two of the Durwood Theaters, one in Dallas, the other in Jefferson City, Mo., have reduced prices from $1.75 to $1.00 because "the price was too high for the economic situation in those areas," a spokesman said.

"The lower price is working out better in both cases. It was a smart move to make.

However, the reduced price policy still is a cautious one—and a minority one.

Most theater owners across the country, from Boston to Portland, Ore., report no change in prices, which are about $2 generally, with some variations according to the film shown.

In Virginia, Samuel Benhaim, spokesman for Neighborhood Theaters Inc of Richmond, said "In certain areas we experimented with Dollar Days Monday through Thursday. The response was mixed. In area stores, possibly nowhere in Virginia, the experiment had no success at all. At the Richmond theater at which we tried out dollar days, we got no response what-soever.

Legislation legalizes charity bingo playing

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed Thursday legislation legalizing the playing of bingo for charity in Illinois, saying the measure has been plagued by loopholes that might have the effect of inviting the crime syndicate into the bingo parlors.

In signing two companion bills setting up licensing procedures for bingo operators and authorizing charities to organize the games, Ogilvie set aside objections that led him to veto a similar measure passed in the 1969 legislative session.

"The bills I have approved contain safeguards I required to prevent the organized criminal element from infiltration of operation of bingo games," Ogilvie said.

Forestry professor talks at annual geneticist meet

By University News Service

Pan Hau Kung, assistant professor of forestry will give a research paper at the annual meeting of Western Forest Genetists Aug. 15 in Seattle, Wash. His discussion will be on "Geographic Boundaries Among Erythrina Species." Erythrina is a genus of shrubs and trees native to the Pacific region.

A native of Kwangtung, China, and graduate of the National Taiwan University in Fortmose, Kung passed the SIU faculty a year ago. He majored in forest genetics for his Ph.D. degree at Michigan State University in 1966. He was an inventory forester with the US Forest Service for nearly three years before coming to SIU.

It's easier to match rings than people.

Especially when you've been crafting rings as long as ArtCarved has. Since 1940, ArtCarved has been making matching wedding bands, it matches perfectly every time. We're pretty good at matching rings to people, too. And the best part? Our ArtCarved collection is so special, we can't help but be the hit of any wedding band we make.

Sometimes you just have to get away from it all. For these four little freshmen may be admitted if they qualify, or students may become eligible after beginning their University studies. Keys, for instance, was not accepted into the program when he entered SIU but later became eligible.

Requirements for incoming freshmen are an American College Testing Composite score of 28 and rank in the upper quartile of their graduating class at an ACT composite of 27 and rank in the upper 11 per cent.

Lang added that in the future he hopes to take a broader look into the background of entering freshmen when deciding if they qualify for the program. Such tests as the Scholastic Aptitude Test and the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test would be considered.

To maintain a President Scholar title, students must maintain a 4.0 overall and take at least one honor's class per semester.

Students not designated as President Scholars upon entrance to SIU can become members of the program after completing 30 hours of course work with a 4.0 overall.

Lang said that if a department doesn't offer independent study, a student can do it through the President's Scholar program but must get someone in his major department to sponsor him.

The President's Scholar program is flexible, Lang said. It is student courses that do not meet the requirements but has a faculty member who supports him and thinks he is capable enough to take the courses, he is allowed to enter. Lange added.

One of the purposes of the President's Scholar program is to provide academic opportunities that a high-achieving student might not otherwise receive, Lange said.

Another purpose, he added, is to share the information provided through the program with anyone who wants to take the courses.

Members of the President's Scholar staff said they view themselves as a student-directed group.

Staff members said they feel the purpose of the program is not only to disseminate information to a student that he might not get but also to ease college careers and let students be challenged immediately.

The President's Scholar program has about 600 participants each year. Lange said approximately 300 incoming freshmen will be admitted to the program this fall.

Lang said he encourages students to become more involved with the program but cautions that the benefits will depend upon their ability and motivation.

Mom' leaving Southern for job at Grinnell

The 47-year-old "guru-in-residence" at SIU's 131 Riding Group Housing, Marjory "Mom" Daily is taking an another position - that of assistant dean of students at Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa.

Mom Daly will begin her new job Aug. 1 after two years as the homemaker at the Sigma Tau Gamma social fraternity.

Mom's unusual and varied accomplishments coupled with her well-known open-door policy have made her one of SIU's most popular and most "unorthodox" mothers at-large.

Her experiences range from Navajo and Spanish Indian expert to security pledge to student activist. She received a bachelor of arts degree in sociology from SIU in June.

As assistant dean, Mom will be senior counselor for women at the 2,800-student private college. But Mom admits that she will probably "get involved" in several other areas.

"It's my nature," she says. "I got to be me, and I warned Grinnell to expect the unexpected."

Dames' sponsor ice cream social

The SIU Dames Club will sponsor an old-fashioned ice cream social for members and their families Sunday.

The festivities will be at Evergreen Park at 2:30 p.m. or the Evergreen Terrace Community House, in case of rain.

Ice cream will be furnished by the Dames Club and members are bringing cookies or cake and their own utensils.

Reservations must be made with Emily MeNell.

The social is one of the summer events planned by the Dames Club, which is a chapter of the National Association of University Dames.

Dame of the week

Gorey, a junior chemistry major, is this week's Dame of the Week.

"I've always been interested in romance," Gorey said.

Gorey has her own stereotype of a Dames Club woman. She is an only child but "I'm not spoiled. Just very lucky."

Gorey is a member of Lambda Sigma and a private club called the "Red Headed League." She also has taken a course in dance and is a member of the SIU Civic Ballet.

"I'm looking into teaching," Gorey said. "I'm interested in the arts, but at the same time I have a science background."

Gorey's goal is to be a chemistry teacher. She has been a member of the Dames Club for two years and has been Mage, Madam and Dame.

"I enjoy the social side of it," Gorey said. "I like the opportunities to meet people in the community."
Publisher's suit challenges monopoly publishing deals n newspapers preclude the possibility of a smaller daily competing and survival of large dailies, Brugmann said. Brugmann said his case is basically a constitutional issue which must be ultimately decided by the U.S. Supreme Court and would set a precedent for other cities with newspaper monopolies.

According to Hawse, a scientific evaluation of proposals will be conducted by appropriate advisory panels outside of NASA. Approved efforts will be funded as grants with sufficient support to the principal scientist and several assistants, he said.

Graduate students and others will be encouraged to participate in the program as research assistants and, if practical, conduct a portion of their research at a NASA Center, said Hawse. The Assistant Coordinator stated, "The presence of these highly qualified investigators at a NASA Center should enrich local in-house programs and will, at the same time, permit the investigator to avail himself of the facilities of the specialized research and education laboratories essential to the support of his investigations efficiently." Applications for these grants should be submitted on behalf of individual by his parent institution. In this case, SIU said Hawse, Grants will be awarded for a three-year period on a step-funded basis for the following years, respectively. Three NASA Centers having significant life sciences programs have been selected to host the initial Life Scientist Program participants. These are the Ames Life Science Center, the California Research Institute and the Manned Spacecraft Center.

All questions concerning the program and submission of proposals for the program should be directed to the Office of Research and Propulsion, telephone 433-2273. The deadline for submitting proposals is October 31.

Le" remains friends with SIU students, but keeps traffic moving

By Ron Cox
Student Writer

Her grandchildren call her "Grandma Pat," to scores of SIU students as, "Lee." Or as, "Mrs. Doty." Mrs. Lee Doty is the popular and active owner ofmany rental businesses in the 800 block of South Illinois Avenue close to campus.
Mrs. Doty is mainly responsible for keeping the traffic moving in out of the way, parking lots and making sure that no one besides customers uses the parking facilities.

On the surface that seems like a job which would produce a lot of frustration and dirty looks from motorists.

Countless numbers of times each day a student in a hurry will brake in a hurry, take the corner of General and hop out of his car, only to be approached by Mrs. Doty. The following exchange or slight variations usually take place.

"The boy, but you only to go to use the parking facilities in the back.
"The boy, but you only to go to use the parking facilities in the back," she shouts.

Mrs. Doty or has encountered her before, at this point she simply grins, nudges his head and moves his car to the parking lot behind the stores resigned to walking a few extra steps.

But if he is just passing by the security guard for the first time, he promises, "But I only to go to use the parking facilities in the back in MacDonald's a second."

"I'm sorry, but Mrs. Doty returns.
"But you're blocking traffic here."

Perhaps a bit annoyed but understandable, the student reluctantly pushes his car to a spot with
"I hear the words, 'But I'm only going to be here a second' more

Texas editor doubts truth of assassination report

The assassination of John Fitz-media circus that swept the nation.

This is the contention of Penn

SIU attending the International

Jones has written a book, which

Jones said he had stolen the Zapruder film before seeing a

He said he was at the Dallas

Television to monitor Apollo 15 space trip for American viewers

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A television camera will be peering over the shoulders of the Apollo 15 astronauts during their critical moments of their moon landing trip this weekend, with scenes never witnessed before.

Eight television cameras, scheduled for launch at Cape Kennedy on Monday, will offer a total of almost 22 hours of television beamed from space, including about 17 hours on the lunar surface.

Viewers will get a view of the lunar moon valley where the astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin will land. The same color TV camera will focus on the lunar module as it blasts off the moon's surface and streaks into orbit.

Later, the abandoned but remotely-controlled camera will be turned on again for scenes of the deserted landing site, of the lights in Earth's miles-away and perhaps of a solar eclipse.

Another television camera will show the third Apollo 15 crewman, Alfred Worden, as he sits out of the command ship and floats in space at the end of a long white tether. There'll be television segments which have almost become traditional mission missions.

The new camera is mounted on the lunar rover—a dune buggy moon car—on the astronauts will drive about 27 miles in three excursions from the lunar module.

The space men will make numerous stops during their exploration and each time they will aim a powerful transmitting antenna at the earth. This beam will transmit the television signal to the folks back home.

The camera on the rover will be controlled by a man sitting in the Mission Control Center here. He can send 16 movement commands to the camera and can change its lens to roam in for closeups at the push of a button.

If all goes well viewers will see the lunar surface just as the astronauts see it.

The astronauts will journey to a mountain during their second excursion and the television camera should give a clear view of the face of the peak.

The third rover trip will be to a suspected volcanic crater cluster and will include another look at the gorge.

If the exploration goes as planned, there will still be about eight hours of battery power for the camera after the astronauts have left the moon.

They will take pictures of each moon rock before it is packed up. This helps scientists determine the rock's orientation to the sun. The astronauts will also take wide-angle pictures of the area so the rock can be related to nearby geological features.

The $800,000 lens will provide the only close look scientist will get of a mysterious gargoyle near the Apollo 15 landing site. The origin of the deep canyon is a puzzle to students and they hope closeup photos of it may solve the riddle.

The two other cameras on the lunar module are 16mm motion picture cameras. One will photograph the lunar surface rover car and will record the three exploration trips. The other, specially planned out for the camera to focus on the landing site for a study of the effects of the blastoff, then to star constellations and on the earth. The home planet will be mostly dark, but experts believe the television system will detect the lights of cities in Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia. The United States will not be in view.

Court desegregation orders may cause busing problem

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Housing patterns have long fostered urban school districts with minority children that may change in the coming school year when tens of thousands of pupils are bused for the first time under federal court orders.

There was limited busing in the South last year to achieve interracial schools by court order and no national scope appears for future court orders.

The Supreme Court cleared the way recently for the hiring of black and white pupils when it ruled in a Charlotte, N.C., case last spring that busing must be used as a last resort method to achieve more integration.

The decision could spur new suits for more than a score of new suits in which civil rights groups—most notably the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP)—sought additional relief. Federal district courts followed the Carolina decision and court and in rulings affecting more than 16 cities have issued desegregation orders requiring busing of some 160,000 pupils.

About 20 suits affecting the largest cities in the region, including Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas, are pending.

The first post-Charlottesville busing suit in the region was issued earlier this summer by a federal judge in Texas who ordered the busing of 10,000 black students in Corpus Christi.

In many areas of the South, white parents, declaring "we won't bus," have sent their children on a door-to-door search for signatures on anti-busing petitions.

Some observers fear the new busing orders will result in a further flight of white families from the affected areas to those not yet touched by the court decrees. This could mean a further decrease in the number of white pupils—some of whom are already enrolled in all-white private schools—in the public school system.

In Texas and elsewhere in the South, school boards complain that they are caught between protesting whites and blacks—and the economies involved in busing.

Southern school systems will need millions of dollars to fund buses, but this fall to handle the new transportation problem. Rep. Roman P. Pucinski, Louisiana, says new buses and hiring drivers will take most of the $60 million in federal funds Nixon proposes to make available for transportation.

Atlanta is typical of cities whose housing patterns have left many areas with more than the 10,000,000 children attending public schools who are being bused. But half the schools are more than 80 per cent black.

In many areas, more than 80 per cent white and most of them are located in the most prosperous and almost exclusively white norther.

The schools with the most whites attending are in neighborhoods near the business section or in the less affluent sections of Atlanta. The only fully integrated schools are in traditional areas or in the fringe areas of the city.

The city owns no school buses, so there has been no large-scale expansion of busing in black neighborhoods.

Complex factors lay behind Chou's invitation to Nixon

By William L. Ryan
AP Special Correspondent

Something like a cultural counter-revolution may be going on in Red China. In all likelihood, complex factors lay behind the announcement that Premier Chou En-lai intends to welcome President Nixon to Peking. These lines of speculation suggest themselves:

- If Chou ultimately goes through with it, and the odds seem to favor that, it will be a clear signal that the Red Chinese leaders feel they have little to fear any more from the country they have long nervously dubbed "paper tiger."

- A big accumulation of internal political dissatisfaction has piled up by the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution of 1966-69 that hasiguaged the leaders toward nonconformity and policies which look more rational to the outside world.

SIU student seeking Miss Illinois title

When the new Miss Illinois is crowned Saturday night, the crown may rest on the head of an SIU coed.

Olga Victoria Allison, a sophomore from Marion, is representing Southern Illinois in the beauty contest before an audience.

Miss Allison, family came to the United States from Ukraine after the Castro takeover. They became US citizens last year.

Miss Allison and the other Miss Illinois contestants will compete in talent performances Friday. She will play the guitar and sing "O sole mio" in Spanish and English.

Friday also will mark the evening gown competition. The contest finale will be televised Saturday night, featuring evening gown and more evening gown competition.

Miss Allison has been preparing for the contest since March but says she is not ready. She said one really never gets ready for such a contest and she just prays a lot. "I don't pray to win," she said, "only to do my best."

Miss Allison is sponsored by the University Center Programming Committee.

Campus group plans Pakistan fund drive

A three-month fund-raising drive to help relieve the plight of East Pakistan refugees in India has been launched by the World Services Coordination Committee.

The on-campus group is an association of faculty members, students, and a commitment in community representatives, that is, India's population of East Pakistan—living in India every day, and that the sum of $121,000 million needs to be raised throughout the world to help the refugees and other similar causes raised by refugee issues in India and East Pakistan.

"Within three to six months since the West Pakistan military operation began in East Pakistan, six million East Pakistan have fled to India," said an Indian refugee camp leader, who said that the refugees have been seeking help from India and the United States.

The refugees number in the thousands, according to an Indian government official, who said that the refugees are in need of food and medical aid.

Make-up examination period for students whose petitions have been approved by their academic dean
8:00-10:00

Examinations for Night Classes

These classes will have their examinations on the same night and will start at the same times as their regular class sessions.

...ex for final exams

To avoid time and space examination conflicts, those classes which use only Tuesday-Thursday lecture sequences are to have their examinations in the two hour period immediately following the period when the other classes meeting at the same hour but using the other day's for lecture have their finals. In a few cases departmental type final examinations have been scheduled in combination with Tuesday-Thursday lecture sequences by the instructor. Should this produce examination conflicts for a significant number of students in a class, the departmental type examination is to have priority and the instructor of the Tuesday-Thursday class should contact the Scheduling Section of the Office of Admissions and Records Mr. Foster (a supervisor) to resolve the conflict. That section will also notify departments having Tuesday-Thursday lecture sequence courses as to their examination locations well ahead of the final examination week. Unless the department is notified of a change it is assumed by the Scheduling Section of this office, the locations will be the same as the regular class meeting locations.

Examinations for one and two credit-hour courses will be held during the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the formal final examination week. Three, four, and five-credit-hour classes will meet at the times listed above. Non-computer courses which give examinations will follow the same schedule as outlined for use and two-class-hour courses.

A student who finds he has more than three examinations on one day may petition, and a student who has two examinations scheduled at one time should petition his academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that a student may decide to miss his scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during that make-up period. This period is to be used only for a student whose petition has been approved by his dean.

A student who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given a student who misses a final examination and is not involved in a situation covered by the preceding paragraph will be found in the student's memorandum forward to members of student government staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

U. S. China talks evoke reactions

TOKYO (AP) - In East Asia several clouds are blowing in to shadow the triumph approved by prospects of a U.S.-China summit meeting.

Formula's reaction comes surprise - disappointment that President Nixon is undertaking a personal mission toward Chou En-Lai. But roads do not stop here. Japan shows embarrassment. Hano exhibits signs of alarm.

News Analysis

The initial North Vietnamese reaction has been one of condemnation based, apparently, on the fear that the U.S.-China meeting will produce a new Indochina conference of the Geneva type dominated by the Chinese. After his talk with Nixon's aide, Henry A. Kissinger, Chou made it known that China favored such a conference. Since the Vietnam war began, the Hanoi leadership had managed with difficulty to walk a tightrope between keeping its policies toward Moscow and Peking roughly equal while politely rejecting any ideas of a common front against the Soviet military threat.

The North Vietnamese have made it evident that they regard the Paris peace talks, where they can negotiate independently of China or the U.S., as the upcoming summit. Their assertion that a Geneva-style conference dominated by their own positions would be a new doomsday for Moscow stems from the latter experience of 1962 when the Russians pressed them to accept half of Vietnam rather than all of it, on the condition that reunification elections would be held later.

The present Indochina leader is an indirect outgrowth of the 1954 conference. Unless an understanding is reached with Hanoi before Nixon sits down to his first banquet of Peking ducks, Chou may have to strike Vietnam off the agenda.

Chou's worries with Hano are matched by Nixon's with Japan. The pro-American government of Prime Minister Eisaku Sato was as much in the dark as Hano's when the summer summit took place. Sato's political convictions now are trying to back him into a corner for failing to keep up with the race toward recognition of Peking. Though Chou's move is an important factor in maintaining the peace of Asia some American observers regard Japan as even more vital to that objective in the line of thought that goes this way: 'What would it profit to gain the friendship of the People's Republic if in the process Japan was lost?'

Relations between Washington and Tokyo are officially described as cordial. Trade between the two countries is at a record high. But disagreement over trade restrictions has put strains on Japanese-American diplomatic relations.

Pan Am games dubbed Sardine Olympics

By Robert Munden
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Young athletes will be cramming 14 a room next week, enacting the story of the Pan American Games and U.S. Olympic leaders fear "quite a bit of grumbling." These are the words of the "Sardine Olympics." The American and United States teams began Sunday by flying charter jets from Miami Beach's port点了 to the Pan American Games in Santiago, Chile. "Our athletes will be told not to make derogatory comments to the press," said U.S. Olympic Committee President Edward C. Banwell. We try to make them realize that they are ambassadors for the United States of America.

Six SIU athletes will compete in the games, four for the U.S. and two for Colombia. In Cali, Colombia, an official of the Pan-Am Games said international specifications in this kind of events had been "obviously followed." Artemio Franco, a physician, said he is satisfied that the Colombian and Cuban athletes living there now are satisfied with their living quarters. Officials of the Pan-American Sports Organization (PASO) aren't going to be eager to jump on Cali or the nation of Colombia, hosts for what is billed the "Western Hemisphere Olympics." Truth is that few others wanted the games.

"Not many cities expressed interest in absorbing the financial and physical obligations," said Banwell. The PASO is spending good executives. "Cali made the best offer." Cali is a tropical city of 368,000 located 89 miles off the Pacific coast. Among the sports being used in the Pan Am Games is the local building, but Colombia's third largest city went to considerable expense to even passably accommodate 19 sports and athletes from 20 nations.

It hurts morale to be jammed into double decker bunk beds in overcrowded rooms at the athletes' village, said Buck. "But we live with it.

PASO normally awards the quadrangular athletic show by zones, the idea being to send it to the northern zone Canada-U.S. Central American Zone and South American Zone in alternating periods.

Cali has been awarded the 1975 Pan Am Games, which are usually regarded as a master tuneup for the Olympic Games. The 1972 Olympics were scheduled at Munich, Germany and Sapporo, Japan. In 1976, they go to Montreal and Munich.

"But, since Chile has elected itself a Marxist president, I fear they're not even sending a team to Cali," said Buck. "If that's the case, the 1975 site may be up in the air again. I don't know.

The Pan Am Games is included in a over all, four-year budget of $18 million set by the U.S. Committee. Athletes are clothed and transported just as lavishly as they will be for Munich and Sapporo. The U.S. tried the Pan Am Games at Chicago and it wasn't quite the hot item with the ticket-buying public. The St. Louis area was in the bidding for the 1976 games, but PASO bracketed its fiscal years.

It's on to Cali and the "Sardine Olympics.

Mets batter Cubs, 5-1

CHICAGO (AP) - Tommie Agee hit a two-run single in the seventh inning as Ken Boswell slugged a two-run homer as the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs, 5-1, Thursday behind Tom Seaver's fifth shutout.

Boswell hit his second homer of the year in the first inning after Bud Harrelson had singled and the Mets moved in 3-4 against starter Steve Stone, second and third and scored on a single by Don Clendenon.

Agee started the third inning with a homer that cleared out Wrigley Field in right-center, then blasted his 11th of the season down the right field line in the fifth. Seaver, snapping a four-game losing streak, lost his 10th and boosted his record to 11-2.

Seaver lost his sixth in the third inning when he surrendered his fifth homer of the year.

The Mets put them up two games away from the second place Cubs while the Pirates continued to remain far ahead in the field.

"I applied for admission for a doctor's degree but I hope to keep running as long as I can," he said.

NBA head, two coaches meet

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Basketball Association has no desire to read college campuses in search of talent nor interfere with conferences. "It is ridiculous," said NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy said Thursday following a meeting with two college coaches.

Kennedy described as "very fruitful" a meeting with William L. Wall, McMurray College coach, and Bill Foster, Utah coach. Both are officials of the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

"We talked about many of the concerns that the coaches originally had," Kennedy said. "I reaffirmed that NBA teams have no desire to draft college players. "I believe in our college systems and in the players as a whole."

"I'm doing a lot of distance running trying to build up for the next Olympic," he said. "I'll see how I stand against the other runners of the country in the meet this weekend.

His toughest competitor will probably be Dennis DeMott of Des Moines, Iowa, who will be seeking his third straight championship in the 800 meter race, Moore set an American record of 1:48.87 in 1966, at the 1968 Olympics, which kept him from making a second appearance.

"I'm doing a lot of distance running trying to build up for the next Olympic," he said.
