City officials declare ‘austerity program’

By David L. Malanen Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale officials have declared an "austerity program" as part of the city’s financial status, which City Manager Edward Schmidt describes as "not very good."

The immediate effects of the belt tightening is that city will make no purchases that are unnecessary for continuation of city operation, and no replacements will be hired for city employees who may leave their jobs, according to Schmidt.

"We are where we are because the city has obtained any of the new sources of revenue we were hoping for," Schmidt said. Schmidt cited observation of the state budget at the state capitol and indicated that no new revenue sources appear.

Carbondale has been in poor financial shape for some time, with the initial indications of a "financial crisis" coming last May when Schmidt presented this year’s city budget.

At that time, Schmidt told the Carbondale City Council that the city would do well to "hold the line with the current budget if we receive no new sources of revenue." Schmidt said Thursday that conditions have not changed since May.

To compound the problem now, however, Schmidt said city employees are looking for a pay raise promised last spring. Contract negotiations with the city employees’ union are in progress, with contracts expiring Nov. 1.

In an attempt to alleviate Carbondale’s financial "crisis," Carbondale Mayor Neil Eckert is in Springfield seeking Emergency Employment Act (EEA) funds, Schmidt said.

Under the EEA, federal funds are available to cities and other governmental unit under 75,000 population to hire employees. Small governmental units, such as Carbondale, three alternatives are open:

- Share a portion of EEA funds designated to the state.
- Share a portion of EEA funds designated to the county in which the city is located.
- Apply for discretionary funds to cover any deficit from the federal government to the city.

Schmidt said Eckert is attempting to see "anybody who can tell us the status of our application." That application for EEA funds was made last week, following Council approval.

Eckert is investigating possible funds from Illinois’ allocation or from discretionary funds from the federal government. Jackson County last week gave some EEA funds to Carbondale, but the money allocated will pay for only five jobs.

"This (possible EEA funds) is the last ace we’ve got," Schmidt said. "In the event this doesn't pan out, and even if it does, before we get any relief, we’ve got to tighten our belts."

If the city does receive EEA funds, then the city would need to hire any new employees or re-hiring current employees if they have been laid-off for 30 days. Schmidt said. He said he is not certain whether the city will have to lay-off all employees and direct them to continue work on the possibility of city employees going on strike.

The Council will meet in closed session Friday afternoon to discuss the city’s budget, consolidations, and employees’ unions will meet again Tuesday with Jerry Maxwell, personnel director. But contract

Nixon nominates two to fill vacancies on Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lewis F. Powell, a Richmond, Va., lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association, and William H. Rehnquist, and assistant attorney general, were nominated by President Nixon Thursday night to the Supreme Court.

The President announced the nominations in the nation in a radio and television address. If confirmed by the Senate, they will succeed Justices Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan and bring the court to full strength.

Powell, 64, a soft-spoken lawyer, has also headed the American College of Trial Lawyers. Rehnquist, 47, heads the legal counsel office in the Justice Department, and is, in effect, the President’s lawyer.

Nixon said "they will be known to be remembered."

Nixon recalled that he had appointed Rehnquist as an assistant attorney general, "serving as the chief interpreter of the Constitution for the whole government.

"I would rate William Rehnquist as having one of the finest legal minds in the whole country today," Nixon said. "He raises at the very top as a constitutional and a legal scholar."

Nixon said both men are "convinced of the necessity of a constitutional interpretation, not only in a judicial, but a political sense."

The selections were surprising in that neither had been included in a list of six prospects sent to the American Bar Association for evaluation. However, the ABA judiciary committee found neither of the two top choices, Herschel H. Ford, a Little Rock, Ark., lawyer, and Mildred L. Lillie, a California appeals court judge, qualified for the Supreme Court.

By choosing Powell and Rehnquist the President may have averted a bruising Senate battle.

As I suggested Friday, the Senate’s delay in nomination is not very helpful," Schmidt said. "Even though we won’t get the money, we don’t have the administration and how much of a raise in pay we can get from that. It would be too bad to lose negotiations."

Layer forms and fills new SIU position

By Richard Lores Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A new position was created and filled Thursday when President Robert G. Layer named Donald H. Arnold to serve as comptroller for SIU at Carbondale.

The new position is similar to the one at the Edwardsville campus where James Metcalf serves as comptroller and budget officer. Metcalf has served in that position since Sept. 1, 1971.

Layer said the move was part of the decentralization process. He said it was a shift of existing personnel. He emphasized that no additional personnel have been hired and that Arnold’s former position will be left vacant.

Arnold, who will immediately resign his new duties, said he would serve as chief financial officer. He will advise Lay on such matters as budget preparation, financial accounting, financial analysis and budget control. While Arnold’s title is comptroller, he will be an addition to the Administrative and as an assistant to the President.

"The critical issue will be providing continuity of service," said Arnold, executive vice president concerning the fiscal crisis of 1972," Arnold said.

Arnold joined SIU in May, 1968. From that time until Thursday, he was as Director of Budget and Reports. He was a member of the Community Conduct Code, an ad hoc committees of the University Senate.

Prior to coming to SIU, Arnold served as manager of Financial Analysis and Planning for General Electric in Schenectady, N.Y. He holds a B.S. degree in finance from the University of Illinois, an MBA degree in management at Southern Illinois University, a Ph.D. degree in management at Loyola University of Chicago, and is now working on his Ph.D. in education at SIU.

UN expert Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, Thursday’s Convocation speaker, predicted many problems ahead for the United Nations when he said that "the UN is ill prepared for the problems ahead."

Birth control by banking

Sometimes before people became greatly concerned about the matter, Aldous Huxley had prescribed a method of birth control that enabled a population of peoples to effectively control their population growth. The method involved sterilization of marriage after storing amounts of their sperm for possible artificial insemination later. And, until now, no one had ever believed the method for reversible, it seems to be the best method of birth control to a great extent.

Medical experts are saying that people wanting vasectomies should realize that at present the method will not save their children when they will have to want to have their own children? And what about the other methods of contraception?

According to Leader, about 30 per cent of women who have unwanted pregnancies are using the pill or the IUD that 1960. He further says that 80 per cent of the women of couples using the condom, diaphragm, jellies, foams and the rhythm method will become pregnant against their wishes before they reach menopause.

Obviously the answer right now is to store semen in a frozen semen bank and then have a vasectomy. In this manner couples can eliminate risk and worry involved with the other contraceptive methods. Further, this procedure offers the most effective method of controlling population growth.

Another medical expert, Matthew Freund, of the New York Medical College, says that more than 600 children have been born by artificially inseminating frozen sperm.

Letters to the editor

Far-fetched letter contested by students

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is in reply to the closed-minded, biased opinion of Carl Holt, graduate student in education. We are not in the habit of writing letters to a newspaper, but in this case. Mr. Holt’s letter was so completely far-fetched that we felt a reply was absolutely necessary.

Mr. Holt: It is obvious in your letter that either the Daily Egyptian has misstated your age, or you are fantastically naive. We’ve all attended numerous SUU games and we’ve never heard such a display of language (or four-letter words), as you call it, by students at a game of any kind. It seems apparent that you must be some type of fanatical about four-letter words. Anything worse than “hell” is your vocabulary and you run home to the boob tube or radio.

We feel sorry for you, you’re going to have a very rough time coping in the real world. Or is it different out East? Perhaps, Mr. Holt, you are one of the favored few who have never used a four-letter word in your entire 20+ years and you don’t drink, or have a good time. You must lead a very dull life. Blah. (Alka Seltzer time).

Not all of the students at SUU are “four-mouthed drunkards” and, on the other hand, they’re not all like YOU either. We are all different, so please don’t make sweeping generalizations based on the actions of a few.

Urges students to write in support of UN

To the Daily Egyptian:

Ostensibly, the collective nations of the world are not making very sweet music together on the quiet, less political airwaves of the United Nations and UNESCO and other United Nations specialized agencies, which do not make banner headlines. For the United Nations to be a successful peace-keeping agency, it needs not only a change in machinery (universal membership with balanced voting procedure, elimination of the veto, a respected and used World Court and a UN police force but a change in heart. I have faith that the next generation (of God willing, we can wait) will break down national sovereignty and transform the UN into a federation of man dedicated to solving the enormous problems of man’s survival: the conservation of human and natural resources which know no national boundaries.

In the meantime, we need to urge our elected representatives to strengthen and use the fledgling UN peace-keeping force so that another Vietnam will not rear its ugly and a world that need that about the business of the preservation of earth with liberty and justice for all. Let’s all resolve to urge the strengthening of the United Nations by writing to the President and our representatives on United Nations Communications Day, October 24.

Television addiction is road to doom

By Arthur Segge

It is no coincidence that the crime rate in recent years has been rising in direct proportion to the growing number of addicts in the country. Conservative estimates say that 42.5 per cent of the nation's burglaries are now committed by "junkies," as they are called, to support their habits.

And what is the first thing a junkie steals when he enters a home? It is, of course, the television set.

For it is the television set, and it alone, that can give the relief to desperately needed by those poor unfortunate addicted to the junk now being shown on television.

The soaring statistics of television addiction has become such a grave national problem that it cannot be swept under the rug. Already, television addicts outnumber heroin addicts ten to one, while alcoholism has become a secondary social problem.

What this has come to mean in terms of broken homes, ruined careers and destroyed lives will never be known. Suffice it to say the very survival of our society may well be at stake.

Typical, perhaps, is the case of Mr. Name Withheld of Plainfield, S.D. A year ago, Mr. Withheld was a decent husband, a good provider and a fine-father to his two children, whom he took on outings every weekend.

Then one Sunday morning, a neighbor named Joe called: "Pass, Name," whispered Joe, "C'mon over, I got the real thing. Wide screen in living color!"

Well, "just to try it." Mr. Withheld slipped over to his neighbor's to watch only a few minutes of the Packers-Jets game. Which was followed by the Lions-Tigers game. Which was followed by...

Anyway, Mr. Withheld finally stumbled home at 2 a.m. bleary-eyed and stupefied. Worse yet, the following weekend he did it again.

At first, Mrs. Withheld tried to be tolerant "Please, dear," she would say, "I don't mind an occasional binge with the boys, but these all-night orgies... Think of your children. Think of me."

"Shut up!" Mr. Withheld would snap. "I think the highlights of the Cobra-Mongoose game are on."

The beginning of the end came when Mr. Withheld stayed home from work one Tuesday to catch some Videotape replays on This Morning Show. When he returned, he'd lost his job; his wife and children had left him; and he'd sold all the furniture except the television set in order to support his 16-hour-a-day habit.

"Mr. Name Withheld has become a junkie.

Multiply the case of Mr. Name Withheld by millions and you begin to grasp the scope of the problem. Before it's too late, the public might be alarmed to the dangers inherent in this electronic escape from reality.

For this fact, there is no cure. Some temporary success has been achieved by putting addicts with alcohol until they are too drunk to turn the knobs. But more promising is "Method One."

This consists of injecting heroin into the junkie's veins until he becomes hooked on it rather than television.

"At least with heroin addicts," as one expert points out, "there's a chance that some day they may return to leading useful, productive lives."

Improper flag use charges levied against SIU student

By Keith Brown and Barb Keppel

An SIU sophomore who says he served 31 months in combat in Vietnam was acquitted of two charges by a jury on Tuesday. The jury acquitted him of all charges.

Jim Vettri, 21-year-old government major from Des Plaines, was arrested Monday after a University police officer stopped him for an alleged traffic violation near Shrewberry.

Security Police confiscated the flag from the Dodge camper Vettri was driving.

Vettri said the flag was draped across the ceiling of the car as a decoration. He said that the flag had not been damaged or defaced.

The student was charged under Title 10 law - prohibiting use of the flag and who provided for a minimum fine of $1,000 and a maximum of five years in prison.

Vettri appeared in Jackson County Circuit Court Wednesday where his bond was set at $100 and the case was continued to Nov. 1.

The charge in Vettri's case was taken off by Judge Stern.

Vettri said he served with the 12th Airborne Brigade in Vietnam in 1968. He said he was discharged with a 50 per cent disability for wounds in his right leg and that he had three kills of enemy soldiers while serving in the South Vietnamese government.

He also said he won the Silver Star for valor in saving an American soldier's life when a patrol was ambushed by the enemy.

"There are no holes, tears, burn-marks, or any other kind of mutilated damage done to that flag," Vettri said. "I've never done anything to dishonor my country, but I hung that flag up there for display and I feel that a convergence that has to live with these deaths has the right to display the symbol of power that made him pull the trigger.

"If the judicial system of this country can't pass any action, then

It's worse statistically than it is in Nan," he declared.

Vettri said he was stopped by SIU patrolmen Janemie B. Counts for having an improperly lighted license plate on the camper.

However, he said he was not given a ticket on the traffic charge.

He said Counts took his driver's license and ordered him to drive to the Security Police Headquarters.

Another officer took the flag from the camper. Vettri said, and told him that it probably "would be given to the V.F.W. (Veterans of Foreign Wars) for destruction."

"I told him I know about being a veteran, that I had been in Vietnam, and that kind of started," Vettri said.

Vettri also accused Counts of damaging his flag.

"He said he was trying to get the bad people out of Carbondale and if he was off duty he'd do what he really wanted to do to me," Vettri said.

Counts was unavailable to comment on the student's accusations.

Weather spy fails to make global obit

VAN DENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A $1.6 million satellite assigned to provide global weather reports failed to enter orbit Thursday and apparently plunged back to earth, officials said.

First reports indicated the 608-pound satellite and its Delta rocket.reentered the earth's atmosphere about 90 minutes after the 4 a.m. launch and crashed near Devon Island in the Elizabethan Group, above the Arctic circle northeast of Alaska.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration official at the California base said the spacecraft "failed to achieve orbit" and they were trying to determine why.

The satellite had been expected to circle the earth in a 600-mile-high polar orbit for several years, snapping 11 pictures on every global swing and sending back weather information every 12 hours.

So what's so unusual about Dick Hunter? He has this habit—give him an army cot, some pole lamps, a rowboat, a couple of guitar cases and some other choice items, a few people who have some money to spend and a charitable cause and suddenly you'll hear Hunter shouting:

"What do I hear for this guitar case? Do I hear a dollar?" "Five cents! You never know what could be inside.

It's men like Hunter who tempt your aunt Matilda to buy an antique lamp for which she has no use, or who'll sell your cousin Arnold a bucket of apples for "only" $30. Dick Hunter is an auctioneer. He's had lots of practice. Hunter estimates he's been an auctioneer at least 10 charity auctions in the Southern Illinois area over the past two years. Two years ago, he was auctioneer at the salvage store every Friday night. He's even been to auction schools.

"It was a two-week course in Fort Smith, Ark. They had basic training in auctioneering. They teach you how to chant and the different types of auctions," Hunter said.

Watching Hunter in action is a real experience. It's like being at a tent revival. Hunter is in complete control of the action even though the stage is filled with such things as a washing machine, parked cars and golf clubs. His congregation is always restless, yet Hunter's voice is in command. As soon as the next item is ready, the buyers begin to pay serious attention as Hunter gets his sermon.

"Our next item is this television set. We don't know if it works or not. It's in the auctioning business, not in the guarantee business. What you get is what you get." Do I hear $50?"

Dick Hunter's assistants point to the person who has made the $30 bid.

"I've got $30. Do I hear 12 and a half?" yells Hunter into the microphone he is straining. A buyer from the other side of the room raises his number. Now Hunter has his opening—a chance for a bidding war.

"I've got 12 and a half. Who'll make 15?" Britts Hunter as revs of sweat run down his forehead into the white bandana he has tied around his bristled neck.

Another buyer raises his number.

"I've got 15. Do I hear 17 and a half?" asks Hunter in an excited and quicker tempo.

But suddenly the bidding stops.

"I've got 15. I warn you I'll sell it for that price. It's getting hot up here and we've got to move along. Do I hear 17 and a half? I've got 15. Sold for $15. You really take that one, mister," Hunter says.

Hunter's philosophy about auctioneering is simple:

"You've got to keep the crowd alive. There's really no problem except you wear out your voice after a while. You've been for a day. The numbers just come naturally when you're up there. When you have two people bidding, you get an auction. You can pretty well tell if a buyer is going to stop or not.

The next time you go to an auction look for Dick Hunter. But watch out—you may be the one who buys the television set.

Foe of war says debate time past

By Pat Newsom
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The debate at the Hilll House Wednesday night remained Douglas Allen, assistant professor in philosophy, of 1946—when debate on the legitimacy of the Vietnamese conflict was endless and futile. His debate opponent was Col. C. R. Carlson, commander of the SIU APHRI. The subjects—military intervention, post-war Vietnam and American imperialism.

By entering into the arena and accepting the presumption of the legitimacy of the debate, Allen said, one is destroying the credibility of his arguments.

"By doing so the degrades himself. The time is past for debate," Allen said.

The presumption that it is legitimate to debate those issues is an abomination, Allen said.

About half of the audience left at this point. Later, Allen said the audience probably realized they were deserting the whole discussion.

"Let's not forget that our institutions in this country are based on this (debating the issues)," Col. Carlson commented.

"I'm not degrading the debate on Vietnam," Allen said. "What is no longer a debatable item is whether America is justified in the way it is in Vietnam, he said.

Allen compared debating intervention in Vietnam to the Nazis debating what methods should be used to slaughter Jewish people.

According to Allen, the people of Vietnam are being culturally and ethnically murdered in Vietnam by Americans.

"I don't see Vietnam as an isolated example (of American imperialism)," Allen said. "We seem to function best in countries where the governments have no desire for freedom."

"This is one view of our mission," Carlson interjected. "There are other views."

There are other kinds of assistance the U.S. military can give besides violent intervention, Carlson said. At some time in the future, the military may serve as a super-national peace-keeping force, Carlson said.

Carlson also said he recognized some good points of American intervention in Vietnam—such as improved technology. More Hands and tractors are seen in Vietnam since the Americans intervened, he said.

Another point is the inclusion of American campaign spending be limited by fixing it to the number of votes for which they were willing to be elected.

"We seem to function best in countries where the governments have no desire for freedom," Allen said.

South Vietnamese claim control of 60 square miles in Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam’s army says it has taken control of some 60 square miles in eastern Cambodia and that recent enemy attacks between Saigon and the frontier are just “noise” to cover the defeat of North Vietnamese forces.

A South Vietnamese commander said Thursday that South Vietnamese troops had swept six miles north and about 10 miles east of the rubber town of Krav, near the border in Cambodia, without making contact with the enemy.

The 2,500-man pursuit operation is reported continuing.

A Saigon command spokesman quoted Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander in the military region that includes Saigon and the Cambodian battlegrounds, as saying four Viet Cong regiments had been ordered to step up harassment attacks in the 11 provinces around the South Vietnamese capital.

This could account for recent enemy shelling and small ground attacks north, northeast, and northwest of the capital. Some have been as close as three miles to Saigon.

Latest action in the border region included ineffectual shelling Wednesday and Thursday of a South Vietnamese military airport near Tay Ninh, 54 miles northwest of Saigon. South Vietnamese civilians were reported killed and wounded.

A short way to the north, South Vietnamese paratroopers killed four enemy Wednesday near Route 32, on the Vietnamese side of the border. The Saigon command said Government losses were put at three killed, three wounded. The patroopers also reported finding 17 bodies of enemy killed by air strike.

Another paratroop unit killed five enemy Thursday and last man killed in a brief fight near Fire Base Pac.

Reflecting the continuing American withdrawal from the war, the U.S. Command reported that five Americans died in combat last week—the lowest figure since three Americans were killed in the first week of August, 1963.

Eight Americans were killed in battle the week before last and 21 the week before that.

The American weekly casualty summary also listed 84 American wounded, a decrease of 12 over the previous week. The Viet Cong summary put its week’s losses at 301 killed, 191 wounded.

Idea gains bankers’ support

NEW YORK (AP) — The idea of a floating prime lending rate is attracting increasing attention among lending bankers.

Its adoption would be a radical change in the traditional policy that has been in effect since 1934. The prime rate is the minimum interest charged by commercial banks on the most liquid and most creditworthy corporate borrowers. Thus, banks set the rate to reflect the demand for loans and the availability of lending money.

Many major banks dropped their prime rate from 6 to 5 1/2 per cent this week, following the lead Wednesday of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. It had been at 6 per cent since July, ranging earlier between a record 6 3/4 per cent in mid-1960 and 5 1/2 per cent this past spring.

The possibility of a shift to an automatically floating rate was raised this week by top executives of First National City Bank, the largest bank in New York and second largest in the country.

Walter B. Wriston, chairman, and Edward L. Palmer, chairman of the bank’s executive committee, indicated in an interview during the American Bankers Association convention in San Francisco that they were weighing a decision on the question.

If adopted, it is expected to shift from the politically sensitive fixed prime rate to something more clearly reflecting the market.

Palmer said: “But with the price freeze on, we are not sure this is the time to do it.”

All passengers killed

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) - Sixteen persons aboard a Chicago and Southern Airlines plane were killed Thursday when the craft crashed utility lines in southern Indiana. The crash took place in rural Indiana. The bodies of the pilot and 14 passengers were recovered. The crash was the first fatal accident involving a Chicago and Southern Airlines plane.

Police said the plane was piloted by the president of the company, Frank Handren. His co-pilot and all 14 passengers died in the ferry crash of the two airlines' planes.

Aircraft Administration officials said the plane should have been no lower than 800 feet at that point. They could not determine why the plane went down.

Chicago and Southern was operated by the Board of Commissioners at Capital Airport. Springfield, for "apparant equipment al aer..." and in connection with several incidents at the airport.

Chicago and Southern officials have not commented on the crash. The National Transportation Safety Board is investigating the crash.

The plane left Chicago's Midway Field at 11:35 a.m. CDT and was due in Peoria at 12:15 p.m.

The Peoria control tower chief, lesser, Glass said, the tower was in radio contact with the plane until 11:25 a.m.

"It seemed the plane was proceeding normally but when we didn't pick up any activity within two or three minutes, we assumed something happened," Glass said.

Glass said the plane was making an instrument approach to the landing. He said his visibility was low.

Mrs. Robert Johnson, who lives four miles from the airport, saw the control tower light up at 12:15 p.m.

She said that while she and her husband were eating lunch they heard a noise that sounded like a bomb.

"We ran outside and saw a ball of fire and smoke," she said.

The plane struck several 75-foot power poles, then a tree and crashed on a farm owned by Robert McGaghage.

Visibility was about one mile in rain and fog. Glass said was making a circling maneuver as part of a standard instrument approach on one of the runways at the airport.

Case said the circling maneuver was standard procedure at the airport and was being used at the time near the control tower.

"It was quite apparent that the aircraft had passed through several very high transmission lines at a point only a few yards back of the crash area. This is in line with the proper approach path but the power lines are only 50 or 75 feet above the ground," Glass said.

"The aircraft should not have been at that altitude above the ground, which would have cleared everything nicely," Case said.

A temporary moratorium was set up in the Air National Guard Armory near the Peoria Airport.

Boozart said he would hold a news conference later.

By early evening, two of the 16 persons aboard had identified by the coroner's office. They had identified several Chicago attorneys, Boozart among them, plus Seibert, two Chicago brokerage house employees and Harri son the pilot.

The coroner's office said it was working to confirm the identities of the other nine persons.

Bohlen blames UN problems on Big Four

By Sue Millien
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, reported to be the highest-ranking U.S. career diplomat, spoke at Thursday's Convocation while members of the audience slept, con-

Based and, in some cases, just watched the proceedings.

Bohlen was asked to speak at Convocation in conjunction with the Vietnam Pageant. He began his talk with a little introduction of himself and continued with a lecture on the origin and make-up of the United Nations. Bohlen's place in the hall's dim light enabled him to seat an already restless audience.

In fact some students got up and left at 1 30 p.m. and still more were waiting at the doors at 1 30 p.m. Bohlen said there are two issues which still haven't been totally resolved in the United Nations. They are the veto voting power in the UN and the Soviet request that all the members of this committee be admitted to the UN. The United States diplomats replied that if that were done all 50 of our states should be admitted. Bohlen said Bohlen said the Soviet Union was allowed to admit the Ukraine area for voting privileges in the UN. At the same time the United States was granted three votes. "We have never said all three votes and if we did they would be empty votes, which would be used solely for the purpose of showing how ridiculous the Ukrainian vote is."

Bohlen said the concession to admit the white area was made at the push of Great Britain. He said at that time the UN had been chosen as an original member of the League of Nations, but the United States was not really qualified to belong to the UN. He said, "In fact I don't understand why they admitted India to the League of Nations in the first place. He said, we found that in the past India wasn't admitted to the UN Security Council if the Soviet proposal was blocked. Bohlen said the UN is never able to fulfill the primary function it started out to do. He said the problem lies with the Big Four and their basic conflicts."

"If Communist China is admitted to the UN there will be a different configuration of the world situation," he said. Bohlen said the reason being that Russia, the U.S. and Nationalist China are three countries which have no common treason and conflicting ideologies.

Bohlen said it is something that had to be done sooner or later but that he was surprised President Nixon made the move.

He said the UN is expected to vote on whether or not China will be admitted to the United Nations. Bohlen said his sources indicated the vote would be close with a 2 to 1 margin on the proposal. One of the reasons he named for the close vote is many of the countries in the UN are playing for power." He said they see admitting China to the UN as an opportunity to be taken advantage of. "Bohlen did not elaborate on specific examples but said 'I think they will find this out in the course."

He also pointed out that a precedent would be set for other countries, if Taiwan was admitted from the UN.

Bohlen concluded by saying it would be hard to maintain a cold and sturdy policy without the support of the American people. He said he could understand why the nation is divided.

"I think every one would admit that U.S. involvement in Viet Nam was a mistake," he said. However, he said, "It actually which does not have the support of the people, will be useless."

In the question-answer session at the coffee hour, following Convocation, Bohlen, after asking a reporter, UN there should be anything else, he said he could not be pinned. The coffee hour was dominated by the student government and held on the first floor of the Student Center, directly following his Convocation presentation.

Committee advocates tighter expense rules

By David L. Mahanam
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Tighter regulations of Illinois em- ployees' expense accounts, aimed directly at SIU-Edwardsville President John Rodheim and the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), have been recommended by a special committee appointed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

The committee's recommen- dations, which will be given a hearing today, is that the state, with the approval of the General Assembly, include tighter control of meals expenses at the employee's home city. A requirement that meals earned by state officials be reimbursed to the state treasury and a prohibition against charging the state for membership in private clubs.

According to John W. McCarter, director of the Bureau of the Budget and acting director of finance, clampdown on expenses incurred at private clubs are aimed at Rod- heim's expense practices. Rod heim has charged membership in private clubs to the state, according to McCarter.

Another new rule, aimed at Rod heinman as a result of findings of the Legislative Audit Commission, eliminates the use of state funds for entertainment and promotion.

Other proposed regulations in- clude:

—Elimination of charging the state for meals in the employee's home city. Only in exceptional cases will such meals be allowed, and only then with written explanation of why the expense was incurred.

—All honoraria, such as speakers fees, earned by state employees must be remitted to the state. This regulation includes all officials appointed by the governor.

SIU-Edwardsville has received the report of the governor's attack and no mention was made of the Carbondale campus.

University Treasurer Robert L. Gallaghe said Thursday that he foresees no problems here if the rules are implemented.

"I'm really not sure if there will be any effect here until we see what comes out of the recommen- dations," Gallagh said.

Seventeen students in the Administration of Justice program who made the dean's list will be honored at the fall quarter convocation at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Morris Library Auditorium. They are: Donald Bales, Louis Bousot, James H. Cain, Roland Clark, Michael Cushin, Linda Dietrich, Deberene Ditterline, Mark Hurling, Gordon Meyer, Frederick Miercik, Dimitri Menge, Sally Randolph, Shari Rhode, James Roche, James Rosen, Dianne Sparks and Darrel R. Williamson.

V.S. Pillai, who is the Distinguished Visiting Professor at the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency, and Corrections this fall, will speak on "The Role of the United Nations in Crime Prevention and Control" on this occasion. Pillai is a native of Ceylon and has served as Advocate of the Supreme Court of Ceylon. From 1962 he has served as a senior adviser and director of the United Nations Asia and Far East Institute in Tokyo. Presently he is a senior adviser at UN Headquarters in New York.

The School of Music has announced the senior recital of Elaine Bune, soprano, of Geoffrey and Robert Hale, piano, of Dixon at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Home Economics Auditorium.

Miss Bune will be accompanied by Andrea Saunders and assisted by James Gray, clarinet, John Stables, violin, and Edwin Langerharte, cello. The program includes works by Debussy, Last, Bach, Purcell, Schubert and Mahler. The recital is open to the public without charge.

Herbert Marshall, director of Soviet and Eastern European Studies, was chosen Mathur Scholar of the Year by Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio. Marshall succeeds Erich Fromm, noted psychoanalyst and social philosopher, to the position, decided by a faculty-student vote.

The SIU administration and the Board of Trustees have agreed to release Marshall to serve as Visiting Mathur Scholar at Case Western for winter quarter. In addition to providing Marshall with board and lodging, as well as separate offices for his work, Case Western has agreed to provide Freida Brilliants (Mrs. Marshall) with a sculptor's studio for her work.

George Mace tries bridging student-town—campus gaps

By Sue Bolt
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Some students at SIU would say that George Mace has joined the "pig" administrators on this campus.

But, according to Mace, his new position as chief administrator of student affairs will serve to improve communications between the students and the University and community.

He is bringing to his job some definite ideas and perceptions concerning student relations.

"Students are citizens both of the university and the community, and where they have responsibilities they also have rights," said Mace.

"As citizens they should be provided with the opportunity to indicate their wishes to both the city and the President's Office," he said.

In his new position, which he assumed this fall, Mace coordinates the areas of student relations, student services, student work and financial assistance, and student activities.

Before accepting this position with the University, Mace spent about five months here under an academic administrative internship as a fellow of the American Council of Education.

During this time he proposed a plan for reorganizing what is now the Chancellor's Office, concentrating on the "functional definition" of the various administrative areas.

His plan divides the administration of the campus under the President into four areas—academic affairs, student affairs, business affairs and public service relations, each now being implemented for this campus.

Mace's approach to describing his philosophy toward student relations, Mace said, "You can't lump all students into one bag. I think that students are interested primarily in enhancing their horizons intellectually and this sometimes leads them to seek more unconventional kinds of solutions to things than those of us who have a more conventional, perhaps restricted, view of things."

Addressing himself to the recurring problems of street blockage on behalf of student unrest, Mace said this is neither the fault of the University nor the city but rather a problem of finite space which must be dealt with.

He said possible solutions to the problem might be turning that section of Illinois Avenue into a mall area or breaking up the concentration of taverns. But he sees even more promise in the idea being considered by city and University officials to press for legalization of 18-year-old drinking and allowing alcoholic beverages in dorm rooms and possibly sold on campus.

The University need not concern itself with the doctrine of its in loco parents. Mace said.

On the subject of demonstrations, Mace said force should be used against demonstrators only after they begin to use force. "We all have the right and the freedom to demonstrate as long as it is peaceful and orderly," he said.

He said the apparent wanting of student interest in showy or violent demonstrations does not mean that students have become disinterested in the issues they were demonstrating against.

"Students are just as deeply concerned on the basis of principle but they recognize it's a new ball game," said Mace. Students have realized that continuing to seek the sensational, attention-getting approach loses its effect and defeats its purpose after the initial shock is over.

"Students are turning more and more to using existing structures to attain their ends," Mace continued. "The structure has changed, their modes of expression are changing. I think we are all moving from what has been termed 'the politics of confrontation' to the politics of negotiation," said Mace.

"I also think you'll find that a large number of students now remain within these structures even during the riots in spring of 1970," Mace said.

Mace said many protesters have learned that revolution is hard, dirty work. "Some thought it would have to come to that, but now they are trying other alternatives," he said.

Camille to address Senate

Senator Billy Graham, Georgia, will deliver a state of the campus address at the Student Assembly next week. Senator Graham is expected to give a review of his administration's activities taking office this summer. He may also recommend a new program of legislation to the Senate.

University architects John Langen and Renaldo address the problem regarding the proposed memorial stadium.

A new elections commission was named at Wednesday's meeting. Mary Gallash, a junior from MT. Vernon, and David Clevenger, a junior from Riverdale, were named to join Gary Dishion, senior, as elections coordinator, on the commission.

The Finance Committee of the Senate will meet at 4 p.m. Monday in the Student Center Activity Room to discuss the allocation of funds to campus groups. Organizations should submit their funding requests to the committee. Senator and committee chairman Chuck Smith.

The Senate approved executive appointments in the following positions: Dave Maguire, director of Student Affairs; Helen cruising, executive assistant to the student body president; John Laramore, executive secretary; Connie Harris and Lauren Martin, office secretaries.

Dignitaries picket the White House

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House, a mecca for protesters, had some unusual picketers Thursday, a U.S. senator and two members of Canada's cabinet.

But unlike other signs carriers, Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska and the Canadians treated the Pennsylvania Avenue sidewalk for only 20 minutes before packing up and leaving the field to the regulars anti war Quakers, Pakistanis, and protesters and a man plugging away for Men's Liberation.

Gravel and the Canadians presented the five-megaton under ground nuclear explosion plan and later this month on Arubia Island in the Caribbean. The President has not decided whether to ban the test.

"We are setting essentially as a citizen," said Gravel, a Democrat carrying a sign that proclaimed "Mr. President, where do you stand on Canada?" Gravel said the Prime Minister is the only name for the President.

At the time the President was in the East Room receiving credentials of new ambassadors from Malta, Senegal, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Argentina. White Gravel paced the sidewalk, soldiers from the Army, he called them, were drummers dressed in Revolutionary War red coats, they were playing ceremonial music for the dignitaries departing from the front door.

Gravel said he had sent telegrams twice to President Nixon asking for a statement. He explained his appearance that the test could damage the economy. There was no response from the White House.

Stockholm (AP) - The Nobel Prize in Literature was awarded Thursday to Pablo Neruda, a Communist poet from Chile who says he tries "to interpret a little of the soul of all Latin America." Some of his poetry is anti-war, and his writings helped sway public opinion to bring the first Marxist government to Chile last year.

President Salvador Allende rewarded him by naming him ambassador to France.

Neruda is a left-wing writer. He was born in the 19th century, but took part in the revolution. He was known for his poetry and his political activities. He was a leader in the Communist Party in Chile and a member of the Latin American Left. His works have been translated into many languages and have been widely read around the world.
First U.S. POW in Viet war not believed

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The guns were quiet on that pleasant Sunday in Vietnam, the war but a whisper. For 17 days George Fryett Jr. was a time for Bermuda shorts, sandals, a sports shirt. A perfect day for an eight-mile bicycle ride to the swimming pool at To Duc on the outskirts of Qui Nhon.

But Fryett never made it. Instead, he pedaled his way along the Kings Highway into a National Liberation Front (NLF) trap and became the first American prisoner of the Vietnam war.

Fryett is free now, working as a real estate salesman in Tucson. He says the war has physical and nervous problems stemming from his captivity. He believes that they are as much the result of a lack of proper treatment by Americans after his release as of harassment or beatings by his captors.

And he says he is worried about other prisoners of war who have been or will be released and thrown into situations similar to his own.

"No one, no one, can come out of a prisoner of war camp in the same mental and physical shape he went in," Fryett said in an interview. "It may never show up right away — it may be years later — but many of these men are going to need treatment."

The story of Fryett's journey began in 1961, the day before Christmas, as he pedaled his way through the Vietnamese countryside. Vietnamese villagers casually approached him from behind on bicycles.

One of the two passed him. Seconds later a landmine exploded, propelling him from behind to his knees with a crash. Two cyclists dragged him through the brush, blindfolded him and threw him to the floor.

Fryett was forced to march all night along the group until about dawn when he received a chance to escape. "I had a chance, it seemed, to either die or escape, or die trying to escape. I managed to loosen the binds around my wrists, got a chance and tried to swim across the stream underneath."

He was recaptured before he reached the other side.

Later he was marched through a village to a Vietnamese nurse who dressed his wounds.

In the coming months interrogation, harassment, threats, and beatings all became routine, he said. "About once a month they’d tire of me and, he said, force him to dig a grave for himself "I slept on the ground most of the time, but later, was given a hammock to swing under the tree like one of the Viet Cong soldiers."

Fifty pounds lighter and in ill health, Fryett was marched to a base going to Saigon on June 24, 1962. His problems were far from over.

For one thing, he said, the Army thought he had deserted or was absent without leave and had removed his records from their active file three months before the NLF set him free.

Then about a month after his release he was affected with a high fever — his temperature soared to 104 — and military hospital personnel quickly diagnosed his condition as malaria. But, he said, they also noted on his records that he had a "thinking disorder" about once being a prisoner of war.

Fryett said that during his hospitalization part of his military records remained "retired" and out of reach of the hospital and that his claim of being an ex-P.W.O. was dismissed as a delusion.

He was shipped off to Letterman Hospital in San Francisco for mental rehabilitation.

"They treated me worse in the hospital than the Viet Cong did," he said. "I couldn’t even make them believe I actually had been a prisoner of war."

George Fryett Sr. of Long Beach, Calif., said the day his 17-year-old son George Jr. was captured by the North Vietnamese, he received a call from an officer in the Army in Seoul, South Korea, who said, "Tell me, tell me, are you sure?"

"Tell me, tell me, are you sure?"

Regents want students, not state, to pay more

DE KALB (AP) — The Illinois Board of Regents adopted Thursday a proposal that students should pay approximately one-third of their instructional costs. The action stemmed from a recognition of the growing demands on increasingly limited state resources.

The board, meeting on the campus of Northern Illinois University, is the governing board for NIU, Illinois State and Sangamon State Universities.

The board supported increased funding to the Illinois State Scholarship Commission so that no student will be denied attendance at any of the three universities because of financial reasons.

Several students representing the universities addressed the board and asked for increased funding for higher education. They said they believe students should not be required to pay an increasing share of the burden.

The board also approved and is seeking deficiency appropriations from the General Assembly so that the board may use the funds generated by a tuition increase.

Robert Barr, board chairman, who has recently been visiting the three campuses directed the university president to report on campus security plans. With special attention to where security plans are being planned at all times. He also requested reports on whether the universities are providing the maximum number of student jobs and on the quality and quantity of the universities' academic and personnel counseling.

The board approved budgets of $840,000 for an addition to the SIU president's residence, $870,000 for remodeling of Davis Hall on the SIU campus, and a tentative budget of $10,000 for a recreation building to be financed with revenue bonds and auxiliary services revenue.

A capital budget of $1,000,000 for fiscal 1979 was approved for an addition to the public affairs building of Sangamon State University.

In other action, meetings in Chicago were cut from four to two because of cost. Salary increases for top level administrators at the universities were approved. They will be effective according to the provisions of President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

Also approved was the appointment of Dr. Robert Hasl as acting vice-president of student personnel services at NIU.

Barr directed the presidents of the universities to confer with the staff of the Illinois Board of Higher Education on the status of their program evaluation before Nov. 8. The universities are to give no specific recommendations, however, without first going through the board.

gets water from glacier

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — This university community of 6,000 reside in the only city in the world to get its water from a city-owned glacier.

The clear, soft water comes from Arapahoe Glacier, 30 miles to the west atop the Continental Divide.
Animal industries prof cites milk as solution to hunger

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Part of the solution to the problem of increased production of milk, according to an Indian expert on the development of Animal Industries, Olson, is from India where he serves this summer as technical consultant for the Peace Corps dairy project in Andhra Pradesh, a state in southeastern India.

"Most people to India are vegetarians," said Olson. "This is due to the fact that the predominant religion in India is Hinduism, which considers animal life as sacred, especially cattle." Thus, said Olson, the killing of cattle for food would violate religious customs and social mores.

"This rules out any animal products for food except dairy products," he said, "which means that milk is practically the only good source of high-quality protein available to the people of India."

Realizing this fact, said Olson, the Department of Animal Husbandry of Andhra Pradesh asked the Peace Corps about three or four years ago for assistance in helping them increase the milk production of their cattle.

In response, the present Peace Corps program was started, said Olson, which involves sending trained American experts to help implement the Peace Corps' Animal Development Program. "The idea is to put the technical expertise for dairy development in an Indian context," he said.

Training for the volunteers began in the U.S. with a three-week technical course at Fresno Technical College in Fresno, Cal. said Olson. "Because we were designated until they arrived there," said Olson, "we designed the training program to India for a 16-week course in language and cross-cultural training, as well as more technical training, he said. It was during this phase of the program that Olson served as a coordinator.

Upon completion of the 16-week course in September, said Olson, the volunteers became full-time volunteers, and will remain in India for two years of service. There were 10 trainees in this year's program, said Olson.

The volunteers are responsible for teaching the farmers and the people of Andhra Pradesh basic techniques of dried milk management, said Olson. Of running, by changing the emphasis of fattening crops such as grasses and grains, said Olson, more and healthier cattle can be produced.

Olson added that the Indian government is experimenting with the idea of cross-breeding better European breeds of cattle with native Indian breeds to improve milk quality. But Olson said the new breeds will probably not be able to replace the current major milk producer, which is the water buffalo.

"The reason is that the "milk of the water buffalo is very high in butterfat, around seven to eight percent, and thus is very rich and sweet," said Olson.

Therefore, Olson feels that because the Indians have been drinking this milk for so long, they have become accustomed to it and probably would reject milk produced by European breeds as being too flat and relatively tasteless.

Olson said that from what he has seen considerable progress was being made in Andhra Pradesh from the standpoint of milk production and distribution.

"Other Peace Corps volunteers who have worked in the area in previous years say the situation is greatly improved," said Olson. However, Olson said he could not make a judgment as to the progress in other parts of India because of the time spent in Andhra Pradesh.

He said that India's problems are immense and how effective the Peace Corps' efforts in trying to solve them are will depend on the effectiveness of the Indian government's efforts to provide high-quality protein food for India's huge population in difficult to anticipate at this time."

SIU's freshman football team will conclude its fall season this weekend, but they will not be considered the victors.

"Impossible! Not really. The freshman will travel to their home away from home, the Fort Scott High School Stadium, for a contest with Illinois State on Saturday. The yearlings will be out to even their season's opener at Indiana State, which was also a loss.

The game will be the 82nd in the history of the Illini-Illinois State series. Illinois State was victorious in its first outing of the season, defeating Kentucky King College of Chicago, 24-14. Another contest with Western Illinois was cancelled.

Freshman coach Bob Ledbetter said he didn't know much about the Redbirds but the score of their first game indicated "they move the ball well and have a good defense." Having the ball was something the freshmen had trouble doing against the Sycamores, but Ledbetter hopes with better execution the problem will be eliminated.

The two gymnasts recently competed at regionals, winning all four scoring categories. The top three gymnasts were determined by a select panel of judges who were present at the regional competition. The gymnasts were chosen based on their performance over the season. Lindner was one of the top three gymnasts who competed in the Pan American Games in Columbus, Ohio. She finished in sixth position and was the top high bar gymnast for the American gymnastics delegation.

"Our team really had a fine performance," coach Lindner said. "It's just too bad that we couldn't have been better for the title."

In retrospect, Lindner did have an impressive outing in Ohio. She placed higher than Iowa State gymnast Brent Simmons and Dave Reitman.

The Skyhawks' sophomore was another of only seven gymnasts who qualified for the regional trip to Florida and France. The 1980 USAG gymnastics championship.

The Sahuaro gymnast was given a good reputation by the Inside State team. Her routine was 100% successful and included eleven verticals and one beam dismount.

"I am very pleased with my performance," Maronava said. "It has been a great first season for the team.

The days of the team are numbered at the national level. The team will continue to train hard and focus on the regional championships. The team will go for gold at the national level.

Elimation of freshman teams is supported, opposed at SIU

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, for all its rules and regulations, is as inconsistent as John Lindsay's recent political affiliations.

So much for consistency. In one of those years, the NCAA is planning to open the door to freshman teams. This is a much needed change. I support its return because it is the only way to ensure that the best athletes will compete at the highest level. Without it, the sport will lose its excitement and its appeal will diminish. The rule should be implemented immediately.

The problem is not with the players themselves, but with their eligibility. The NCAA has made it clear that they will consider a player eligible if he has completed a full year of college. This is a reasonable requirement, but it does not take into account the fact that some athletes may be ready to contribute immediately.

There are those who argue that allowing freshmen to play would lead to a decline in the quality of the sport. This is not true. Freshmen often bring new energy and enthusiasm to the team, and they can help to improve the overall level of play.

I believe that the NCAA should take this move seriously and consider it carefully. The sport needs a fresh injection of talent, and allowing freshmen to play is one way to achieve this.
