No happy ending yet
Ombudsman's autonomy unsettled

By Diane Mitziak
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The transfer of the Office of the Ombudsman was not necessarily provided a happy ending to the ombudsman, Kris Haedrich, ombudsman, said in a meeting on Monday.

Earlier this month, the office was switched from the province of T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, to that of Bruce Jones, vice president for student life.

"Ms. Haedrich would be allocated office space," said Ms. Haedrich, but the position of the ombudsman's independence remained unsettled.

"This office must be autonomous," said Ms. Haedrich.

Direct supervision of the ombudsman fell to Emil Spees, director of student life. Spees, as the new fiscal director of the office, has received no supervision for overseeing its budget.

Mager said the ombuds-budget was passed to Spees with a "commitment to provide the students with legal advice." Ms. Haedrich said, and she soon will seek Swinburne's advice and approval on them.

A group of law students, working as volunteers, may be brought into the office to provide students with legal advice.

"It's a pilot project which could expand into a permanent thing if it works well," she said.

Another "rather predominant problem" which Ms. Haedrich plans to tackle through her office is providing bail money for students who are arrested, she said.

It would be possible, Ms. Haedrich suggested, to set up a "court club." Students voluntarily would pay a nominal sum once a quarter or once a year to create a bail fund. When a member of the "club" needs bail, he could turn to the fund for the amount, she said.

Ms. Haedrich said she would like a graduate assistant to help with the "atrocious work load" of her office. She has the assistance of a practicum student from Higher Education now.

Haedrich now has access to two offices, one of which she said is necessary for the practicum student she supervises, the new volunteer law group, and the hopes-for-graduate assistant.

Alumni undertake stadium fund drive

By Marcia Bullard

The SIU Alumni Association has received a donation from the renovation of McAndrew Stadium.

Larry Jacober, president of the association, said no specific goals were set at a meeting of the board of directors Friday, but a motion was passed pledging the group's support of the project.

"We will take a "goodlook at the reserves we now have that are earmarked" to determine if the money could be used to support the stadium, Jacober said.

Jacober said the association also agreed to "in some basic way assist in fund-raising." Bids for the stadium renovation were more than $500,000 over original estimates. To make up for the difference, some cutbacks will be made in building plans and some additional funds will be raised from outside sources.

The Alumni Association had been asked by T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, to support the project. Jacober also talked with representatives of the SIU Foundation and the Student Senate.

Mager said Monday that he has not reached a decision yet on the stadium recommendation. He must come up with a revised plan to provide for the additional costs before the next Board of Trustees meeting. Last week, the architect, engineers and apparent low bidders on the stadium project gave Mager a list of alternatives in construction that would cut down on the cost.

Mager is presently trying to select the most feasible plan from them and couple it with fund-raising projects. Mager said he should have the recommendation ready in a month to present to the Board of Trustees. He said he will make his plan public as soon as the board members receive their copies of the plan.

Kissinger meets with Egyptian aide Kenneth J. Freed

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met Monday night with a special representative of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat regarding the Middle East situation. Both Kissinger and Ismail Fahmy said the meeting "was very promising." Fahmy, acting Egyptian foreign minister and a close associate of Sadat, arrived in Washington in the afternoon and originally was scheduled to see Kissinger late Tuesday morning. However, the Egyptian official sent word he wished to see Kissinger at the first opportunity.

Fahmy arrived at the State Department about 8 p.m. EST and spent an hour and one-half with Kissinger. Assistant Secretary of State for the Middle East Joseph Sisco and other U.S. officials.

It was presumed that Fahmy delivered a letter from Sadat to President Nixon outlining Egyptian thinking on both an immediate cease-fire and the beginning of peace talks afterward.

Earlier in the day, State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said he knew nothing to indicate the Egyptian official had brought a specific proposal for solving the Middle East conflict.

In a brief exchange with newsmen after the 90-minute session, Kissinger said he agreed with Fahmy's assessment that the meeting had been promising. The American secretary said they talked about "the whole complex — the cease-fire and after."
Witness fails to show; DE hearing cancelled

The loss of the Hambletonian “isn’t the end of the world” and the DuQuoin State Fair to continue without it, said Fred Huff, vice president, of the Hayes Fair Acres, Inc., in defense of the race.

Members of the Hambletonian Society voted Sunday in New York to move the race from DuQuoin to Saratoga, N.Y., in Philadelphia after the 1974 running in DuQuoin. The race has been held at DuQuoin since 1957.

The DuQuoin State Fair isn’t going to die, Huff said, “but it’s not the end of the world.”

He said William B. Hayes, president of Hayes Fair Acres, Inc., is hoping to sponsor the race “that equals or surpasses the Hambletonian for the people of Southern Illinois,” for the DuQuoin State Fair. “It may take a year or two to do that, but that’s the direction he’ll be aiming,” Huff said.

Last year, in our opinion, we may have had the luckiest day of our lives,” Huff said. “The Hambletonian decision will cause us to do something different, which may be as good or maybe not as good but it’s not the ‘end of the world.’”

John Sheridan, a senior who claims he has flies from research he has done for President Nixon, was called out of town over the weekend and could not show up for the 1 p.m. meeting of the special committee. Garry Seltzer said he would meet withCardContent with the Student Senate at 10 a.m. Monday. C PARTIAL

The investigation was authorized Oct. 10 after Fred Whitehead, an English professor, told the Student Senate a letter he wrote concerning SIU President Nixon’s character and the Kehalek trust fund was refused for publication by Howard R. Long, fiscal officer of the university.

The Academic Affairs committee, presided over by Seltzer, was sent into the matter. So far, Whitehead has been the only witness. Seltzer said he sent a letter to Long last week asking him to appear before the committee, but has received no reply yet.

Seltzer also testified that he had not received any communication from the committee on the basis of their knowledge of Daily Egyptian editorial policy and the contents of Seltzer’s letter.

Witnesses are persons recommended by the committee to the Senate for impeachment proceedings.

Whitehead and Long were called because of their close connection with the particular incident, Seltzer said. Seltzer said that he had been asked to write a letter to both men after receiving a telephone call from a student reporter. Seltzer said he tried to pick a writer “who had been with the paper several years.”

Appeal may come, court upholds zoning ordinance

By Dan Haar

A decision on whether to carry the challenge of this week’s order to the appeals court will be made within thirty days by Douglas County Circuit Court Judge Howard R. Long, legal advisor to the Illinois College of Law.

The case, Boras vs. The Village of Belle Terre, involves six unrelentless students at the State University of New York who were charged with illegal, liquor law violations.

The “U.S. Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, held that the ordinance prohibiting two or more unrelated persons from living in single-family homes was unconstitutional.”

In its ruling, the court said that a court of appeals is the only court with appellate jurisdiction in the case. In that court, Seltzer said, “the only court with jurisdiction in the matter.”

Miss Southern queries image, pledges to represent SIU

By Debby Ratzenm

By Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Denise Barron wants to “get rid of the stereotyped image of Miss Southern,” and “just be myself.” The tall, slender blonde beauty pageant winner heads west this year during her reign as Inter-Greek Council’s Miss Southern.

She varies her routine from the days she was crowned, Monday night at Black Affairs Council’s election.

“I was going to get my entry blank; they told me I must be mistaken; I wanted to enter Miss Ebeneser, didn’t I?” she said. “That’s one reason I decided to enter.”

She was the only black among 13 contestants, and wishes more black girls had entered.

“l didn’t think I had a chance to win,” she said. “But the judges were unbiased. They didn’t know how to other judges were rating us and they didn’t know who won until it was announced.”

“I wasn’t a beauty contest and it wasn’t sexist,” Ms. Barron said. “I was allowed to be to the ‘woman’ I am and continue. “l feel the contest gives women a chance for achievement. Women aren’t being kept on this campus and out of the contest, six guys get all the recognition.”

Ms. Barron said she enjoyed the contest. She said, “It’s the only chance you can win here.”

She said she “will represent everyone—students and faculty—as Inter-Greek Council’s Miss Southern.”

She was first runnerup in the Miss Ebeneser contest last year. She feels that contest is “necessary, too, to give recognition to black women on campus.”

When Homecoming queens were elected, black students didn’t have a chance to be represented. Ms. Barron likes the judging system used by Inter-Greek Council’s pageant because it’s “fair.”

Ms. Barron is a PE major from Chicago. She won’t be able to use the $5,000 she received for her studies, she said. “I think I have already won one. ‘The personal achievement is enough satisfaction,’ she said.

Ms. Barron is a senior and plays on the women’s varsity field hockey and basketball teams. She is a member of the Delta Phi Eta sorority and Inter-Greek Council and Black Affairs Council.

“I’d like to go to different universities and meet all kinds of people and have there,” she said. “I know there’s been a lot of controversy and I want to see why. Usually it’s because of lack of understanding.”

Ms. Barron feels students “have a right to protest if they want to, but they shouldn’t force their ideas on other people.”

Sports need "good" sports

Across the United States this week the sports pages are filled with the news of four pro sports that are in full swing. Baseball is taking most of the limelight with the World Series, but football is already approaching the midpoint of its season. Baseball and basketball have also got underway in the last week. While the sports pages should be filled with stories of community sports, the emphasis is instead crammed with stories of negotiation and confrontation.

Last year, Charles Finley, owner of the Oakland Athletics, riled the commissioner of baseball by paying bonuses to players who excelled in the World Series. This year he has urged the baseball world to "fire" Mike Andrews because of two errors he made Sunday in the second game of the Series. In football, the United States Congress forced Pete Rozelle and the National Football League to back down on the natural turf blackouts. The NFL, now allows games to be televised in the city where they are played as long as the game is sold out in advance. In addition, 20,000 fans have voted to stay home from the games. The attraction of soft seats, cheap beer and professional analysis by the broadcasters has lured these people to waste an eight dollar ticket.

Wilt Chamberlain, the star center for the Los Angeles Lakers, decided to move to the San Diego Conquistadors of the American Basketball Association, a player-exciting. But the Los Angeles management went to court and got an order prohibiting Wilt from playing with any other team than the Lakers.

What all of this adds up to is that sports has taken on too much of the atmosphere of big business. Instead of remaining the national pastime, sports are becoming more control for too many people. Owners pay large sums for teams, build huge stadiums, buy tons of equipment, rent computers, bid madly for players and coaches and then have to charge fans five or ten dollars for tickets, so the bills can be paid.

Too many people forget that every year there will be exactly as many winners as there are losers. If a little less money was spent for the great desire for victory could be reduced. If the owners would place an emphasis on good entertainment instead of winning, all sports could take on a more carefree atmosphere. Instead of pushing athletes to running their bodies with drugs and straining minds and muscles to the breaking point the emphasis could be placed on honest effort, natural ability and superior performance. A player or coach's inner desire to win is all that is really necessary for sparking competition.

What they don’t know won’t hurt them

To the Daily Egyptian

A curious item appeared in last Friday’s Egyptia:n, and warrants a closer look. In an article on the visit of Majid Zai, director of the office of international relations at Mashhad University in Iran, it was stated that Zai is responsible for the supervision of the student newspaper and all other university publications. In a meeting of Iranian and American students at the Illinois International Center on Thursday night Mr. Zai, when asked, told the audience that “There is no student government and no student paper allowed at Mashhad University.” This makes for a pretty good case of doublethink. One would suppose that, after Watergate, the doublethinkers would be experiencing a severe identity crisis. Apparently this is not so, addicts never quit heroin either.

The information was disbursed by John Labourn, associate dean of international education. What a real finding title. “Minister of Information” sounds even neater.

What wasn’t mentioned was that Mashhad University was the scene of a student demonstration last year, and a student was killed by the Police. Mr. Zai was asked about this Thursday night. His reply was “No one has ever been killed in my office.”

In Iran there are no student newspapers, student government, or student organizations, and no freedom of speech for anyone except the privileged few. No wonder tricky Dec. calls Iran “The best American ally in the Middle-East.” What a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive.

How to lose ID card

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to make a comment concerning recent activities of our S.I.U. policemen. Thursday night a friend and myself decided to go to Grinnel Hall to get something to eat. There had been somewhat of a disturbance in the area of our dorm (Schneider), so there were policemen patrolling the area. So we walked towards Grinnel we were approached by policemen and asked to show our IDs. We complied and after showing them our IDs they SUGGESTED (you know, how that goes) that we go back to Schneider instead of going to Grinnel. We told them that we were hungry and since we weren’t doing anything wrong that we would go on to Grinnel. Then the policemen told us that if we continued towards Grinnel they would keep our IDs. We again emphasized the fact that we weren’t doing anything wrong and that they didn’t have any reason to keep our IDs. Once again they said either go back or lose your IDs. So we told them they could have our IDs if they wanted them and we started walking towards Grinnel. At this time we were informed that if we didn’t turn right around and go back to Schneider we would have to go to the Jackson County Jail. So at that point we turned around and went back to Schneider without our IDs. Now maybe I’m biased because it was me but I feel this was an out-of-the-way harassment. It’s things like this that give police a bad image.

On the side of the Daily Egyptian:

In all the excitement concerning the President and the Middle-East War many might have missed the fact that on Sunday October 21st, 36,000 people gathered in downtown St. Louis to show support for a proposed U.S. Constitutional Amendment—one to protect the life of the unborn child. The leading speakers were Senator Thomas Eagleton, Democrat and a Catholic, and Missouri Attorney General John Danforth, a Republican and an ordained Episcopal Minister. The Missouri Attorney General said: “I am an Episcopalian and I believe that abortion is wrong. This is not a Catholic issue solely or a Christian issue solely but a human issue because what is involved is human life.” Senator Eagleton stated: “I fear a society whose highest tribunal comes down on the side of death.” It is interesting that these two political leaders, both known as political liberals, are leaders in the fight for a strong liberalmem on the side of life in the abortion issue.

High cost of rice

To the Daily Egyptian:

We just wonder how they can do it two weeks ago. We bought a 5 pounds package of medium grain rice from the 9th of October. Ted went to get the same kind of rice again, to our shocking surprise, it is $1.99, 109.47 per cent higher than the cost two weeks ago! Can you imagine what our Chinese guys are going to eat?

A Burnt-Out Case

Help the needy, hire Mr. Agnew

By Arthur Hoppe

Chronicle Features

“Good morning, sir. Welcome to The Extremis Employment Agency. Now, what’s your name?”

“Agnew. Spire T. The T stands for Ted.”

“Fine, Ted. Now what was the last position you held?”

“Vice President. I was Vice President for the past five years.”

“Oh, a former White House official? Well, Ted, we got a lot of them through here these days. But, don’t worry, I’m sure we can find something for you any way. Now, then, reasons for leaving?”

“I resigned. As I told the President, I resigned in the best interest of the nation.”

“You say you quit your last job for the good of your employers? That’s a new one, Ted. But with loyalty like that maybe we can land you a good government job. Now, the Internal Revenue Service is looking for...”

“Maybe I ought to just mention that I happen to be three years probation for income tax evasion.”

“Hey, I’m glad you mentioned that, Ted. Nothing to be ashamed of. The newspapers are filled with stories of people who don’t pay taxes, Governor Reagan, the President.”

“That reminds me. I’ve got a letter of recommendation here from the President. See? It says, ‘Dear Ted. Then down here he writes, ‘You’re strong patriotism, and your profound dedication to the welfare of the nation, have been an inspiration to all who have served with you as well as to millions of other throughout the country.”

“Millions of others, too! I never realized there were that many tax evaders to inspire, Ted. But let’s get down to your qualifications. What were your duties in that last job you held?”

“Well, every couple of months or so I presided over the Senate.”

“That’s too bad, Ted. We just filled a job as a zoo keeper this morning.”

“And I carried messages from the President to heads of state all over the world. Congratulations on your anniversary. That sort of thing.”

“We could try Western Union, Ted. Can you sing ‘Happy Birthday?’”

“I was thinking of a more responsible position. After all, when the President got mad at the press, I took them on. When the President got sore at the demonstrators, I laid into them. When the President got into trouble, I took the blame: He got the credit and I got the flack.”

“Wait, Ted, I’ve got it. Do you ride a motorcycle? Euel kneuef’s planning to jump across the Grand Canyon and he’s looking for a stand-in.”

“I don’t ride a motorcycle, damn it. And, furthermore, I think my five years of unquestioned loyalty deserve better. Even when the Justice Department closed in on me, I maintained a dignified silence. I never once accused the President of ingratitude even though everyone said he was trying to dump me,”

“Hold it, Ted. Just let me make a phone call here. Hello, Louise? What do you hear, ha, ha, from the mob? Say, I understand you’re looking for a bit man. Sure he’s got a record. Would I send you an amateur? Loyalty? Listen, Louise, this dude is so loyal that if he make you the fall guy, he won’t even rat on you. Thanks, Louise, and the best to The Family. Congratulations, Ted. Louise says you made for the job.”

What Went Wrong?

It seems special prosecutor Archibald Cox was hired and fired for the same reason—attempting to conduct an honest and thorough investigation of the Watergate incident.

Tapes dismissed as evidence in Chicago 7 contempt trial

By F. Richard Cleone
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO—The Chicago 7 contempt trial opened Monday with rapid legal movements as a federal district judge quickly disposed of officially time-consuming issues and the government rested its case.

Judge Edward T. Gignoux of U.S.
District Court in Portland, Maine, refused to accept as evidence 63 reels of tape recordings made during the government's contempt trial, which lasted from September

The government attempted to introduce the tape recordings to supplement the 22,000 pages of transcript from the trial, which will stand as the government's case.

Government lawyers said they did not know of the tapes' existence until Thursday, at which time the de-defendants and the judge were informed of the tape.

The defense objected to the adimission of the tapes, saying the defense lawyers could not listen to each tape during an extended recess.

Judge Gignoux ruled that since the government had said in March that its sole evidence was the trial transcript, it would be unfair for the defense to admit the tapes without an extended continuance to allow defense lawyers to preview them.

William M. Kunstler of New York City, a lawyer-defendant, said during a recess, "The tapes are not dead issue. They may well be offered by the defense after we listen to them."

Judge Gignoux also turned down a defense motion for an evidentiary hearing requested by Morton Davis, chief defense counsel. Davis asked for the hearing because of the recent change at top levels in the Justice Department.

In his opening statement, James R. Thompson, U.S. district attorney, said there had been some suggestions that "it might be better if this case was not returned to trial."

Thompson said the decision was made to prosecute the contempt charges to show that "a judge must be obeyed." Kunstler and Leonard J. Weinling, who also were cited for contempt in the original trial, said in their opening remarks that the government is prosecuting the contempt charges to cover up the actions of the judge and prosecutors in the contempt trial.

Defense lawyers have said they expected to call perhaps 50 witness, a plan that may consume several weeks. The judge outlined a temporary court schedule through early December.

All the defendants were in the courtroom, which was crowded, but unlike the conspiracy trial, was not jammed. Five of the seven de-defendants were convicted in 1970 of crossing state lines to incite rioting at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. All seven were acquitted of conspiracy to incite rioting. A federal appeals court later reversed the five convictions and the government decided not to prosecute a second time.

The defendants are David T.
Delinger, Jerry Rubin, Reimund
Davis, Tom Hayden, Abbie Hoffman, Lee Weiner and John Froines.
U.S., allies meet Soviets to discuss mutual troop cuts in Europe

VIENNA. Austria (AP)—Haring from a sharp split over the Middle East, the United States and most of its European allies will meet the Soviets on Tuesday for their first talks on mutual troop cuts in central Europe.

Last week, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, concerned to review the U.S. commitment to Europe, sent a team of 300,000 U.S. troops are stationed. Apparately, the talks will produce recommendations for the result of the conference. That outcome is unknown.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist party leader, said the Soviet Union will be ready for “realistic” stops in Europe.

Western officials said the task would be complex and delicate, and agreements will not likely be reached quickly or easily. The United States, Britain, Canada, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg are present. Though France and the U.S. are already affected, Norway, Greece, Italy and Turkey are also taking part.

Laundry research points to significance of phosphates

Denim, called “the universal fabric” by one fashion magazine, is the subject of a study this summer by a SIU grad student.

Donna L. Nelson of Carbondale, who is about to graduate, completed and received a master’s degree in clothing and textiles, spent a year touring Europe and making use of white denim jeans for her investigation.

Specifically, she attacked the problem of whether the white jean wearer gets as good washing results as the wearer of non-phosphate detergent.

Miss Nelson purchased 10 pairs of white denim jeans. She gave two pairs each to three students, asking them to wear them on normal activity for at least eight hours per day, accumulating normal soil.

She tested one pair in phosphate detergent, the other in non-phosphate detergent. The results were retained as a control—untworn and unwashed.

Hanyang official convicted; fined

The Seoul District Court imposed recently a suspended jail term of four years and a monetary fine on Kim Youn-hun, former president of Hanyang University, SIU’s sister school.

The sentences stemmed from Yon-hun’s having misappropriated part of a relief fund for flood victims collected from his newspaper readers. He was also the former president and publisher of the pro-communist Daily Hana.

Hanyang University, in Seoul, was designated as SIU’s sister institution early this year. The sister status of the two universities, which established a junior faculty and senior professor exchange program, was initiated in 1971 when Robert G. Lerner was SIU president.

Echoes were still sounding after some of the harshest words exchanged across the Atlantic since World War II. The Europeans, worried about Middle East oil, declined to help the U.S. airlift in Iraq. U.S. officials, from President Nixon down, publicly urged U.S. restraint.

The European allies also had their complaints. Some objected strongly to the United States alerting its troops on their territory last week without asking them first.

One U.S. official said he saw “not a ripple” in Vienna from this clash. Western diplomats, trying to simplify differences among the allies, also refused to give evidence to a report that the United States and the Soviet Union had already agreed to troop cuts over the heads of their European allies.

Differences between the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies do not surface often, but they do exist. The Middle East is, as in other areas, a matter of concern to the Soviet line at all.

Oley N. Kalesten, a legal expert from the Soviet Foreign Ministry, arrived in Vienna Tuesday with a 20-man delegation and a statement hoping for a "constructive approach" to the talks by other countries.

In addition to the Soviet Union, there are delegations in Vienna from East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania are also taking part, but their troops and the Soviet troops in Hungary will not be bound by the first agreement.

PBS to feature 18th-century witches in special Halloween ‘resurrection’

That mysterious electronic medium, television, will resurrect some ghosts from a less sophisticated age this Halloween when the Public Broadcasting Service’s (PBS) presents “When Witches Hovered Near” at 8 p.m. Tuesday and 7 p.m. Wednesday on WSIU-TV, Channel 6.

These tall-tale-in-chief samples of 18th-century Connecticut folklore are narrated by John Coli, a rumpled and bearded gentleman who wanders through everyday in the East Haddam and Moodus area, casting quizzical glances at gravestones that warn, “When Witches hover by Resoust the Devil’s whisper before you die.”

Some of the characters in the stories are based on real persons who lived in Connecticut in 1760 and are now interred in Connecticut gravelyards. Actors perform on the actual sites of legendary events, and when no actual sites can be discovered, imagination and surrealist affects take over.

The first tale, “The Devil’s Welles’ Halloween classic to be aired on This Halloween will mark the 20th anniversary of the night when the unsubstantiated accounts of tens of thousands of Americans surfaced. The occasion was the Mercury Theater’s broadcast of Orson Welles’ “War of the Worlds.” WSIU-FM will air the production in its entirety at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

“War of the Worlds” touched off a panic attack that spread across the country that many who listened to the broadcast actually believed the earth was being invaded by Martians.

The fate of the Mercury Theater and all who were involved in the broadcast hung in delicate balance for 24 hours after “War of the Worlds” was aired. The public couldn’t decide whether they were heroes or villains.

Eventually, the public reaction turned to praise of the Mercury Theater production. In her influential column, Dorothy Thompson said that the players had done the country a service in showing how vulnerable we are to panic.

Free concert set

Students for Jesus will sponsor a free folk rock music concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Upper Room Coffee House, 470 S. Illinois Ave.

Paul Clark, recording artist from Kansas City, will teach the goods news of music by fusing Christian lyrics with relaxed harmonies. Clark has two albums available, “Songs from the Savior, Vol. I and II.”

For information regarding the concert or the coffee house call Jerry Bryant, concert coordinator, at 569-8822.

When Machimoodus discovers that young Acton and Dr. Stool have invaded his cave, he condemns Steel to the ranks of the “undead followers.” Fortunately, Auclelve escapes (without the gem) and returns to his sweetheart. It is reported in Connecticut that he never quarreled with his wife or friends for the rest of his life. He lived to be 87, so it is presumed he learned his lesson well.

“When Witches Hovered Near” is a production of Connecticut Public Television and is transmitted nationally by the PBS.

Barbados leader learns with students

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The prime minister of Barbados says he's learning more than the students he teaches in his political science class at the Miami-Dade Community College.

Edward M. Samuel, who has been in office since Sept. 23, has been teaching three freshman classes since he was sworn in as a member of the governing Progressive Labour Party. He said he was learning from the students, and that they were learning from him.

"I was getting out of touch with the real world," Samuel said. "I was talking to political leaders, but I was not really learning how the people feel."

Mr. Samuel has returned to Bridgetown, capital of the Caribbean nation, after arriving in Florida. He keeps in touch through the daily mail which brings newspapers, parliamentary documents and personal observations. The columns he has written for the government.

"I feel sorry for those leaders who cannot learn from even a few days!"

Drug abuse session set

"All the Things You Ever Wanted to Know About Alcoholism And Were Afraid to Ask," a one-day abuse conference for professionals, will be repeated at the Student Center Wednesday.

The event, held this quarter, is co-sponsored by the University's NIDA and the Office of Drug Abuse and Services of the Illinois Department of Mental Health at the Mental Health Institute, Carbondale.

The workshop is open to all professionals, counselors and those interested in drug problems. Registration forms are available Wednesday.

"The major function of public relations is that of an ambassador," said Paul Maranto, general manager of public relations for the United States Postal Service.

"We work on a variety of projects, such as new products, new services, or new ways of doing things."

Maranto spoke at noon Thursday, in the Room 221 of the Southern Illinois Hospital Corp. Drug Program. G. H. G. Smith, the Southern Illinois Hospital Corp. Drug Program, was the guest speaker.

Calendar wrong on Thanksgiving vacation date

Students who plan their lives around a calendar in the SIU Winter Schedule of Classes received a warning from Steve Flenner, director of academic support services and admissions.

"There was a mistake made in the computer-programmed time schedule," Flenner said. "We have correct the mistake, but we been given Oct. 10. A 'keyboarding error' caused the problem, he said.

"Thanksgiving break actually begins 10 p.m., Nov. 20 and not one minute sooner," Flenner said.

City officials plan ‘Meet ’N Treat’ to take the ‘trick’ out of Halloween

Carbondale city officials hope to take the “trick” out of Halloween this year and replace it with family fun and neighborhood togetherness.

Mayor Neal Eckert has designated Wednesday, as “Meet ‘N Treat” night for the citizens of Carbondale, calling on parents to join their children for neighborhood door-to-door visits.

And the Carbondale Park District is seeking to perfect “Meet ‘N Treat” night with an evening of Halloween activities Tuesday starting at 6 p.m. at Evergreen Park. The scheduled program, planned in conjunction with the Kiwanis Club, includes costume judging and a ghost hike.

A rain date is scheduled for the same time and place the following day on Halloween. If it rains on the rain date (it’s happened before) the whole show will move indoors to Lincoln Junior High School.

Carbondale Safety Commission officials will “Meet ‘N Treat” ideas as a way to preserve and enhance upon the “best and most positive aspects of Halloween,” taking advantage of traditional visiting from door to door in costumes and giving and receiving treats.

Eckert said parents and children should introduce themselves and make sure that new community residents are welcomed during “Meet ‘N Treat” ramps.

The Carbondale Safety Commission has offered these tips to parents and children:

- Make visits during afternoon and early evening hours.
- Wear light-colored costumes decorated with reflective tape and avoid Halloween masks for better visibility.
- Use flashlight or dark.
- Light pumpkins with a flashlight.
- Call only at homes with exterior or porch light on.

The park district’s Halloween program, like “Meet ‘N Treat” night, is meant to involve parents as well as children. Sponsors will supply coffee for adults along with free treats.

Joyce Bonham, park district program director, said prizes will be awarded to children displaying the most costume in six categories, prettiest, ugliest, most original, funniest, cleverest and best group idea.

Kogas Club members will judge the costume event as a fire truck leads contestants in a parade around the park.

The ghost hike will be conducted past a variety of Halloween scenes set up along a path in the woods behind Evergreen Park. Ms. Bonham explained.

Children from kindergarten through sixth grade are invited to join the contest. Ms. Bonham said. For more information contact the Carbondale Park District at 452-8270.

Joyce Patissian, assistant professor in the Department of Child and Family, attended the annual meeting of the National Council of Family Relations (NCFR) which met in Toronto Oct. 15-19.

She presented a paper entitled “Single Motherhood, A New Lifestyle: Implications for the Personal Freedom of the Mother, Father, and Child.”

The presentation is one of ten that has been made available on cassette tape by NCFR’s “educ-a-tape” series of significant presentations.

S. Morris Eames, professor in the Department of Philosophy, will present a paper entitled “The Methodological Significance of Experience in Dewey’s Thought.” The presentation will be part of the Illinois Philosophy Conference to be held Nov. 1 and 2 at Loyola University of Chicago.

Charles Swedlund, associate professor of photography, has a one-man exhibit of photographs on display at the Cincinnati Art Academy, Cincinnati, Ohio. Entitled “The Whole Show,” the exhibit is available for purchase in miniature consisting of 25 buttons packaged in a can.

A. A. Moslemi, chairman of the forestry department, has been appointed chairman of the resolutions committee of HOME-PERF—Heads of the Central Region of Forestry Educational and Research Organizations.

Serving with Moslemi on the committee are Eric Bourdeau, dean of the School of Forestry at Michigan Technical University, and Ronald Campbell, head of the department of forestry and horticulture at Kansas State University.

Harry Hoerner, assistant professor of agricultural industries, recently helped conduct the National Future Farmers of America agricultural mechanics project contests at the national FFA convention in Kansas City, Mo.

Hoerner is one the national planning committee for the agricultural mechanics competition among high school FFA chapters qualifying for the national contest. The first such contest was held last year, covering three of five recognized areas for competition- construction and maintenance, farm power and machinery, and electric power and processing.

Orienteering Club to sponsor invitational, intramural meets

By D. Wesley Smith
Student Writer

What would you call a person who drives up to 250 miles on a weekend in order to race across a few miles of unfamiliar, snake-infested terrain?

Orienteering has been described as a blend of cross-country running, navigation, and map reading. While it does not yet occupy the same high level of interest as Monday evening football, orienteering is gaining its share of enthusiasts.

One of them is Ken Ackerman, assistant professor of physical education and co-advisor of the SIU Orienteering Club.

"I first got interested in orienteering three years ago at a workshop and I've really become involved. Orienteering is a sport for the man or woman who enjoys the outdoors, has a sense of adventure and isn't afraid of exercise. As a physical fitness enthusiast and I've found orienteering to be an enjoyable alternative to running for fitness. It takes your mind off the actual running by focusing it on your destination."

Ackerman teaches an orienteeering class in the physical education department and his students, along with any other students interested in orienteering, will be eligible to participate in an invitational meet staged in conjunction with an invitational intercollegiate meet on Monday.

"We have anticipated approximately 40 participants in the 1M category and 60 in the college categories," Ackerman said.

Fifteen schools from Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and Tenssee have been invited to participate.

"To show you the widespread interest in orienteering, we received a letter from Indiana University of Pennsylvania requesting permission to attend. And that's 800 miles away," Ackerman laughed.

The event will be held at the Outdoor Laboratory of Little Grass Lake at Camp Little Giant. An orienteering workshop in map reading, compass technique and field experience will be held Saturday morning.

The 1M division will be dropped into beginner and novice classes.
The beginner course will be 2.5 miles in length and the novice course will stretch to 2.5 miles.
The college division competition will be run on a course of 3.7 miles. There will be relay, team and individual events.

"We will provide all of the necessary equipment for the meet," Ackerman explained.

"We encourage anyone interested in the outdoors to attend. This is a sport for everyone since running ability is not the most important factor. Skill in map reading can make the difference. In this sport, the orienteer can and often does beat the hiker," Ackerman said.

The SIU Orienteering Club, with approximately 20 members registered and, as Ackerman puts it,
"several others wandering around," centers its attention on preparing and participating in competitive orienteering.

"We obtain maps from the U.S.
Geographical Survey and select an area. Then we re-draw it, making it easier to read. This includes justing from geographical north to magnetic north and drawing in a 'accurate' description of the geographical features," Ackerman explained.

In an orienteering meet each competitor is given a map before he starts the race. He follows a marked trail to the control description sheet or master map area. There he is assigned a course which he must follow. After he completes his map from this point he enters the course set out for him and goes from one assigned point to another in the swiftest manner possible, using only his compass and his map for guidance. The win-er is the participant who finishes the assigned course in the least amount of time.

There are variations to the general orienteering meet, including lego-back, canoe, night and bicycle orienteering.

Club members participate in events in Ohio, Tennessee, Canada, Michigan, Virginia and Illinois. The SIU club has sponsored five meets in this area and also interests inter-grouped in orienteering skills.

"The object of orienteering is to complete your individual course in the least amount of time with only your compass and your map as a guide. Ackerman explained.

"Everyone who finishes is condered a winner. If you don't reach the finish line, well, we don't use the term lost in orienteering. You may be misplaced, but not lost."

Mirror to give spring evaluations

By Gary House
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Robert Flach would like the Mirror to reflect an accurate image of SIU instructors.

The publication, which evaluates courses and structures throughout questionnaires, must have more participation from instructors and must become more objective, said Flach, supervising the Mirror.

"The next issue of the Mirror will definitely be the best," Flach said.

"We just completed the makeup of the spring-quarter information and we're working on the summer now. This issue should be about 50 pages, and it should be out in time for winter registration.

"The Mirror is a university funded student publication which works in cooperation with the Student Affairs Research and Testing Center. John P. Tubman, staff assistant in the center, prepares the Instructional Improvement Questionnaire (IQ) which is designed to "solicit evaluate feedback from students on instruction and courses."

The IQ consists of four sections - instructor biographical, instructor evaluation, course evaluation and optional student evaluation. Tubman estimated that 500 courses will be evaluated by the students this quarter. "Our questionnaire form is continually undergoing development. The question used are products of a number of revisions over the past four years," Tubman said.

The optional section of the survey this year includes 11 suggested criteria for evaluation of the instructor: "Very Poor" day five to ten percent of the instructor, use the optional item section," Tubman said.

"Then we get phone calls saying the questionnaire was inadequate. The reason for the optional section is for the instructor to develop his own evaluations.

Pohlman spends only part of his time on the IQ. He also works with the center's faculty consultation service and test scoring and tabulation. With the part-time help of civil service and student workers, there is an average of one person working on the IQ most of the time, he said.

The Mirror publishes those evaluation results instructors consent to have published. Pohlman is fiscal officer of the student publication, which receives about $6000 per year from the university for operating costs.

Flach, a senior in television, said the Mirror's six member staff is rewriting the evaluations to do away with subjective terms like "poor" and "many" in their analysis.

We will also have editorials for the first time in our next issue," Flach said. "And I'm working with Bill Peterson of the design department on some possible new graphic ideas."

"Our main problem is teacher participation," Flach said. "We're trying to provide the student with an objective, accurate interpretation of our teachers. But it should be a learning tool for the teachers to help him see his mistakes through a written evaluation."

Flach said the Mirror staff should be expanded to provide more jobs for students and to enable the publication to cover more courses thoroughly. "What good is it when a Student Nutrition club meets today," Dean Smith, dean of the College of Human Resources, will be the guest speaker at Tuesday evening's meeting of the Food and Nutrition Council.

The meeting is open to the public and will be held in room 307 of the Home Economics Building. Refreshments will be served.

Dad and son talk of listening to music...
Vastness of Arena destroys intimacy of Simon's numbers.

By Dave Searls

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Lake Robert Frost reading his poetry at the GOP convention,展望 Paul Simon seemed somewhat misplaced in the cavernous Arena Saturday night. It was like walking a poodle on a leash...but how could he? Simon's intimate music possibly touch the 5,400 plus audience with the subtle haunting spirit in which it was written? Especially in Simon's caual style of performing, he is not a performer that can tantalize somebody who learned how to write songs. I just like everybody else, he said candidly.

A Review

Simon would be better appreciated in a small coffee house than in a stadium. While standing alone on stage playing a guitar almost as large as himself, Simon realized that the odds were against him, for his solo vocal performances generally lacked the spirit and energy of his studio version.

"I'm concentrating too well during the concert. The temperature was too warm, and sometimes my guitar would go out of tune in the middle of a song. That really bothers me and then I start forgetting lyrics. Sometimes I try to look at the audience when I'm singing solo, but I just had to close my eyes and listen to the music."

The lack of complicity, compounded by the size of the Arena (from where I was sitting, a telecast would have to determine whether Simon had a beard or not) made it difficult to establish a performance limp. The Simin- auh! "I got holes in my confidence and holes in my jeans couldn't have said it better. Simon's wisful, conversational delivery personalized "Something So Right" but sounded designed on "Redroose."

But when he sang "El Condor Pasa" and "The Boxer," with the South American hand, Uraa, bambas, and the了一sman "in the air," with the extra energy from the hand, they rendered exotic pastoral sounding performances that surpassed the originals.

Simon's musical union with the Jesse Dixon Singers was even more successful, for their recent musical styles complemented each other perfectly. The Dixon singers made up of three female vocalists, recorded songs, as he was always heard to gospel music to "Sounds of Slen- lor with Simon (improvised the vocal) on the melody and exchanging verses, with soulful-sounding Jesse Dixon, the song was a chair-like slam.

The singer performed two gospel songs that rattled the audience with a strength not previously heard during the evening.

Simon returned to the stage for "Bridge Over Troubled Waters," which provided a rare musical release. But Rutter rather enjoyed the syrupy orchestra backing Simon during the concert. Jesse Dixon singer dashed out the song with beautiful vocal obligations, weaving in and out of each other and swelling with spiritual energy.

Simon responded to shouts of "Marijuana, dig it, dig it..." and "Where's Garfunkel," during a coda. Paul Simon said after the show, "I was supposed to be in the movie 'Catch 22.' But Art and Garfunkel made the movie without him...I still haven't seen the movie."

When I wanted to record a song with the Dixie singers, somewhere making a movie. "We broke up right after I finished the Bridge. Over Troubled Waters."

Backstage, Simon was surrounded by newsmen and fans, complying with requests like, "Will you autograph this drum stick?" and "Would you mind if I gave you a kiss?"

"I don't mind doing stuff like this. People in showbiz like this sort of thing. Simon said, as he blurrily rattled his keys and glanced through the back pages of the newspaper.

For three more concerts, a live album due out in January, and tomorrow I'll shave off my beard, he said.

Russia questions diverging of troops

Moscow (AP) - The Soviet Union suggested Monday that the U.S. military alert was an attempt by the Nixon administration to divert attention from domestic problems.

The official Soviet news agency Tass ridiculed the Kremlin line by quoting from a column by James Reston in the New York Times. It said it was Reston's opinion "the administration needs a crisis a day to shield itself from criticism at home."

Speaking of the alert and the Watergate tapes in an Oct. 26 column, Reston wrote: "But now if he hands over the tapes, everybody has to obey the law, and even if he slams it from another, he is not about to claim the cyncal remark: 'A crisis a day keeps the doctor away.'"

The Tass report was added weight by being reprinted in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper.

The Soviet press often uses Western press reports, or parts of them, to put forth a Kemlin position. The Tass news-brief presentation of the issue didn't carry the force of a direct Soviet allegation that Nixon was playing politics with the alert, but would not have been printed if it didn't mirror the Soviet position.

Neither Tass nor Pravda reported Reston's assertion that Nixon alerted U.S. forces because the administration "did have solid information that the U.S.S.R. had put seven airborne divisions on 'high alert,' that the big transports that had been airlifting war material from the Soviet Union to Egypt were suddenly withdrawn, that these transports were diverted to the Soviet Union close to the places where the seven Soviet airborne divisions were located."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a Washington newsmen on the day of the alert that it was issued, after "amb- iguous" Soviet signs that the Kremlin might intervene to help out Egyptian forces trapped behind Israeli lines.

The Pentagon said Monday that the United States is sending air aircraft carrier and five destroyers from the Pacific Fleet to the Indian Ocean in response to a Soviet buildup in the Mediterranean.

In a related development, the Nixon administration urged Congress to temporarily shelf a bill to liberalize trade with the Soviets pending a satisfactory Middle East solution.

Does your life need new meaning?

Maybe what you need is a new concept of what life is. It begins with the Bible, which tells us that God, Spirit, is the source of mystery of life.

An understanding of the source of meaning of life can bring fresh, energizing daily experience. It has brought healing to many people today.

Mr. Paul K. Wite, a teacher and practitioner of Christian Science, will tell how life is a lecture titled, "The Way of Abundant Life."

You are invited to come.

Holiday lights canceled to save fuel

By Louise Cook
Associated Press Writer

Twas two months before Christmas, but in a little less than two months to go before Dec. 25, many civic and business groups have canceled or cut back on plans for holiday decorations in an effort to conserve power.

United States, which is known as "The Christmas City," is in an uproar. Mayor H.O. Payrow announced that Christmas decorations would be cut by 80 percent, save for the national symbols of electric lights.

Residents and officials objected, however, saying the cutback would hurt the civic image and officials are still trying to work out a compromise.

The problem stems from a general fuel shortage, complicated by cutbacks in Arab oil production because of the Middle East war.

Officials in Austin, Texas, where shortages of natural gas have affected electricity production, said Christmas lights will be turned on as usual Nov. 21 and will be turned off Nov. 25, but there will be 15 hours until Dec. 14 when May 28 will be reopened.

In addition, holiday decorating displays on bridges across the Colorado River will be eliminated this year unless owners are ordered to restrict their holiday displays.

A business association in Pittsburgh, Pa., is calling for a reduction of the energy crunch, the lighting on 60 downtown buildings, a tradition since 1960, will be canceled this year.

"The Pittsburgh Business and Managers Association said that although the city has enough power, the energy shortage was "meaningless gesture to the rest of the nation," according to the Pittsburgh Press.

The Air Force Base in New Jersey canceled its Christmas lighting display, as did Vinceland, N.J.

Asian group elects officers

Joe Old, a graduate student in history, has been selected as president of the Asian Studies Association. Old, who was an undergraduate at Texas Tech before coming to SIU, was elected by the association Thursday night along with Bill Minor, a junior in languages, as vice-president and Jacqueline Monow, junior in Asian Studies as secretary-treasurer.

Kasey M. Kelley, instructor in Foreign Language Department, was approved by the association as faculty advisor.

The association, which had 15 voting members at its last meeting, approved the proposal to raise the student membership fee from $1 per year to $1.50 per quarter or $4 per academic year. The rates for foreign students were approved at $15 cents per quarter or $2 per academic year. The lower rates for foreign students were set to encourage the membership of more Asian students. Rates for faculty members are $2.25 per quarter or $6 per academic year.

It was also decided that the association would co-sponsor a Chinese film with the Department of Foreign Language.

Major Viet clash by '75 forecast by professor

By Marca O. Murray
Student Writer

There will be a major confrontation between North Vietnam and South Vietnam before or during the 1975 dry season, William Turley, assistant professor in the Center for Vietnamese Studies, predicted Thursday. Turley made the prediction during a lecture to the Asian Studies Association.

Last year Turley visited South Vietnam where he had the opportunity to talk with several North Vietnamese defectors and a representative from North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese representative told Turley that after North Vietnam's economic recovery, which will occur about 1973, North Vietnam's reunification plan with the South will begin. Turley said the North Vietnamese are now in a much stronger position than ever before. Raiso considers the cease-fire a major victory for the first time in 100 years foreign troops are not on Vietnamese soil, and the morale of the South Vietnamese troops has been lowered, a representative from North Vietnam told him.

The cease-fire agreement granted the North Vietnamese freedom of movement and freedom of negotiations with the South.

The Career Planning and Placement Center is sponsoring the program about the cease-fire is still being represented in Saigon while North Vietnamese controlled areas are aware of the agreement.

Turley said that North Vietnam will never give up its desire of reunification with the South.

Illinois takes first

SIU third in Illinois Intercollegiates

By John Morrison

Daily Egyptian/Student Writer

Low turnout was caught up in theorizing for a moment what might happen.

"If we could have had Hill and St. John here," "drew up in the mud, and then gave up the futile thought.

And he was on the move. Reality, Hartzog confessed he was pleased with his home-grown talent.

SIU finished third in Saturday's Illinois Intercollegiate Cross Country championships, behind a dogfight for first in which Illinois ended past Eastern Illinois by a mere two points, 74 to 76.

The Salukis were one man short of being in the thick of the race. Their College football poll rates Ohio State on top

By The Associated Press

Nikke Dame, seeking its first national football championship since 1888, climbed from eighth place to fifth in The Associated Press ratings Monday while the top four teams, headed by Ohio State, held onto their positions for the third week in a row.

Ohio State's 23-14 victory not only ended Southern California's 22-game unbeaten streak but dropped the defending champions from sixth to seventh. Dame's Coach told the Salukis they weren't the only ones.

Ohio State, which chocked Georgia, New York, and Notre Dame, declared first place and 1154 points from the 62 sportswriters and broadcasters who participated in this week's poll.

Alabama, which crushed Virginia Tech 57-14, pulled down 12 votes for the top spot and 1052 points, to keep the third place..

Nine first-place votes and 918 points went to Oklahoma, a 56-14 winner over Kansas State. Michigan, trounced Minnesota 34-7 and received one vote for No. 1 and 876 points.

Notre Dame's triumph earned the Irish 780 points. Penn State routed West Virginia 42-14 and received the other four first-place votes but slipped from fifth to seventh behind Notre Dame with 680 points.

Louisiana State stayed unbeaten with a 33-20 squeaker over South Carolina that boosted the Tigers from seventh to fourth.

Arizona State cracked the Top Ten for the first time this year, rising from 11th to eighth by outscoring Oregon State 41-14.

Southern California edged UCLA, its crumout Los Angeles rival, for ninth place. The Bruins made the Top Ten by walling California 41-21.

Previously unbeaten Missouri slipped from seventh to 12th after losing to Colorado 17-13 while Nebraska dropped from 10th to 11th in the wake of a 27-7 defeat with Oklahoma State.

Tennessee rebounding from its only setback, moved up from 16th to 13th by a 37-13 romp past Vanderbilt, the Vols. The Vols were followed in the Southeast Division by Mississippi, Mississippi State, Tulane, Texas Tech, Miami of Ohio, Colorado, and Ole Miss, with Alabama and Texas tied for 19th.

On the other hand, the Top Ten was Arizona State, Houston, UCLA, Tennessee, Nebraska, Michigan State, Iowa, Kansas Tech, Texas Tech, and Texas.

Eight cars complete rainy Thompson Point Road Rally

By Mary Gabel

Student Writer

Despite a rainstorm at the start of Thompson Point's First Annual Road Rally, eight of ten vehicles entered wound up at Grand Tower finish line Sunday afternoon.

Three PSI prizes were given to the driver-navigator teams that completed the 56-mile course, which began at the SIU Arena parking lot at 15-30 p.m. The first three cars to finish within five miles of the actual length were the winners, according to the rules.

Jerry Bauer, a junior in forestry, and Lee Houshing, a junior in industrial technology, had the double distinction of registering a short trip and being the first to ring the bell of an antique steam fire engine displayed in the Thompson Point Rock recreation area. Ringing the bell was a rally requirement.

"It was a lot of fun because it was well-organized," said Houshing. Reading the three packets and converting the mileage from kilometers to kilometers was the biggest challenge to them, he added.

His partner, however, said they kept mileage count down because they figured the conventions before moving ahead. "We never got lost," Bauer said.

Their 1966 Volkswagen was the last vehicle to leave the Arena parking lot, but as Bauer put it, "you couldn't be too eager or you would go past some checkpoint.

The second place winners, Dana Bredbeck and Gary Schmitz, checked in at 6:14 miles but were the seventh team to show up, due to a refreshment pause at a country tavern. Schmitz is also a Pierce Hall resident.

Most of the route took contestants through Shawnee National Forest, with zig zagging in Cobden and Alto Pass areas.

Brad Williams and Glenn Schmitt, third place winners, agreed that a shorter time limit should be placed on future rallies. A 6 p.m. deadline was allowed by Strickland. "I don't want anyone hurt," he said at the time.

The Williams-Schmitt team, also from Pierce Hall, were the second ones to "ring the bell," but they estimated a 67.1 miles on the odometer of their 1957 Super Beetle Volkswagen.

"I blew an afternoon of study but I enjoyed it," said Schmitt.

The Salukis did not bunch together in the lead pack according to plan, but the whole race got strung out much earlier than usual for a championship meet.

Virginia and Durkin set a murder-ous pace and their competitors thought out behind them trying to give chase. Hartzog said his squad did its best to stay in the front at the outset. "You could only see the first half-mile or so, but Fulton, and Brady and Mandere were up there along with Craig and George."

SIU, easily outdistanced Western Illinois' 136-point fourth-place total. Illinois State finished fifth with 324 points. Eleven schools sent full teams to the meet, and the only conspicuous absentee was Northwestern University.

Virginia's winning time was 23-49, followed by Durkin (24-51), Craig (24-37), Mike Larson of Eastern Illinois (24-29), George (24-33), Glenn Behnke of North Central College (24-34), Kenneth Burke of Eastern (24-33), Randy Foreman of Illinois State (24-37), Ron Lancaster of Eastern (24-38), Scott Barrett of North Central (24-34), and Wayne Saunders of Illinois-Chicago Circle (24-45).
Salukis escape with homecoming win

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Amidst sheets of swirling rain and a cold whipping wind, the SIU football Salukis (#20) played through the blustery atmosphere last Saturday at the O'Brien Tower and outlasted the Akron Zips Saturday afternoon at the O'Brien Tower for a 14-13 victory.

Leading 14-13 with only four seconds left in the game, Akron placekicker Brian Ellis sliced a 32-yard field goal attempt off to the side. The miss lifted 76,000 fans into electric applause and the fans regained their seats and improved the teams record to 2-0.

The game started under cool, cloudy skies with both teams having offense difficulties at the start. Three times before the Salukis began a drive from deep in their own territory, the Akron defense held up tightly with 7:25 remaining in the first quarter.

The march opened quickly with senior Jerry Hardaway gaining 18 yards and tight end Robert Habbe shaking free over the middle to grab completions of 11 and 18 yards.

SIU Coach Dick Towers elected to start with senior Mark Moncrief and Melvin Moncrief in the same backfield, something he said he probably would not do again. Towers had tried the combination unsuccessfully in the Dayton game.

On second down and seven from the Zip 19, Saluki quarterback Fred McAuley kept the ball on an option play and rambled ahead to the Akron 4. Moncrief powered the ball to the yard line where Perkins hurdles the line and nosedived into the end zone for the touchdown.

Keo Seaman's kick for the extra point was good and the Salukis led 7-0 with 4:30 remaining in the quarter.

Akron ran fairly well with its running backs Billy Mills, Tom Talbott and Ernie Callaham. Defense tightened when the Zips moved into SIU territory.

Excellent Saluki punt coverage, led by senior Jerry Hardaway, kept Akron in field position for the first half. First-half Akron drives started from the Zips 28, 14, 4, 9 and 29 yard lines. Akron had no return yardage on Saluki punts for the day.

The second quarter opened with the Salukis controlling the ball on the Akron 34 and it appeared the Salukis were headed for another score. But the drive stalled on the 28, and Seaman came in to kick a field goal.

The hike went to holder Leonard Hopkins, a reserve quarterback, and he moved the ball out of the way as Seaman began his fake kick. Hopkins rolled to one side, Seaman to the other, and Hopkins turned and threw a pass back across the field to his kicker. Blocking had set up and Seaman began his race for the needed 15 yards for the first down. A block from Hardaway sprang Seaman but an alert Akron defense grabbed Seaman one yard short.

Punts were exchanged again as the Saluki defense remained tough. Akron had the ball on the SIU 38 on a fourth down and three situation and decided to go for it. A block from Hardaway sprang Seaman but an alert Akron defense grabbed Seaman one yard short.

The moment the ball was kicked off to begin the second half, the rain began to fall and the wind began to play tricks. The dreary weather also forced many of the 11,000 homecoming day fans to head for shelter, nearly employing the student stands.

The weather made the going rough for both teams, but it was the Salukis who found themselves in poor field position whose punts continued with the fierce wind. Only once did the Salukis advance the ball into Akron territory in the second half.

Beginning a two-minute warning in the first quarter, Akron controlled the ball as the scoreless third quarter ended. Zip quarterback Eric Bowes took the ball to the Saluki 50 where he faked a handoff into the line and raced into the corner of the end zone. A Saluki was on the board at 13:32 left in the game and Akron led 14-7. Akron's lead was increased to 14-17.

Now the teams were battling each other, the weather and the clock. The Salukis finally got on the scoreboard with a 10-yard field goal conversion with 1:14 remaining in the third quarter. A 23 Yard punt turned the ball over to the Salukis at the 27 yard line.

On Akron's first play following the punt, Schoch sent receiver Marc Thomas slanting deep over the middle and hit him with a 53-yard scoring pitch. The touchdown was Thomas' 6th score of the year and was also his shortest. His other scores have come from 54, 59, 71-73 and 97 yards.

With the heavy wind swirling on the field, Akron kicker Ellis shanked the extra point try off to the side, and the Salukis escaped with a one point 14-13 lead. The game ended at 3:15 with the weather looking only temporary.

The Salukis played the ball, stalling as long as possible, until a Wayne Cowley punt gave the Zips a last chance with only 1:10 remaining in the game.

Schoch found Thomas open with a ten-yard touchdown pass that was halted three yards short of the end zone.

Then with only four seconds remaining, Ellis squibbed his kick inches to the outside of the uprights, and the Salukis had escaped for good, 14-13.

Punt returner Day with 130 yards rushing and Moncrief gained 126. Leading ground gainer for Akron was Mike Reimann with 20.

"I knew we were going to win the game," said a proud Towers said after the game.

Ruggers win 16-8

The SUU Rugby Club defeated the Lithonia Raiders in SIU's home opener Sunday, 16-8.

All the scoring for SIU was made in the first half. The scoring tries, which included one from second-year forwards Mourning, Tex Ashe and Kevin Conway, who scored twice.

"Although the weather was not too agreeable," said SUU President Tom Skora said, "a fair amount of fans did turn out to see an excellent match."
