Illinois universities should undertake a comprehensive study of the amount of research being done by faculty members, a 10-month report has recommended to Gov. Otto Kerner.

The report, commissioned last May, comprises 93 pages and was compiled by the Business Management Study Committee for Illinois. Gov. Kerner received it at a luncheon Thursday in Springfield attended by the 11-man study group, made up of business men.

One of the recommendations was to determine the extent to which the academic staff should be engaged in research. Thrusday, they entered the organized information to enable the governing boards to determine an acceptable balance between research and teaching activities.

Higher education was one of three issues dealt with in the committee's report which offered recommendations designed to save the state an estimated $3 million a year. Offices of virtually all elec-officials, a number of cabinet-level departments and state universities and junior colleges would be affected by the recommendations.

The second recommendation concerns the development of a unified and consistent system of accounting, budgeting and financial reporting for state-supported schools of higher education.

He is survived by the former Addie May McKinney Brown, died in 1964. Survivors include a son and daughter, three brothers, one sister and two grandchildren.

Long Lines, Cold Prompt Ticket Sales

Ticket sales to students not holding the blue athletic card for the SIU-Kentucky game were put on sale about 1 1/2 hours earlier than scheduled Wednesday because of a long line that had formed in bad weather, according to Neoma M. Kinney, Area ticket sales manager.

Mrs. Kinney said students had been waiting to buy tickets since 7 a.m. "Consequently when it began to snow, I authorized the ticket sales to begin early, hoping to do the students a favor."

Mrs. Kinney said it would have been impossible to provide tickets to all the students who wished them, regardless of what time they arrived or the ticket sales began.

"Some day the line will be so long and it was so cold that some students were beginning to build bon-fires in the parking lot to keep warm. There were no other students with athletic cards waiting for tickets, so we began selling the regular tickets," she said.

The tickets were sold out by 3 p.m. and a number of students were turned away without tickets. The Daily Egyptian received a number of letters and calls from students crying foul after subjects were turned away.

normally, there are anywhere from 700 to 1,000 tickets each game throughout the season, according to Mrs. Kinney, IT'S AN INVASION - These swingers have organized Carbondale's newest combo, the invaders, and they and their booking agent are shown in the recreation room of the home of one of the members of the group.

'The Invaders'

Carbondale Hit With Hot, Swinging Sound

By Rita Ziegler

"One-two-three-four" and the "Invaders" take off.

They're Carbondale's newest combo, they're armed with drums, bass guitar, treble guitar and organ. They're amplified.

They're fourth and fifth graders, they've got four SUI faculty sponsors—their parents. They've got an agent who's a seventh grader, and they're shooting for network television.

The "Invaders" are Scott Irwin, Ricky Russell, Ben Jansyn and Kent Gordon, Scott, a fourth grader at University School, plays the organ, Ricky, who joined with Scott in the organization of the rock and roll group, plays the drums and he's a fourth grader at Winkler School.

Ben, the only fifth grader in the group, goes to University School and he strums the treble guitar. He and the other two are age 10 and Kent, the only 9-year-old of the group, plays the bass guitar. He's in the fourth grade at Unity Point School.

Standing in the wings, but booking the appearances, is the "Invaders" agent, Andy Piper, seventh grader at University School.

Scott and Andy wanted to play in a combo but the only guitarist friend moved away, Scott discovered the guitar strumming Ben at school one day and in he came, Kent, Andy, Scott and Ricky became friends when they were members of the "Peter Pan" cast. The boys liked Kent, so they taught him to play the guitar and they had their combo. Then Andy heard them talking about their group at rehearsals one night, and he wanted to join too, so he became their agent.

They've been playing together for about six weeks, sometimes practicing as early as 6:30 a.m. in three months three hours a day at Ricky's house, 902 S. Oakland Ave., on Jan. 15. These swingers learned to play "Not Your Stepping Stone" by the Monkees and then went on to make up five songs all of their own. They do the "Invaders" Theme Song," of course, but they also send out sound waves on "Frankenstein Jr. ," "Fe Fi Fo Fun," "Losing You," and "Can't Live Without You Baby."

The combo made its first public appearance at the Brush School chili supper on Jan. 27 and Ricky's mother repeated, "You should have seen the girls! They were standing six deep around the bandstand grooving to the Invaders' sound."

On Jan. 28 the quartet played at a birthday party for Ricky's older brother Mike, and last Saturday they entertained the cast of "Peter Pan" at a party.

Recently the boys have been devoting practice time to assimilating a go-cart they call the "Invader Mobile." But Andy has bigger ideas. He's entered the group in the annual University Talent Show and hopes to schedule the group for a future appearance on the Ted Mack Amateur Hour.

The bills are fored by their fathers, Daniel Irwin, resident carthographer assistant in the Department of Geography, Robert Russell, associate professor of health education; Leon Jansyn, assistant instructor at the Crime and Correction Center, Roderick Gordon, professor of music, and Henry Piper, English professor.

Arena Traffic Jam Demands Solution

The recent Al Hirt program at the SIU Arena is evidence of a need for an escape route for traffic from the Arena parking lot.

Before the program, traffic entering the bottleneck was bumper to bumper from the entrance to Grand Avenue. The situation was even worse after the program when the bottleneck was forced to leave the lot at the same time.

Construction of an access road from the Arena parking lot has been planned since June 1966. Plans for construction were to have begun but lack of funds canceled the endeavor shortly after they were drawn up.

As of now the University Architect's Office has plans for the construction of two access roads, but the starting dates still remain indefinite because no funds have been appropriated.

The original plans called for the construction of an access road to connect Campus Drive from the Arena parking lot just south of the Technology Building. This road would extend between the Arena parking lot and the baseball field and connect Campus Drive near the entrance of the Technology Building parking lot.

An additional plan involving much more money would be to construct an access road following the drainage ditch south of the Arena parking lot to La Salle St. It would be built with an underpass for traffic on the highway. Traffic entering the parking lot would gain access by a ramp off the highway.

The need for such an access road is now. If funds are not available a temporary road should be constructed to relieve traffic until a permanent one can be built.

Anything to expedite traffic before and after Arena activities would improve the bottleneck which exists now.

Editor's Thinking Supreme

One of the more profound questions that physicists continue to grapple with is that of Einstein. Did Einstein have the correct view of gravity? It strikes at the core of our concept of the structure and nature of the universe.

Dr. Robert H. Dicke of Princeton University now thinks he has evidence that Einstein may have been wrong. Einstein considered gravity to be a phenomenon solely of the geometry of space. On the basis of a large number of effects that have been observed to a rough approximation, these include subtle changes in the orbit of Mercury. By refining astrophysical and observational relations related to these changes, Dr. Dicke and his associates believe they can show that Einstein's predictions are incorrect. His gravity theory thus would be wrong.

Dr. Dicke offers a theory of his own. In it, gravity is partly due to properties of space and partly to a force field that can be related to the distribution of matter throughout the universe.

Absrute as this is to us, theory topkies, the genius of understanding the fundamental nature of the universe, Einstein's gravitational ideas have reigned for half a century partly because scientists lacked the technology to put them to a really exacting experimental test. The work of Dr. Dicke and his colleagues shows that scientists have reached a point where such tests can begin to be made.

In all of this, Einstein's stature is undimensioned. His theory of relativity is secure as one of the basic pillars in the structure of physics. But in trying to understand the elements that make up the universe, he himself recognized the need for an exacting experimental test. Dr. Dicke, and his colleagues show that scientists have reached a point where such tests can begin to be made.

I have to take issue with you when you say the administration would be wise to change its scholastic policy before dealing with housing and mortgage policies. You say, "the university has no right to demand from the student social." Well, Gary, in my book your social shortcomings would be the No. 1 reason for boomer ing you out of school. It takes no great brain to meet the social standards of your school and at SIU. It simply means that you are too immature or rebellious to be in an institution of learning at college level.

Now I would like to have the opportunity to tell you how I feel about the scholastic standards at SIU. In this day and age, Gary, it is gratifying, to say the least, to discover that somewhere in our midst there is still a class that is interested in all the students, not just the naturally "easy student." Is it possible that you are not aware of the pressures and competition that exists in universities clear across this great country of ours? That there are many students deprived of the opportunity to receive an education because they are less fortunate than the natural born student? That in this great country of ours we believe that every man is entitled to an education if he so desires?

Gary, I am not speaking of the "good-off." Don't you think we are fortunate in that we have here a university that is interested in each individual, that the faculty is not so quick to write off a student before helping him out; that "we try to not bounce them at the first opportunity," that many young adults are becoming better citizens because of this system; and it would seem to me that it is much better for the victim if you make every effort to help a student before you declare him not college material.

I agree that in many cases these people are not college material, but let's try and find out before we are an quick to declare him so, and that is exactly what your university is doing with their "low standards."

More Books Might Help

In a recent issue of Saturday Review there was a rather unusual suggestion. It proposed that college bookstores might possibly begin to stock books. The suggestion will probably strike fear into the hearts of manufacturers of pennants, bumper stickers, buttons, sweatshirts, jackets, mouse pads, sweaters and athletic supplies.

According to the article's author, book sales contribute a substantial amount to the profits, even if they are actually making a loss. Which may be an encouraging comment on the pursuit of knowledge.

The time period which saw a 50 per cent increase in the college population also saw a 83 per cent increase in book sales.

This seems to be a rather convincing argument for not only the prominent and convenient placing of books but also for the expanding of the selection.

According to a survey of students taken by Moderator Magazine, they select 40 per cent of their books by随便 browsing.

The University of Miami has taken advantage of this trend by remaking its book store into a "campus information center." The aisles are carpeted and wide. Students are even allowed to sit on the floor and pore over their heart's content.

Picture such a scene at our University Center Bookstore.

Southern Gives Students Chance

To the editor:

Re the Gary Krischer article in the Feb. 10 Daily Egyptian:

I am not quite sure but my first reaction is that you are a status seeker. If you feel that you have to defend the scholastic ideals of your school why don't you run, not walk, to the nearest plane, train or bus, and get yourself off to Harvard, Yale or any one of the schools in this "recognized group?" If price is problematic I am sure you would be more than happy to have you on a scholarship basis, since you must have a whopper of an average.

I have to take issue with you when you say the administration would be wise to change its scholastic policy before dealing with housing and mortgage policies. Briefly Editorial

New York and California laws provide for compensation for medical expenses and loss of pay resulting from bodily injury suffered at the hands of criminals. They also authorize payment to survivors of a person killed in a crime if the survivors were dependent on the victim for support. Neither state compensates for loss of property.

The idea of state compensation for innocent victims of violent crimes has merits. Its application in Missouri and Illinois deserves the discussion it now under way.

Number of Problems Outlined in Statements

The four candidates for mayor of Carbondale in the Feb. 28 primary election and a write-in, by letter, to present their views to the Daily Egyptian on some of the major questions facing the community.

The replies to these questions of the candidates who participated in the invitational are printed on this page in today's paper.

The candidates were asked to comment briefly on these questions:

What do you consider your basic reason for running for mayor?

What are the principal problems facing Carbondale and what are the best approaches to solutions to these?

What are your views on relations between SIU and the city and how can they be cultivated?

What is your opinion of the city manager system, as it applies to Carbondale?

Should highway "through" traffic be routed around Carbondale?

North Seeks Civic Center

Thomas H. North, candidate for mayor, wants to bring a television station, increased radio coverage and a civic center to Carbondale if he is elected.

North said the civic center might be constructed "in conjunction with the General Services Administration."

North has stated that he is running for mayor "to solve the city's chief problems and a need for a prompt solution.

He is elected, to end undergraduate drinking and to support "open, public handling of the government," review, and policing of liquor licenses.

Keene, who is running on a slate with city council candidates Frank Kirk and Randall Nelson, is president of Keene's United Van Lines of Carbondale.

Jesse Groves is running on a ticket with city council candidates Frank Kirk and Randall Nelson, is the president of the Illinois Conference of the Methodist Church, and lay representative from the Southern Illinois Conference of the Methodist Church.

Miller Cites City Growth

Incumbent D. Blaney Miller is running for re-election for mayor on his record of "...providing employment and facilities necessary to keep pace with the growth of Carbondale,"

Miller gave as an example of this growth the location in Carbondale of Technical Tape Corp. in facilities secured by Miller for the city, "new city recreation on Oakland Avenue; one and one half million dollar bond issue street improvement programs; improved water and sewer facilities without increase in rates; and new areas annexed to city to increase the tax base."

Miller said the principal problems facing Carbondale are traffic congestion, need for increased water and sewer facilities and underemployment.

To solve these problems, Miller would continue efforts to move IC downtown facilities from Carbondale; complete the plans for north-south and east-west one-way traffic couples; continue efforts to attract industry to the Carbondale Industrial Park and complete plans for the side channel and Cedar Creek reservoirs.

Miller said the city manager form of government is "working very well" and the City Council "has cooperated fully" with the manager.

Miller called the relationship between Carbondale and SIU students "about what it is in other University towns—not the best, but not the worst."

The cost of re-routing through traffic around town would not be justified, Miller said, because Illinois Division of Highways studies show that only 15 per cent of traffic is through traffic.

Groves believes major problems facing Carbondale include poor drainage and an inadequate sewer system in the north part of the city, poor treatment of students by townpeople, "traffic congestion and littered streets."

In addition to making construction changes to improve drainage in the north section of town, Groves would like to extend North Michaels Street to meet North Carson. He would also like to see ordinance prohibiting blocking of alleys enforced.

other state universities can best be provided through uniform accounting and reporting.

"Presently, there is little uniformity in the annual reports published by the state universities and management information is minimal." The third recommendation urged the state to try "expedite presentation of unit cost data and summarization of the data and cost ratios analyses.

"The state universities are developing meaningful unit costs and ratios. Some of the analyses such as space utilization, average student credit-hours per instructor and average cost per student credit-hour represent the most advanced and meaningful operating statistics.

"Information of this nature is imperative in the development of operating budgets and the analysis of operating results.

In making the recommendations, the committee pointed out that although total expenditures for higher education in the state are large, its per capita expenditure is below that of five neighboring states.

The 1965 per capita expenditure was $27.49 which compared favorably with the national figure, $37.24.

The figure was, however, lower than those in Indiana ($48.59), Wisconsin ($45.09), Michigan ($44.06), Iowa ($45.25) and Minnesota ($47.27).

"Among the 50 states, Illinois, the highest, fourth in per capita personal income, was 18th in the percentage of college-age population enrolled in colleges in 1965," the report noted. "Foreseeing the future the report added, "Further increases in state college enrollment, now about 100,000, will undoubtedly require greater appropriations each year as the current projected rate of growth in enrollment is about 4.7 per cent per year."

Waldo Mauritz, the study committee chairman, said the $30 million savings estimates included only recommendations on which estimates were reasonably deterministic, but added that savings from implementation of all the panel's proposals would "materially exceed" that total.

He said the findings of the study "clearly demonstrate that further detailed studies would be productive of further desirable efficiencies, economies and better operations."

These economies would be in addition to the $30 million in annual savings now contemplated, Mauritz added.

The present study, which cost about $300,000, was accomplished without cost to the state, since 84 leading Illinois businesses contributed personnel and cash to finance the study.

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union summoned a meeting of local officials and leaders of a faction of the union's leadership to Detroit on Wednesday for a showdown over a walkout by a group of workers who are willing to work for the company in the face of a strike by the union.

This indicated that party officials may be worried about the possibility of a strike that would force the layoff of 13,250 workers at 57 plants in 14 states by the end of second-shift operations Wednesday night. This included 12 assembly plants and 45 related plants.

Leaders of the defiant Mansfield Local 549, arrived at UAW Solidarity House headquarters in late afternoon and were called into an immediate closed-door session. The eight-member delegation was headed by the local union president, Robert Hall.

In ordering the Ohio leaders on the carper, the UAW said, the actions of the local's officials may be jeopardizing the success of the union's new major contract negotiations, which will open this summer.

Emil Mazey, UAW secretary-treasurer, said in a telegram that conditions in Mansfield "threaten the continuation of the local union.

These conditions, he said, include the "refusal and defiance" of the local leadership is not complying with an earlier union telegram ordering an end to the strike.

Mazey accused the local officials of violating provisions of the UAW-GM contract and jeopardizing the interest and welfare of all UAW members.

Louis Seaton, GM vice president in charge of personnel, said the strike could force a layoff of all of GM's 240,000 production workers, at a daily loss in wages of $6.25 million. He said the average pay is $26 a day.

"The fact of the matter is that the action of a handful of irresponsible local union leaders in one plant is jeopardizing the livelihood of more than 240,000 workers."

The letter promised for-giveness to opponents of Mao who are willing to work, indicating there has been sabotage among party cadres responsible for production by the nation's 500 million peasants.

"The party's Central Committee believes that the overwhelming majority of cadre at all levels in the rural people's communes are good or at least fairly good," the letter said.

"Those comrades who have made mistakes should also make energetic efforts in the spring cultivation so as to make amends for their mistakes by good deeds."
Sukarno Surrenders All Power

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno ended an era Wednesday by surrendering his remaining presidential powers, possibly to avoid being tried as a traitor to the country he led to independence.

In a statement, Sukarno said he handed over all presidential powers to Gen. Suharto, the Indonesian strong man, "for the sake of the people and the country." But he kept the now empty title of president.

Sukarno had been president and a one-man ruler for most of the 21 postwar years beginning in the days when he was fighting the Dutch for independence. And his action, forced by the military, may have spared the nation a bloodbath.

Political and military sources said the action today came after Suharto agreed that Sukarno would not be brought to trial on charges of complicity in the Indonesian Communist coup that failed Oct. 1, 1965. In two weeks of intense military pressure, Suharto had warned Sukarno he might be tried.

Presumably, Suharto preferred to let Sukarno keep his title to head off trouble among the masses of the 109 million Indonesians, many of whom still regard the president as a godlike figure.

"If the president of Indonesia and supreme commander of the armed forces of the Republic of Indonesia, effective today, surrender executive power," said Sukarno’s statement.

News Guidelines Revised

PEORIA (AP) — Some of the disputed guidelines for reporters covering the Richard Speck trial were revised formally Wednesday.

Judge Herbert C. Paschen, who is presiding at Speck’s trial on charges of murdering eight student nurses in Chicago, issued a supplemental order modifying some of the rules.

He acted after representatives of newspapers, and broadcasters had protested, a suit to remove the restrictions had beenfiled and some Illinois legislators started a move to see if constitutional amendments should be sought to protect the public’s right to know in the courts.

Judge Paschen’s supplemental order will permit newsmen to buy transcripts of the proceedings after a jury has been seated in Circuit Court.

The original order, Feb. 14, limited the transcripts to attorneys in the case until after the verdict.

The new order says names and addresses of excused jurors may be published, "but detailed questions and answers propounded to prospective jurors that might tend to discover future jurors from accepting service on the jury should not be published."

The new guide says no photographs of jurors may be made without prior permission of the court. The earlier order had banned such pictures until the trial’s end.

Still in force are guidelines forbidding the making of sketches in the courtroom, using still or TV cameras or recorders in the Peoria County courthouse and statements by principals outside of court.

Prison Staff Officers to Attend Penal Training Session Here

Officials from 18 states who are charged with the responsibility of training corrections officers at penal institutions will attend a nine-week staff officers Training Institute March 20 to May 19 at SIU. The institute is made possible by a $196,000 federal grant from the Office of Law Enforcement Assistance, Department of Justice, according to Elmer Johnson, assistant director of the SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections which will conduct the program.

A special curriculum drawn from the fields of communications, education, psychology, recreation and sociology has been developed under the guidance of John E. Grenfell of the center staff.

Purpose of the Institute, Johnson said, is to orient staff training officers to current trends in teaching and teaching materials. The need for such training has come about because of new concepts in penology which assign a rehabilitation function to the men whose duties until recent years were limited to guarding prisoners.

The Institute trainees will design and test materials in actual practice, Johnson said.

Block-Briddle Club
Adds Four Members

The Block and Briddle Club added four new members recently. They are Cheryl Carter, Eileen Cooper, Curtis Fudge, Pittsfield; Terry N. Torrence, Pekota; and Larry J. Green, Tuscola.

since during two weeks near the end of the program 45 corrections officers with limited experience will come to SIU to serve as "students" of the original group.

The final week will be devoted to 14 sessions for visiting top-level prison administrators to acquaint them with the training officer program.

Judges from more than 18 states are expected to participate in the clinic.
The Sabuki gamblers will participate in two meets the next three days, hoping to increase its long winning streak. They will travel to Norman, Okla., to compete against the Oklahoma Sooners in the Thursday night. The Sooners are only in their second year of competition in gymnastics but last year they were third in the Big Eight Conference.

The team figures to be even stronger next year. Oklahoma signed three gymnasts the Sabuki were trying to get and they field a strong freshman team.

The Sabuki will travel to the Air Force Academy Saturday afternoon in the SIU-Poland. They defeated the Falcons last season, and this will be the third meeting between the schools. The Sabuki own a 2-0 record.

Southern has won seven consecutive dual meets, and the last couple of meets SIU gymnasts have looked in top form for the NCAA finals March 31 to April 1.

"We've looked good real in the past two meets especially in the little things. We aren't making mistakes any longer and we are polishing up the different tricks for the finals," said Coach Bill Mead.

Tickets for the NCAA final will be available at the Arena Ticket office and the University Center Information Desk.

Scorekeeper's Work Added to Shrine

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Scrapbooks, scorebooks and thousands of clippings compiled by the late John B. Cooey during his 40 years as a Pittsburgh Pirates scorekeeper have been added to Baseball's Hall of Fame, president Paul S. Kerr has announced.

Meade plans to use Rick Tucker in the all-around for the second meet in a row. Tucker competed as the all-around man in the Louisiana State meet and won.

Joe Polizzano, who has developed in the number-two man in the still rings, will be back for the Oklahoma meet. Polizzano had a shoulder injury last week and Meade held him out of the Louisiana State meet.

Dave Harre, the leading SIU trampoline performer, still has a protective cast around his wrist. Harre was a lost horse vaultner before the injury, but he may be back in action shortly.
Salukis Trump Purple Aces, 80-53

Another strong second half performance by the Salukis buried Evansville 80-53 Wednesday night and brought Southern its 13th consecutive victory and the school record in that category, 197-6.

After a first half that saw the lead exchange hands seven times and the Salukis take a 28-26 lead into the dressing room, Southern disposed of the one team that stood between them and Saturday's showdown with Kentucky Wesleyan by scoring eight straight points early in the second half to drive out a 12 point lead, which quickly widened.

Pat Clarks' Smith's 19 points and Walt Frazier's 18, all of which came in the second half, the Salukis wasted little time in asserting their dominance over their lesser opposition. Southern took the boards away from the Purple Aces and tightened its stingy defense, wearing Evansville down rapidly.

Frazier keyed the Salukis' offense with precision passing and 15 rebounds. He took but four shots in the initial period, but found the range from outside in the last stanza. Smith found the way under the basket several times during the night, pushing soft left-handers through the frustrated Ace defenders.

Smith's offensive explosion didn't take him away from defense at all. He did another sterling job on Evansville's high scoring Herb Williams, holding him to four points.

Ralph Johnson and Chuck Benson contained the Aces' big man Tom Neimeier during the final 20 minutes. Neimeier had 11 points at halftime, but managed only a pair of field goals after that.

Nearly everyone got into the act for Southern in the second half. Johnson finished with 13 points, Garrett had 11, Roger Bechtold five and Ed Zastrow and Willie Griffin four apiece.

After the game SIU Coach Jack Hartman explained that the Salukis' big second half as opposed to the tight first period might have been a result of throwing off a cautious attitude they seemed to carry throughout the first half. He said they had done a little too much probing the first half, but that he was well satisfied with the second half performance.

Evansville Coach Arad McCutchan, who questioned about his comments early in the week on Saturday's Kentucky Wesleyan-SIU game said that he might have been a bit misquoted. He said that he wouldn't wager a guess, but that his original comment was that he could foresee no reason for a change in the pattern of the original contest, that is a close game.

The NIT will make its first extension of invitations at 10 a.m. Central Standard time. According to Boydstun, they will probably decide upon three or four teams in the first meeting. They will then spread the future bids over the period of about a half-week. An invitation would give the Salukis an opportunity to play before a national television audience in New York's Madison Square Garden, should they win their way past the first round of the tourney. The Salukis, involving 14 teams at its outset begin March 9, a Thursday, with the following games played Saturday March 11 on national television. Winning teams play either the 13th or 14th and should they make the finals, again the following Saturday, March 18.

The team would, if invited, jet out to New York for the first game, return to school and jet back to New York for the games the following week, provided they win the initial game, Boydstun said.

Boydstun said the final exam week conflict would not be a new problem, since the NCAA also plays through finals week.

Last year's NIT finals were played between Brigham Young and New York University, with Brigham Young capturing the top spot in what is generally considered the second biggest tournament in college ball. Several Eastern Independents are normally the first to receive invitations to the NIT. Such teams as Syracuse, Boston College, Providence, St. John's, St. Francis and Virginia Tech would be considered. The top two Eastern Independents generally accept a NCAA at large bid. This leaves the others for NIT consideration.

The NIT also extends invitations to several conference runners-up. Brigham Young represented the Western Athletic Conference last year. The Missouri Valley would probably be represented by Cincinnati and Tulsa, depending upon the final standings. Other outstanding Midwest independents are Dayton and Memphis State, which is a MVC member, but is not competing for the basketball crown extension.

Final date for selections would depend upon the wrapup of conference races. Until then the Salukis' and their fans must play a waiting game. The Salukis' consideration may rest upon Saturday's Kentucky Wesleyan game, depending upon the thinking of NIT officials.
