Elusive Saluki Dog Killed on Highway When Hit by Car

Saara, the runaway Saluki mascot missing more than two months, was killed about 4 a.m. Thursday when she ran into the path of an auto on Route 13 one mile east of Carbondale.

Police said the driver of the auto, who recognized the dog and reported the accident to police, told them the accident was unavoidable. The driver’s name was not released.

The sleek red-coated Saluki escaped from the auto transporting it to the Spring Festival, May 11. It was to have been the dog’s first public showing.

Campus handlers of the Saluki, members of the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, offered a $50 reward for information leading to Saara’s return. Despite many reported sightings, the dog eluded would-be captors.

Police said Leon P. Striegel, Carbondale veterinarian, identified the dog after the accident. Striegel purchased Saara and litter mate, Yebo, from a St. Louis breeder last February as a gift to the University.

Joseph N. Goodman, coordinator for Information and Scheduling Center and adviser to the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, said he was told Saara’s physical condition had appeared to be “as good or even better than before she escaped.” He said there were no visible wounds resulting from the accident.

No burial ceremony was planned for Saara, since the dog had been on campus only a few months and had never been displayed in public, Goodman said.

King Tut, the original SIU mascot saluki, was killed by an auto in 1954.

Five SIU mascots, swift-footed descendents of ancient Egyptian hunting dogs, remain. Two females are young enough for breeding.

CHICAGO (AP)—A mob of young Negroes smashed a food market on Chicago’s North Side Thursday night and looted the place before shotgun-wielding policemen dispersed them.

A dozen persons were reported injured, including a newspaper photographer, who was beaten. A police officer at the Henroxin Hospital said the photographer, Mel Larsen of The Chicago Sun-Times, was “lucky to be alive.”

Police said several youths were arrested carrying a cash register from the store, which was reported open for business when about 100 youths marched in.

The manager of the A&P food market said the youths stormed the opened store around 7 p.m., brushed past clerks and checkers and started lifting food and liquor from the shelves.

The manager, Martin Stratton, said the youths carried away considerable quantities of food and liquor before police arrived. When officers got there the looters scattered.

A crowd of 100 youths congregated around a Chicago fire department station two blocks from the food store. They jeered firemen, and the chief of the station asked for police protection.

Police were rushed to the station.

“If they throw a fire bomb in here, we’re going to let it burn, but we’re getting the hell out,” said Capt. Donald Burke, chief of the fire department’s 3rd battalion.

Larsen was pulled from his car and beaten by four youths.

Larsen was surrounded by several hundred youths and viciously beaten. He was rescued by Sid Bennett, 35, a Negro, who said he was a karate teacher.

Bennett said he threw himself over Larsen and then pulled the photographer to safety. He was beaten around the face and chest.

Rocks and bottles were hurled at a bus, injuring four passengers, apparently not seriously. Eight persons were injured on the streets of the area.

Bus service was delayed on Division Street and traffic was re-routed in the area.

After the youths were chased from the vicinity of the store a screen fence was drawn around its front for protection, a precaution taken every night at the store.

Clayton Robinson, a police detective, said he entered the area in an unmarked patrol car and was confronted by a crowd he estimated at 1,000 youths.

Robinson said he called for help. Soon afterward, shotgun-wielding policemen moved in and dispersed the crowd and halted the random looting.

He said about 100 of the 1,000 youths were in the store.
Student Publication Planned

SUI's Franklin "Buzz" Spector, formerly the newly appointed editor of the now defunct student opinion paper KA, has announced that he will assume editorial duties of the uncolored University Student Senate publication The Spectator.

The 20-year-old sophomore from Skokie also revealed plans for a quarterly student publication bearing many of the creative aspects of KA. He said that discussions are now underway with members of the English and art departments as to design, printing particulars and the needed Student Senate confirmation.

Funds for the proposed magazine would come through the Student Senate, activity fees and the Chancellor's fund. Spector hopes that the publication will use a multi-color, offset printing process much like many quality magazines.

Along with Spector, the revived weekly student government publication will probably employ former KA staffers Paul Wheeler and Jerry Finney as associate editors. KA was banned recently from the campuses of SUI by Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar for alleged violations of the University publication code.

The Spectator was discontinued spring quarter and incorporated into KA. MacVicar has reportedly expressed no objections to the revival of the student government newsletter.

Last year, The Spectator was published in mimeographed form and was essentially a semi-weekly containing government news, editorials and forthcoming events.

Spector hopes to "bring more student criticism through student government." The newsletter will contain editorials and relate letters from senators' constituents.

The Spectator will not assume the creative role expressed in student opinion as did KA, Spector announced. The creativity will be absorbed by the proposed magazine and is already partially covered by the off-campus, private newspaper, The Southern Free Press, according to Spector.

Spector added that the proposed magazine may adopt many of the ideas which former SIU student Stuart Novick had intended for his publication, Sassy.

The new student government publication editor also hopes to secure some form of guarantee that as long as The Spectator remains within the boundaries of its regulations, no censorship will be imposed.

Lawson Adds Closed Circuit TV

Three new closed circuit television projects, moveable to serve any of 10 lecture halls in Lawson Hall at SIU have been added to the building's sophisticated instructional facilities.

The ultra-bright picture tube in these projectors picks up closed circuit television from WSIU-TV, the University's station, and projects it through an 8 x 20-foot "rear screen" in the classroom.

In "rear screen" projection the picture is projected through a translucent screen. Lawson Hall's 10 lecture rooms can handle 1,670 students per hour. All classrooms are equipped to utilize slide, film and TV projection, tape recordings, photogram recordings, and overhead projection for notes, diagrams, charts, and other material displayed by the lecturer at his lectern.

Governments Reverting to Racism in Reverse
An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkis Lloyd Jones

When Robert Burns wrote: "A man's a man for himself, wi' his ain hand to th' work o' the world," he was referring to the dignity of the individual. It is the ideal that a man be judged for what he is, on his ambition and performance, not on extraneous factors over which he has no control.

Racism may be defined as the process of pushing ahead or holding down a man because of his race. We have had a lot of it in America, and we should be ashamed. For generations the American Negro had to be twice as good to get half as far.

In Southern schools under the old apartheid system a white child was born into the best possible environment available, was given the best for the public accommodations he could afford and had the opportunity to enter into any occupation for which he might qualify himself.

The Negro child, on the other hand, was born under low ceilings. His school was usually poor, his public accommodations scarce. He had this opportunity limited, almost nonexistent.

The civil rights movement, which captured the imagination of the Negro everywhere, was designed to cure this double injustice.

But it now looks as though the federal government is in danger of slipping right back into racism—this time with a reverse twist.

On July 5 the Federal Communications Commission issued a decree threatening the licenses of those they do not practice a system of racial discrimination which has no backing in the public law, but which was dreamed up on the basis of the alleged need to avoid a confrontation with the courts.

The commission general counsel, Harry Geller, told newsmen that it will no longer be considered sufficient for radio and TV stations to open their employment rolls to qualified Negroes on the same basis as qualified whites. On the contrary, he said the stations must undertake to train Negro applicants who otherwise appear they must "seek them out." This is racism, enforced by the power of government, against a company out of business if it does not comply.

What it means is that if a station fears it is below some unspecified FCC formula for proper integration it must abandon the application of the otherwise-qualified white applicant while it goes forth to see if it can find some colored person to take the job.

This is clearly in violation of the federal Civil Rights Act. For employers are now by law forbidden to discriminate in hiring practices solely on the grounds of race. Those who follow the dictates of the FCC could be inviting suit under the Civil Rights Act from the rejected white job seeker. It would be interesting to see how the U.S. Supreme Court could decide such a case.

This spring militant Negro students at Northwestern University demanded and received permission to set up an all-Negro dormitory. There was no reaction from federal officials. But what would happen if white students at Georgia Tech had tried to set up an all-white dormitory? How long would it have taken Western universities to threaten to remove all federal funds from the Georgia school?

The trouble with these double standards is not only that they are philosophically phony, but that they will do great violence to the cause of racial understanding.

Bureaucrats in the Federal Communications Commission, who were never elected to anything, cannot go on very long creating new discrimination. If the FCC is to be trusted with the use of its power it must be trusted to handle the whole matter with care and fairness.

Some time ago Americans as a whole got to have the word to Washington that: laws governing race relations are going to have to be applied equally. This means that if white citizens must qualify for jobs so must colored citizens. It means that white people are not "bought out" and recruited for jobs, colored people shouldn't be either.

To give Negroes four strikes at the plate and a home run on one infra- fly is to imply an inherent inferiority of performance that will be the death of dignity. And to persist in double standards of apartheid will bring an eventual confrontation between black power and the power that will blow the whole ball game.

U.S. Keeping 'Hands Off' In Czechs' Tiff With Russia

By Astero Pleddia

There is a certain analogy between what happened in Vietnam when the United States chose to move in and back the Ngo Dinh Diem government, and what the Russians are probably trying to do today in regard to Czechoslovakia.

The Eisenhower Administration decided to lend help to Diem to prevent the status quo from changing and the country going communist. It decided to do this although the transformation could have happened through ballotting.

Eisenhower himself mentions in his memoirs that Ho Chi Minh, if the elections had been held as was provided in the Geneva agreement, would have polled some 70 per cent of the popular vote.

The percentage of the Czechoslovakia today behind their leader Alexander Dubcek is probably even higher and the communist party organization, excluding some old Stalinist crackpots, seems to be in favor of the new nationalistic, communist policy. Yet the Soviet soldiers of status quo are ominously marching along the borders of a nation of 14-million people. And they certainly are not wooden soldiers.

The Czechoslovaks are alone. Unlike the Hungarians who to the very last hoped for outside help to come, they know that they will be alone whatever happens. The Administration spokesmen in Washington could not have indicated in any clearer fashion that its policy toward Czechoslovakia is "Hands off." This means, of course, that the United States is going to stand aside regardless of what happens, thus leaving the doors of decision wide open for the Russians.

There is no need to remind anyone of what took place in Hungary, not at least the Czechoslovaks. They are too painfully aware of their very own recent history. They know that the Americans are now much more interested in securing "peace for our time" than what happens in Czechoslovakia which so unquestionably belongs to the Soviet sphere of interest.

Yet, as the New Statesman pointed out recently, the Munich syndrome works both ways. The Russians are already playing on the internal divisions of the Czechoslovaks and will not accoply to use Slovak-nationalists as the Nazis used the Sudeten. But the Czechs have learned from Munich that one major concession led rapidly, and inevitably, to the loss of everything. Their instinct is to resist Soviet demands, calmly but firmly, they have made this clear by publicly insisting on their status as allies, not satellites, under the Warsaw Pact.

The Politburo of the Soviet communist party had not begun its party with the Czechoslovakia that we are writing on Wednesday. It is, therefore, impossible to say what happened in its policy-making meeting in Russia before its departure. An unsigned article in the party newspaper Pravda, which may or may not represent the official Politburo views, charged that there had been "an obvious change in political appraisal" in Prague recently.

The article reportedly asserted that communist rule was imperiled in Czechoslovakia and insisted that Prague reimpose censorship, suppress right-wing and anti-socialist forces, ban anti-communist political activities and restore communist party discipline and control over the country. Earlier Pravda had declared that "certain circles" in Czechoslovakia, under the cover talk about "liberalization" and "democratization," are trying to erase the whole history of the country since 1948 and the socialistic achievements of workers, to discredit the communist party and its leading role. Also, they were charged with trying to subvert the friendship of the Czechoslovak people with the peoples of the fraternal socialist countries and to lay ground work for counter-revolution.

It has been very hard for the Soviets to swallow the truth that even Czechoslovaks of unquestionable communist background and loyalty have begun showing anti-Russian sentiments. And in a couple of instances the Russians may have felt their prestige badly hurt.

Both of two recent cases may seem quite insignificant to Americans. In one a Czechoslovak female television reporter rushed to a Soviet marshal and using what is known as the revolver technique of interviewing asked point-blank what the Russians are going to do. The marshal hardly managed not to lose his temper. The second case involved bickering over the arrest of a CBS News television crew that had filmed Soviet troop movements. As correspondent William McLaughlin described the circumstances in a news program.

"We were surrounded by an impressively large group of Soviet officers who detained us and demanded our passports, cameras and film. We refused, pointing out that this was not Soviet territory. So, two Soviet officers marched us off to the local police station."

"After five hours of waiting, one of the local Czech policemen told us to surrender our camera and film to the Russians. He said, 'Not before we speak to someone responsible in the Czech government or the U.S. Embassy.'"

"A few minutes later, the same policeman returned with the two Soviet officers, who now looked very unhappy. 'Okay,' said the Czech, 'You can go.'"

The only comment there can be is that this was not the way things used to be handled in the "good old days" when whatever the Russians said was law.

That the Soviet leadership so apparently views the continuing liberalization in Czechoslovakia as a danger to the status quo in Central Europe is an alarming sign because it gives justification to whatever action may take place. Those of us who in their peacetime have almost predefined the worst to happen have doubts only because this would scatter the big European communist parties and alienate the nonsocialists left from its friendly attitudes toward the Soviet Union.

However, if the Soviet Union deems itself to be compelled to use strength it will do this as a last resort and desperate act, thus indicating that it wants to retain control over the Eastern European communist countries more than anything else.

Besides, Machiavellian acts usually breed Machiavellian justification: most of the Western European communist parties have been too independent anyway and a purge may be good, as the cooperation with bourgeois governments is likely to produce many more fruits than with local parties.

Anyway, this is already going ahead of the event.

George Kennan in his famous article in Foreign Affairs in July, 1947 (which he signed with the letter "X") predicted that if the policy of containment were effectively applied "over a period of ten or fifteen years" the result might be a radical modification of the Russian threat as it then existed.

The Soviet-American relations being what they are today, he has seen his words come true. And everything seems to indicate that the Americans don't want to endanger this progress only because of Czechoslovakia, which hurried ahead in a planned liberalization program that in Washington was visualized to develop smoothly and simultaneously all over Eastern Europe.

It is not that Champions for Liberty are dead; they have only made room for Champions for Status Quo.
Daley Backs Ted Kennedy For V-President

In an apparent Democratic figure, Mike Manfied, however took a stand on the same issue in Washington.

Daley said Kennedy telephoned him Wednesday night a few hours after Daley, at a news conference, proposed the senator for the No. 2 spot on the party ticket.

"He said he was considering it," the mayor said.

The mayor played cagey with reporters trying to smoke out his choice for the No. 1 spot.

"If we get a good second man, we are sure to get a good first man," he replied to their queries.

In Washington, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana advised Sen. Kennedy Thursday to stick to the Senate and avoid becoming involved in a vice presidential contest.

Mansfield told the Senate that Kennedy would be "a most suitable democratic candidate for the vice presidency." But he added that because of the recent tragedy of his brother Robert's assassination the best deal that could be paid to the Massachusetts senator would be to leave him in the name of decency to his own quiet and counsel at this time.

55 MPH Limit Set for Trailers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Legislature has put a speed limit of 55 miles an hour on buses, cars and trailers, campers and private living coaches.

The measures were enacted by the session ended Thursday and will now go to Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro, Secretary of State Paul Powell announced.

The new legislation keeps the vehicles in the category of trucks, in which they were placed in 1967, but defines them as recreational non-commercial vehicles with a separate fee schedule and distinctive license plates.

The new legislation exempts buses for non house trailers from the annual inspection required of trucks.

Group Admits Bombing Cities

NEW YORK (AP) — A self-described spokesman for an organization he calls "Cuban Power" said Thursday the anti-Castro group was responsible for more bombings in various U.S. cities.

"Very soon, with days or hours, we will be heard from again," the man, Arturo Rodriguez Vives, said in an interview.

With Provisions

House Authorizes Education Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House authorized $5 billion Thursday to continue a variety of higher education programs for two more years. But it threatened students who take part in campus uprisings with a loss of federal support.

By a vote of 387 to 15, the House approved a bill trimmed much closer to the demand of the economy bloc than a $13.5 billion, four-year measure passed earlier by the Senate.

A compromise between the two bills will now have to be reached.

The House bill extends some 20 programs that provide a broad range of assistance to institutions of higher learning and their students. It also launches new programs.

Actual funds to operate the programs will be voted on in separate legislation and in some areas will be far less than the amounts authorized.

The student aid provisions in the bill continue the programs of direct loans, guaranteed loans, grants and payments for campus work that have helped more than 3 million students meet the costs of their college educations.

However, alarmed at the series of student uprisings that swept U.S. campuses earlier in the year, the House added two provisions that could cut off aid to some students.

One would require college officials to deny any federal benefits to a student who, in violation of lawful order, takes part in any activity serious enough to disrupt the operations of the institution.

The other would deny any benefits to any student convicted of a crime as a result of his participation in a campus uprising.

The prohibition would be lifted three years after the conviction.

Since April 22, there have been 11 bombing incidents in the New York metropolitan area, including one in Newark, N.J. The targets have been eight foreign consular or diplomatic offices of countries which trade with Cuba, two taverns frequented by Cubans and a pacifist bookstore.

In Los Angeles, four travel agencies and a business office were bombed last Friday. "Ultra-Cuban Power" stickers were found on their doors.

In the interview, Rodriguez, 25, justified the bombings as "door knockers to the conscience of the people" to help end trade with Communist Cuba.

He said "Cuban Power" emerged about eight or nine months ago and has a cell-type structure. He said three cells operate in Miami and one each in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Rodriguez said the bombs used "don't have shrapnel because we want to avoid as much as possible that there be any innocent victim."

Deputy Police Commissioner Jacques Nevard, in charge of police press relations, told the Associated Press regarding Rodriguez: "We are aware of the individual and his organization. All of this information is part of our continuing, intensive investigation into the bombings."

Czechs Denote Official

PRAHUE (AP) — A key figure in Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive lost his post Thursday night in what seemed to be a dramatic gesture by the new Prague leadership to pacify the Soviet Union. Virtually on the eve of its showdown talks with the Soviet politburo, Czechoslovak party presidium ordered Lt. Gen. Vazler Priblik, a chief target of Soviet attacks against the new regime, to return to army service from an important party position.

The presidium abolished the political department that controls the army, the security police and the judiciary. Priblik had headed the department.

The development came after the Soviet Union was reported to have stopped the flow of Russian tourists to Czechoslovakia as Prague's reforming Communist leaders prepared for a showdown with top Kremlin officials.

The tourists ban could be interpreted as adding an economic phase to Soviet political and military pressure against Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive.

A spokesman for Priblik's State Administration Department of the party Central Committee came three days after the Soviet Defense Ministry paper Komsomolskaya Pravda assailed him for publicly denouncing the delay in withdrawal of Soviet troops from Czechoslovakia after Warsaw Pact war games in June.

Priblik, 45, played a major role in negotiating a guard-party-parity chairman, Antonin Novotny. last January. He was then given the departmental post.

The reformers hope most many old-time Communists from the Central Committee from the Central Committee at the congress in September.

In another development Thursday, the Czechoslovak Defense Ministry rejected a London newspaper's claim that it had received information on a Czechoslovak army plan to defend the country against a possible invasion by Soviet troops. The Soviet travel restrictions were reported in the newspaper Venarni Praha—Evening Prague.

The paper said the government travel bureau Odresa had been advised that its Soviet counterpart, Intourist, had canceled all group tours scheduled for July.

The denial of the story of an anti-Soviet Defense plan, printed in the London evening News, was issued by a Defense Ministry spokesman, Col. Frantisek Kuchta.

"I am authorized to say that the whole report is fabricated," he said. The Czechoslovak People's Army is a term component of the defense system of the Socialist countries.

"The Czechoslovak army will also in the future work for strength, cooperation and friendship with the armies of the Warsaw Treaty countries.

The evening News claimed to have gotten its information from high army quarters in Prague. The trade union paper Prace warned Czechoslovaks that the forthcoming meeting of the Czechoslovak presidium with the Soviet Communist party politbureau will be "very difficult.

Curfew Calms
Cleveland Area

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Mayor Carl Stokes imposed a curfew on the troubled East Side Thursday night but said the use of black community leaders to keep the area was a failure.

"National Guard and white police will go into the area to insure that the curfew is kept and the people keep off the streets," Stokes told newsmen.

The curfew will affect the Glenville neighborhood in the East Side and will be in effect from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Stokes said he planned a meeting with safety officials, Police Chief Michael Blackwell and Ohio Adj. Gen. Sylvester Del Corso to work out details.

"In something like this I will have to rely on their professional judgement," Stokes said.

Stokes added that he did not believe "black leadership had failed. They had requested a 24-hour period to quell tension and this they had accomplished."

"Their job was ended," Stokes added, "but there was still a need to keep people—mainly youngsters—off the streets and and the looting."

Stokes said, "No civilians, including newsmen, would be permitted into the combat area."

The six-square mile area includes most of the tough neighborhood which was the scene of looting and burning in 1966.

The Rev. Baptist Hill and some 50 other black leaders were in the combat area when the curfew was made.

The Rev. Mr. Hill said, "We're turning the community back to the mayor." The Negro leaders voted Thursday to end their parolling and they thanked Stokes for his confidence in them.

Gen. Del Corso told newsmen that the Guardsmen in the area would shoot only if a looter was caught or resisted arrest. I don't anticipate that there will be a necessity for shooting.

Earlier Thursday, Stokes said, "We do not think the danger has passed."

Less than an hour later his words were reinforced by an anonymous telephone bomb threat on his life.

Doctors Disagree
About Transplants

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four medical specialists in different parts of the country Thursday voiced complete or partial disagreement with the statement of Dr. Domen A. Cooley, a Texas heart-transplant surgeon, that:

"Cardiac transplantation has reached the point where, if properly performed, it could be considered a therapeutic measure . . . and no longer an invasive experimental procedure."

A fifth, Dr. George E. Burch of New Orleans, president of the 3,500-member American College of Cardiology, said his organization considers it too soon to endorse any policy concerning whether or not cardiac transplants is an acceptable therapeutic procedure.

Dr. Cooley, of St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, Houston—who has supervised more heart-transplant operations than any other surgeon in the world—made his statement to newsmen Monday, two days after the sixth heart-transplant operation at that hospital. Since then, still another has been performed by the Houston team.

Only one of the four doctors making direct comments on Cooley's statement said he was in complete disagreement with the Texas' views—and all described him as one of the world's most skillful surgeons.

Furthermore, all said they agreed fully with Cooley's contention that heart-transplant operations "should no longer be considered surgical feats or surgical spectacles."

SIU ‘Keyman’ Marvin Supervises

Control of Campus Lock Systems

By Jo Pinazzi

Charles Marvin might be considered the “keyman” at SIU.

As supervisor of Key Control, a division of the Security Office, Marvin is the man in charge of SIU’s master key

Key Makers

system. He holds the Civil Service classification of police lieutenant and is assisted by two locksmiths and one master locksmith.

“TThere’s always something different happening. You name it, we get it,” said Marvin.

Marvin said he must send his locksmith to Brush Towers quite often to pick the locks and let students out of their rooms. The locks in the new complex haven’t been adjusted yet and many of them go “haywire.”

The master key system uses one key to fit a great number of locks. For instance, one key opens everything in the academic buildings. One key is used for buildings at Little Grassy. One key opens all VTI locks and one key is for auxiliary enterprises, which includes the housing office and other income-producing activities, said Marvin.

“Do not duplicate” is printed on one side of each key and “property of Southern Illinois University” is printed on the other side.

Administrators, cabpenters, electricians, plum-bears, and other authorized personnel hold master keys.

Some employees must check them out in the morning and return them in the evening.

The length of time a key is issued to a person depends on the length of time his job requires it.

If a master key is lost, Key Control has the equipment to change all the locks controlled by that particular master key. The University uses Best replaceable cores.

The cores are the basis for the master key system, developed by an industrial arts school teacher. The cores, which is the key hole itself, can be removed from each lock by a control key and replaced or repunched to change the lock combination. Then a new master key would be requised.

Key Control is capable of making a key to fit one lock or one key to fit 16,364 locks.

They do this by using a key combinator which can cut an original key to 1/10,000th of an inch. All that needs to be done is to insert the key in the machine and dial the combination.

The combinations are kept on record and stored in a safe. This safety precaution is largely to protect them against fire. Keys are not stored and when extra keys must be made the combination records must be consulted.

Lock combinations can be changed. This is done by using a combinator kit. The kit contains all the material necessary to make all possible combinations to change the core of the lock. Locksmiths together and compare the different cores which makes varied combinations from the combinator kit.

Hundreds of keys are made each day and many keys are turned back. Keys turned in are thrown into a can and then melted down. In order to have a new key made, Key Control must receive an application which contains the department the key is needed for, the account number, and the assignment of the fiscal officer of that department, plus the name to whom the key is issued, said Marvin.

This prevents unauthorized personnel from being issued keys.

Surplus Property Section Provides Varied Items

By Don Johnson

Need an oxygen flow indicator? How about a set of GI mess kits? Maybe a copper bathtub, several sets of blind-flying goggles, or some school desks? Or maybe an airplane.

Then the SIU surplus property section may be the place to turn your shopping list. But the goods have to be for a department of the university.

Bert Terpinitz, head of the Surplus Property section, is the man to see. If what you want is on hand or available from federal to state surplus property stocks, Terpinitz can get it for you.

SIU is one of few universities with a full-time specialist to seek out government surplus items.

The surplus property section also picks up and redistributes property that departments on campus no longer want. Property is kept for a period while the staff checks to see if it is on a want list for other departments. If so, it is delivered to them with a small service charge.

Property not needed is kept for a period when needed on

Grad Student Plans

Mental Health Unit

Miss Josefina Ballesteros of Xalapa, Veracruz, Mexico, a graduate student in clinical psychology at SIU is presently enrolled in a psychology internship program at the A.L. Bowen Children's Center at Harrisburg.

Miss Ballesteros plans to return to Veracruz and open a mental health clinic. Her future clinic will hopefully accommodate patients on both a permanent and an out-patient basis. It will serve both the mentally disturbed and retarded.

She said that the experience and training she has received will be of great help in future endeavors. She hopes to receive government aid in constructing and staffing the mental health clinic she plans to open.

"It's partly a matter of knowing where to look for some of the goods when they become available," Terpinitz said.

"If you're after airplanes, you check the South and South-west. If it's electronic gear, California is the place to look."

But he commented, "Things are not as good as they used to be due to the Vietnamese War. They're just not re-leasing property like they used to."

But enough materials have been received to allow him to compile a yearly catalog of goods on hand for the use of University departments, now about those mess kits. The Department of Geology used some to carry and store rock samples in. But there are still about 30 on hand. Maybe they could be used for...

SIU, Illinois Officials Exchange Information

Personnel officers of the University of Illinois met with SIU officials recently to exchange information on employment of untrained persons.

W.T. Williams, staff assistant to U. of I. President David D. Henry, and Jacob Jennings, assistant to the chancellor of the Chicago Circle campus, heard SIU Personnel Director Frank Hartman explain SIU's "learner program" for preparing untrained personnel to fill university civil service jobs.

Since its inception in the fall of 1967 with three extra-help positions, a total of 134 persons previously unemployable under civil service testing rules have joined the SIU work force in various programs, Hartman said. The learner program involves Ex-SIU Journalists Get Bronze Star

Two former SIU students have been awarded Bronze Stars for journalistic work in Vietnam.

John Hubble, former Daily Egyptian reporter, received the award as a U.S. Army reporter and photographer. Army Capt. Frank Reynen, who worked on his doctoral degree in the Department of Journalism, received the award for editing a Vietnamese newspaper.

In Gymnastics Competition

Vogel Sees European Olympic Sweep

The U.S. women's gymnastics team will have trouble competing in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City next October, according to SIU Coach Herb Vogel.

Vogel is openly pessimistic and predicts that the United States team will be lucky to finish as high as sixth in the team standings. He picked Czechoslovakia, Russia and East Germany to finish on top in that order.

"We won't be able to compete with the Russians because in this country," he said, "there are not enough coaches and gymnasts for the right competition."

"The good girls we do practice as individuals and have no concept of being a team until about a month before the world games," he continued.

Vogel said that the Czechs, Russians and East Germans select applicants for the team a year ahead of time and cut their final number to eight at least six months before Olympic competition.

He pointed out that if a team gets an over-all average of 4.1 in competition in the United States its considered good whereas in Europe 4.4 is considered only average.

As for this country's chances for gold medals Vogel says they are practically nil.

"We will not be able to win any gold medals until our team gets at one of the top three spots," he said. "You're not eligible until you reach that level."

What about individual chances for medals?

Vogel says that Linda Alexander of the University of Illinois competing in the all-around competition will have the chance of earning a medal for the U.S. But even Linda Matheny will have hard competition, because she will compete against Vera Cashenka of Czechoslovakia who has qualified at 9.8 in previous all-around competition.

Miss Matheny has made 9.4 on occasions.

Sue Rogers has the best chance for the all around. Her average is 8.9.

Vogel hopes to see five girls from SIU including Linda Scott, Terry Spencer, Donna Schaefer, Joanne Hashimoto and Miss Rogers. They will have one more pre-Olympic August in front of the final team selected.

Former Saluki Basebalier

Don Kirkland Advances In Minor League Ball

Saluki Don Kirkland, who recently signed a professional baseball contract with St. Louis team, has been assigned to St. Petersburg, Fla.
Kirkland, playing shortstop for Joe Lutz’ NCAA runners-up in the College World Series, had 52 hits in 172 times at bat for a .302 average this year at SIU. He scored 41 runs, hit five home runs, and brought in 32 RBIs.

In the Rookie League at Sarasota, Fla., Kirkland appared in only two or three games. The Rookie League is for the beginning profesional ball player who has had little or no experience.

On July 3, Kirkland was transferred to the Class A League at St. Petersburg, where he starts regularly at the shortstop position. St.
Peterburg is a member of the Florida State League.

Batting .225 after 12 games, Kirkland has had 9 hits in 40 times at bat. He has one double and eight singles.

Recently, the St. Petersburg team has been on a winning streak, taking seven out of the last eight games. The team has a record of 51-45, good enough for third place in the league, five games out of first place.

The St. Louis system has four classifications for players. All the rookies are placed in the rookie league initially.
Class A league is for the player who has had some experience or for returning vet-trains who need some experience. Class AA is for vet-trains and Class AAA is for the best. Players from triple A are eventually given a chance for the major league if they show enough talent.

Montreal to Keep Baseball Franchise

MONTREAL (AP) — Buffalo was reported ready Thursday to step in and take over Mon-treal’s newly-acquired National League baseball franchise in case the Canadian city can’t make it, but backers here said it won’t be necessary.

Warren Gubin, president of the National League, also said in New York that he wasn’t worried that Montreal would not be able to meet its com-mittments.

Although Buffalo was the only city to express its interest Thursday in the franchise if the Montreal venture should fail, Milwaukee and Dallas-Fort Worth are also said to be watching the developments in the Canadian city.

Doubt that Montreal would be able to answer the bell for the expanded league in 1969 was raised when a second member of the original syndicate withdrew his investment.

He is J. Louis Leravag, a Montreal financier who was one of the board of seven backers. Another, Marc Bourge, a wealthy funeral director, pulled out Tuesday.
