Job outlook better than last year;
market 'still has long way to go'

By Diane Mizialka
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

For 1973 June graduates seeking employment, there is some good news and some bad news.

The good news is that job prospects are generally better than they were last year. Richard Gray, placement consultant at SIU Placement Service, said now for the bad news. Gray said that the job market "still has a long way to go" before it can be considered good for all June graduates.

The job market this year is 15-18 per cent better than last year's. Gray estimated. Job opportunities are best for graduates trained in a specialty, he said.

For liberal arts graduates, Gray characterized job prospects as "not good at all," although even these graduates will have a better chance at a job this year than before because of a general upturn in the number of jobs open.

Most job offers, Gray said, are aimed at electronics, engineering and technology graduates. Salaries in these fields are also increasing, Gray noted.

A random check of various schools and departments revealed an uneven distribution of job offers.

The Department of Child and Family is placing graduates with great success, Melva Ponston, director of the Child Development Laboratory, said.

"We're in a prime position at this point," Ms. Ponston said. There are about 100 positions open for persons trained in child development through the Chicago employment clearinghouse of the Illinois Child Care Association, she said.

Jobs for Child and Family graduates range from positions with private child care facilities to jobs with state agencies. There have been job offers from the Girl Scouts and from Disney World in Florida, Ms. Ponston said.

In addition, Ms. Ponston noted, child and family has a three-page booklet listing teaching opportunities for its graduates.

At the Department of Journalism and Photography, William Herrell, professor of photography, said he doesn't believe many CAP graduates are looking for jobs. "They all want to take a nice, long vacation this summer," he said.

"Nobody is beating down our doors looking for graduates," Herrell said. The situation was about the same last year, he noted.

CAP graduates who do find jobs may branch into many fields, Herrell said, from biomedicine to photojournalism.

W.E. Keepper, dean of the School of Education, said that should he have more programs for urban students, particularly in the Metro-East area. This needs to be more than just baccalaureate degrees, she said.

"We have students here who need training, but not necessarily a baccalaureate degree," she said. Ms. Blacksheir said she would like to see more associate degree and technical programs initiated at the Edwardsville campus, "like what is already at Carbondale."

Ms. Blacksheir said also she has some ideas which she hopes other board members are already considering, like involving faculty and students in all phases of University planning. She said she also hopes to involve area communities more in University planning and programs.

In addition to her teaching duties and new duties as a trustee, Ms. Blacksheir is active in the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT). She was recently designated head of the IFT executive board legislative committee.

She said that through her experiences with the IFT legislative committee and the board she hopes to initiate some support for University legislative programs.

The first time she knew anything about being considered for appointment to the board was last Friday, Ms. Blacksheir said. At that convention. at which some people will instruct a Ms. trustee.

New trustee is fourth grade teacher

Margaret Blacksheir thinks the idea of having a public school teacher on the Board of Trustees is a good one.

Gov. Dan Walker's office announced Ms. Blacksheir's appointment to the Board Thursday. She is a fourth grade teacher at Dunbar Elementary School in Madison, near Granite City.

"Being a public school teacher, I'll be bringing a new view to the board," she said Friday. She was appointed to fill the seat held by Dr. Martin Van Brown of Carbondale, whose term expired in January.

Among the ideas Ms. Blacksheir will be bringing to the board is a feeling of need for more programs for urban students, particularly in the Metro-East area. This needs to be more than just baccalaureate degrees, she said.

"We have students here who need training, but not necessarily a baccalaureate degree," she said. Ms. Blacksheir said she would like to see more associate degree and technical programs initiated at the Edwardsville campus, "like what is already at Carbondale."

Student living areas may be cut

Areas in Carbondale where groups of students can buy or rent a house will be reduced by approximately 50 per cent if the proposed zoning ordinance is approved.

The proposed ordinance will virtually limit "three or more students living in a single structure" to reside within a few square blocks located in the northeast section of town to the property adjacent to the University. These areas are shown in the shaded portions of the map.

The present zoning ordinance allows "three or more students living in a single structure" to reside practically anywhere within the city between Wall Street on the east and Oakland Avenue on the west all the way to the city limits on the south and north. This includes virtually the entire area between Wall Street and Oakwood Avenue as outlined on the map.

This means that if the proposed ordinance is passed, future groups of students will no longer be able to reside North of Main Street, except in a few square blocks in the northeast section of town or by special permission from the city.

Presently, groups of students may live in the northeast and northwest sections of town between Lall Street and Ft. Kaskaskia Road as well as in the southeast and southwest sections of town between Illinois Avenue and Oakland.

Ron Adams, a committee member opposing Weldon, said cooperation with the JFAB is one way of showing students the committee can work expediently in allocating fees.

In so doing, Adams said, the committee would be working in accordance with its constitutional responsibilities. The bill was defeated by a vote of 9 against passage and 4 in favor.

In rescinding the bill supporting Taylor's removal of student representatives from the JFAB, the senate has technically overridden his decision, and the undergraduate members of the board have been technically reinstated.

In other action, the senate defeated a bill submitted by Adams, which would have provided for bi-weekly summer meetings of the senate.

County Health Department at a cost of $2000 per month to operate a swimming pool in Carbondale. The swimming pool will be rented at $8.50 per hour plus $3.50 per hour per life guard, according to Weldon, and the number of lifeguards needed is determined according to the size of the group and the duration of the swim period.

The administration has proposed rents for approximately $750 per month, the city's price has ever been determined as no proposal for its use has ever been submitted.

In other action, the council is scheduled to consider a proposed monorail system. The presentation will be conducted by the consultant firm's firm and a memorandum study for SIU.

The council has also scheduled to take time in a resolution to adopt standards to make the downtown area as well as the downtown area accessible to handicapped persons.

A public hearing on the JFAB has approved the agenda by the council. The hearing revolves around plans for the construction in various areas of the city.

Raidus total rises as two more charged

By Tom Fish

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The arrest of two persons Thursday night brought to 19 the number charged with the federal property raids on the SIU Campus, in the Carbondale area and in Chicago.

Gail Ann Down, 18, Rt. 3, DuQuoin and James R. Abbott, 21, Town and Country, Taylorville, 127, Carbondale, were jailed late Thursday.

Neither of the newly arrested were students. Thirteen SIU students were among the 17 persons arrested in connection with the raids.

Three of the suspects met "100 per cent bond" was released. Theirs were Dennis Bradley Jackson, 19, James Sareles, 20, and Warren Jay Privett, 20.

Bonds of $5,000 to $25,000 were set in the case by Federal Magistrate Kent Brandson. The 100 per cent bond provision nullifies the state's one per cent cash provision.

 Held on $25,000 cash bond were Omar Hoyer, 21, Rickey Joe Petty, 20, John F. Roberts, 20, Sandy B. Faut, 20, John Francis Parmar, 19; Edward Majewski, 19; Tony Ray, 18, and Michael R. Johnson, 20, Judy R. Backman, 21, and Gaila Downs, 19.

 Held on $15,000 bond was John Robert Kerby, 20; Kenneth C. Jacobowski, 20; Mike Nowak, 21 and Earl Jay Pine, 19.

 Held on $5,000 bond was Karen Goessman, 20.

All those unable to make bond are being held in Jackson County Jail. They are scheduled to appear before a federal grand jury in Danville Monday.

The office of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs in Chicago, which set the raids, said Friday that no additional warrants have been requested.

Senate special session

Finance Committee bill defeated

By Larry A. Glogawski

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate in special session Friday defeated a bill which would have declared the senate Finance Committee independent of the Joint Fee Allocation Board (JFAB) and solely responsible for allocating 1973-74 activity fees.

The senate also rescinded a resolution supporting Student President, Jon Taylor's, removal of the undergraduate representatives to the Student Fee Allocation Board (SFAB).

Submitted by Rock Weldon, chairman of the Finance Committee, the Finance Committee bill asked the senate to refuse to recognize the JFAB and refuse to allow Finance Committee members to participate on the board.

In a heated argument which preceded the vote, Weldon told the senate that to let the Finance Committee work with the JFAB would be "buying into a situation... in which expedience is a more important thing than principle."

Taylor said that if the senate allowed the administration to have a voice in allocating fees this year, the administration might use it as a precedent to do it every year. "If we play the game with the administration now, in the end we will be on the defensive," he insisted.

Weldon's bill cited Article 1, Sec. 2, Part B of the Student Government bylaws which states that the Finance Committee shall "receive, review, and prepare budgetary requests and recommendations for the following fiscal year."

Weldon contended that the JFAB, a combination of the Finance Committee and the Student Fee Allocation Board, the brainchild of George Mace, dean of students, would usurp the constitutional powers of the Finance Committee to allocate fees independently.

The Finance Committee's five members are, themselves, divided on the issue. Committee chairman Weldon and one member favor the move in dependence, and three other members favor cooperation in the JFAB.

SIU bike problems need action

Bicycle riding is growing rapidly in the United States, as are the number of bicycles. Bikes provide good fun, exercise, and a mode of transportation for people—students in particular—who can’t afford a car.

The number of registered bicycles on campus has risen sharply over the last few years, from 119 in 1968 to nearly 1,200 this school year. And as the number of bikes increase, so does the number of problems related to riding.

The specific problems of cyclists contending with pedestrians and the problems of parking a bike on campus are matters of real concern.

The four and one-half miles of bikeway in Carbondale represents cooperation between the Campus Architect’s Office and the city which began back in December of 1971. The city bikeway is a great idea and merits support, but it does nothing to alleviate the problems on campus.

Plans were drawn up for new and improved bicycle paths on campus as far back as 1968. Budget problems halted the $200,000 project for 1971, and the problem still remains.

The current bike paths on campus, even when they are used, are wide enough to allow only one bike. If two cyclists meet going opposite directions, one must leave the path. For that matter, cyclists may as well ride all over the campus lawns.

Parking facilities for bikes on campus are currently inadequate. True, bike racks are available near most campus buildings, but they are notably missing from the Student Center, and obviously inadequate at Morris Library, where more bikes can be counted locked to the chain fence in front of the building than the two bike racks available there.

Bikes parked along campus walks present a hazard to both handicapped and blind students and care should be taken when parking away from bike racks. Locking bikes along the inside of those chain fences might help these students but it doesn’t solve the space problem.

For the safety of handicapped and blind students, as well as pedestrians, bicycle problems must be given a higher priority at SIU.

Money which has been wasted elsewhere since 1968 could have been used to make those proposed bike paths a reality. The bike paths wouldn’t have solved all the problems, but it would have made a start.

It is possible that bicycle registration could be made mandatory on campus, and a small fee charged for the service. These funds, though they may not be much, could be used toward better bicycle paths and more parking facilities.

Action on these problems must be taken now, or they will surely grow to the point of being too large to deal with.

Do not belong

To the Daily Egyptian:

I was a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin-Madison when a term paper mill similar to the National Research Associates began operation. Such a business enterprise has probably provided one major contribution to the academic community. It is no longer possible for faculty members to make unidirected research assignments which may or may not be relevant to course objectives. That faculty members have been forced to evaluate and update their assignments is a needed response to a constantly changing educational system.

The price of this lesson has been high—especially for the students who have tried to teach it. In Wisconsin a grand jury subpoenaed the records of "Term-paper Incorporated," and some 350 students were called before academic deans to show why they should not be expelled. In some cases degrees were revoked and the results of hearings placed in students' permanent university record. Prosecution took place as much as two years after the violation.

At a later date the Wisconsin State Assembly held open hearings to consider legislation on term paper mills. Those hearings produced evidence to support the cluckethat cliche that "there is no honor among thieves." The most common grade for most papers was a C or worse. In some instances the "researchers" had merely copied a paper from a book and the students were accused of plagiarism. The price for papers was exorbitant. In at least one case copies of the same papers were sent to two students of the same class.

Heavy reading

To the Daily Egyptian:

I hate to disillusion those sexual intellectuals who dismissed objections to the Birth Control Handbook as redecudent prudery, but the rationale for objecting was based upon the handbook's a) necessity, b) relevance, and c) credibility.

First of all, Mr. Wunderle, himself, stated that the handbook offered no more biological information than the current text and his lecture combined. Students were, in fact, tested over material taken directly from the handbook with the aid of nothing more than current text and lecture notes. Required reading, the handbook is simply un-necessary.

Next, judging from the Maoist exposition and perverse political assertions pervading the handbook it's obvious part of the information provided is irrelevant to the study of biology, unless some discernible nexus between birth control and radical politics exists. I think not.

Finally, the reliability of much of the information in highly suspect (e.g., poporg, "directed and financed by America's white ruling class.") Although Mr. Wunderle disavows the imetical effect of fabricated information designed to exploit latest prejudices, I doubt that he would consider using a similar handbook integrated with a Pro-Nazi distribut. The University, by sanctifying the Birth Control Handbook, is lending its creditable name to the propagation of disreputable information

Thank you for your interest in the League of Women Voters and your article about our 1972-73 Officers and Program in last Saturday's Town and Gown edition. May 12.

We would like to clarify two references to "studies." After a three year study, the League of Women Voters supported the proposed Carbondale Zoning Ordinance. We are now focusing on a study of county zoning and proposed Jackson County Zoning Ordinance.

We have supported the building of Cedar Lake as a primary water supply for Carbondale since May, 1971. We are concerned about the use of the land surrounding the lake and support land and environmental controls to insure optimum water quality.

Apology

To the Daily Egyptian

I was riding home last weekend from Chicago to Carbondale. I got to talking with a girl also headed for the "All-America City" and I mentioned the same case in University Park just a few weeks ago. We then began to discuss a letter to the editor by someone's particular moral objection to his death. She told me that in her opinion a person cannot moralize in a situation like that. That the person that wrote that particular article was insensitive to the person's friends and relatives. I finally got around to telling her I knew "Possum" personally. However, I did not know the reason for her reaction. This brought to my mind a phrase a philosophy professor expressed once, "God help us from the well meaning people of the world." At the end of the ride I dozed off. I awoke, in fact, to see that I wrote "A prayer" in the Daily Egyptian under letter heading. I do believe I am correct in saying that I wrote "A prayer" in the Daily Egyptian under letter heading. To the Daily Egyptian

One lives, and learns. I always thought that Damon and Pythias were dead and gone. But lo and behold here they are again—Messers Ransom and Setters—again something more is added to what little I know. Of course the Watergate serial is also adding to my knowledge. For instance over the last week I learned that:

1) The vultures/journalists of a certain ideological bent attack not only the dead and the near-dead, but also the living. The only protection against this foul-mouthed breed is a strict set of libel laws. Powers, the major of Columbus, Ohio, sowed the seeds of this madness by his recent attempt to silence the press.

2) The Watergate serial proves the efficacy of the Roshomon technique and a section of the American press can justifiably be proud of it's ability to stretch minimal facts to rise and differentiate between the chaff and grain.

3) The Watergate serial proves that a newspaper editor can be an important person in American politics. If you are a responsible person, you must support the Watergate serial.

By respecting the Watergate serial, we can help maintain a free press in the United States.

Important letter

A Letter to
The New York Times

Space allotted to a letter to the editor of The Times does not permit in-depth refutation of Secretary William P. Rogers' memorandum of law supporting the current invasion of Cambodia as quoted in The Times.

Senator Ernest Gruening in his April 29 letter quoted pertinent sections of Article 28 of the Jan. 27 Peace Accord upon which Secretary of State Rogers claims so heavily for his justification of our current invasion of Cambodia. Senator Mondale in an earlier article in The Times considered the Constitution the "last casualty of the war."

The fragility of the Jan. 27 "Agreement on Ending The War and Restoring Peace in Vietnam" soon became apparent to the "Great Powers."

On March 2, the Foreign Ministers of 12 nations, five of whom represented the permanent members of the Security Council of the United Nations, met in Paris and signed the "Declaration of The International Conference On Vietnam." Article 7 of the March 2 agreement reads as follows:

"(A) In the event of a violation of the agreement or the protocols which threatens the peace, the independency, sovereignty, unity or territorial integrity of Vietnam, or the right of the South Vietnamese People to self determination, the parties signatory to the agreement and the protocols shall, either individually or jointly consult with the parties to this act with a view to determining necessary remedial measures."

"(B) The international conference on Vietnam shall be reconvened upon a joint request by the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam of behalf of the parties signatory to the agreement or upon a request by six or more of the parties to this act."

The 12 signatories agreed that "in the event of a violation of the agreement or the protocols which threatens the peace... The International Conference on Vietnam shall be reconvened." The method of reconvening the conference is also set out.

It is clear that the unilateral action on the part of the United States prior to "consultation" and prior to "reconvening" of the International Conference on Vietnam is a flagrant violation of the March 2 agreement.

The world community and the victims of the current bombardments in Cambodia might ask why the "Great Powers" lent the prestige of their participation if the personnel of one of the signatories could be dispatched without the protest on the part of the other signatories, that the action was a breach of the "Act."

It would seem that an agreement signed by the foreign ministers of the permanent members of the Security Council of the United Nations would not only carry the weight of their respective countries for the compliance with the terms of the agreement, but might, even if only by implication, suggest the possible intervention of the forces of the United Nations for the furthering of the peace.

Cedar Creek construction resumes as area rains end

By Chester Long
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Construction on the Cedar Creek dam, which was delayed because of excessive rainfall, has resumed, James R. Mayhugh, Carbondale superintendent of utility plants, said in a recent interview

The dam, which is being constructed about seven miles southwest of Carbondale, will create a 1,756-acre lake to be used as the city's water supply. Mayhugh said it will be larger than Little Grassy and Devil's Kitchen lakes combined and will be about five miles long.

The lake is scheduled to be ready before July 1, 1975, when the city's contract for water at Crab Orchard Lake terminates.

Marion and Carterville discharge sewage into Crab Orchard and this requires more chemicals to be used to clean the water. Mayhugh said. The Cedar Creek lake, he said, will have land-use regulations to prevent water pollution.

"Water quality will be more consistent," Mayhugh said.

He said the quality and consistency will result because the Cedar Creek lake will be deeper than Crab Orchard. Crab Orchard, he said, has an average depth of seven feet while the Cedar Creek lake will be at least 45 feet deep at the dam.

The city bought 30 percent of the land for the lake and the U.S. Forest Service already owned the rest. The forest service will use the lake for recreational services. Mayhugh said the dam is now about 25 percent complete. Construction began in April, 1972. He said it should be finished by the end of the summer, but there is no way to know how long it will take the lake to fill. It depends on how much rainfall it rains. "If we'd have had it done last fall," Mayhugh said, "it would probably have been filled by now."

He said the new water source will cost the city $1.3 million. He said the cost would include the dam, lake, a pump station and a pipeline to the city reservoir.

He said a new water plant and a pipeline to the city from the reservoir were in the planning stages. He said the water plant would be completed by 1980 and would cost about $70 million, including the pipeline.

Theater drama to be presented at Grand Tower

Tickets are now on sale for the SUU Theatre Department production of "Moritat," a historical drama about the Marquis de Sade and the Tower, on the second floor of the Communications building.

The production is in conjunction with the Tri-centennial Celebration of the Marquess de Sade. The construction of the drama is the work of SUU students and is being produced by the Grand Tower Lions Club.

The play will be presented as a musical and an annual celebration in Grand Tower which has been specially assembled to honor the early French composer, in addition to the play, a reception of the work taken by Marquise and jitter which begins May 17 at 6 p.m.

The event is free to all residents and friends and transportation will be provided. Persons should bring their own beverages.

Tickets for the production are $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. For tickets or further information contact Lee Hovey, 554-6153 or Linda Derry, 554-9486.

Rock bands to accompany spring picnic

Woodnose and the Grand Rock Company are two rock bands which will entertain Saturday at Giant City during the annual spring picnic.

Harry Stoffens, chairman of the mst campus activities programming board said Woodnose will play from 12 noon to 4 p.m. and Gibraltar will play from 4 to 8 p.m.

The event is free to all residents and free food and transportation will be provided. Persons should bring their own beverages.

Buses will leave Mae Smith every hour and 30 minutes beginning at 11:30 a.m. and ending at 7:30 p.m. Buses will return to Mae Smith at 10 a.m., 6:30 p.m. and in the afternoon and 6:30 and 8 in the evening.

The show must go on CEDAR GROVE, N.J. (AP) - The show must go on, at least in a full four hours before she was tax on stage in "Company" at the Broadway Theatre.

She had a cast put on the cable, before the show, and the road manager said she could omit the dance numbers.
Reunion for black musicians set for SIU next weekend

By Debby Betsen

A reunion of black musicians who were stationed at Great Lakes Naval Station during World War II will be held at SIU next weekend under sponsorship of the School of Communications and Fine Arts.

Sangeli A. Floyd, Jr., associate professor of music and music chairman, said approximately 100 black musicians served in the bands at Great Lakes under the leadership of Len Bowden, now music supervisor in the Chicago city school system.

"Many of these musicians have become national and international figures, performing in various jazz, studio and symphonic organizations," Floyd said. "They have performed with such groups as Count Basie, Duke Ellington, the Cleveland Symphony and the St. Louis Municipal Opera orchestra.

One of the distinguished alumni of the Great Lakes contingent is Malvin E. Moore, Jr. professor of educational administration and foundations at SIU, who was a member of a 16-piece band trained by Bowden and sent from Great Lakes to the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, Navy training center.

Moore will preside at the opening banquet of the "Great Lakes Experience" reunion, to be held at the Carbondale Holiday Inn, Floyd said. A "story-telling table" is expected to bring out a flood of memories, and the program will close with a period of silence honoring deceased alumni, Floyd said.

Clark Terry, New York, will be the coordinator of a two-hour music session on Saturday morning, in the School of Music rehearsal hall Terry, first trumpeter for the TV "Tonight Show" until its transfer to California, is now free-lance, Floyd said. A second musical session will be held at 8:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn. Saturday afternoon, the University's recreational facilities will be available for the visitors: bowling, swimming and ping pong at the Student Center, fishing or swimming at Lake-on-the-Campus, or horseback riding at Sahuk Stables, as well as golf at local courses.

At 4 p.m. a "Buffalo Trio" picnic supper will be held at the University's Outdoor Laboratories at Little Grassy Lake.

More than 50 Great Lakes alumni had accepted the invitation to attend the reunion by May 14 and each email brings additional acceptances, Floyd said.

Annual music camp slated for mid-July

The 12th annual "Music and Youth" music camp for talented high school musicians will be held at SIU July 15-30, Melvin Seme, camp director for the School of Music, announced.

Guest directors will include John Wettig, orchestra director, Oak Park and River Forest High Schools; Robert Fuller, choral director and Al Ponton, band director, music directors at Joliet Central High School, Arkansas.

Other staff members will come from the School of Music faculty. The instructional programs will include band, chorus, orchestra, piano, stage band, sectional rehearsals, conducting, music listening courses, theory and instrument repair.

Students will have the opportunity to attend daily concerts and special attractions at SIU, including the Summer Music Theater productions, faculty and student recitals and activities at the Student Center and lake-on-the-Campus.

Few of $115 for the two-week season includes room and board, with the exception of Sunday evening meals, in regular University housing and all instruction. Commuters will pay $50.

Doctor of detectables

NEW YORK (AP) - Brooklyn College has awarded Harry Theodore an honorary degree of doctor of detection, in recognition of the 25 years he's spent selling pretzels, hot dogs and ice cream to students. But he still can't quite satisfy.

Harry sold his goods from a truck, which he parks in a no-parking zone just off the campus. The result is a harassment and summons from police.

"Now," said the new doctor, "if the school could just give me a little place in the campus, why I'd have it just where I want it."

Meal program seeks funds to serve more senior citizens

By Bill Collins
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Although the Carbondale Meals on Wheels program is presently operating at full funding capacities with 30 recipients, more senior citizens need the services of the program.

Carol Johnson, director of Oakdale House, said in a recent interview that the program, which celebrated its first anniversary on May 1, was funded for just 20 recipients last year. "The $3,000 hasn't been enough to care for as many people as need assistance." Meals on Wheels is intended to provide three balanced meals a day to home-bound senior citizens in Carbondale.

Ms. Johnson said she will submit a funding proposal in August for next year (October through October) for $1,100. This additional money would then allow about 10 more people to participate in the program. "We have a waiting list now," she added.

Funding is provided by the Illinois Department of Public Health under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

"And when we are funded to help more senior citizens, we have to find an additional food catering service," Ms. Johnson said. Presently, the Carbondale Holiday Inn prepares the hot meals, plus the breakfast and supper meals which must be refrigerated. The food is then picked up and delivered by volunteers from churches, schools and the community once a day between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Volunteers are sent out in teams of two on either the "inner city" or the "outer city" recipient routes. They alternate periodically to become well acquainted with each of the Meals on Wheels recipient.

"Meals on Wheels has been so successful," said Teresa Woods, director of the program. "The service is designed not only to improve the nutritional status of the recipient, but also to maintain his or her dignity and help prevent their health breakdowns."

The fee is minimal and based on what each person can afford according to a scale that ranges from 3 cents to $1 per day. The remaining expenses of the program are paid by the federal funding.

Ms. Johnson said she is presently real a need for volunteers to deliver meals. "The work is very rewarding. Recipients are so appreciative and really look forward to the volunteer's visits. In the summer their doors are open and they're waiting," Ms. Woods said.

"People who haven't smiled in years when volunteers bring them their meals and visit briefly.," she said.

The fee is minimal and based on what each person can afford according to a scale that ranges from 3 cents to $1 per day. The remaining expenses of the program are paid by the federal funding.

"The service is designed not only to improve the nutritional status of the recipient, but also to maintain his or her dignity and help prevent their health breakdowns."

The program currently has 250 recipients, 50 of whom are home-bound. The program is open to all Carbondale residents.

African Day celebrations set

May 31 is the scheduled official opening date of the Office of Police Community Services (PCS), although the center is presently open and operating.

SIU Security Officer Curtis Jackson, assigned to the office, said students and residents of Carbondale who have questions are more than welcome to come here rather than going to security headquarters on campus, or the Carbondale police station.

The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., but might include some might work in the future. SIU Security Officer Don White said.

The office's address is in the area, Jackson and White, and Carbondale residents include Maurice, Larry McKinny and Charles Maloney.

The office maintains a speakers bureau on topics such as drugs, self protection and other police related subjects, White said.

Jackson is presently involved in a program of instructing women on self defense, he said. Jackson will speak in Brush Towers at 11 a.m. on Tuesday.

The program includes the showing of two films titled "Safety Tips for Women," Jackson said.

The program includes tips on getting away from would-be attackers, what to expect in court if an arrest is made, leaving room doors unlocked, what areas to stay clear of at night plus other safety tips for women.

Other activities of the office include development of an indoor and outdoor safety program under the direction of Officer White.

The program gives the students an opportunity to know what the course is about, Jackson said.

Counseling, Testing Service soon to face reorganization

By Terry Welpk

The Counseling and Testing Service is planning to reorganize the placement center, which has been a part of the educational counseling service and the test administration into one service which will become a career developments and planning placement center, Bill Miller, director of the Counseling and Testing Service, said.

"The placement center will give the student a complete and longitudinal approach to the planning of his career," Miller said.

Jam session at Student Center

The patio of the Student Center will be the scene of a jam session from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Lee Hacker on drums, Joe Laberto on piano and a bass player will provide a musical setting for whoever wants to join them in making music.

There are electrical outlets on the patio for electric instruments. The jam is sponsored by Student Government.

Indian help program being formed in area

A new organization, designed to help American Indians, is beginning to take form in Southern Illinois after the visit of two leaders of the American Indian Movement (AIM). Ray Beaulieu, a freshman in General Studies, said Friday an American Indian Assistance Program is beginning in Southern Illinois as a spin-off from Thursday's visit by Paul Skyhorse and James Lee Skyhorse and Lee are AIM members who were involved in the Indian takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D.

The assistance program would sponsor benefits, concerts and speakers. Beaulieu said the purpose of the program would be to disseminate information about the Indian movement and to show persons that AIM is not a completely militant organization.

Beaulieu, a Chippewa from the Minnesota Red Lake Reservation, said he would act as regional coordinator of the program. Money generated by the program will be sent to AIM headquarters in Chicago, he said. "AIM is involved in many constructive programs," Beaulieu said. "It is more of a self-determination organization than a militant organization." Beaulieu said AIM is involved in running day care centers, educational assistance programs and other constructive community projects.

The local assistance program would be open to anyone interested in Indian affairs, Beaulieu said. He said it could be possible that SU could get an AIM chapter. Currently, there are 40 states with such chapters, Beaulieu said.

Hijacker gets ten-year term

ST. LOUIS (AP) - A 10-year prison sentence was handed down Friday to Walter J. Peflikowski after he admitted taking part in the hijacking of an American Airlines jet last summer.

Peflikowski, 32, of Kecora, Mich., a Detroit suburb, received the sentence from U.S. District Court Judge John K. Regan, who sentenced convicted hijacker Martin J. McNally on Monday to two concurrent life terms in prison.

The jet was hijacked at Lambert-St. Louis Airport June 32 by a lone hijacker who demanded more than $600,000 in ransom. Most of the money was recovered in a field in Indiana after the hijacker bailed out of the plane.

Tumble Town originator Alyce Vogel gives instructions for a proper headstand to a young gymnastics enthusiast. Camps for interested boys and girls, ages 4-18, will be offered this summer at the Newman Center.

Area interest high

Gymnastics clinic to open

By Kate Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

From a small family-owned Olympic gymnastics center to a major business, that is the ultimate goal of Alyce Vogel, who created Tumble Town gymnastics camp.

Alyce, the wife of SIU's women's gymnastics coach, Herb Vogel, will begin her program at Tumble Town this summer. She said she started the camp because of a growing need for gymnastic instruction in the Carbondale area.

"The interest is here," she said, "especially with the type of good men and women's gymnastics teams at SIU."

Tumble Town, using facilities in the Newman Center will provide gymnastic instruction from the beginning to the more skilled levels.

Alyce said boys and girls from ages 4-18 will be arranged in small classes according to their age and skills.

The instruction will include such skills as tumbling, acrobatics and dance as applied to gymnastics. In addition, there will be a special tumbling class for those interested in cheerleading.

Alyce emphasized that the program is for both boys and girls. However, she said she hopes her camp will fill a void in the activities offered for girls during the summer.

"There are lots of activities for boys in this area," she said, "but there's just not that many things for girls.

Alyce said she has been involved in gymnastics in one way or another her whole life. She said she competed in gymnastics as a child for the Chicago Turners. During high school, she performed with the University of Chicago's aqua-theater.

Before coming to Carbondale, Alyce said and Herb lived in Fort, Meade, and taught gymnastics at a day camp there.

Alyce said she decided to start Tumble Town while teaching gymnastics classes at the Jackson County YMCA. She said her classes were small at first but soon hit 150 members with more waiting to join.

This demand convinced Alyce that there was room for more gymnastics programs in the Carbondale area.

"There got to be too great a volume to handle the instruction properly," she said.

Alyce said that Tumble Town is scheduled to begin June 18 and run through July 31. Classes, held from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m., will be broken into one- and one-half hour periods six days a week.

Alyce said the camp will be run by a professional staff headed by herself and Dale Hart, assistant coach of the SIU women's gymnastics team. The program will provide instruction on each equipment item in the trampoline, the uneven bars, balance beam and others.

"I'm sure the boys can do a lot of the instruction," she said. "This is our goal!"

Chicken dinner to be held Saturday

A chicken and dumpling dinner, sponsored by the Syrian Shrine Club and the St. Francis Xavier Knights of Columbus, will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at St. Francis Xavier Church, 303 S. Poplar.

The dinner will be all you can eat. N.E. Mills, president of the Shrine club, said admission will be 82 for adults, $3 for children under 12 and free for children under 6. Mills said.

Nixon, Walker jointly declare Sunday start of Trade Week

By Lavinia OllStudent Writer

Proclamations declaring Sunday through May 31 an International Trade Week have been issued by both President Nixon and Gov. Dan Walker.

"Illinois is first in the rate of farm products shipped and ranks high in the export of manufactured goods," the governor said in his proclamation.

John Anderson, congressman from Rockford, will be the guest speaker at a meeting on the importance of world trade. The event will be held in observance of International Trade Week at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Ramada Inn Marion.

Anderson is a member of the All-Illinois Action Committee on International Trade.

The Shawnee Resource Conservation and Development Project of the State Department of Business and Economic Development are the sponsors of the special meeting.

"If we can increase the awareness and the need for international trade, we can secure the increased value of our resources locally and those of our great state," Richard Seaman, chairman of the 14-county Shawnee Resource Conservation and Development Project in Southern Illinois, said.

Seaman said letters of invitation are being sent to many local business, industries, agriculture and public affairs agencies and other organizations in Southern Illinois, hoping interested in attending the meeting but who does not receive an invitation may still attend. Seama said.

Local area provides field work for CDS interns.

Without the people and communities of Southern Illinois, SIU's Community Development Services (CDS) as it presently operates, could not exist.

CDS, which trains graduate students to become 'community development practitioners,' requires each of its master's degree candidates to complete a 600-hour internship in the local area. Ren Ross, CDS assistant director in charge of Training and Consulting Services, T and CS said:

To provide practical learning experiences for its interns, T and CS mines the Southern Illinois area for appropriate community situations.

Freedonia films to run Tuesday

"Freedonia is . . ." a collection of winning films from the Seventh Chicago International Film Festival, will be among the short films shown at the Film Grag Bag at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Newman Center.

The film is actually five films on the same reel, each by a different film maker. Each of the five won an award in the 20-second competition for the subject "Freedonia is . . ." at the festival.

Other films scheduled are "Art of the Street," "Freedonia River," and "A Note From Above." There is no admission charge.

RAHWAY, N.J. (AP) - Reginald Harrison is due for parole May 28, after four years in the maximum-security Rahway State Prison.

A nameless street corner harmonium and church choir, Harry Harrison organized the Escorts, a non-male, female singing group. This week their first record album was released, and local radio stations have played the title song.

The name of the album will be "All We Need Is Another Chance.

Although primary responsibility for selecting interns lies with T and CS, the other CDS divisions also contribute to the intern selection process, Ren said.

The other CDS divisions are Community Services, which is a research unit, and the Community Development Institute, the teaching unit of CDS, Ren said.

Internships are not designed to be a one-year experience, with the community merely serving as a laboratory for the benefit of CDS interns. Butts Williams, T and CS consultant, noted:

"The people must know they're not just being used," Williams said. Interns are expected to be of critical value to the communities in which they do their field work, he added.

Interns may satisfy the field work requirement in any one of seven community development areas, Ren said.

The first of these, he said, is a "grass roots organization," which involves organizing people on the most basic level of a community.

Interns may also work with either established government agencies involved in social service or health care, or with non-profit organizations, Ren said.

"Training internships," cover another area in which an intern identifies a group's need for some type of training. Ren said. An intern may find, for example, that leader training meets a group's needs. The intern then devises a training program and aids in its implementation.

"Research internships," may be done within CDS, with a separate agency, or as an individual project. Ren said. Research interns gather process and evaluate data relating to a specific community problem or goal.

There are also internships in proposal writing, in which an intern organizes plans and information for presentation to a funding agency. These particular internships may lose some importance because of recent cuts in federal spending, Ren noted.

Teaching internships provide the final area for internship. These internships are particularly valuable to CDS interns interested in teaching as a community development. T and CS tries to tailor internships to the needs and objectives of CDS students, as well as to the community, Ren said. Other areas, besides the standard seven, may be approved, if necessary, to better fill student needs.

"We try to provide an opportunity for the students to receive the type of experience most meaningful to them based on their needs, past experience, goals and objectives when they leave here," Ren said.

The CDS curriculum as a whole has recently assumed a more practical orientation, Ren noted. Changes in CDS operations, which included a revamping of the intern selection process, were coming from feedback from students.

About 30 students are engaged in internships in any one quarter, Ren estimated. Still, neither he nor his colleagues see this as a danger to the community or the community development. In one sense, Williams said, the immediate Carbondale area "has been identified to death." It is the right kind of people and the right kind of help that make small work with people meaningful.

CDS curriculum is based on "helping people in what they want to do, rather than telling them what to do."

VTI schedules workshop for welding

The Vocational Technical Institute (VTI) of SIU has scheduled a workshop in advanced arc and gas welding for June 15.

Enrollment for the free workshop is limited. Registration forms are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis, according to Chester Johnson, assistant to the dean in charge of summer workshops at VTI.

The workshop will cover the manipulative skills of welding. The workshop will cover the manipulative skills of welding.

Blood bank asks for volunteers

By Jan Vranicka
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Enrollment in the University-blood bank program has reached 275 members but Personnel Services office is still looking for more volunteers.

Joe Yasko of Personnel Services said the blood bank goal is 85 donors or 25 per cent of the entire employment force of the University. If this number is reached, blood benefits, including free blood and blood products if necessary, will be extended to all University employees.

Tentative dates for the blood donations have been set at July 18-28.

The University Joint Faculty and Staff Committee has initiated the idea for the blood bank program at SIU for three reasons.

The purchase costs for blood is covered by the current University employee insurance program. However, provisions for purchase of blood and blood products is included.

Second, a severe shortage of blood prompted the committee to request donations. There, a new blood labeling law in Illinois requires that no blood be purchased from donors or be brought in from outside the state. The law, which becomes effective July 1, was passed to reduce the amount of contaminated or diluted blood which was being donated at that time.

However, some University employees, Yasko said, are not pledging blood donations because they think they will be covered eventually if the 25 per cent goal is reached.

"Many people have said, 'Why should I give? If enough donors are covered anyway,'" Yasko said.

"I don't think they understand that the individual donor gets coverage for himself and members of his immediate family," he said. "Those who may be covered if the employment force reaches its 25 per cent quota will only get blood coverage for themselves and not their families." Yasko said.

Yasko said the employees should not depend on their fellow workers to donate blood to eventually extend coverage to all employees, but should consider personal donations to qualify their family members for blood benefits.

Yasko said many University employees have called his office for additional information about donating blood. One question frequently asked is if spouses of University employees are eligible to give blood if the employee himself is ineligible.

"Spouses can donate blood even if the employee is ineligible," Yasko told them. The employee and spouse can also participate to boost the blood bank count towards the quota, he added.

If individuals are holding donor pledge cards, they should be returned as soon as possible to Personnel so we can determine final totals and begin scheduling appointment times," Yasko said.

Preschool opens in June

"Puka" is a Hawaiian word meaning little cubbyhole or environment.

Puka is also the name of a new preschool which will open on June 18 at the Wesley Community House, 834 S. Illinois Ave.

The staff of Puka will be drawn mainly from the present staff of the Alpha Newman Prechool located at Hohokam Plaza.

It is a time honored ritual for Hindu women to wash the face of the newborn in a pure and holy water. They then offer an incense to the newborn, hoping he or she will live and grow to be a great person.

Puka will mirror this type of growth and the Preschools are hoping to provide children with the same type of start.

The Alpha Newman Center will close at the end of this quarter when its lease expires.

The Puka staff plans to give each child enrolled in its program "opportunities to learn by doing, to experience many new things," according to a recent announcement.

Puka is a name that will be enjoyed among the"stars," which are learning environments built on specific themes. As at Alpha, the Puka program will be based on five half-day sessions per week. Although special arrangements will be made for children who must attend preschool on a different schedule.

Basic tuition at Puka will be $125 for five half days. There is also a yearly charge of $20 for insurance. Puka will give tuition guidance to families needing more than one child.

For more information or to arrange to visit the Preschool, call theAlpha-Newman Prechool at 457-2266.

YMCA open for summer registration

By Diane Mizukawa
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Jackson County YMCA's summer program, from June 11 to Aug. 1, will include activities for all age groups from three months to adults according to the summer schedule recently released by the YMCA.

YMCA members may register for the programs from Monday to Friday. Non-member registration will be held May 28 to June 11. All registration must be in person at the YMCA, 200 West Sunset Drive.

From 3 months to 3 years old may participate with their mothers in the YMCA's "Mom and Tot" swim program.

Children 3 to 6 years old may join in creative dance, "Gym and Swim" and a multi-activity program, "Children's Hours." This summer the YMCA will offer a summer half-day pre-school for 3 to 5 year olds and an hourly babysitting service for children of all ages.

Youth activities, for children over 6 years old and teenagers to 18 years old, will be centered around the YMCA pool and gym. Youth activities for the summer will also include baton, creative arts, dancing, knitting and soccer.

For adults, the YMCA will offer gym, swim and tennis, as well as "Men and Boys" for women.

The YMCA has also scheduled a special program of aquatic activities this summer. Tennis and ballet swimming, lifeguarding and diving will be offered to various age groups.

One special summer aquatic program will be scuba diving, a novel activity for those 16 years old and older.

Participants who successfully complete the scuba course will receive YMCA certification. For a fee of $100 for YMCA members and $150 for non-members, registrants will receive a 10-week course and the use of scuba equipment. Each diver must provide his or her own mask, fin and snorkel.

The scuba course can enroll only 12 members and half the fees are to be paid by June 12.

For information on the cost and times of all YMCA summer activities, contact the YMCA, 200 West Sunset Drive, 549-3488.

Children's rights committee under way

By Bryce C. Rucker
Student Writer

A child-advocacy committee, designed to take a "critical look at the gaps in child service, quality and quantity of service for children and make a strong position of social action for children," is in a new division of the State Department of Children and Family Services, Peggy Walker, district director and administrator, said, in an interview recently.

The group will probably be formed from a small core of participants from the "Your Profession and Child Protection" conference held last week at the University, Mrs. Walker said.

The committee will try to understand the needs and rights of children in this area and will seek to educate the public by its activities and by their advocacy of child abuse and child neglect, Mrs. Walker said.

High schools display projects

The public is invited to see an industrial education exhibit prepared by area high school students from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday and from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday at Carruthers Junior High School, Murphyboro.

The exhibit, sponsored by the Egyptian Roundtable No. 35, will deal primarily with industrial education, art, crafts, woods, electronics and assembly line showing the aspects of mass production and business. Eighty judges will present trophies and scholarships for the projects on the basis of originality, educational value and accuracy. Larry Swope, chairman for the exhibit, said all projects will be received from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday at the school. The judging will be from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, and the awards ceremony will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Bike 'health check-up' scheduled for summer

You say it has been getting harder to find good bike service. The wheels are making funny noises and you don't know what's wrong. If you're going to be in school summer quarter, a joint campus and residence program for cyclists may be just what you need.

The Health Maintenance Committee of the Health Service and the Resident Health Advisory Committee (SHAC) have tentatively scheduled a one-day "health check-up" on campus, June 29, 1973.

Although no statistics back up the incidence of bad bicycle accidents on campus, Jane Wall, graduate intern in the Health Service who works with the committee, said that is a service we think we can offer students.

The organization of the clinic will hopefully encourage students to use the health service for grades kindergarten through eighth at an estimated cost of $3.59 a head.

The board also scheduled a working meeting for June 29 to work on student and school system goals for the future in accordance with State Office of Public Instruction's Circular Series A-468 regulations.

Rescue training expert holds training session

By John Hilland
Student Writer

Twenty-seven per cent of the people who are injured in rescue work are injured further when removed from wrecks and extricated from the cars, stated a rescue training specialist who has worked with rescue teams for several years.

In a recent training session in Carbondale, the man who has worked with rescue teams said that rescue workers should know what to do when removing people from wrecks.

He said that the days are long past when rescue work was done by people who just pulled the car out of the water, said that it has resulted in needless futher injury, paralysis and even death.

One example he gave was that a man was drowning in a lake and a rescue worker pulled the man out of the water and then left him to die.

He said that this has resulted in needless further injury, paralysis and even death.

Officials help promote ‘Operation Identification’

By Sam Denom
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Officers of the Carbondale Police Department and several Jackson County and local city officials were at the Holiday Inn Thursday night to help promote “Operation Identification” and other crime prevention ideas.

Some area merchants attended the seminar which was co-sponsored by the Carbondale Jaycees in cooperation with the police department.

Following an introduction by Police Chief Joseph T. Dakin, Patrolmen Norman Horner and James Reamster explained to the audience some of the areas and ways in which crime prevention can be useful by all citizens.

Horner told the merchants about the Crime Prevention Bureau’s bi-monthly gathering session at Parrish School last Saturday morning and afternoon.

He said the registering and engraving had been done with the help of volunteers from Boy Scout Troop 131 of Grace Methodist Church, senior citizens Bill Lewis and Roy Sengen from Oakridge House and Roy Bryant of the Western & Southern Insurance Company.

We registered and engraved approximately 100 bicycles,” Horner said. And because of the success of this first session, the bureau hopes to conduct additional bike identification days at different locations in the near future.

Police Lt. Edward Hogan described to the group various methods of entry and investigation of break-ins.

Other crime prevention areas discussed included shoplifting and theft, bad checks and a prevention program called “lock it and pocket it.”

Among the program participants were Howard Black, Jackson County state’s attorney; John Wernick, City Attorney; Ken Shumaker, of the Carbondale Jaycees and Mrs. Melia Petka, representing the Carbondale Foundation for a Better Environment.

A second crime prevention seminar is being planned for early fall.

Wheelchair students want acceptance

By Maridie Ballard
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It's a common observation among wheelchair students that people don't know how to react to them.

But they're doing something about it. Civic organizations in Carbondale have been invited to participate in Community Awareness Weeks for the Handicapped, to acquaint "normal" people with problems encountered by the handicapped.

The awareness week will last through June 1 and is sponsored by the Specialized Student Services Office in Woody Hall.

"We just want to be accepted. We want people to react to us just like they would to anyone else," says Sherry Prost, a wheelchair student. "I can see where someone would be confused about what to do when meeting a handicapped person, though."

The 19-year-old dark-haired sophomore wheeled into a small room in the Specialized Student Services Office to discuss her theories about relating to other people. She came to SIU from Covington, Ga., in the summer of 1975. "Being a '55 was the best school for handicapped students to come to," Sherry admits that there are "lots of times when you really need somebody who can help you out." Like the time the wheel rolled off her chair and she was stranded between Lawson and the Baptist Student Center where she lives.

A stopped and asked if I needed help, she recalls with a smile. "I'm the kind of person who really likes to be independent, but I did need help then."

The main problem of the wheelchair is to keep it moving in varying degrees to the handicapped. Sherry says. But those who are overly concerned are the hardest to deal with, she says, "They're the best thing to do is treat the handicapped just like you would anybody else. I have to be willing to lend a helping hand when needed."

"Like these doors - they're heavy. It's a lot of people to open them for me," she says.

Sherry is impressed with plans to make the downtown area more accessible to wheelchair students. "There must be a lot of concerned people and it must take a lot of organized work to do it, too."

While no definite programs have yet been set up for Community Awareness Weeks for the Handicapped, interested persons or organizations should call the Specialized Student Services Office to make arrangements. Either a panel of students or Carol Coveney, a staff assistant in the office, will make a presentation.

The move to SIU was a big one for Sherry, but she says she was able to adjust pretty well. She is the only handicapped student to have earned an A in her four years of school, and most of the other students have rated quite a check. "I think that most people can think of a wheelchair student living together like at the Baptist Center in a sense," Sherry says. "It's the great way everyone helps each other out."

Sherry is majoring in special education and minoring in elementary education. She plans to take remedial courses in young students on an individual basis.

Once she graduates in 1978, Sherry plans to return to Covington, Ga., to teach. Until then, she hopes to make the most of her time at SIU if her wheelchair sees her through the quarter, that is.

"The blemishes can wear out, belts can break and switches go crazy," she says, laughing at the uncertainty of driving a wheelchair.

"I just keep hoping old Harvey here gets me through the quarter until my new wheelchair comes," she added.

Pre-med society

officers announced

Allen Gerberding, a junior majoring in chemistry, has been elected president of the SIU Pre-medical and Pre-dental Society.

In a meeting Thursday night, other officers elected were Dean Kent, vice-president, Jim Wagner, secretary, and George Neal, treasurer. Retiring president, Larry Jones, a graduating senior, reviewed the past year as a successful one.

"The society has improved and is growing," Jones said. He attributed this to the increasing difficulty in entering medical school. "People get involved in the club for exposure to the medical field," he said.

How to make a fast buck

SEATTLE. Wash. (AP) - A University of Washington senior in mathematics, David Cargo, 22, has worked as a human Guinea pig for the past two years. He has popped until, smoked marijuana, been poked, pinched and prodded, all in the interest of science, and for as much as $1000 per test.

"It was fairly easy money," he said. "It helped pay the rent."

Cargo said the only assignment he had referred him for the removal of three grams of muscle tissue near the shoulder. "It would have been worth him $900, but required him to wear his arm in a sling for a week.

Smokey Alston in twentieth season as Dodger skipper

By Norris Clarke
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) - Slow-talking Washington baseball's managers, is saying what he'll be in two years but that he knows where he'll be without having to guess.

"I'd be working my tail off to make a living," said Alston, 31-year-old former school teacher who is in his 200 season as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Alston was in Cincinnati with his Dodgers, whose three-game series with the Reds ended Thursday. The Dodger manager said he wonders what might have happened if he had been born for baseball. He moved over his hometown city of Dayton. Then, just north of Cincinnati, and wondered what road he might have played.

He may have been a tanned and ornamental farmer working the soil tilled by him by his father. Or a proud wood-worker, whose flawless cabinets and tables enhance homes in the deep town of 468.

Maybe he would have remained in baseball, something he did for 14 winters while playing baseball in the summer.

Instead, "Smokey" Alston left the shoe, the paint brush and podium for baseball; a decision the Dodgers never have regretted.

"I used to be a terrific football player," remembers Alston. "I had to be, to play in Sundays when we'd play catch. My dad, both uncle and I were on a team together".

And mortar said he saw his first baseball game. "My dad brought me down to Cincinnati to see the Reds play the Yankees in an exhibition game. I got to see Babe Ruth."

"It was the only big league game I saw until I got to the majors," said Alston, who got his nickname in grade school because of his pitching speed.

Later he left the farm to play in the St. Louis Cardinals' farm system, where he averaged 200 m in 13 years.

But he was only have one time at bat as a major league. He was the No. 1 first baseman on a Cardinal team that had Johnny Mize, Rip Collins and Dick Siebert ahead of him.

In 1943, he joined the Brooklyn Dodgers organization at the urging of Branch Rickey. After managing Montreal of the International League to two first-place finishes and a second in three years, Alston got the call.

That was 29 one-year contracts ago.

Big Ten approves program to aid black athletes

By Ry Libka
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) - The Big Ten approved Friday a five-year program to help black student-athletes achieve their college degrees.

The conference, concluding a four-day spring meeting, also announced creation of a position of assistant to Commissioner Wayne Duke for "total coordination" of the new program, recommended by a black special advisory commission.

Marcos Platz of Michigan, chairman of the conference faculty representatives, announced that his group agreed to extension of financial aid to a fifth-year and measures to establish "an academic program toward obtaining a degree for all athletes."

The program for black athletes was outlined at a news conference by both Plant and Judge Dickson, member of the 11-man special commis- sion composed of former star black athletes.

Dickson, former Minnesota football star and now an official of the IBM Corp, informed that the faculty group action "will benefit all athletes.

Dickson said his group had been constantly at work since its creation the March 1972 conference meeting, drafting the proposals ac- cepted by the Big Ten Friday.

The program also specifies an in- crease in academic minimum requirements for student-athletes, but permits a limited differentiation in classroom progress for an athlete to still get financial aid although temporarily ineligible for varsity competition.

Specifically, the new program sets academic minimums which would entail 18 total credit hours in- stead of 24 to achieve a degree.

Other changes would require an athlete have a semester credit hours instead of 48 by the junior level.

The proposal to permit an athlete to obtain financial aid if he fails behind the new academic pace must be approved by the faculty group and be acted upon at the next regular conference meetings.

For instance, if an athlete at the junior level has between 48 and 54 credit hours he still would get financial assistance. Previously, the academic standard was the same for both varsity competition and financial aid.

Swimmers sign intent letters

Rick Fox, an Illinois-Moyard freestyle champion from Mt. Prospect, has signed a letter of intent to attend SIU this fall.

The signing was witnessed by SIU swimming coach Ray besonders.

Fox captured the short-course 100-meter title in 1972 with a time of 50.6 seconds. He attended Prospect High.

"Although he already owns an outstanding time as a high school senior," Besos said, "Rick has unappetite potential." Besos said.

Fox is the fifth SIU swimming recruit signed by Besos this spring.

He is also the second sprinter with a 50.5 in the 100 free.

Mike Halbro, state champion and high school All-America swimmer from St. Victor High School, in Edwardsville, also signed a letter of intent to attend SIU.

Selenses captured the 196 Illinois state 200-yard backstroke title with a 1:50.65. His coach, John Pflueck, is an SIU alumnus.

"Mike will come to SIU as the fastest freshman backstroker ever to attend here," Selenses' coach Ray besonders said. "He will help set up our medley relay team and will fill the backstroke spot we badly needed this past season.

"Selenses and Rick Fox are the first two Illinois state champions ever to sign with SIU.

The annual intramural track and field meet will get underway Saturday with field events beginning at 1:30 p.m. and running events at 1:30 in McAndrew Stadium.

The deadline for entries has been extended until 10 a.m. Saturday in the Office of Recreation and Intramurals, Room 128 of the SIU Arena. This is one of our most popular intramural activities of the year," Larry Schaeke, director of Intramurals, said.

"Last year we had approximately 100 participants and seven teams competing," he said. "But this year we expect more.

Last year's team title went to "Now tell that," a team composed of football players. The intramural rules state that no one who has earned a letter in track may compete, but other SIU athletes are eligible.

Indiana leads track field

By Jerry Linksa
Associated Press Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) - Indiana's heavily favored Hoosiers captured the early lead Friday with 22 points after three finals and also paced the qualifying in the opening session of the Big Ten outdoor track and field meet.

The Hoosiers piled their scoring without taking a first as Purdue's Jeff Bolin retained his long jump title. Michigan's Steve Adams won the discus and freshman Dennis Few of Minnesota was a surprising winner in the new six-mile event.

Indiana led the qualifying in seven trials, advancing 11 men into Saturday's 15-finals program at Minnesota's new Borrem Field complex track.

Second behind the Hoosiers in the first day scoring was Illinois with 18 points, while Purdue and Minnesota each had 14 Fifth with 13 was Michigan, followed by Michigan State with 7, Wisconsin with 6 and Ohio State with 1.

Bolin repeated in the long jump with a leap 26 feet, 3 1/2 inches, almost five inches better than his winning, 58% last year.

An expected assault on the 25-year-old Big Ten discus record fizzle as Adams whirled the platter 175-4. Two weeks ago, Adams uncorked a toss of 183-4 in a dual meet, far surpassing the Big Ten meet mark of 178-11 set by Minnesota's Fortune Jordan in 1948.

Morava battles Chinese

Monday in New York

Southern Illinois gymnast Gary Morava is one of four performers who will compete against the People's Republic of China Monday evening at Madison Square Garden in New York City.

The other three comprising the United States' squad in the first gymnastics meeting ever between the two nations include Marshall Aven, senior from Penn State; Jim Ivester, junior from New Mexico; and former Penn State Intern Cuthane.

After the meet in New York, the Chinese team will give exhibitions at Philadelphia, Tucson, Ariz., Los Angeles and Seattle, Wash.

Sports jamboree slated

Throughout the Jackson County area, young athletic stars are getting in shape for the Jackson County Junior Sports Jamboree, to be held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at McAndrew Stadium.

Sponsored by the Carbondale Jaycees and the Governor's Office of Human Resources, any county residents between the ages of 10 and 15 will be eligible to enter the Jamboree as a contestant before August 31.

"We changed the time of the Jamboree from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. to avoid possible family conflicts with religious services and other Sunday morning events," Morgan said.

Morgan added that Jamboree entry blanks will be available at the Stadium gate at noon Sunday for late registrants.

Women's sports schedule

Five schools will participate in Saturday's women's "Sports Day" at the SIU Tennis Courts.

Southern Illinois' women's tennis team will host Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, Northern Illinois and Illinois State.

The women's golf team will also be in action this weekend, traveling to the University of Illinois Invitational in Champaign.

The women's track squad will travel to Macomb where Western Illinois will host to SIU, Eastern Illinois, Illinois and Illinois State.
