Thanksgiving is a time for traditions. And all the trimmings on the dinner table, according to a poll in a home economics class.

Queryed about family Thanksgiving menus, 73 students in a beginning food and nutrition class overwhelmingly named turkey, potatoes, gravy, cranberries and pumpkin pie as the family tradition.

The class is taught by Mrs. Alice Koonce, of West Salem, who said the poll supported her belief that tradition reigns when it comes to planning a Thanksgiving menu—

Drummers Drafted

"Violinist" Unnoticed by Most
In Marching Saluki Line Up

By Kevin Cole

Look! In the Marching Saluki Band.

It was a trumpet.

No, it was a violin. The violin, unknown to thousands of football fans who packed McAndrew Stadium, was playing for the Saluki home game.

The violinist was the first home game performance since the first home game in September.

"It was sort of a gag to see how observant people were," said Michael D. Hanes, director of the Marching Salukis.

The stent received only limited attention until the marching group performed during the St. Louis Cardinals—Chicago game at Busch Stadium, Oct. 31.

During halftime CBS color cameras spotted the marching Stravarian and zeroed in.

United Press International wire services第二天 reported the marching Stravarian and in short order John Harder, the carrier of the violin when Hanes announced that the violin would be for only the first home game. Harder is the first drummer in the history of the marching Salukis. "The violin for every home game."

“John does a fantastic job of taking, I’ve seen true violin players that didn’t look as good as he does,” Harner said.

Most of those who noticed the violin were visiting band directors and others who would be prone to notice any deviation from the normal mu

“We are now racking our brains to think of something along this line to use next year,” he said. The Marching Salukis closed out their 1966 season Saturday.

New Devices Aid Self-Teaching, Educators Told

New educational technologies make additional steps possible toward developing the capability for self-teaching, a California educator said at an "Environment for Learning" Seminary held last Saturday.

Jack Petelena, vice chancellor of Irvine-Chapel Hill University of California, said programs in computer assisted instruction and television equipment and material provide another resource to supplement the two oldest teaching aides—the teacher and the book.

"The new technologies," he said, "make it possible to make more effectively achieve the goal of formal education—to prepare students to become self-learners, so that they are not longer dependent upon a teacher, so that they may become scholars—men who are learning.

The "Environment for Learning" conference which drew top men in student learning processes and techniques to the SIU campus here, was held in connection with the formal opening of Lawson Hall, multimedia classroom building designed for modern application of audio-visual teaching techniques.

Preceding Petelanden on the Saturday morning program was James P. McCormick, vice president for student affairs at Wayne State University, Detroit. Speaking on the subject, "Self-Directed Education," McCormick said the purpose of an informal educational program is to produce the good student and the knowledgeable citizen. Informal education, he said, will be successful "to the extent it can motivate students to want to be responsible for their own education because of modern technology," said the professor's function is different when there is a computer around that is storing and presenting information to the students.

"His new job is to properly program the materials, be sure they are accurate, and provide testing materials which will help to evaluate the students' growth in this particular content field," he said.

Harcleroad, who pointed to dramatic changes in higher education because of modern technology, said the professor's function is different when there is a computer around that is storing and presenting information to the students.

"His new job is to properly program the materials, be sure they are accurate, and provide testing materials which will help to evaluate the students' growth in this particular content field," he said.

He said the professor still must be satisfied the student has achieved proper mastery and see that appropriate college credit is given for this mastery. He also has the continuing responsibility to be certain the information is up-to-date and that programming is accurate.

Harcleroad said the physical environment in education is an "Informational mainstream," with education a $40 billion business, and with a $75 billion potential predicted in 10 years, "electronics companies and book publishers have been combining in a mad race for the new market."

But, he said, "I believe there was never a more glorious period in higher education in the history of the world."

Students Misjudge Yule Gift Program

Some students have evidenced a lack of understanding of the principle behind the Thompson Point fund-raising Spirit of Christmas (SOC) campaign. A letter to the editor in the Egyptian and letters to SOC workers have hinted that the campaign an endorsement of United States policy.

The apparent feeling of these students is that Thompson Point residents are feeding the fire in Southeast Asia by encouraging students to contribute money to buy gifts for the GIs. The fear seems to be that this act would make them enjoy their stay in the jungle even more and would enthral them with fighting and jungle life that an act of Congress could not bring them home.

Nothing could be farther from the truth.

"The purpose of SOC is not to endorse U.S. policy in Viet Nam, or to endorse any policy of the United States government. Its purpose is to recognize the presence of thousands of Americans fighting in a foreign land with no chance of coming home for the Christmas holidays," according to John O. Anderson, president of Thompson Point.

Meantime, there is probably only one trooper in Viet Nam who would not give his last round of ammunition to be home when Dad calls. It is almost as certain like as not that few of them would be cleaning their weapons in the jungle now will be home for Christmas.

The choice offered by SOCers is either to send the men gifts or to send them home.

The choice is to send them a small token of Christmas from home or to send them a defiantly alien, soul-trimmed nothing.

Book Thief Angers Student

To the Editor:

I would like to express my deep appreciation to the person who confiscated my "Introduction to Renaissance Literature," a book from the cloak room of Trueblood Hall. I really do feel I was being overly slim, that my book was perfectly safe, I am still a student from coming more astute in English, but I have to use the book also, although I already am failing the course, I do go to class regularly, and I do use the book often.

I must congratulate you on your ability to walk off with a book from me, I know all we try to get through college as cheaply as possible, but really how can one get?

Some of us have to pay our own way through school, and you, and I know that one doesn't do it the cheapest way to explain, I see the book, miss perhaps some other people's books, or perhaps you are worthy my way through college, I'm sure that if you asked someone if you could use his book he would have let you, You did not have to go to all the trouble of possibly getting caught stealing the book.

Well, I have to go to English in 20 minutes so I hope you enjoy the book. If you don't, please give me a call--the number is in the book--and I'll be glad to take it off your hands, Again, I would like to personally thank the person, whose character must be very fine, that I have, somehow much happiness in my life.

NATO Shows Evidence of Breaking Up

WASHINGTON - There is unmistakable evidence here and abroad that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), an alliance defensive alliance, is breaking up.

The departure of French forces and the withdrawal of other forces from NATO's line of defense from France require prompt and extraordinary effort from the remaining 14 partners if NATO is to continue as a credible deterrent to Russian aggression. Such efforts are not now discernible.

On the contrary, Britain is proposing to withdraw her forces from NATO's line of defense from 75,000, two U.S. squadrons, forced to pull out of France, are returning to the United States.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., says that it is the sense of Congress that our military forces, which include forces in Western Europe, would be drastically reduced, initially at least 75,000. The European partners show no disposition to increase their own financial and troop contributions to NATO in view of the current bilateral defense policies.
Friendly Natives Abound in Waste Land

Australian Flight Reveals Emptiness

By Jenkins Lloyd Jones (General Foods Corp.)

Alice Springs, Northern Territory, Australia—The great fact of Southeast Asia is the crowd, the great fact of Australia is the emptiness. It is early evening as the airport bus picks its way through the jammed streets of Singapore. Heavy loads of vehicles, pedicabs and trudging human beings flow sluggishly along the thoroughfares. And there is the incessant noise—the exhausts, the horns, the tinny music, the shouts, laughter and perpetual babbles.

In the first gray light of dawn your airport taxi brings you into Darwin. The streets are wide. The houses are set back behind broad lawns. There is not a person in sight. You could take this north Australian town of 25,000 and set it down next to Liberal, Kansas, or Abilene, Texas, and it would fit perfectly.

The Delitaville Heron of Connellian Airways heads south for Alice Springs in the center of the continent, 1,000 miles away. The palm trees vanish first. Then the eucalyptus and the tall termite pillars. Death takes over the land.

At Victoria River Downs a lone truck waits at the dirt airstrip. You help the crew unload the mail, the groceries, the beer for a scattering of cattle ranches. This is the last flowing stream for 1,500 miles.

Then the strip at Hooker Creek, the 'aborigine' settlement. A crowd of 30 to 40 arrives, crying and shouting and hooting to the door of the plane. They are coal black, but the sun has bleached the hair of many to a brown. They have prominent brow ridges, thin flesh, and flat, often curly noses. You've heard them call the 'bushmen.'

Furry offers a tear from my hand by the children and there is a good natured brawling through the village. They are knocked to the ground and the booty seized again and again. The men and women grin happily at the excitement.

These are the people who walked kangaroo and emu with bow and arrow. They are backward than the pygmies of the Congo or the Melotrones of Colombia they resemble no other race on earth. They can cross these wastes on foot, filling at each water-seep until their bellies are distended like those of camels. Wards of the government, they work faithfully at the lowest labor.

When they reach "civilization" they cause little trouble. They like drinking beer until they slide silently against the ground.

South of Hooker Creek the baked land turns red with unbleached iron. The eroded sandstone stands in weird shapes and the ridges wander drunkenly toward the horizon. This is the land of horrors.

Charles Sturt started across it in 1844. He boldly set out from Adelaide on the Southern Ocean to reach the Timor Sea. He got a third of the way, through the years with Ludwig Leichhardt set forth with seven men. Not a rag or bone was ever found, Not until 1861 did John McDouall Stuart make the traverse on his third attempt. It was a feat of exploration that would have staggered Sturt himself.

The Stuart exploration dashed forever the hope that there was in the center of Australia a vast sea rich by rich liquor supply. The villages were empty pockets of gold, and only the Outback knows the agony of those ill-prepared miners who hurled themselves against her. Check the names on the maps—Mistake Creek, Nur-Null-Plains, Mount Hopeless, Lake Disappointment.

An hour out of Hooker Creek we cross the broad dry wash of the Lander "River" and the sharp knifed edge of the McDowel Range looms ahead. Our copilot is knitting. She is Christine Davy, a limp-liked gal in her late 20's with the high cheekbones of Amelia Earhart. Formally, a skilled flight instructor, she sees nothing strange in her profession.

Alice Springs. This is the center of the continent where the highway down from Darwin meets the railroad from Mount Isa in Utah. Here would hang a sign on the station reading Winnemucca, Nev., or Ouray, Colo., if you ever saw one. This soil is the most American western.

Here is one of the centers of the famous Australian Outback Flying Doctor Service. There are 54 primary circuit is always manned. Last year the Alice Springs station flew 100,000 miles on emergency mission or to save a life in some remote outback.

Teacher John Penberthy, 28, opens the day's session at 9:45 a.m. with the school song on the plane. Then she asks Irma what she's feeling. Singing it, She does. Billy (190 miles east) says Irma sang it too high. There is a laughing argument. It is the hour for the second grade phonics lesson. "I think I'll ask Hubert to spell 'water'" says Penberthy. From a land that knows almost none of it comes the childish voice: "It's a bat, r-a-t-t-a-bat!"

In a tiny single-engine Cesana I am flying 250 miles southwest to the world's largest monolith—Ayres Rock, 1,140 feet high and 3,600 feet rising out of the desert floor. My pilot is young Jim Georgertl, born on Guadalcanal, whose family stayed during the Japanese occupation as one of the heroic "coast watchers.

As we anticipated this morning I am flying over the Outback people care for "their Outback people care for each other.

"Let me show you a calm look at the business of cutting food on the table.

It should be noted that Chicago was an area of relative peace while the battle of the supermarket raged elsewhere. There was a good reason.

Grocers of Chicago are better tuned to the public's feelings on food prices. Early in September—a month before the first housewives boycott began in Denver—Chicago supermarket operators began marking down prices or, in some cases, emphasized that low prices are routine. How long the lowered prices can remain in effect depends on a great deal on some factories that are beyond the control of those in the grocery business. The price of meat, for example, is subject to the law of supply and demand the same as any item. As we anticipated on this page April 26 and June 17, a greater supply of meat would reduce prices and this is being reflected on the counters now; bacon is about 30 cents under its price a year ago and round steaks on sale down 29 cents.

A week ago, the government monthly wholesale price index dropped 1.6 per cent, due to reductions in farm products and processed foods, biggest drop in two years.

Also from a supply and demand point of view, the food industry is faced with the same price pressures. You observe inflation. Inflation reduces the prices of raw materials, labor and supplies. For 10 years the price of food was steady but this year it went up suddenly 4.4 per cent. Some assume this gave supermarket inordinate profits, but the fact is the stores have absorbed some of the increased costs and the industry's net profits actually dropped from 1.41 per cent of sales last year to 1.31 per cent in the first seven months of 1966. The figure compares with 5.1 per cent for a large mail order and department store.

This means that unless wholesale prices drop or they can reduce some of their regular business costs, stores cannot lower prices generally by more than 13 cents on a $10 purchase without losing money. This year the supermarket industry includes expensive store locations, parking lots, convenient but expensive nighttime or Sunday hours. The typical supermarket is a highly competitive business and taken for granted by customers. Some stores may cut costs by cutting some of these services but do the customers want that?

Even with the added features which make the American supermarket what it is, a government study made this year shows that large independent stores and chains outprice small independent stores, regardless of the neighborhood. The heavy volume of business makes the larger stores possible and even when they cut prices, supermarket owners hope to salvage some profit by selling less.

But their profits are down, due to the effort to bring housewives lowest food prices. Some critics contend that since food stores have a large turnover of inventory as compared with, say auto makers, that profit should be figured on a percentage of dollar investment. Figures this way, 60 medium and large grocery corporations averaged 11.48 per cent in 1964 and the "normal" return, enough to attract capital but not excess. It is below that of manufacturers and retailers generally. There must be a fair profit to keep the grocery industry going. Governmental action must be controlled when judging the food industry. Housewives, on the average, now feed their families with 18.2 per cent of family take-home pay, down from 20 per cent in 1960 and 24.7 per cent in 1947. In France, the figure is 30 per cent and in Japan between 50 and 60 per cent. The free enterprise American supermarket way is a model for the world in bringing down prices.
Mary Koenig Molds Heads
For SIU Museum Collection

By Tom Gaylo

An art student on campus is engaged in sculpturing heads of fossil man who lived as far as a half a million years ago.

She is Mary Koenig, 20-year-old sophomore from Belleville. She is working with the SIU Museum to reproduce likenesses of prehistoric man.

Miss Koenig is in the process of sculpturing model heads of the prehistoric Java Man and the Australopithecus. The title of this collection, which will be ready for display around January, is "Evolution of Man."

In the process of creating these heads, Miss Koenig makes a model out of clay. She then makes a latex mold. Finally, the finished head is cast in plaster.

The project is being carried out in the museum workshop under the student work program. This gives the student majoring in art an opportunity to learn skills at first hand in a professional setting.

There are also drawings and models of the hands and brain. These were also created by Miss Koenig.

All together there will be nine model heads of fossil man exhibited. Among the nine shown will be the Java Man and Australopithecus, who lived between 400,000 and 1,000,000 years ago.

Miss Koenig had three years of art training at Belleville Township High School and started her major in art at SIU in September. Her primary interest is painting and she plans to make it her profession.

Two-Chinas Policy Moves Forward After U.S. Endorses U.N. Study

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - The United States moved a step closer toward a two-China policy Monday by endorsing a proposed U.N. study that would take into account "political realities" in the world organization.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg laid out the U.S. position in a General Assembly address that focused on keeping Nationalist China in the United Nations rather than on barring Red China. In accepting the idea in a two-China solution, put forward by Italy and five other nations, the United States appeared to have made a major policy shift, since the study group might recommend a two-China solution to break the 16-year deadlock over the seating of Red China.

In the Italian resolution, the study would take into account "the existing situation and the political realities of the area."

For the present U.N. session, Goldberg said the United States opposes and endorses a proposed U.N. study to oppose a resolution that would seat Peking in the United Nations and exclude the Chinese Nationalists.

While not anticipating the results of the study, Goldberg said the United States "refuse to countenance an solution to the problem of Chinese representation which involves the expulsion of the Republic of China on Taiwan from the United Nations."

But Halim Budo of Albania, Red China's mouthpiece in the United Nations, flabbergasted any two-China solution, saying, "On our planet, there is only one China, one and indivisible," he told the assembly. "The only government of China is the Peoples Republic of China."

Budo charged that "the plot of two Chinas" was aimed at the perpetuation of the U.S. "occupation" of Formosa, and he added that the government of Chiang Kai-shek "represents no one and nothing."

Goldberg called the outcome "an answer to the insults, to the jeers and scoffs against the Federal Republic."

The Italian resolution is not scheduled to come to a vote until after the assembly has voted on the resolution.

Murphysboro Voters Approve School Bond

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP) - An $850,000 school bond issue was approved by Murphysboro voters Saturday by a 927-675 vote. The money will be used to finance improvements to various school buildings in Unit School District 186.

Nationalist Upsurge Felt In Bavarian Election

BONN, Germany (AP) - An unexpected shift in sentiment in the Bavarian state election put the key to the West German political crisis Monday in the hands of ex-Defense Minister Karl von Hase.

Franz Joseph Strauss, an admirer of French President Charles de Gaulle, despite the gains of the extreme right National Democrats, presided as the Christian Social Union succeeded in holding its absolute majority in the Bavarian legislature. It even increased its vote slightly, contrary to predictions, after taking a strongly nationalistic line.

Strauss called the outcome "an answer to the insults, to the jeers and scoffs against the Federal Republic."

Governor Race Still Undecided

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court set a hearing Monday for Dec. 5 on the deadlocked Georgia governor's election and at the same time moved to head off new legal complications until final judgment has been made by the Supreme Court.

With its quick action on a state appeal, the high court opened the possibility of an early December ruling that might resolve the no-majority contest before the year ends.

The court suspended a lower court ruling that barred the legislature from choosing Georgia's next governor, Neither Republican Howard Hill, Callaway nor Democrat Lester C. Maddox got a vote majority in the Nov. 8 general election. If the court sides with the candidates, supporters for former Gov. Ellis C. Arnall.

Atty. Gen. Arthur K. Bolton of Georgia requested the suspension of the lower court ruling until final judgment has been made by the Supreme Court.

Hair Styles Fit Many Classes

By Lloyd Pietsch
(Second in a Series)

Are you a greaser or a surfer? The social phenomenon of long hair, closely identified with the Beatles, has given rise to these two classes, among others.

Greasers comb their flowing locks back into an intricate pattern of waves. When it is in place, it is held together with pomades heavily applied with loving hands.

In contrast to this are the surfers. This group achieves a windblown effect by frequent washing of their hair. They either let their hair hang in bangs that reach down to their eyes, or sweep it back over one side of the forehead into what is referred to as the frat look.

It is not at all surprising to see a male who has teased, greased, tinned, sprayed or even curled his hair.

This sort of trend seems to have started by the Beatles and copied by many other of the rock 'n' roll entertainers as well as number of the general population.

Why?

Any number of reasons have been suggested for the look which has swept this country as well as others. Perhaps those who let their tresses grow to the longer-than-generally accepted length aren't sure of the reason themselves.

One interesting way of looking at this fad is that of the uni-sex, the younger look. It is often hard to distinguish between the sexes when observing them from the back.

Clothes as well as hair often appear much the same. Bruce Buchenholz, of New York's Psychiatric Treatment Clinic, said in Newweek: "It alleviates anxiety. They can say he/she is not that different from me and thus it becomes easier for them to establish a relationship."

Another theory is that of social protest. Protest against authority seems to be the most generally accepted reason for the fad's existence. It is thought that youths are looking for something of their own to believe in, or respond to that they have found for themselves.

Gerald Bixman, an SIU (freshman) said, "No, I'm protesting against the high price of haircuts."

Some of the surfers and greasers consider long hair a sign of virility as it had once been. Others merely say it gives them a sense of security.

MOMISM, a somewhat more complicated theory, has been suggested by some psychiatrists and psychologists. This theory essentially says that this fad might have been caused by mothers who compete with their children in every area from skate boarding to the jerk. Students at SIU have a wide range of opinions on the subject of this fad.

"I think long hair looks good-on girls," said Arthur E. Moak, a junior from Ottawaw. III. "The majority of the males who wear long hair are a fringe element, merely trying to draw attention to themselves. Beards, wierdows and pinkos, they're all the same to me," said Moak.

Marching Salukis Hang Up Homberg's for Another Year

After their performance in Springfield, Mo., Saturday, the Marching Salukis hung up their homberg for another year. The band marched in the Springfield Chamber of Commerce Christmas Parade Saturday morning and presented pregame and halftime shows at the SIU-Southwest Missouri State football game that afternoon.

Applications for next year's band members are now being accepted, according to Michael D. Hanes, assistant director of bands and director of the group.

From Noted 'Egypt' Author

Paul F. Lazarsfeld

Paul F. Lazarsfeld

Posibilities for new research in mass communication were discussed at SIU by Paul F. Lazarsfeld, one of the pioneers in this work.

The formula has been based on "who says what to whom with what effect," Lazarsfeld said at a 10 a.m. in the Communications Building Theater.

Lazarsfeld discussed the history of this research, which stemmed from moral factors such as the effect of motion pictures in the 1920s, political factors such as the effect of propagandists in World War I, and economic factors such as how the radio industry could "measure" its audience.

Lazarsfeld, chairman of the Department of Social and Columbia University, discussed the research was taken into the field to study social stratification and other factors. New, terms such as "ethnic groups" are common in news coverage of elections, he pointed out, but this was "a very surprising term 30 years ago!"

He suggested two areas where further research is needed. One was in the mass communication industry itself, where the effects of mass communication, he said, continued. Studies of effects present other questions, Lazarsfeld said, because the notion of effect is ambiguous - "effect on what?"

Lazarsfeld said the problem is that requiring a study to extend for years, he pointed out.

However, the idea of long-range studies is gaining interest, he said, in which a group of students will be interviewed and re-interviewed every six to eight years.

The first findings in this study show a large amount of television viewing with two-thirds of the 8th graders watching TV a minimum of an hour a day, Lazarsfeld said.

But this drops and under half of the 12th graders watch an hour a day; only about 20 percent of any group reads one hour a week, he added.

This study will show whether youngsters listen early in high school, and read more later, Lazarsfeld said.

He suggested these other possibilities for research:

1. How users make television: How TV viewers select the content of programs to others, how viewers watch TV content into their lives.

2. How the radio industry led to establishment of educational TV in an area, Lazarsfeld said.

3. The average of TV watching is about four hours a day, Lazarsfeld said. The research question is whether people listen too much - "is this practically inevitable?"

Another proposal is a study on whether ideas for new programs could be obtained from the audience, he continued, and whether media represents a new culture.

And another proposal is to conduct a series of lectures on the related fields of research in physics at SIU.

The local chapter of Sigma Pi Sigma, honorary physics society, installed the following new members at a recent meeting:

The society also adopted the resolution to conduct a series of lectures in the related fields of research in physics at SIU.

The first lecture will be held at 4 p.m. Today in Parkinson Laboratory, Room 308, Mykola Saporoshenko of the Department of Physics will discuss the research work being conducted in the field of gaseous electronics at SIU.

The lecture will be open to the public.

FOR 2-YEAR STUDY

Crime, Corrections Program Gets $190,000 Federal Grant

The SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Corrections, and Delinquency will supplement the training of corrections staff numbers through a $190,000 grant from the Office of Law Enforcement Assistance, U.S. Department of Justice.

Director of the SIU project since 1968 is Charles V. Matthews, associate professor, now at the Edwardsville campus. Matthews had previously been assistant director and head of a delinquency study there. He came from the University of Chicago, where he was with a Quincy Youth Project. He is the author of a study on school dropouts for the U.S. Office of Education.

Assistant director of the SIU Center in Carbondale is Elmer H. Johnson, former assistant of the North Carolina Penal System and on the board of directors of the Joint Commission on Correctional Manpower and Training.

Funds will be used over a two-year period to develop training materials and evaluate their use by staff training officers in building effective tools and programs in correctional institutions.

University areas of communication, education, psychology, recreation and sociology will receive heavy concentration in the development of the programs and methods tailored to meet specific institutional needs.

The Center will spend six months developing the materials, then will test them during a nine-week institute starting in March, for 18 staff training officers. Also, there will be an institute for 45 correctional officers and one-week workshop for prison administrators.

The intent of the project is to supplement existing programs by organizing and conducting institutes to meet the demands for innovations in service, treatment and rehabilitation in correctional institutions.

It will focus on adult correctional institutions situated within the Midwest Governors Conference Region of the United States.

Corrections and Correction Administration curriculum is being designed to meet the needs and interests of the advanced undergraduate and graduate students who are interested in the career possibilities in corrections or in practical applications of their specialities to the various areas in the correctional field.

The Center's formal instructional program is integrated with that of several departments and divisions of the University. The degrees offered are through the specific departments.

"I'M FOR THE MANY THINGS YOU'LL TEACH HER"

Nobody will dispute--surely not I--that raising children is a task which requires full time and awesome skills. Nonetheless, a recent nationwide survey has revealed a startling fact: mothers who go back to work after their children are safely through the early years are notably happier, better adjusted, and more fulfilled than mothers who simply remain housewives. Moreover--and perhaps surprisingly--the children of working mothers are themselves happier and healthier.

All very well, you say, but what's it got to do with you? Isn't it a woman's choice? If you're a mother, you should let your mother a job. What kind of job? Well, sir, your mother is probably between 35 and 50 years of age, so certain occupations must most probably be ruled out. Looking, for example, or whaling. Or car washing.

But don't despair. There are other kinds of jobs--not many, to be sure, but some. However, you must not stick Mom in just any old job. You must remember that after the excitement of raising you, she would do well--as a fact, she would probably be as a fact, or as a Skylark. (A delman, as we all know, is someone who has a piece of water to track layers. With the recent invention of the pelim, delmen are now known as fact in industrial unemployment.)

But digest, I was saying, find Mom a job worthy of her. Something challenging that uses her vast experience and available talents, but at the same time, is not too hard on her physical tissues. That's what Walter O'Sullivan did, and the results were brilliantly successful.

Walter, a sophomore at the Upper Mahoning College of Wickerwork and Belted Letters, majoring in affairs, approached the problem scientifically. First he asked himself what kind of job she did best. With that, she did best was to keep holding. "Dress warm, Walter!

At first glance this seemed a skill not widely in demand, but Walter was not discouraged. He sent out hundreds of inquiries today, and today, I imagine to recall, no job that is happily employed as wardrobe mistress for the Montreal Canadiens.

Another fortunate venture was that of Frank C. Grans- mire, Jr., a sophomore at the University of Music and Optometry, majoring in stunts. Frank, like Walter, did a survey in depth of his mother's talents. Chief among these, he found, was her ability to make a roast of beef, feed the whole family for three days. So naturally, Frank got a job at a natural food market.

What has one to do with the other, you ask? Isn't it obvious? Anyone who can stretch ribs like that belongs in psychology.

Women Win In Swimming, Field Hockey

The SIU women’s swimming team won a four-team meet Saturday at the University School pool and the women’s field hockey team won both of its games in a five-team sectional meet.

SIU’s swimming team captured three individual championships and scored 117 first places in the 100-yard field hockey team won both of its matches against the West Missouri State and the Principia College, 4-2. Southern Illinois University was third with 90 points and the University of Illinois finished fourth with 56 points.

The field hockey team defeated Illinois State, 2-1, and Principia College, 4-2. Southern Illinois University was third with 90 points and the University of Illinois was the other school in the meet.

Coach remembers Player’s effort

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Coach Sid Gillman of the San Diego Chargers says he will always remember linebacker Chuck Allen, who was injured against the New York Jets.

“Chuck hopped off the field with his hand in a cast. We asked him if we could have a time out, says Gillman. “Some players would have had the call for a stretcher and an ambulance.”

SIU Soccer Team Scores Victory Over Indiana State

By Lockhart Hines

The SIU soccer team may not have official support, but it needed no help on the field as it easily defeated Indiana State University, 5-0, Saturday.

The victory climaxed efforts by the team to show the athletic department that it has enough talent and interest to merit official recognition.

Soccer has been played at SIU on an unofficial basis for at least five years. On Sunday afternoons players representing various groups of college-organized games among themselves.

Each year the numbers turning out to play became larger. On several occasions double headers had to be arranged to give everyone a chance to play. Last year Larry Holt took on the task of doubling as referee and coach.

Holt, a graduate assistant in the department of physical education, called the attention of coach Glen (Abe) Martin to the young team. Martin was enthusiastic but had to find no place in the budget this year to support soccer as an official sport.

Before Saturday’s game the team had arranged matches against St. Louis University and SIU’s Edwardsville campus but both were cancelled. Edwardsville said it would not play against an unofficial team and St. Louis gave no reason for its last-minute cancellation.

The team did not give up, however, and continued to practice. Frank Lumsden, a sophomore from Jamaica majoring in engineering, was selected captain. Ian Beattie, from Scotland, was named player-coach. Holt continued as referee. Although Beattie is a graduate student he could play for the unofficial team.

Through the efforts of Joseph Chu of the International Student Center, the match was arranged with ISU.

The team practiced intensively and selected a first and second string team. Each player supplied himself with soccer gear and Chu supplied the half time refreshments for the game.

Dec. 10 Deadline

Applications Being Accepted For SIU Baseball Batgirls

The deadline for batgirl applications is Dec. 10, according to Pat Hall, supervisor for next year’s group.

Six to eight girls will be chosen by Miss Hall, who will personally interview each girl who is interested.

Last year’s group received national publicity in all news media and received a good deal of expense-paid travel.

Next spring, the girls are again expected to make several road trips with the baseball team and no doubt will gain much attention, Miss Hall said.

Strong Rushing Game, Stout Defense
Give Salukis Win in Season Finals

Springfield, Mo. — Some early defensive heroics and one of the most productive ground offensives in recent SIU football history gave the Salukis a 1-0 victory Saturday afternoon at O'Brien Field in a 1-0 record despite a bad thunderstorm that drove on the Saluki 14- and 13-yard lines.

The Southern pass defense was particularly effective, limiting the Bears from completion on 27 attempts. They permitted only two field goals.

Meanwhile, junior halfback Charles PemberTon "spearheaded" the Saluki attack to 323 yards rushing and a total of 13 rushing touchdowns. On the afternoon, PemberTon scored all three Saluki touchdowns, on runs of 2, 1, and 70 yards. PemberTon gained 143 yards rushing on 21 carries.

Saluki end John Ference received the opening kickoff and fumbled. He was the only player to move within 14 yards of the SIU end zone before surrendering the ball on downs.

The Bears later moved to the Saluki 13 to lose the ball on downs once more. Former Big Eight quarterback Tim Kelly, making his first start since he scored a touchdown scoring with a 15-yard pass to Ference who carried to the 25. PemberTon scored from the 1, and PemberTon altered carry in the second quarter. Ference missed the extra point attempt.

The Salukis started their next drive at their own eight, PemberTon at 21, 19 and 13 yards on successful runs, Kelly kept the drive going by rolling out for 11 yards and passing Ference for 17, both in third down situations.

After PemberTon's one-yard scoring jaunt, Kelly made another successful conversation and the score at halftime was 13-0.

The third period was scoreless. Dr. Ference, the Bears' third-string quarterback, started their back with a 14-yard pass to Ference who carried to the 20. PemberTon scored from the 12, and PemberTon altered carry in the second quarter. Ference missed the extra point attempt.

The Salukis got the ball back on an interception, but fumbled it in the next possession. After taking over on their own 25, the Saluki moved to the Bears 11.5 yards. At this point PemberTon found a hole at right tackle and out every one for his 18th point of the afternoon.

The race again added the conversion with 8:10 remaining in the game.

The action wasn't finished, however. Late in the fourth quarter fullback Bill Williams made his first appearance in the game and a sloshed over the muddy field for 53 yards in a single carry to the Bear 11-yard line.

Still trailing Missouri could not generate any scoring threats throughout most of the last three periods. The Bears took the ball from the Bears four times on fumbles and pass interceptions.

Saluki punter Barclay Allen punted three times for a 40-yard average to become the SIU record holder for a season in that department.

Despite the loss, the Bears will play in the Mineral Water Bowl at ExcelStir Spring, Mo., Nov. 26.

Junior-Senior Squad Defeated

SIU Women's Gymnastics Team Performs to Enthusiastic Crowd

By Tom Wood

If there was one thing that Herb Vogel's girls did Friday night, it was to confirm that popular belief that girls are sugar and spice and everything nice — especially in a SIU gymnastic uniform.

Vogel's girl gymnasts performed to a large and enthusiastic crowd that grew louder with every event the girls performed.

And you could wager positively that more than one fellow left the arena unconscious of the young lady he had brought as his date.

Of course everything did not come off perfectly in the Kennedy Memorial meet, as the microphone system gave out often, but who cares? The crowd acted as if it would have loved it just as much if the girls had been performing to the music of a math teacher scraping his fingernail across the blackboard.

The program was well-planned and the execution was even better. This was the team's initial meet in preparation for defense of the National Collegiate Championship and USGF title they won last year.

A modern dance performance by the 25-member squad got things started. From this the girls went into the team competition between the freshmen-sophomore team and the junior-senior squad. Vogel was unveiling two freshmen in whom he has expressed great hope, Joanne Hoshimoto and Judy Dunham.

The overall winner of the competition was sophomore Linda Scott, voted the team's most improved member last year by her teammates.

Miss Scott was trailed by Irene Haworth, Janie Dunham, Judy Dunham, Mary Ellen Toth and Miss Hoshimoto in that order. The fresh-soph's pulled a surprise in defeating the upperclassmen 55.11-54.48.

The competition was followed by what seemed to be the most popular part of the show, synchronized performances in trampoline, uneven parallel bars and tumbling.

Judy Willis and Nancy Smith, world trampoline champions, put on a short display. They were followed by Miss Willis and Donna Schaezer, both titlists in tumbling, competing successfully against the entire team.

Awards were presented to Miss Schaezer and Gail Dalley before the tumbling show.

Miss Schaezer won the Athletic Achievement Award and Vogel used his belated vote to elect Miss Dalley team captain. Miss Schaezer had won both, but Vogel chose to give the latter award to Miss Dalley, relieving Miss Schaezer of the duties and responsibilities which she had held for three years.

The meet was dedicated to the late President Kennedy and Frank Schmitz, Saluki gymnast who died in a plane crash in September.

SIU Harriers Finish Seventh In National Collegiate Finals

SIU finished seventh in the National Collegiate Athletic Association cross-country championships at Lawrence, Kansas, Monday, as Villanova easily took top team honors.

Sophomore Oscar Moore took tenth place in individual honors after a side-ache again bothered the former Olympian during the six-mile event.

Villanova was followed by Kansas State and San Jose State in final team standings.

Gerry Lindgren, former Olympic performer, covered the distance in 29:10.4 to break the tape more than 100 yards ahead of runner-up Tracy Smith of Michigan State.

Lindgren's time set a new course record, replacing the mark of 29:24 set by Kansas' John Lawson last year. The 12th time he ran led the race all the way.

The Salukis finished as the top representative of the Central Collegiate Conference.

Western Michigan, the defending champion and a member of the conference, finished in ninth spot.

Moore's tenth place finish in the time of 30:30 came against 199 runners in the event representing 33 universities.

At Ackman, a senior from Mt. Vernon, Ind., finished 49th in the race with a time of 31:23.

Dave Chisholm finished 67th in 31:59.5, followed by Jeff Skubay in 76th place at 32:16.

Jim Charvat rounded out the team finish in a time of 33:55, good for 149th place.

Moore, along with Lindgren, was a pre-race favorite to take the individual crown.

As a team, however, Southern Illinois University was not considered to be a high finisher, and the seventh place outcome has to rate as somewhat of a pleasant surprise for Coach Lew Harrington.

The Salukis will get little rest before the final big event of the season, the U.S. Track and Field Federation championships, set for 11 a.m. Thursday in Wichita, Kansas.

USC to Play In Rose Bowl

SAN FRANCISCO (API)—Southern California's Trojans, champions of the Pacific-8, were named by the conference Monday to meet Purdue in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena on Jan. 2.

Executive director Tom Hamilton announced the result of the balloting of the eight conference members which sends the Trojans for their fifth appearance at the post-season classic.

Since USC finished the season with a 9-1 league record compared to 3-1 for both UCLA and Oregon State, the result was not unexpected although the Trojans fell to the Uclans last Saturday 14-7 and must yet face top-ranked Notre Dame.

Over-all the USC record stands at 7-2.
