Governor appoints Guyon to Illinois quake task force

Group to consider ways to protect area

By Jackie Spinnler

University President John C. Gurney appointed last week to the Earthquake Preparedness Task Force by Gov. James R. Thompson.

"The concept (for the task force) is crucial as we sit here on the New Madrid fault," Guyon said.

Construction is expected to begin Nov. 10 on the sanitary sewer system that will incorporate about 1,000 people into the city, Ed Reeder, director of public works, said.

The new sewer line will run from the University Physical Plant to Illinois Route 111 at the Illinois State Fairgrounds and will take about a year to complete, Reeder said.

Although the residents of the Route 51 South area are part of the Carbondale Township, they are not officially affiliated with the city, Steve Hoffner, city manager, said.

Reeder said in exchange for a sewer system, the residents agreed to be annexed into Carbondale.

"There has been a great effort of cooperation between the city officials and the residents," Hoffner said, "I think both sides have benefited from the annexation effort.

Hoffner said he has met with the residents of the area to get their reactions to the possibility of installing the sewer system. Most of the residents supported having a sewer system and becoming an affiliate of Carbondale, but a few opposed the project.

The cost for the Evansville Commissions Pumper of Evansville, to complete the project is $502,786.

Funding for this project will come from a low-interest loan from the Illinois State Environmental Protection Agency, Reeder said.

The loan will be paid in

Interstate traffic deaths soar

Increase result of 65 mph limit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Traffic fatalities on rural interstates soared for a second straight year after states were allowed to raise speed limits to 65 mph, resulting in at least 900 extra deaths over the two-year period, the government said Monday.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said in a report to Congress that traffic deaths on rural interstates increased by 13 percent in 1988 after rising by 18 percent the year before.

By contrast, deaths in 1988 rose by 8 percent on urban interstates and by 0.4 percent on all other highways. In 1987, deaths fell slightly on both urban interstates and other highways, the NHTSA said.

The NHTSA said an increase in miles traveled accounted for only a third of the increase in rural interstate traffic deaths in the 38 states that raised speed limits by July 1987.

By comparing statistical records, the agency estimated there were 900 more deaths — 309 in 1987 and 591 in 1988 — than would have been expected without the 65 mph speed limit in those states, the agency said.

The speed limit on interstate highways was lowered to 55 mph in the 1970's to conserve energy. However, as a response to public outcry, states were allowed in April 1987 to raise the speed limit to 65 mph on stretches of interstate in areas with fewer than 50,000 people.

By July 1988, a total of 40 states had increased speed limits on rural interstates and the 65-mph limit covered 89 percent of the 23,280 miles of the U.S. interstate highway system.

In all, there were 47,079 traffic deaths in the United States in 1988 — 2,277 on urban interstates, 1,612 on rural interstates and 41,166 on other roads.

Overall traffic deaths were up 1.5 percent in 1988, but the fatality rate — deaths per hundred million miles traveled — rose 2.4 percent on rural interstates.

Despite the increase in deaths, the Transportation Department said in a statement it continues to believe states should set speed limits.

A spokesperson for Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, a key opponent of the case in the 65-mph speed limit, said the senator had not yet seen the report, but he contended that it was clear that increases in traffic deaths can be caused by several factors other than speed.

However, Henry Jasny, an attorney with the Center for Auto Safety, said the increase in traffic deaths had been predicted by those who opposed 65 mph speed limit when the speeds were raised.

Fate of Illinois’ mascot unkonwn

By Jackie Spinnler
Staff Writer

The University of Illinois could give its mascot the hatchet if the Student Government Association votes to put it in the hands of the students.

The SGA Assembly will vote Wednesday to decide whether a petition about the campus mascot, Chief Illiniwek, should be placed on the fall referendum.

SGA President Tim Wayne said he expects the assembly to approve the question because both the administration and the student government would like to poll student opinion about Chief Illiniwek.

The chief Illiniwek controversy began when Illinois alumnus Serbert Hong accused the chief of depicting Indian culture in a negative way.

The Daily Illini reported Thursday that he had met with several University officials to discuss the comical and unauthentic manner in which the chief depicts Indian culture.

Tom Riley, Illinois department of anthropology chairman, said Chief Illiniwek is not very authentic.

"It’s said not look like an Illini Indian or dance like an American Indian," Riley said.

The chief’s costume is modeled after a Sioux Indian ceremonial outfit, but a Prairie Indian resemblance is more common.

In addition, the group at camp is not an alumnus of the University of Illinois, but is from the University of Wisconsin and is in training for American Indian cultural events.

1940 alum establishes loan fund

By Chris Walsh
Staff Writer

A 1940 alumnus of the University has come back to repay a debt and in the process, create a fund for certain students who need help paying for school.

Donald Bryant, along with his wife Eileen, have established the Donald and Eileen Bryant Student Loan Fund.

The loan will be available to students in the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Communications and Fine Arts and the College of Business and Administration.

Students must also be from the Southern Illinois region to be eligible, Thomas Gundersen, director of the College of Business and Administration, said.

According to Gundersen, the fund is open to entering as well as continuing students.

It is possible to obtain a loan from the fund, Gundersen said, but the student must have at least a 2.5 grade point average. The fund is a part-time jobs, which is involved with at least two extra-curricular activities and at least a three-quarter time student.

Dr. James, associate director of financial aid, said that entering students must be in Hungarians declare selves a republic, end communism

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) — Hungary formally declared an end to 40 years of communist rule Monday and proclaimed itself a republic, acting the stage for creation of a Western-style democracy in the East Bloc state. Afterwards, nearly 150,000 Hungarians held a 90-minute candlelight rally in the west square in front of the Budapest neo-Gothic Parliament building, flying Hungarian flags, some with the Soviet red star, others bearing banned party emblems. The declaration came on the 33rd anniversary of the start of the ill-fated 1956 pro-democracy uprising that was crushed by Soviet troops and tanks.

Shevardnadze admits Soviet treaty violation

MOSCOW (UPI) — Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, reversing more than a decade of denials by Moscow, admitted Monday that the Soviets violated the 1972 ABM treaty by building a cruise missile station in eastern Siberia. Shevardnadze also told lawmakers the Soviets continued to make chemical weapons after a U.S. ban in 1969, despite "bilious" of rules in expense, environmental damage and the threat to public health. In a major speech to parliament, Shevardnadze also said "tens of billions" of dollars spent building confrontation with China and the 1979 invasion of Afghanistan violated Soviet law.

First post-quake commute runs smoothly

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rain-sloped commuters jammed ferry boats, trains and buses Monday in the first full test since last week's earthquake crippled the Bay Area's transportation system and killed at least 61 people. But the community in one of the nation's most congested regions was smoother than expected as rush hour commuters and government offices reopened, perhaps because many commuters chose to stay away Monday. Mayor Art Agnos warned that the transportation crisis will last a long time. "It's not going to go away in a couple of days," he said.

Bush restricts offshore drilling rights bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush signed into law Monday the most sweeping moratoriums on offshore oil drilling ever approved by Congress and a truce resolving a dispute over ancient fossils and spotted owls as the Pacific Northwest. Both the delays in offshore drilling and the perilousness to the timber industry were enacted as part of an $11.2 billion spending bill for the Interior Department and related agencies, including the national parks and public lands. The measure allows for development of intensive two-year building a small-scale leasing program.

Activist Quinn asks Hartigan to block legislative pay raise SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — A legislative pay raise plan state lawmakers are scheduled to vote on next week is unconstitutional and should be blocked by Attorney General Neil Hartigan, political activist Patrick Quinn said Monday. Quinn said lawmakers used a legal end run to bypass a state pay raise panel and approve salary and pension increases for elected officials. Quinn said he would and Hartigan is urging him to file suit to bar lawmakers from receiving the raises if funding is approved by the General Assembly. Third aide Treasurer Jerome Compton and Comptroller Roland Burris to refuse to pay the increases if Hartigan refuses to act. "The highest legal elected official in Illinois should step forward and do what the Constitution of Illinois, and stop the pay raises," Quinn said.

Pettit’s assistant examines job duties after first month

Deakin uses past skills to enhance role as mediator

By Tim Crosty
Staff Writer

Identifying priorities and learning the SIU system is how Garrett L. Deakin has spent his first month as executive assistant for external relations.

Deakin was appointed to the newly created position by Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit Sept. 16. The job requires that he represent the interests of SIU in the state and federal legislatures as well as to provide funding assistance.

"He also must remain current on all legislation that may impact SIU and make recommendations to the chancellor on how the University may best be represented," Deakin said.

"It’s been hectic. I’ve been getting out and meeting individuals, finding out who they are and how they relate to the University," Deakin said.

Deakin, a graduate of SIU-C, has been in Springfield most of the last month, although that isn’t new to him. Before coming to SIU, he was director of the Illinois Senate Majority Appropriations Staff for 10 years. He also served on the Senate Staff and as a member of the Illinois House Minority Appropriations Staff.

Deakin said he is now trying to become familiar with the SIU system so that he can better refer legislators to the corresponding University official.

“I’m trying to find out what our priorities are and the people involved,” Deakin said.

High on the list of University priorities is getting legislation passed that will and an effective date to the University’s budget for this year.

Deakin said the effective date on the budget was inadvertently omitted and the University technically should not be spending money until January.

“We want to amend the current law to make it effective immediately,” he said. “It’s a technicality.”

The Illinois Senate last week unanimously voted to restore $600,000 cut by Gov. James R. Thompson for research and treatment of Alzheimer’s Disease by SIU School of Medicine in Springfield and St. Lukes Hospital in Chicago. Deakin, who is working to get the money restored to the original amount of $1.8 million, said he expects the House to vote to restore the money as well.

“We’ll be writing letters and talking to legislators,” he said. “We want them to know how this affects their district.”

Another Illinois legislative issue that personally could affect SIU is the property tax reform movement. Deakin said he will be meeting later in the week with Don Wilson, vice chancellor for financial affairs.

Take Back the Night a success despite weather

By Sean Harngan
Staff Writer

The Take Back the Night Rally held Friday at Evergreen Park was a success despite temperatures that dipped into the 40s, Janet Morrison, graduate assistant at Women’s Studies said.

The rally, sponsored by the Women’s Safety Week Commission, marked the first time in eight years there was not a march through the campus. The rally is designed to protest violence against women and to heighten awareness of the problem, Morrison said.

Kathryn B. Ward said she was concerned with the amount of acquaintance rapes on campus. She said 80 percent of the rapes on campus were now acquaintance rapes.

There are people who would still like to have the march, but right now we are still waiting for feedback,” Ward said, coordinator of the rape action committee and member of the safety week committee. She said 126 people attended the rally. “Those were people from the community as well as students. It was a good mix,” Ward said.

Deakin, a student of design and daughter of U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, was the keynote speaker.

Morrison said one of the more emotional moments came when some women donned white suits. “The suits signify that these women are survivors of violent crimes against them.”

Gunny's experience could aid area plans

SHAKEN OUT of a deep sleep by the recent earthquake in San Francisco, Gov. James R. Thompson has taken the hint from Mother Nature and created the Earthquake Preparedness Commission for Illinois. This was one of Thompson's appointees to the task force is SIUC President John G. Guyon. This is not only an honor for Guyon, but it brings realistic experience to the University and could result in immediate changes for the area as well as the state: Changes that could save lives.

Most significantly, it is for the Southern Illinois University that a new role is included in the record of the New Madrid fault line. The fault also runs through portions of Missouri, Kentucky, Arkansas, Mississippi, and Tennessee. It has been estimated that the Southern Illinois region will experience an earthquake sometime within the next 10 years.

The task force will study bridges, highways, utilities services, medical preparedness, and rescue and evacuation procedures. And it will study the aspects of Illinois' infrastructure that may be affected by an earthquake.

The task force could accomplish an important mission of providing coordinated procedures and protocols for the state. But with Guyon appointed to the task force, he may reap the benefits from becoming acquainted with the procedure of studying the state of earthquake preparedness in the area.

The knowledge and changes made by the task force could be carried over and instituted into the University community.

The University community does not have the information readily available to it that would assist it in the event of an earthquake.

In the SIU building's could withstand an earthquake? What is the safest area of a dwelling to go during an earthquake? What would be the capacity the city's emergency services could work at? The questions are endless.

All of these questions should be presented to the community. It could help quell the chaos that potentially follows an earthquake.

The University should follow the lead of the governor and create a body that would study the present state of earthquake preparedness for the University and the City of Carbondale.

The University and the city should work together to accomplish this, because both are important to each other. An assessment of the situation would at least give the community an idea of what might be expected in an earthquake and the aftermath.

After all, it could be 10 years before Southern Illinois experiences an earthquake; then again, it could be 10 days.

Letters

Is area ready for a temblor?

This letter has been on my mind for some time and the recent earthquake in San Francisco has spurred me to action.

For years I have been reading in the newspapers and hearing on the radio about the potential threat to the Southern Illinois area is very well prepared for this type of earthquake which could occur at any time. From time to time I read that the area is well prepared and that there has been a drill and everyone is considered to be successful. This is said to be the reason for this area's readiness for the earthquake.

It may be true that the emergency unit is well prepared for such a disaster, and I am very thankful for their efficiency and hard work, but I have yet to see any plans, instructions, or an announcement, or read about any drills or tests that have to do with real people, in the event of an earthquake.

A flyer printed some time ago directed at the Carbondale area residents to "go to a place of safety, and avoid all buildings where personnel are gathered in the event of an earthquake." The area has a drill and everyone is considered to be successful. This is said to be the reason for this area's readiness for the earthquake.

This is not only an honor for Guyon, but it brings realistic experience to the University and could result in immediate changes for the area as well as the state: Changes that could save lives.

Dear Editor:

I have been reading the reports about the recent earthquake in San Francisco, and I want to express my thoughts on the matter.

First of all, I am grateful to the people who worked tirelessly to ensure the safety and well-being of the residents affected by the earthquake. It is commendable to see how the community came together to support each other during such a challenging time.

As someone who has lived in the region, I understand the potential impact that an earthquake can have. My thoughts are with those who were affected by the tremor, and I hope they find the strength and resilience to recover.

It is also important to recognize the importance of preparedness and the role that individuals and communities play in mitigating the effects of such natural disasters. The recent event serves as a reminder of the need to continue improving our emergency response strategies and ensuring that everyone understands their role in the event of an earthquake.

I appreciate the efforts of the officials and organizations that are working to assess the situation and provide assistance. I believe that each of us has a responsibility to be informed and prepared for such events, and I encourage everyone to take the time to learn more about what to do in the event of an earthquake.

Sincerely,

Former SIU-C law professor Robert H. Dreher has passed away in Palm Springs, Ca, at the age of 72.

Dreher died Oct. 16. In a note to the Register, his family said his wife Virginia and his children, Scott, Gigi and James, were Ann Lesar, emeritus professor at the School of Law, said Dreher was widely known in the criminal justice system throughout the country.

"He was a very fine person with a great interest in justice and the system in general. Robert took a great interest in his students and was responsible for getting our legal clinic started," Lesar said.

"I also interacted with him to help in forming the School of Law.""n

Dreher, who received his bachelor's degree at the University of Texas in 1936 and his juris doctor at the University of Illinois in 1940, went on to serve as an agent in the Federal Bureau of Investigation during World War II.

From 1946 to 1974 he had a private law practice in Illinois and California until becoming an associate professor of crime studies at SIU-C from 1967 to 1974. During his tenure as associate professor, Dreher served on numerous committees. He was a criminal justice consultant for the Illinois Board of Higher Education, the New England Board of Higher Education, the United States Department of Justice and several universities throughout the country. He also helped draft SIU's proposal for a law school and was on the board of the school's first dean.

Dreher became a clinical and criminal law professor at the School of Law in 1974 and served there until his retirement in 1986, when he moved back to California.

Prior to his death, Dreher continued to provide legal counsel some court cases and also served as a mental judge and an arbitrator in out-of-court cases.

Lincoln Land Community College

teachers OK school's first strike

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) -- Teachers at Lincoln Land Community College authorized the first strike in the college's history Monday, as teachers already packaged for a walkout, the school's administration announced.

The 135 teachers at Lincoln Land voted by a 4-1 margin to reject the college board's latest contract offer and strike at 6:00 a.m. Thursday morning, said faculty union president Bill Scott, who had finally begun informational picketing on campus earlier this week after talks with the board broke down.

Meanwhile, teachers and board members met with Ball-Chatham School District agreed to resume contract negotiations, as Illinois' only teachers' strike entered its sixth day.

Hans said the union delayed the walkout at Lincoln Land in an effort to avoid detrimental public perception to the strike itself.

"The vote we took in the very beginning of the strike was the board has not given us a fair and equitable contract," he said.

"But we did want to leave a buffer period there. We wanted to leave that open," he said.

Hajek said teachers and the board disagree on salaries, insurance benefits and replacing the union president of some teaching desirability to allow more time for each side to work. Both sides have agreed not to comment on specific contract issues.

No further contract talks have been scheduled, but both sides are still communicating through a federal mediator, said John Giavara, Lincoln Land vice-president for community relations.

"There's still reason to be hopeful we can resolve this," Giavara said. The administration and the faculty both continued to think things could be worked out.

A strike at the community college would affect about 8,000 students at the school's Springfield campus and several other satellite sites.

At Ball-Chatham, teacher's union president Gary Soerensen said the union had asked a federal mediator to set up Wednesday's meeting.

"The board has agreed to meet," Soerensen said. "We just wanted to get back to the table."

Supreme Court Justice Dan Kneeruf said he requested more bargaining time to give the union to resume discussion.

"We made the last two offers and said we wouldn't meet again until we were ready to move, so that's good news for us," Kneeruf said. "I guess they're ready to come off the fence."

Ball-Chatham teachers have been in a two-year contract with a 9 percent raise in the first year and a 7.25 percent raise in the second year. The administration has offered a first-year increase of 7.25 percent and a 6.25 percent raise in the second year of the contract.

Talks broke off Thursday night when the union accused the board of increasing its overall wage-proposal by removing bonuses to pay for coaches and club sponsors.

They walkout began Oct. 16, when 130 Ball-Chatham teachers left their jobs.

The loan fund will contain $25,000.

According to Mann, the first loan was $25,000. Mann said the student or students will be eligible for $2,000 of the loan every school year until he or she graduates. Upon graduation, the student will be expected to pay the loan back. Mann said interest on the loan will be charged on the loan, though the rate has not yet been determined.

Mann said the fund will be available during the fall semester of 1990, and he anticipates students would have six months to start repaying the loan.

The loan will be subject to a revolving basis. Each student taking money out will be expected to pay the money back, Gutteridge said.

According to Gutteridge, Bryan established the loan because of a loan he received when he was a student. Gutteridge said the loan made it possible for Bryant to graduate from the University.

Peace Corp representative to share work experiences

By Diana Mivel
Staff Writer

Peace Corps area representative Steve Rypkema will be at the Student Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and Wednesday to talk to interested students and answer questions about the Peace Corps.

Rypkema said he will be putting out applications on both days. Interviews will be scheduled for Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 at the University Placement Center in Woody Hall.

“This should give the students the opportunity to fill them out and sign up for interviews in the placement office,” he said.

The interviews let recruits get to know the Peace Corps, what kind of person they really are and how they deal with problems, he said.

The film “Let It Begin Here,” will be shown at noon and 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ohio Room. The film, lasting approximately 35 minutes, depicts the lives of three different volunteers in Western Africa, Morocco and Honduras. Each is interviewed and gives a picture of the life and work of Peace Corps volunteers. Discussion will follow the film.

Budget cuts by the Bush administration led to the closing of SIU-C’s Peace Corps recruiting office.

Rypkema said budget cuts from the new Bush administration and within the Peace Corps caused campus representative cutbacks across the country, including SIU-C. The campus office at SIU-C was closed Aug. 15.

However, he said he didn’t think it would significantly affect recruiting.

“The University of Illinois is one of the top recruiters and they don’t have an office on their campus,” he said.

Rypkema, a SIU-C graduate in forestry, joined the Peace Corps for two-and-one-half years in the Philippines.

He said the Peace Corps offers individuals cross-cultural experiences, different perspectives of the United States, the excitement of traveling and an opportunity to help others.

Rypkema said people with an educational degree and work experience usually qualify for the Peace Corps.

Applicants can request the country they would like to go to, but placements depend on the need in the requested country.

Applicants will be placed in an alternative country if there is no need for the applicant’s skills in the requested country.

“He said the areas stressed include education, agriculture, forestry, biology, special education, the health fields, math, science and skilled trades.

“Depending on timing, liberal arts would be more competitive than education, agriculture, forestry (and the others previously mentioned),”

The ACLU will set up a law review board, investigate complaints of violations against civil liberties, provides educational programs and mobilize its members on important issues.

Information, understanding help people overcome eating disorders

By Beth Freinstein

These scenarios represent only one of the ways that roommates, friends, family members, dating partners, and other acquaintances may become aware of a friend who has an eating problem. Whether the problem is bulimia, anorexia or compulsive overeating, the fact is that there may be a painful and destructive pattern of feeling and behavior around this person's relationship with food. It is natural for you to wonder and to want to help. If you suspect someone you care about has an eating problem, there are some thing you can do. What you can do is provide information, understanding, and support if your friend is able and willing to open up to you and share.

Tell your friend when you suspect she/he has an eating disorder. Your friend may initially denying such a problem. Once your friend is ready to talk about the problem, they can be an understanding and supportive behavior. Provide information about what helping services are offered on campus. Be there to offer support while your friend wants to talk about the problem. Comment on your friend's internal rather than external qualities and remind them of their worth as a person without regard to their outward appearance.

Don't be confrontational or judgmental when discussing your friend's eating problem. Empathy and understanding encourage more open discussion. Don't follow a behavioral friend to the bathroom and listen for vomiting. This will only intensify their guilt and encourage more secrecy. Don't take responsibility for your friend's recovery. While you can and should encourage their efforts, it's up to them to seek and follow help. Remember, only the person with the eating disorder can ultimately be responsible for getting the help they need.

The ACLU was active and busy during the '60s, '70s and early '80s. Then in '82 some of the leaders moved and it went into hibernation," Auerbach said. The group has had two meetings this semester to begin the process of organizing the chapter again.

"We're in Southern Illinois, where you have students who are not always welcome in friendship. You have a minority population who is dissatisfied with ratings in education and the treatment they get in the community," Auerbach said.

"We are an organization committed to fighting for the rights of minorities," Auerbach said. "We are a group that can turn to for help and advice.

Area school children celebrate the arts at SIU-C

Workshops offer children hands-on arts experience
By Jeanne Bickler

Sandra McKendree's fourth grade class joined children from 13 Southern Illinois counties in celebrating the arts. Instead of spending the day in the classroom at Winker Elementary School, McKendree's class went to the opera at SIU-C's Shryock Auditorium and at a workshop at the Illinois State Museum.

The activities started Thursday and will run through Tuesday. Tandy Jones, co-chairwoman of the arts committee, said. Cecelia Norris, from the Illinois State Board of Education, also was a co-chairwoman of the event.

"Monday was one of our biggest days," Jones said. "Over 2,000 children were on campus today (Monday)."

All students groups attended different activities.

More than 2,000 students participated in the activities Monday, one of the biggest days yet, Tandy Jones, co-chairwoman of the event, said.

Intraavas and a tour of the University Museum. All activities were held in morning and afternoon sessions.

The opera, which were performed by the Maryloe Metropolitan Opera Theater, were "The Princess Who Talked Backwards" and "The Boy Who Invented Opera." On Thursday and Friday, students were to a chamber orchestra rather than the opera, Jones said.

The hands-on art activity encouraged students to do all kinds of art such as painting, sculpture and other types of art that could be performed in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The drama activity, held in the Student Center Auditorium, featured two very special speakers. The first speaker was Mark Twain, played by Loren Taylor, who gave the children some basic advice for a happy life.

"Obey your parents," Taylor said. "If you don't, they will make you.

He also talked about respect for the old man, going to bed early and the virtues of lying, only if you are good at it.

"If you practice lying long enough and hard enough, you may become a congressman," Twain (Taylor) said.

Taylor is a retired SIUC recreation department instructor. He also taught at Southeast Missouri State University.

Author of five poetry books to open writer-lecture series
By Katherine Lydon

Patricia Rogers, author of five poetry books, will be the first in a series of six writers to speak at SIUC this year. She will give a free presentation at 8 p.m. Thursday in Morris Library Auditorium.

Her books include "Splittings and Binding '99," "The Lady in the Garden" and "Expectations of Light.

"She's a woman who writes passionate poems of knowledge at a microscopic level, such as a composer out of a pianist's brain while staying," Rodney Jones, associate professor of creative writing, said.

Johannes described Rogers as a perceptive naturalist and said her works are lyrically beautiful.

The series is one of the very few in the country writing poems that haven't been written before," Jones said.

Rogers has won fellowships from the Texas art, the Guggenheim Foundation and the Vorstman Award of the Texas Institute of Arts and Letters.

"The purpose of the series is to bring in a number of writers in the early to mid part of their career, to give a public presentation and to look at creative writing students' work," Jones said.

Freshman captures Miss Ebenezer's crown
By Doug Toole

Torre Grant was named Miss Ebenezer at the 1989 Miss Ebenezer Pageant Saturday night in Shryock Auditorium.

Grant, a freshman with an undeclared major was one of 10 finalists in the pageant, which lasted almost three hours and had an audience of more than 700 people.

Brian A. Hawkins, a junior in political science who coordianted the pageant, said he was very pleased with the event. He said, he was proud of the girls who were in the pageant and felt the audience was supportive without becoming rowdy.

Hawkins said he was especially happy to see how well the finalists performed during the talent portion of the pageant. The acts ranged from dancing to singing to dramatic readings, and most were outstanding, he said.

Judges of the event included Madlyn Stolls, Developmental Studies major, Deborah Perry, admissions counselor, Gloria Jones, wife of Ed Jones, director of University Housing and Patricia Black-Clay, a health education instructor at John A. Logan College in Carbondale.

The judges scored the contestants based on their interviews, talent performances and answers to questions asked during the pageant. Hawkins said this way, the contestants' whole person was judged, not just their ability to sing or how they look in an evening dress.

Brenda Majors and David King were the announcers of the pageant and managed to provide information about the contestants and its participants while also providing some laughs. Majors and King introduced the finalists, the judges, distinguished guests in the audience and the Shryock technical crew and never once sounded like they were killing time.

Hawkins said he was impressed with the number of other people who attended the pageant. Hawkins said he was disappointed with the amount of support the event received from black Greek organizations. In the future, he said he hopes the pageant and sororities would put more effort into attending the pageant and getting Greek contestants in the event.

Higlights of the pageant included a live band that provided most of the music for the pageant and a photograher at the event.

An event that occurred in Sanford, Calif., Sunday convinced me that the No. 1 position between the San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics should be played.

The event was the football game between the San Francisco 49ers and your college's Pac-10 team.

More than 70,000 fans gathered at Candlestick Park, a last-minute substitution for San Francisco's damaged Candlestick Park, to watch the 49ers defeat the University of Illinois 37-21.

This last week was an anxiety-ridden time for every California native. A major earthquake registering 6.9 on the Richter scale Tuesday followed, by a series of aftershocks, took a physical and mental toll on the city of San Francisco and much of the Bay Area.

The turn of events made the San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics even more popular. The San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics are a rare combination.

Following the quake last week, Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent had a decision to make: Should the World Series be continued or postponed?

Many people felt that the number of deaths and major damage were insufficient to make the earthquake wrought it inappropriate to continue the Series.

Others felt the games should go on. It would provide people in the Bay Area a remedy. At the same time, continuing the Series could show natives that the Bay Area can get through this terrible tragedy.

The Commissioner also had the option of moving the Series to a neutral site. But Vincent announced late last week that the Series would resume in Candlestick Tuesday.

After meeting with San Francisco Mayor Art Agnos, Vincent decided Sunday to reschedule Game Three of the Series for Friday.

The revised schedule could push the World Series into November for the first time. Any further games would take place Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the Oakland Coliseum, which remained virtually intact, the Commissioner said.

I like Vincent's decision. The 49ers-Patriots football game gave me the impression that California natives need to get their minds on something other than the earthquake. They also need the assurance that the Bay Area can get through this tragedy.

I'm not saying the fans should return as if nothing happened. Let's not forget the number of people losing their lives and the damage caused by the quake. But the World Series, like the 49ers-Patriots game, could provide a temporary remedy.

Also, fans and players alike should show respect for what has happened in the community.

Baseball is America's pastime. But the earthquake Tuesday reminded us all of something that is more valuable than baseball—human life.

We all should be pulling for the Bay Area natives who are trying to get their lives back together.

The Giants—Athletics may be just an event, but it still has some significance in bringing this community together.

The Aledo native also was part of a national championship doubles team this summer. Maule and teammate Sri Tummala of the University of Michigan won the national title in the National Amateur Indoor Championships in December.

"There's not too many people around here that can say they won a national championship," LoFevre said.

Two weeks after their national title in Cleveland, Maule and Tummala advanced to the semifinals in the National Amateur Doubles in Kansas City.

The winner at New York received a wildcard into the U.S. Open Doubles.

Maule said hard work is the key to his success.

"I worked hard over the summer," Maule said. "I worked with my weaknesses and tried to improve my game."

This is the first season Maule has played in the No. 1 position for the Salukis. There is a difference playing in the No. 1 spot, Maule said.

"Every team has a strong No. 1 player," Maule said. "You have to fight for the victory in every single match."

A public relations major, Maule also was recruited by Iowa and Kentucky. He chose SIUC for academic and athletic reasons.

"I chose SIUC because I knew the public relations program was strong and I liked the players on the team," Maule said.

Maule, who said he may try the pro circuits this summer, has a few more goals to pursue while playing on the team for the Salukis.

I just want to be successful at No. 1 and make the NCAA tourney by May," Maule said.

Players who have missed games or practice because of injury.

*Indicates players lost for the season.

There was a lack of commitment,” Thompson said. “It looks like we’re making some commitment now.”

Smith said another factor to consider on the injuries is the effort of the players.

“The players are tense, trying to hard under pressure and just play hard,” Smith said.

Smith said injuries not only affect the players physically but also psychologically.

Currently, the Salukis have lost four players for the season as a result of injury.

Defensive back Money Foster is recovering from reconstructive knee surgery, offensive tackle Joey O’Connor has undergone shoulder surgery, running back Tim Callier and linebacker Leroy Wright have been lost to shoulder injuries.
Bad luck, numerous injuries hamper football team’s play

Head coach Bob Smith said when things are going well for a football program there usually is a little luck involved. The Salukis, 1-7, have not been lucky — especially in the injury department. Ed Thompson, the Salukis’ head trainer, said 18 Saluki players currently are unable to practice at full speed because of injuries. Last year at this time 14 players were limited in their abilities to practice. The Salukis did not practice Monday, partly because of the number of injuries the team is suffering, Smith said. Had the team worked out, it would have been the 56th practice this year for the Salukis, Thompson said. With eight games and practice, the team has been involved with about 45 full contact opportunities. Thompson said the number of injuries is not necessarily unusual, but inconsistency in the coaching staffs over the last two years may have affected the strength and development of the players.

Senior netter surprises self with trip to indoor nationals

Mickey Maule, a senior on the men’s tennis team, said he has surprised himself with his recent success.

The opportunity for Maule to become the first men’s tennis player ever to represent this school in the indoor national championships occurred Oct. 8 at the Rolex Intercollegiate Invitational in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Maule’s 6-0, 6-4 victory over Darrin Price of Wichita State in the semifinals enabled him to advance to the finals and earn a spot in the February indoor championships. "It surprised me," Maule said. "I just took one match at a time."
