Four Men Win Prizes For Photos

Four photographers shared the honors in the Daily Egyptian Photo Contest which was judged Friday.

Winning three prizes in the portrait division, Robert Laughton also took first place in the experimental division.

Don Kieber won first in the commercial and news divisions and took second in the experimental, commercial, and news divisions. Prillaman received second in the commercial, division.

Other judges were Walter Craig of the Printing and Photography Department; Loren Cocking of Film Productions, and Charles Bertram of Photographic Service.

The prize-winning photos will be on display in the Magnolia Lounge of the University Center until August 4.

60 Cosmetologists Begin Workshop

About 60 professional cosmetologists are on campus for the 12th annual School of Advanced Cosmetology.

They will participate in a two-week program of art theory as applied to their work, speech, record-keeping, logic, physics of hair, chemistry of cosmetics, and hair styling.

They are in their work in classroom, and some laboratory, according to Dr. R. D. Brandenfied, assistant dean of the SIU Division of Technical and Administrative Education, who heads the SIU agency for the program.

One of the highlights of the program will be a public "presentation" at 7 p.m., Aug. 5 in the Auditorium.

Each third-year participant in the program will design and prepare a hair styling on stage in front of the audience.

Students serve as models and the styles are judged by members of the School of Cosmetology and Hairdressers A.S. Council.

Mr. Brandenfied said, their work in speech at SIU is used to explain the design. And he explained, the instructors present for the school are Charles Budas of Chicago, nati...
Show Goes On at Playhouse Despite Fire Damage to Set

The show went on at the Southern Playhouse in the best tradition of that old theater clique.

A fire Saturday destroyed the backdrop for the production "Where's Charley?" But the members of the summer stock company were hastily assembled and a new one painted in time for the 8 p.m. curtain.

The fire was found by Laura Lassen, secretary of the theater, about 2 p.m. when she stepped by to see if there was any work to be done at the theater.

The playhouse was empty because the cast and crew had been given the afternoon off following a morning-long rehearsal.

They confined the damage to the backdrop.

The theater is a converted military barracks classified as a temporary building.

"Where's Charley?" flew off following a five-minute at the Playhouse.

"We were sure lucky," said Ramona Noll, another member of the acting group. "Another five minutes and we wouldn't have had a theater."

In April, they launched rehearsals of two Shakespeare plays, "King Lear" and "Richard III," and Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

The Stratford, Ont., theater is the best equipped and best operated of all theaters Abrams has ever seen, he said. "Shakespeare can't compare with it, and it is also superior to the new Guthrie theater," he said.

"There are 52 actors in residence and they are all professionals," he adds. "Canada's finest actors. They make a performance move even in the absence of one of the principals."

As an example, Abrams cited a dress rehearsal of Richard III. The actor playing the role of Kent was suddenly called away. "You forget how far Shakespeare is from dynamic force of live theater."

Abrams said he had just returned from a triumphant run in Chichester, England, where they overpowered the British critics. He said.

If you've been less sensitive as time goes by, and require new stimulation and inspiration," he declared.

"Busman's Holiday"

Abrams Spends Sabbatical Leave Observing Theater Rehearsals

How to spend a sabbatical: Devote up to 72 hours a week doing essentially what you were doing before the leave.

This might roughly describe the past year of Sherwin Abrams, associate professor of theater. He spent a year observing theater rehearsals, the Association of Producing Artists, started the Association of Professional Actors.

Abrams became involved with the productions. They included Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," Pirandello's "Right You Are If You Think You Are" and Gorky's "The Lower Depths."

The members of this company were most stimulating to work with, Abrams said.

"They are probably the most exciting group of actors in America."

He then went to the Cleveland Playhouse, where he was observing before and after last Christmas. John Cronwall, the Hollywood director and character actor, was the guest director for the production of Giraudoux's "Mad Woman of Chaillot."

Abrams also watched the December rehearsal in New York of Jules Halet's "Marathon."" Last March, he divided his time between the rehearsals of the Stratford, Conn., and those of the Association of Producing Artists. He had worked with this company at Michigan and its members were now working at the Phoenix Theatre.

Abrams said he would watch "Much Ado About Nothing" in the morning, "Hamlet" in the afternoon, and "The Lower Depths" in the evening.

He considers his trip to Stratford, Ont., the highlight of his travels. Abrams was observing the spring rehearsals of Stratford's Shakespearean Festival.

"They had just returned from a triumphal run in Chichester, England, where they overpowered the British critics," he said.

"Busman's Holiday"

Abrams Spends Sabbatical Leave Observing Theater Rehearsals

How to spend a sabbatical: Devote up to 72 hours a week doing essentially what you were doing before the leave.

This might roughly describe the past year of Sherwin Abrams, associate professor of theater. He spent a year observing theater rehearsals, the Association of Producing Artists, started the Association of Professional Actors.

Abrams became involved with the productions. They included Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," Pirandello's "Right You Are If You Think You Are" and Gorky's "The Lower Depths."

The members of this company were most stimulating to work with, Abrams said.

"They are probably the most exciting group of actors in America."

He then went to the Cleveland Playhouse, where he was observing before and after last Christmas. John Cronwall, the Hollywood director and character actor, was the guest director for the production of Giraudoux's "Mad Woman of Chaillot."

Abrams also watched the December rehearsal in New York of Jules Halet's "Marathon." Last March, he divided his time between the rehearsals of the Stratford, Conn., and those of the Association of Producing Artists. He had worked with this company at Michigan and its members were now working at the Phoenix Theatre.

Abrams said he would watch "Much Ado About Nothing" in the morning, "Hamlet" in the afternoon, and "The Lower Depths" in the evening.

He considers his trip to Stratford, Ont., the highlight of his travels. Abrams was observing the spring rehearsals of Stratford's Shakespearean Festival.

"They had just returned from a triumphal run in Chichester, England, where they overpowered the British critics," he said.

"Busman's Holiday"

Abrams Spends Sabbatical Leave Observing Theater Rehearsals

How to spend a sabbatical: Devote up to 72 hours a week doing essentially what you were doing before the leave.

This might roughly describe the past year of Sherwin Abrams, associate professor of theater. He spent a year observing theater rehearsals, the Association of Producing Artists, started the Association of Professional Actors.

Abrams became involved with the productions. They included Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," Pirandello's "Right You Are If You Think You Are" and Gorky's "The Lower Depths."

The members of this company were most stimulating to work with, Abrams said.

"They are probably the most exciting group of actors in America."

He then went to the Cleveland Playhouse, where he was observing before and after last Christmas. John Cronwall, the Hollywood director and character actor, was the guest director for the production of Giraudoux's "Mad Woman of Chaillot."

Abrams also watched the December rehearsal in New York of Jules Halet's "Marathon." Last March, he divided his time between the rehearsals of the Stratford, Conn., and those of the Association of Producing Artists. He had worked with this company at Michigan and its members were now working at the Phoenix Theatre.

Abrams said he would watch "Much Ado About Nothing" in the morning, "Hamlet" in the afternoon, and "The Lower Depths" in the evening.

He considers his trip to Stratford, Ont., the highlight of his travels. Abrams was observing the spring rehearsals of Stratford's Shakespearean Festival.

"They had just returned from a triumphal run in Chichester, England, where they overpowered the British critics," he said.

"Busman's Holiday"

Abrams Spends Sabbatical Leave Observing Theater Rehearsals

How to spend a sabbatical: Devote up to 72 hours a week doing essentially what you were doing before the leave.

This might roughly describe the past year of Sherwin Abrams, associate professor of theater. He spent a year observing theater rehearsals, the Association of Producing Artists, started the Association of Professional Actors.

Abrams became involved with the productions. They included Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," Pirandello's "Right You Are If You Think You Are" and Gorky's "The Lower Depths."

The members of this company were most stimulating to work with, Abrams said.

"They are probably the most exciting group of actors in America."

He then went to the Cleveland Playhouse, where he was observing before and after last Christmas. John Cronwall, the Hollywood director and character actor, was the guest director for the production of Giraudoux's "Mad Woman of Chaillot."

Abrams also watched the December rehearsal in New York of Jules Halet's "Marathon." Last March, he divided his time between the rehearsals of the Stratford, Conn., and those of the Association of Producing Artists. He had worked with this company at Michigan and its members were now working at the Phoenix Theatre.

Abrams said he would watch "Much Ado About Nothing" in the morning, "Hamlet" in the afternoon, and "The Lower Depths" in the evening.

He considers his trip to Stratford, Ont., the highlight of his travels. Abrams was observing the spring rehearsals of Stratford's Shakespearean Festival.

"They had just returned from a triumphal run in Chichester, England, where they overpowered the British critics," he said.

"Busman's Holiday"

Abrams Spends Sabbatical Leave Observing Theater Rehearsals

How to spend a sabbatical: Devote up to 72 hours a week doing essentially what you were doing before the leave.

This might roughly describe the past year of Sherwin Abrams, associate professor of theater. He spent a year observing theater rehearsals, the Association of Producing Artists, started the Association of Professional Actors.

Abrams became involved with the productions. They included Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," Pirandello's "Right You Are If You Think You Are" and Gorky's "The Lower Depths."

The members of this company were most stimulating to work with, Abrams said.

"They are probably the most exciting group of actors in America."

He then went to the Cleveland Playhouse, where he was observing before and after last Christmas. John Cronwall, the Hollywood director and character actor, was the guest director for the production of Giraudoux's "Mad Woman of Chaillot."

Abrams also watched the December rehearsal in New York of Jules Halet's "Marathon." Last March, he divided his time between the rehearsals of the Stratford, Conn., and those of the Association of Producing Artists. He had worked with this company at Michigan and its members were now working at the Phoenix Theatre.

Abrams said he would watch "Much Ado About Nothing" in the morning, "Hamlet" in the afternoon, and "The Lower Depths" in the evening.

He considers his trip to Stratford, Ont., the highlight of his travels. Abrams was observing the spring rehearsals of Stratford's Shakespearean Festival.
Students Seek Haven From the Hectic Life
By Leonor Wall

In this fast-paced world, we often find ourselves burning the candle at both ends, but we don't realize it until we get burned. Only then, sometimes, do we acknowledge the work of ourselves and the hectic life we have been living.

Perhaps what we all need is the opportunity to get off by ourselves to gain a perspective on our lives and to get away from everyday pressures.

Thoughts on being alone vary from person to person. For instance, Edward Gibson, in his Nemota, said, "I was never less alone than when by myself."

In William Shakespeare's Sonnet 29, these thoughts on being alone are expressed: "When, as I think, I am alone, but I couldn't lake and noise that came with dormitory, I walk and men's eyes I all alone, beweep my outcast state.

Sir Philip Sidney wrote, "They that are alone that are accompanied by noble thoughts." Students have many ideas about the necessity of being alone.

Joan Edmonds, a graduate student from Belvidere, Ill., said, "I don't usually find a need to get away from it all because I lived at Thompson Point, and even when I was by myself I walked around the lake and wou! sit on a pier and just watch things happen. I didn't come from a large family, I wasn't used to the noise that came with dormitory, I wanted to be by myself, but couldn't.

"Now I am married, there is not as much tension as there was in college, for some reason, and I don't find getting away as necessary as before.

"With two children, ages two and one, I have found that after a while I need a rest."

Admitting Carolyn Broeking, a student from Belvidere, Ill., after she helps me with them. and I can't get anything done. When I know that I bave them. and I can't get anything done. and I can't get anything done. when I am by myself. When I am by myself, I go to the cottage and listen to records if I feel I must get off by myself," said Judy C.

Florio, a freshman from Murphysboro, said, "Here at school I browse and wander around the library building going through all the shelves and génélarly getting acquainted with where things are. I like to go nowhere where It is quiet and where I can sit and be by myself.

"I am able to go anywhere by myself, but when on campus I go to the social studies library," said Ellen J. Aldridge, a freshman from Murphysboro.

"I walk around toward Southern Farms area, my home and think, or else I walk around my neighborhood," said Barbara A. Dalton, a senior from Carbondale said.

"I go off to get away from the pressures of school, my friends and family. Things come down and I feel that you have to by yourself to try to relieve the pressure,"

Tonight's Guests
Airline

•••

8:30 p.m., Concert Hall: Mozart, "Concerto for Flute and Harp in G Major," Ruchmannstof, "Symphony No. 2 in E Minor." Palau, "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra.

8:50 p.m., CAB: "The Alamy" and "Tulsa--A Symphonie Portait in Oil."

Pros and Cons of Birth Control
To Be Discussed on Channel 8

Tonight's Eye on the World program will feature a discussion of "Birth Control" at 8:30 p.m., over WSIU-TV. This documentation was produced by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and covers the various points of view on the subject through a series of interviews.

Other highlights:
5 p.m. What's New: Films about the frogs, turtles and salamanders that live in ponds; also, the story of the printing press.

Fuller in Russia
For Conference

R. Buckminster Fuller, research professor of design science, is in Russia for the fourth "Dartmouth Conference," an informal, off-the-record meeting of the minds of a small group of intellectual leaders in various fields in the U.S., and the U.S.S.R.

The week-long conference opened July 2b and will be followed by a week of entertainment by the Russian hosts, according to John McIlhale, assistant professor of design.

Sponsored by the government of the two countries, the Dartmouth Conference takes its name from the fact that the first session was held at Dartmouth College, McIlhale said. The two countries alternate in serving as host for the sessions. The current meeting is being held in Leningrad.

Fuller has just concluded a week's cruise on the Azores Sea as a participant in the Debs Symposium, July 11-18.

LITTLE MAN ON COLtNtSS

Many Take a Walk
Students Seek Haven From the Hectic Life

By Leonor Wall

In this fast-paced world, we often find ourselves burning the candle at both ends, but we don't realize it until we get burned. Only then, sometimes, do we acknowledge the work of ourselves and the hectic life we have been living.

Perhaps what we all need is the opportunity to get off by ourselves to gain a perspective on our lives and to get away from everyday pressures.

Thoughts on being alone vary from person to person. For instance, Edward Gibson, in his Nemota, said, "I was never less alone than when by myself."

In William Shakespeare's Sonnet 29, these thoughts on being alone are expressed: "When, as I think, I am alone, but I couldn't lake and noise that came with dormitory, I walk and men's eyes I all alone, beweep my outcast state.

Sir Philip Sidney wrote, "They that are alone that are accompanied by noble thoughts." Students have many ideas about the necessity of being alone.

Joan Edmonds, a graduate student from Belvidere, Ill., said, "I don't usually find a need to get away from it all because I lived at Thompson Point, and even when I was by myself I walked around the lake and wou! sit on a pier and just watch things happen. I didn't come from a large family, I wasn't used to the noise that came with dormitory, I wanted to be by myself, but couldn't.

"Now I am married, there is not as much tension as there was in college, for some reason, and I don't find getting away as necessary as before.

"With two children, ages two and one, I have found that after a while I need a rest."

Admitting Carolyn Broeking, a student from Belvidere, Ill., after she helps me with them. and I can't get anything done. When I know that I bave them. and I can't get anything done. when I am by myself. When I am by myself, I go to the cottage and listen to records if I feel I must get off by myself," said Judy C.

Florio, a freshman from Murphysboro, said, "Here at school I browse and wander around the library building going through all the shelves and génélarly getting acquainted with where things are. I like to go nowhere where It is quiet and where I can sit and be by myself.

"I am able to go anywhere by myself, but when on campus I go to the social studies library," said Ellen J. Aldridge, a freshman from Murphysboro.

"I walk around toward Southern Farms area, my home and think, or else I walk around my neighborhood," said Barbara A. Dalton, a senior from Carbondale said.

"I go off to get away from the pressures of school, my friends and family. Things come down and I feel that you have to by yourself to try to relieve the pressure,"

Tonight's Guests
Airline

•••

8:30 p.m., Concert Hall: Mozart, "Concerto for Flute and Harp in G Major," Ruchmannstof, "Symphony No. 2 in E Minor." Palau, "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra.

8:50 p.m., CAB: "The Alamy" and "Tulsa--A Symphonie Portait in Oil."

Pros and Cons of Birth Control
To Be Discussed on Channel 8

Tonight's Eye on the World program will feature a discussion of "Birth Control" at 8:30 p.m., over WSIU-TV. This documentation was produced by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and covers the various points of view on the subject through a series of interviews.

Other highlights:
5 p.m. What's New: Films about the frogs, turtles and salamanders that live in ponds; also, the story of the printing press.

Fuller in Russia
For Conference

R. Buckminster Fuller, research professor of design science, is in Russia for the fourth "Dartmouth Conference," an informal, off-the-record meeting of the minds of a small group of intellectual leaders in various fields in the U.S., and the U.S.S.R.

The week-long conference opened July 2b and will be followed by a week of entertainment by the Russian hosts, according to John McIlhale, assistant professor of design.

Sponsored by the government of the two countries, the Dartmouth Conference takes its name from the fact that the first session was held at Dartmouth College, McIlhale said. The two countries alternate in serving as host for the sessions. The current meeting is being held in Leningrad.

Fuller has just concluded a week's cruise on the Azores Sea as a participant in the Debs Symposium, July 11-18.
Rockefeller Inspects Riot-Torn Rochester

ROCHESTER, N. Y. -- Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller flew to this riot-scarred city Monday to confer with local officials about the weekend of racial violence.

A Rockefeller spokesman in Albany said the governor made a "sudden decision" to fly to the scene and left his office in New York City early in the afternoon to fly here in his private plane.

This riot-scarred city emerged from a bloody week-end of racial violence with smashed windows, looted stores and massive property damage. An uneasy peace was blackened by a combat-ready force of National Guardsmen.

City Manager Porter W. Homer modified the city's dusk-to-dawn curfew Monday by setting two hours of 6:30 p.m. to 6 a.m., for all persons to be off the streets. The original order, effective Saturday night, set the

Candidates Named To Third Slate

In Statehouse Race

CHICAGO — Names of 55 candidates for the Illinois House sponsored by an Independent third slate group were announced in Chicago Sunday. Robert P. Winburn, executive director of the executive committee for the third slate, said four more names will be selected to complete a list of 59.

The 55 named included 27 downstate and 28 downstate.

Both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.

Pro Gridders Die

WASHINGTON -- All members of the Chicago and 6 from suburban Cook County, both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election of 177 House members.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.

Pro Gridders Die

WASHINGTON -- All members of the Chicago and 6 from suburban Cook County, both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election of 177 House members.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.

Pro Gridders Die

WASHINGTON -- All members of the Chicago and 6 from suburban Cook County, both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election of 177 House members.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.

Pro Gridders Die

WASHINGTON -- All members of the Chicago and 6 from suburban Cook County, both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election of 177 House members.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.

Pro Gridders Die

WASHINGTON -- All members of the Chicago and 6 from suburban Cook County, both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election of 177 House members.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.

Pro Gridders Die

WASHINGTON -- All members of the Chicago and 6 from suburban Cook County, both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election of 177 House members.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.

Pro Gridders Die

WASHINGTON -- All members of the Chicago and 6 from suburban Cook County, both Republicans and Democrats have named their Illinois member slate for the November 3 statewide election of 177 House members.

The third slate move had no connection with an earlier move by the 3rd Slate Citizens Committee. The committee dissolved after announcing its members were satisfied that both major parties had chosen good states with Illinois nominees.

A resolution embodying the measures to be taken against Cuba was approved early Sunday, 13-4. Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay—the only hemisphere republics maintaining relations with the OAS—voted no. As author of the principal complaint, Venezuela could not vote.

The resolution calls for diplomatic and trade sanctions, directing that no American nation maintain diplomatic trade ties with Havana but giving no deadline for the severing of such ties.
Some Carry Hat Pins

Need Weapons for Protection?
SIU Coeds Aren't Defenseless

Recently in New York City, a knife-wielding secretary defended herself against an assailant. A grand jury declined to indict her for carrying a concealed weapon, and New York was involved in a public controversy over her right to protection. What's the general reaction on the SIU campus to this type of problem?

Several coeds were asked what they would do if they were confronted by a potential assailant. They were also asked if they carried any form of protection against this possibility, such as a bat pin.

Mary Helen Hargrow, a graduate student from Memphis, Tenn., said she doesn't carry a weapon. She considers the possibility of an assailant on campus, where personnel of higher education congregate, as something remote. "I do feel that it would be wise to carry a weapon in larger metropolitan areas," she said, however. If she were confronted by a potential assailant, she said she would probably also run toward the nearest lighted dwelling.

Many of the girls interviewed said they would try to form an accurate description of the assailant, for his later identification.

City Attorney J. Edward Helton said the right of self-protection is fundamental, but in modern society, it should be guaranteed by an adequate, well-trained police force.

The Illinois law is also explicit against the carrying of concealed weapons, he added. He quoted part of Section 24 of Chapter 38 of the Criminal Code: "A person commits the offense of illegal use of weapons when he knowingly carries or possesses with intent to use the same unlawfully, fully against another."

Helton called attention to the word "intention." He said criminals could carry such weapons if they were not prohibited by law, but interpretation of the law must also be erratic. "Injuries," and each case judged by itself. He said self protection is one factor for consideration in judging cases of this nature.

It is also unlawful in the State of Illinois, as it is in New York and California, for anyone to carry a concealed tear gas gun projector or bomb or any other object containing noxious liquid or gas, and this makes sense to me," Helton said.

Tennessee Williams' "Iguana" To Conclude Summer Playbill

The dramatic genius of Tennessee Williams will be reflected at the Southern Playhouse in their final summer offering of the Southern Players, who will present the world premiere of "The Night of the Iguana," Sunday in the form of "A Night in the Iguana."

Their summer offering of the Southern Players will present the world premiere of "The Night of the Iguana," which concerns a conflict between two people, a man who travels the world with his wife, and a woman who is never to walk alone at night.

Another coed, Joyce Popp, a junior majoring in English, said she has never carried a weapon. She feels that such a weapon might be wrested from her by an assailant.

Sally Sparks, a junior majoring in English, said she has never carried a weapon. "If I do feel that it would be wise to carry a weapon in larger metropolitan areas," she said, however. If she were confronted by a potential assailant, she said she would probably also run toward the nearest lighted dwelling.

Many of the girls interviewed said they would try to form an accurate description of the assailant, for his later identification.

City Attorney J. Edward Helton said the right of self-protection is fundamental, but in modern society, it should be guaranteed by an adequate, well-trained police force.

The Illinois law is also explicit against the carrying of concealed weapons, he added. He quoted part of Section 24 of Chapter 38 of the Criminal Code: "A person commits the offense of illegal use of weapons when he knowingly carries or possesses with intent to use the same unlawfully, fully against another."

Helton called attention to the word "intention." He said criminals could carry such weapons if they were not prohibited by law, but interpretation of the law must also be erratic. "Injuries," and each case judged by itself. He said self protection is one factor for consideration in judging cases of this nature.

It is also unlawful in the State of Illinois, as it is in New York and California, for anyone to carry a concealed tear gas gun projector or bomb or any other object containing noxious liquid or gas, and this makes sense to me," Helton said.

Tennessee Williams' "Iguana" To Conclude Summer Playbill

The dramatic genius of Tennessee Williams will be reflected at the Southern Playhouse in their final summer offering of the Southern Players, who will present the world premiere of "The Night of the Iguana," Sunday in the form of "A Night in the Iguana."

Their summer offering of the Southern Players will present the world premiere of "The Night of the Iguana," which concerns a conflict between two people, a man who travels the world with his wife, and a woman who is never to walk alone at night.

Another coed, Joyce Popp, a junior majoring in English, said she has never carried a weapon. "If I do feel that it would be wise to carry a weapon in larger metropolitan areas," she said, however. If she were confronted by a potential assailant, she said she would probably also run toward the nearest lighted dwelling.

Many of the girls interviewed said they would try to form an accurate description of the assailant, for his later identification.
A Glance at Barry

Barry Goldwater's conservatism has been acknowledged as "extreme," "not so extreme," and "just the thing our 'ailing nation needs.'" This November will, for the first time in years, give voters a clear choice in government: a liberal one, following the usual liberal traditions, and a conservative one, introducing different ideas and concepts unfamiliar to the American people.

To understand better how Goldwater's conservatism works, perhaps it would be wise to look at some of his controversial ideas and decide what is extreme, what is right and what is wrong.

In the field of foreign aid Goldwater believes that both foreign aid and technical assistance could be used in a much more strategic manner. He believes the United States can't buy friends, and so far it doesn't seem that we have succeeded. He pointed out that we are giving foreign aid to 97 out of 110 nations in the world.

"We gave $1 billion to Tito, who is not our friend, and $1 billion to Tito costs everybody in this country $25," Goldwater said.

Goldwater has stated that he supports military aid, technical assistance, and foreign aid, but each should be used to the best national interest.

The increasing welfare state has bothered many. Goldwater's stand may be illustrated by a crackdown in Newburgh, N.Y., in which city officials refused to give any more aid to those who refused to work. Goldwater promptly fired the city manager commending him on his stand.

In the area of civil rights Goldwater has long advocated integration. He has worked for the integration of Arizona schools, and, as commanding officer, desegregated the Arizona Air National Guard. But the responsibility of achieving these rights remains with the states, says Goldwater.

Goldwater recently voted against the civil rights bill because of the public accommodation and the fair employment practices provisions. Goldwater has advised these principles, but to make the bill law with those two provisions, he felt, was unconstitutional.

Thus Goldwater is not against the progress of the Negro. He feels that it is the right of every individual to choose and examine his own moral responsibilities, and those rights should not be dictated by the federal government.

Goldwater is in favor of selling the Tennessee Valley Authority. Goldwater said that if it is done, the needed electric power and private industry could not provide it. He would be in favor of the federal government going to the assistance of the area, but he contends that the need has been fulfilled, and believes it is the responsibility of the local people to provide the service.

It is no more appropriate for the federal government to assume responsibility for supplying the power needs of an area than it is to assume responsibility for providing drinking water, sewage service, police protection, or transportation.

It is thought that operation of TVA could be more efficient in the hands of private enterprise, where it belongs. And if it is right for the government to control operation of a few projects, it could easily control them all, he warns.

Regarding Viet Nam strategy, Goldwater said the United States forces were sent to Viet Nam for one reason—to win. He said that if the decision were up to him he would consult the Joint Chiefs of Staff and tell them just that. The results would be obvious.

Goldwater advocates dropping the war without atomic bombs in Viet Nam to defoliate the rain forests. He says the forests are almost impenetrable from a military standpoint and that a bomb dropped from the right altitude could defoliate the forests allowing our troops to fight more successfully.

He believes that it would be impossible that Red China would enter a full scale war because of it. He believes that Red China would have a tough time supporting herself and fighting a war at the same time.

Thus it is Goldwater's contention that the United States is wasting too much time, money and lives in a struggle that is meaningless to the Americans who are giving their lives in it. In short, he is tired of professional chiselers walking the streets who don't work and professional chiselers walking the streets who don't work and just the thing our 'ailing nation needs.'

This is only a brief outline of some of the conservative ideas of Barry Goldwater. It has been characteristic of the peoples of the world through the ages to be skeptical and slow to accept different ideas. Admittedly, these are different ideas—and each deserves careful study and consideration.

This November we will elect a president. Let the issues be open and clear in the causes of freedom and the American way. Whether your political affiliation is Republican, Democrat or independent, justify your decision. Think carefully before you vote. In short, be careful and choose carefully.

Ron Geskey

A New 'ism' Rears Its Head

Out of the aftermath of the Republican National Convention came at least one major pivot point on which the November presidential election will undoubtedly turn—"Ism.'

Probably not since communism was a blisterng issue in American politics back in the 1930's has an ism excited quite so much weight as extremism appears to be packaging on the way to the polls in this election year.

Extremism popped predominance into the picture when Republican nominee Sen. Barry Goldwater lit the fuse with his now-famous assertion that "extremism is no vice in the defense of liberty." Goldwater has stood staunchly beside this view, despite adverse criticism raised upon him by his own party, by Democrats and from abroad.

At any rate, extremism, no matter how it is interpreted, is destined for a role as a campaign issue in the weeks to come.

Dave B. Sturgart

On Other Campuses

First-Class Change

The University of Texas has hired its first Negro professor.

We consider this significant advancement. It is significant not so much because Ervin Perry, a Negro, has been appointed to the teaching staff as it is that he was not refused because he is a Negro. The change is that 10 years ago he could have taught only in the North or at Negro colleges in the South.

We report this story because it is news. It signals a major change, though an inevitable one, in the University's move toward total integration of athletics, this, and the demonstration of opening of teaching ranks to all qualified persons, allows the University to assume a position of leadership in the move toward equality.

We are, however, glad that Perry is married, so that he will be faced with the problem of trying to live in a University dorm.

Dave B. Sturgart

The Daily Texan
University of Texas
Skis, Portable Podiums Are Just 2 Examples For Versatile Area Hardwoods, Studies Find

By Robert Weld

Skis made from Illinois hardwood may someday transport Olympic champions down snow-covered slopes around the world.

And ministering ministers or speakers on the civic club circuit may someday fold up their portable podium, along with their lecture notes, and head for their next engagements.

Skis and portable podiums are just two of the new uses for hardwood that have developed out of recent research. And one of the important hardwood research centers in the nation is here at SIU.

Research in new uses for oak, hickory, yellow poplar and other hardwoods that grow in abundance in Southern Illinois and adjoining midwestern areas—-is being conducted under the direction of Robert Merz of the U.S. Forest Service.

Merz said he believes the potential of hardwood is outstanding and that as a result the hardwood forests constitute an important natural resource for this area.

The agriculture field offers one of the biggest potential markets for hardwoods, Merz said.

A vast number of uses are being studied: machine sheaths, barns, small portable buildings, feeders, rowing crates, slotted doors, portable shelters, shades, feeding racks, gator and loading racks. A study in being made of hardwood feeders that have been in use four or five years.

According to Merz, they are comparing favorably with steel and other materials in suitability and performance.

Little work is being done on the use of hardwoods for fence posts, Merz said the hardwoods have proven satisfactory for posts.

"We don't want to duplicate work that has already been done," he explained.

When hardwoods are in contact with the ground, they should be pressure-treated with creosote or pentachlorophenol, U.S. Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., has developed a preservative for treating hardwoods exposed to the weather.

The field of recreation also offers vast possibilities for the use of hardwoods. Such things as picnic shelters, summer cabins, picnic tables, toilets, and benches are being considered, Merz said.

A hardwood picnic shelter has been erected in the Lincoln-Douglas Memorial Park. All the posts set in the ground were treated. The carpenter who erected it said, "Nothing but a bulldozer will bring it down." There are 73 oak and hickory picnic tables in use in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Their suitability in being studied. Several summer cabins at Little Grassy Lake have been made of hardwood.

A man at Tammis, Ill., is currently buying hickory and shipping it to a ski factory in West Germany. With increased interest in skiing, Merz sees skis as a possible use for large amounts of hardwood.

A study of residential fencing was made, including the St. Louis Metropolitan Area and several smaller towns in Illinois. Although all types of fencing were studied, the purpose of the project was to study the possibility of using hardwood for residential fences.

Decorative paneling could provide an outlet for hardwoods. Many people want hardwood panels, but the cost is prohibitive because they are not manufactured in volume. Hardwood paneling with price effect has been installed in five offices in the area. The users will fill out forms which will help determine preferences.

A study of the use of hardwood in pallets (a flat object on which bags, boxes, etc., are stacked when they are to be handled with a forklift) is being made. The Hardwood Pallet Manufacturers Association has taken a special interest in the project.

In cooperation with Eckert Orchards, hardwood boxes for peach picking are being studied, while still in the box, the peaches are cooled in ice water. Various kinds of wood and various methods of nailing have been tested.

Many small products of hardwood are possible, Merz illustrates this point with a portable podium which folds up.

Merz said that in addition to finding new uses, researchers must also combat many of the old prejudices against hardwood. For example, one of the oldest and most persistent—that you can't drive a nail into hardwood—just isn't so, Merz said.

Now all he has to do is convince the disbelievers.

---

DAILY EGYPTIAN Classified Ads

Classified advertising rates 20 words or less are $1.00 per insertion; additional words five cents each; four consecutive issues for $3.00 (20 words). Payable before the deadline, which is two days prior to publication, except for Tuesday's paper, which is noon Friday.

The Daily Egyptian reserves the right to reject any advertising.

WANTED
Male similar desires nine, quiet single room with board or cooking privileges must be reasonable. Call 457-8826 after 4:30 p.m. 189p

LOST
Key case, tan leather with stopper, Lake Shore and Life Science School streets, July 31. Contact by mail: Audrey Miller, R. R. 1, Vandalia, Ill. Reward. 187p

HELP WANTED
Sales attendant. $15.00 per month. Assist daily living for student in wheelchair. Marvin Thompson, Savana, Ill. Phone 457-2589. 188p

PERSONAL
Diamond ring, white gold setting. If found, return to circulation desk at Morris Library. Reward. 189p

Girls, 21, who called concerning trailer home Blackhawk Campus. Please return. Phone 545-3013. 186-189p

DAILY EGYPTIAN Classified Section Every Day

---

...because you know that good prospects might be trying to get in touch with you during those periods when your phone service is disconnected. It's the same with your advertising. People are buying every day.

Don't let that business pass you by because your advertisement is "dis-connected." Advertise in the DAILY EGYPTIAN "RESULT RINGING" Classified Section Every Day.

---

CAPRIOLO Cheetah 125cc

No Set-up Charge $409.00

Main Custom Shop

Pg. 457-4085 Carbondale, Ill. Located by main street. Western Illinois University. 800-240-1300

---

You
Wouldn't
Gamble
And Disconnect
Your
Phone
A Couple
Of
Days
A
Week...
Study Fast, Finals Are Only 28 Days Away

Aug. 24 Is First Day of Exams

For 12 Week Courses

•• Study Time Can Come Anywhere •• Over A Coke

•• In Your Bed

•• Beside the Lake

•• Or Basking in the Sun