Council fails to act on state's anti-war bill

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A motion to pass a resolution supporting a bill pending in the Illinois House to protect the rights of Illinois citizens in respect to their military service in the Vietnam War failed to receive a second from the Carbondale City Council Tuesday night.

Councilman Clark Vineyard made the motion to pass the resolution which urged passage of House bill 323. The bill provides that no Illinois resident serving in the United States Armed Forces shall be required to participate in armed hostilities not authorized under the powers given to the President or to Congress by the United States constitution. If further directs the Illinois Attorney General to take appropriate action to enforce the bill.

Councilman Hans Fischer opposed the motion even before it was made, saying that the council was presented with a similar question pertaining to a bill before the United States House of Representatives.

Fischer said that he is concerned about the war as a citizen and father but advised that it is not appropriate for the city council to speak for its constituents on such a "personal matter." He urged the citizens of Carbondale to contact their legislators and make their feelings on this issue known. However, he urged the council not to take action on the resolution.

Attempts to clarify the bill, Vineyard said all the bill does is to strengthen the guarantee of protection of Illinois citizens' constitutional rights. The bill, he said, does not take a stand for or against the war.

Vineyard maintained that there is nothing wrong with the bill, or with the council supporting it. He moved for the passage of the bill but could not receive a second.

Speaking in support of the resolution, Robert Lapp, an SIU graduate student and member of the SIU Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW), told the council that the bill is a step in understanding the constitution and the rights of Illinois citizens. He said that the proposed bill would allow the state to protect the citizens' constitutional rights in a possible law suit challenging the constitutionality of the Vietnam War.

Lapp said he was not speaking for VVAW but as a former service man. In other action, the council agreed to hold a public hearing no sooner than 30 days to consider a proposed ordinance that would prohibit the sale of soft drinks and alcoholic beverages in nonreturnable containers.

The council passed an ordinance that would raise fines for illegal parking from $3 to $5 if the fine is paid within 48 hours of receiving the ticket, and from $5 to $7 if the fine is not paid within the 48 hours.

Gus says he bets more councilmen would have voted to keep Illinois residents out of war zones last spring.

Court ruling pends on city assembly law

Arguments are complete, but a decision by the Illinois Supreme Court is probably a long way off in the appeal of three SIU students convicted of unlawful assembly during last May's disturbances.

Tom Austin, former assistant to the Carbondale city attorney, said Tuesday that the state's highest court has 30 other cases to decide before coming to the appeal filed Nov. 28 by Paul M. Gruse, T.E. Hinton and Edward S. Kuhnich. The three were registered as students last May, but only Kuhnich is still an SIU student. Austin said there will probably be no decision until after the court's summer recess.

Austin, who presented the oral argument last week on behalf of the city, said that he and the attorney for the three argued two issues. He said that the three challenged Carbondale's illegal assembly ordinance on the grounds that it is overly broad and vague and is imposed by due process of the law. They also said that their convictions were based on insufficient evidence, according to Austin.

The ordinance states that any person who assembles a group of more than five people or participates in such a group in any public place and does not disperse if so ordered by a police officer, is liable for conviction of a misdemeanor.

According to the brief filed by the three, they were arrested on May 11, 1970, on Illinois Avenue. Police formed a box around the area and warned that all within that box would be arrested for unlawful assembly, the brief said. The three contended that they were in the area innocently and did not hear the warning.

Each was fined $50 and costs in circuit court. They were arrested in three separate incidents.
Unirex set for fall
TP to get long distance billing system

By Pat Fillin
Daily Eaglepress Staff Writer

Thanks to Unirex II, next year's residents of the Thompson Point (TP) living area won't have to pay for making long phone calls.

Unirex, which is a system by which residents will be issued a credit card making fees for the start of fall

The service will be optional and the student will be charged only for the toll calls he makes, according to James R. Hargrave, senior telecommunications consultant for Unirex.

Carlton F. Rasche, director of the SIU auxiliary and service enterprises, said the new system was a joint effort of Unirex and General Telephone Company which has been in the planning for almost three years.

Rasche said more than six different plans were discussed and evaluated before the Unirex system was chosen.

Implementation of Unirex at TP is only the first step in a three year plan to service all dormitories, residence halls, and student apartment complexes.

He said the "partial phase" implementation is designed to insure proper administration of Unirex and to guarantee that "quality grade" service is given to the student.

In conjunction with the implementation of Unirex, Hargrave said, General Telephone plans to add additional toll lines and operator positions at their Carbondale office over the next two years.

Similar systems already in operation at Western Illinois University at Macomb, Illinois State University at Normal and Monmouth College at Monmouth, Illinois have been quite successful, Hargrave said. He predicted that Unirex will be even more successful at SIU because of the massive in-house campaign that General Telephone has been conducting on it.

Their campaign has included articles in the Thompson Point area newsletter.

The Pointer, and presentations at a recent TP Executive Council meeting, Hargrave said representatives from his office have also been asked to speak at one or two dorm meetings.

He said plans are being made to send a letter with further information on Unirex, with Thompson Point fall housing contracts to students' homes during the summer. The letter is expected to have a detachable section by which the student could have a Unirex application form sent to his or her security deposit.

If in over 21, the deposit can still be waived by his parent or guardian's signature. Without the signature, Hargrave said, the student will be run through the central credit check service and charged for a $35 deposit (returned at seven per cent interest) before Unirex can be implemented on his phone.

The student will then be issued a toll bill number that can be used from any Carbondale phone. If the card is lost, or the student feels that someone has gained access to his number, he can return to the telephone office where he will be issued a new number immediately. Hargrave said.

The Unirex system, Hargrave emphasized, will be between the student and the telephone company as much as possible. He said monthly bills will be sent directly to the student's campus address and the University will not act as a collection agency for delinquent accounts.

Also, he said, Unirex will not cost SIU itself anything.

Hargrave said he does not anticipate much abuse of the system and has not formulated a specific policy to deal with it. Abuses will be dealt with on an individual basis, he said.

Blacks say American values need reordering

A public colloquium Monday, which featured a panel of four speakers from the University of Illinois, Columbia University, and Washington University. St. Louis, ended with their agreement on a need for a reordering of American values and a revolutionary change to solve the problems of blacks in America today.

The colloquium, sponsored by the University's Center of International Studies in conjunction with Black American Studies, was titled "Case against Seale, Mrs. Huggins dropped.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A Superior Court judge dismissed charges Thursday against a Los Angeles, Calif., man who said he was black, a political scientist who taught a course at SIU last year. Nolan Jones, also a political scientist, and Robert Johnson, who is an education and foreign language instructor.

Bailey, who spoke on black history, said slavery was an economic institution and once this is understood, it can also be understood that black history does not operate on a vacuum.

"Rationalization for using blacks for free was that blacks were animalistic and non-Christian,' Bailey added.

"The blight factor and child-like made whites feel superior, a topic, and a tool to justify something for someone,' he continued.

Bailey said this laid the foundation for modern myths that blacks were lazy, docile, shiftless and irresponsible.

"The Africans were not lazy, but refused to work. One cannot think of these characters delegating work, even to a Nat Turner, Denmark Vesey and others like them," he said.

Bailey said on slaves being lazy, "The major premise is wrong. The word slave is contradictory. How can slaves be lazy?" He said.

"Another problem with slavery in America is that it was legalized. I'm not in favor of legalizing from the constitution view," he added.

You don't read in the textbooks today that George Washington was truly the father of this country. That he made the illegitimate father was true of the slaves' children and that he contacted venereal disease from the slaves," Bailey said.

"Aside of the old textbooks tell us that blacks are charged with kidnapping, resulting in death, and aiding and abetting murder—both capital offenses—plus many other crimes to kidnap a distinctor. In addition, Mrs. Huggins was charged with giving to criminal incitement to kill."

Jones, speaking about the black protest movement, said the first assumption in a non-violent protest is the opponent can use a conception."

"The non-violent movement has to hold a mirror to the country, to say that says 'all men are created equal,' Jones said.

Whites reacted to whites getting killed in black movements, but did not react to the many, many years when blacks have been getting killed," he continued.

"Ms. Brown was right. What has been accomplished in America has been a victory of sort. We set a new order, etc.," Johnson said.

"...and also tell of his dying from the disease."

"We're going to have to make sure that all of the people are becoming officials of the city that are going down, for in general the city. They be doing their jobs, 4,000 jobs for blacks in Detroit and then wondered why blacks would not work. We're doing that black group do a way to go work," Jones said.

SPRINGFIELD, III. (AP) — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the powerful House ways and means committee, called Judge Harry Blackmun to his do his bit in the battle over federal aid to education.

Mills, who has been the No. 1 opponent in Congress, will argue against the proposed bipartisan joint session of the Illinois House and Senate. They are being joined by his committee.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew urged support for revenue sharing in a speech before a similar joint session two weeks ago.

Revenue sharing partisans such as Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will need to avert a money drams in state government. They ask the big states are being bled by the demands of higher education and, even more, by the skyrocketing rate in welfare rolls.

Senators OKs college town aid measure

SPRINGFIELD, III. (AP) — The Illinois Senate voted Tuesday to grant $124,560 in additional state funding for the college town aid measure.

However, under terms of the bill, the aid will not start at the earliest until 1972-73, and even then, the full $124,560 will not be voted until the start of fiscal 1973.

The bill was one of three aid measures to local governments with a 25-13 vote. In previous sessions, similar bills failed.

The bill sets the amount of the annual payment, the fulltime equivalent of an employee, at $7,000 by 1975.

Old, young comment on children's art show

The Alternative '71 sponsored Children's Art Show, which opened Monday at the University Center Gallery Lounge, has drawn comment from both official and young artists. The show, which will run through Tuesday, represents the work of about 30 students from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades at Brush, Lewis and Parrish Schools.

"I had 50 cents to spend on each child this year," Mrs. Judy Addington said, explaining the use of paper and paint as the main elements of most of the pieces.

Mrs. Addington, the children's art teacher, said that the rain kept many of the children from attending the opening.

"That one seems to have more of an internal feeling," said Mayor Neal Eckert, who attended the opening. He was commenting on a picture of a West Pakistan disaster victim drawn by Mark Howe.

Despite the small turnout of children, the ones who were there talked knowledgeably about their work.

"I just used a pencil. It took me about 10 minutes," Sarah Johnston, a fifth grader, said about her picture of a galloping horse.

"I don't know who it is," Ollie Rodgers, a student at Brush Elementary School, said of his portrait of a man. "I used one of those funny kind of ink pens."

Mayor Eckert, after viewing the show, commented, "I'm a little disappointed that there wasn't a tank of apple juice."

Senate refuses to bar draftees from combat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused Tuesday to bar the use of draft- ers for combat assignments in Southeast Asia unless they volunteer.

The vote was 52 to 21 against the proposal by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D- Wis., who contended that the purpose of the draft is to implement national policy and national policy is to get out of Vietnam.

Except by an even more lopsided tally of 41 to 7, the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. John V. Tunney, D- Calif., to bar the sending of draftees to any combat area in the world unless they volunteer or Congress authorizes it.

Before Congress, for the long Labor Day weekend, the Senate has scheduled votes Wednesday on two major amendments limiting draft ex- tension to 18 months. Instead of two years as contained in the House-passed bill, and hiring proposed military pay increases from the $1 billion in the bill to the $2.7 billion approved by the House.

Senators' fighting for a one-year draft extension, due to be voted on along with an all-volunteer proposal a week from Friday, feel that approval of the bigger pay increase would help their effort.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said, meanwhile, that an effort to limit further debate on the draft bill is likely to be made after next Friday's votes Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he probably would join reluctantly the move to invoke cloture.

Principal target of the move would be the McGovern-Fannell amendment to cut off funds for U.S. operations in the doctrine. After Dec. 31 it would be aimed at also by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to filibuster in an effort to prevent draft extension beyond the June 30 expiration of the present Selective Service Act.

Nelson said in offering his amend- ment that he felt the heart of the draft is the issue of Vietnam.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, called the Nelson amendment "a direct assault on the volunteer army. And he also said "it disregards the military units we have over there."

Dead herring washed ashore

CHICAGO (AP) — Dead alewives, a fish of the herring family, continued washing ashore Lake Michigan Tuesday in the shadow and aesthetic distress of nearby residents, pleasure boat owners and the Chicago District.

Six huge truckloads of dead alewives were hauled away Monday from seven major beaches and harbors, Joseph Kresselwitz, park district waterfront supervisor, said.

Park District officials have predicted a larger dieoff than last year, but say they don't expect it to match that of 1967. It was estimated 6.2 million dead alewives washed up along Chicago beaches, creating a critical disposal problem.

The dieoff occurs every year. Fish- erts have suggested that pet herring but don't really know why.

Alewives, or smelt, are a fish whose spawning runs reached the Great Lakes through the Wisconsin River, now well established in the Great Lakes, most noticeably, perhaps, in Lake Michigan.

Julie set to teach in Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — It was the kind of appointment any woman could be thrilled about: a chance to teach at the Jacksonville school system.

But the base to the papers that her husband had been assigned to a ship based at the Naval Station in Jacksonville and that she was interested in teaching at T. A. English Academy, she was at a loss as to how she could make ends meet.

He knew the Nixon family in California, where the Nixon was the president of San Diego schools and active in Republican politics, so he issued a request to contact the young woman with a statement of interest and a plan to visit the school.

She was assigned to the Atlantic Beach elementary school, just a few blocks from the garage apartment of the young people already married in the oceanfront town of Atlantic Beach.

Schmidt outlines procedure to get demonstration permit

Carbondale City Manager William Schmidt, in response to students' questions about the city's policy on demonstrations, said Monday that he believes the city's policy is in line with the constitution.

Schmidt made his comments in a group of students attending a Campus-Community Relations Workshop in the University Center.

In outlining the procedures necessary for obtaining a permit to demonstrate in Carbondale, Schmidt said, "When there is a request for some sort of parade or other activity of that type, that request comes to my office."

He said that if the request was for a demonstration, the city would not be able to require the use of a state highway, "I am authorized by the City Council to OK that request."

"If a state highway is going to be used, the request must be taken to the highway department," Schmidt said.

Schmidt also noted that a request to use a city street for a demonstration or parade could be approved the same day of the activity.

"If a request involves a state or local street I have to have a 48-hour notice," Schmidt said.

He said he likes to have advance notice for the use of the city's state streets in order to notify the police and fire departments that a particular street will be blocked in the event of an emergency.

Schmidt said that there is a possibility for an extension of the lease in the downtown future.

Campus Lake once a pond

By Don Frost

The Lake-on-the-Campus has been transformed from a pond used for supplying water to a beautiful recreational area, according to C.W. Thomas Jr., assistant coordinator of student activities.

Thomas said the lake area was originally owned by a family named Thompson. Some of the older residents of the area still refer to the lake as Thompson Lake.

According to the Lake-on-the-Campus brochure, provided by the student activities office, the original pond dates back approximately 80 years.

The pond was drained and dug in 1980 and transformed into a 40-acre lake.

The 25 acres immediately surrounding the lake provide a haven for boating, fishing, rowing, swimming and sailing.

Residents of the lake or shoreline include muskrat, water turtles, ducks, ducks, snakes and fish.

"I think the deepest part of the lake is around 18 feet," Thomas said.

Thomas said that pollution is not a major problem in the lake. He added, however, that some pollution might be washed into the lake from heavy rains.

"Trains run every week and turned into the state health lab," he said. "The lake is chlorinated once or twice a year and a water purifier is put in."

Thomas said that there is a possibility for an extension of the lease in the downtown future.

Happy Birthday, Diane?

University buys her cake

By Cynthia Blake Student Writer

Diane Warnock will remember birthdays for a long time to come. After all, it's not every year that University students pour over the University Center bar a cake specially baked for her birthday.

The birthday cake was presented to Diane in Applied Friendship class, a Free School course.

Sue Miller, who teaches the course, received a $50 budget from student government. Part of the funds went to buy the cake which was made at the University Center and presented to Diane on the patio.

Writing on the cake was "Happy Birthday, Diane! Springtime Sunday, don't have any worries. Why the question mark."

The story behind it is that every Sunday the Applied Friendship class meets and does some fun thing. Scott keeps a journal to remind them of what the class will be doing.

Under the May 2 heading, Scott had written: "Diane's birthday. Since he had not jotted down the last name, the television -watched for Diane, he could not remember whose birthday it was. So he sent out to find out who it was.

Scott asked a Daily Egyptian reporter to write a feature about his search for Diane. The story appeared in the April 20 issue. However, the day before the feature appeared, Scott recalled who Diane was and where he had met her.

Scott, who had been a New Student Week leader and Diane had been in his group. They became friends and saw each other for several weeks. He let his birthday was May 2 and made a note of it in his journal.

Since then, Scott had not seen Diane, so he could not remember who her birthday was on the second. Scott called Diane's residence to confirm it. It was $72. This was one of the worst days, he said, because his thoughts were taken by the difference of her birthday.

Scott began the Applied Friendship classes in winter quarter, initially. Diane was enrolled, and about half attended regularly. This quarter membership has fallen.

Scott has pointed out a human fallacy. Scott said: Scott quarter people were required to pay for the course; this quarter the course is free.

People went to desegregate anything from Scott's record. But if they have to pay for it, it takes on significance. In one activity last quarter, members sat on the floor of the University Center and offered $1.00, in change, to anyone who wanted all of it or only part.

Miss Hogwash--the ideal female?

(Done in a bright but sincere voice) "Good morning, everyone. This is your MC, Englebert Pigg, and I want to welcome you all to the first annual Miss Hogwash contest. Tonight we have the most difficult task of choosing among these beautiful young ladies and picking the one who most represents the idea of 104,623 hogwashers in this great country of ours.

"I want you all to know these gals are all winners of their local and state Miss Hogwash contests. They have been chosen for their beauty, poise and talent. (The camera pans 32 curvaceous bodies clad in nude formal. Every one of them is a beauty queen in her own right. Unfortunately, in preliminary judging earlier this week, we were forced to choose only 12 semi-finalists.)

"But before the excitement begins let's go back-stage with the beautiful Miss Velma Hasbuis and see how the girls deal with a most vexing problem--peroration aloud.

"Thank you, Velma. Now before we begin the talent competition I would like to present all the girls in their traditional musical renditions of "Let There Be Sexy Silly. (Enter 32 curvaceous bodies clad in sequin-studded jumpsuits and magenta tap shoes.)

"Thank you, girls. Now for our first competition in the talent competition--Miss Betty Lou Sorgfathom will play the marimba with her feet while sitting on a skateboard and reciting "By the Shores of Gitchey Gooeyam.

"(After one trampoline act, three monologues from "Love Story," one soft shoe rendition of Handel's "Messiah," and seven versions of "I Enjoy Being a Girl," the talent competition ends and Englebert regretfully narrows the number of contestants to five finalists.

"Now, as the tension mounts here in the auditorium of Sioux City High School, we begin the pageant competition, which girl will be picked. She will be graded on the content of her answer, her sincerity and her poise in answering it-ready, girls!"

"Shout of five curvaceous bodies seated on folding chairs biting their lips!"

"Betty Lou, this is a toughie. What is the most important lesson being in the Miss Hogwash contest has taught you?"

"Betty Lou says (speaking in a shy but enthusiastic voice) "Being in the Miss Hogwash contest has taught me that true beauty comes from loving God and country and the only important thing in the world is being someone's friend.""

"And, of course, the other equally relevant questions and answers, the content ends. Englebert is handed five manicure envelopes and makes the dubious achievements round one, second and second runners-up.)

"The camera fixes on two sweet, curvaceous bodies grasping each other's sweaty white-gloved palms. Englebert rips nervously at the second envelope.)

"The second runner-up is Zelda Heartbeetflowers--Betty Lou Sorgfathom, Miss Hogwash of 1972. Is this your idea of femininity?"

"I do attend the Midwest Regional Woman's Festival Wednesday and Thursday at SUU.

Philosophy department is logical address for YVP

To the Daily Egyptian

It is quite true that the Department of Philosophy is not formally or officially sponsoring the Young Voters for Peace. But, in view of the fact that Prof. Schips' University office is in the philosophy department and that he has been acting as faculty advisor for the group, it was only natural that the philosophy department office should be given as the address for mailing in pledges.

To our knowledge the ad has never made a claim to the philosophy department's formal endorsement of Young Voters for Peace. But neither had it occurred to any of us that anyone in the philosophy department could possibly be against voting for peace.

Synergy staff will try to help with problems

To the Daily Egyptian

You care about people, don't you? If you had a friend who was flipped out on drugs, you'd want to help him, right? But sometimes a friend may be too close to the problem, or the friend may just not know what to do. Where can you go, who can you turn to?

Contrary to rumors, Synergy is in no way affiliated with the police, nor is it a healing place for ners. It is comprised of a staff of young people who care about you. Whether a problem be small or if it has deep meaning for you, rapping about it can sometimes help. Synergy knows and understands this. If the problem concerns draft counseling, abortions, drugs or any type of problem concerning our generation, Synergy will try to help. No names are recorded for the simple reason you don't need names to be friendly.

If ever there is a problem, whether it is related to drugs or is of any other type, Synergy will listen. That is what they are there for.

Illinois citizens ought to support antiwar bill

To the Daily Egyptian

Illinois citizens need the Mann Bill. House Bill 315 pending in the Illinois House of Representatives in Springfield to test the constitutional legality of undeclared wars such as the Vietnam War. The legal fees involved in arguing a tax case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court put such a legal test beyond the means of the average citizen. Even for those who can afford the millions of dollars in legal fees, it is often cheaper, safer and easier to try to evade conjunction through legal technicalities rather than to squarely raise the question of the constitutionality of the war itself.

All the citizens of Illinois will suffer if cases challenging undeclared wars are not adequately argued due to lack of funds for a good lawyer or extensive research, or are argued on narrow technicalities not applicable to citizens. Cases argued by other states may hinge on the peculiarities of their cases or on the temper of the judges in those parts of the nation so there is no need for additional test cases right here in Illinois.

Rep. Robert E. Mann's bill would muster the resources of the Illinois Attorney General's office to prepare legal challenges to undeclared wars. The vote will be extremely close as indicated by the tie vote, 13 to 13, in the Illinois House Committee.

A few rides might alter Amtrak critic's opinion

To the Daily Egyptian:
This is in response to an article by Sam Stewart of the Copley News Service in the May 18 Egyptian. The article contained many illogical, irrational and untruthful comments about Amtrak.

The writer of the article sounds as if he has never had the privilege to ride a long distance train and see the many advantages that are offered. The author stated that no one can escape the fact that Amtrak will not be able to restore passenger service on the railroads to any type of rating. Mr. Stewart seems as though he has escaped reality and is dreaming.

Right now airlines are having an exceptionally difficult time with passenger flights. Many airlines have removed flights, taken away fine meals and have generally cut back on service. It would be safe to surmise that a possible "evolution" is taking place in the transportation industry. About twenty years ago, railroads encountered the same problems that air carriers are now encountering. Now a new agency, Amtrak, has taken over and, after a couple trips on their trains, I find many improvements and, mainly, more people. Mr. Stewart might receive a little "education" if he attempted to board a train under the Amtrak system. He might find many people who feel the same as I do, and he would be very ashamed of his article.

Another statement that he made that bothers me is Letter verification

For the protection of all letter writers, authorship must be verified. Contributions are asked to bring letters in person to the Daily Egyptian office. A mailed correct address and telephone number should be included. Letters will be withheld until authorship is verified.

that train travel is not appealing to young people. This is a generalization that cannot be supported and is generally untrue. On this campus are many interested students who may not show their support of Amtrak openly, but they would most likely have done so had the train been organized at the location of the Colelde Central trains made their last runs, like the City of Miami and Panama Limited. I have a list of addresses of young people I have met in my train travels whom I correspond with, and with whom I am close friends who would absolutely be horrified by a letter like Mr. Stewart's.

I would recommend that Mr. Stewart take a long distance city trip on a train and then sit down, after having observed and spoken to the passengers, and logically collect his thoughts and rewrite the article, and I am sure that we Amtrak supporters will have another member on our side.

Who'll put punch back into politics?

By Harry S. Ashmore
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, who graced early day television with his singular eloquence, calculated charm and Svenagali gaze, finds the country weary of incoherent talks and longing for the restoration of zeal and fire to the public discourse.

"It's sick of forums. It's sick of discussions. It's had enough of dialogue. We have nothing today but a plethora of contradictory opinions in which we come away confused as if we had been on a battlefield in HEW mixes up drug and rat poison folders

To the Daily Egyptian:
Everyone from President Nixon on down agrees that the government is in a mess. I personally think that is like saying you'll get wet if caught in a rainstorm.

For my GSA 110b course, I chose "Rat Control" as my project. Conclusions made by teachers at HEW for information on poisons being used to combat this great national problem. Well, government officials couldn't have been more right. I sent many folders on LSD, nicotine, poisons.

It's not clear whether they classify any of these as poisons, but I suppose with more rain in this country than people, it's hard to distinguish between the two.

Sociology at the University of Washington, agreed that the homosexual life-style is the product of certain complex early learning experiences and should not be thought of as a "neurotic illness" or "psychopathology." Another objection against homosexuality stems from associating the rate of molestations of children with homosexuals. This aspect is often far too projected, he said. He quoted Martin Hoffman, a clinical psychologist from the San Francisco Bay area, who termed the concept of "homosexual behavior being abnormal and prone to violence" as "utterly fallacious." This statement is supported by the most recent Institute for Sex Research report, which states that "the use of force is rare in homosexual activity. Molestation and rape are common in heterosexual activity."

Promiscuity of homosexuals is another popular basis for objection against gay people. "Superficial feelings are entirely due to oppression," a member argued. "If you are living an underground life, how can you develop a feeling for your partner?"

"Prejudice" and "discrimination" against gay people have made them an oppressed minority. He continued. "The black can work to get out of the ghetto. Where can we go?"

Fortunately, the present cultural trend advocates free love and open relationships. This may perhaps change the quality of gay relationship which is not cut off from all other relationships. That homosexuality undercuts masculinity is another gross exaggeration by opponents to the gay world.

A. N. Dismas in his article, "On the Rules," stressed that "masculinity and femininity are arbitrary categories" and that sex roles and sexual orientation are not determined by the early stages of life. Since sex roles are interchangeable, it was concluded by participants in the discussion that there is no set definition for masculinity. It is only the society that is forcing everyone into molds of behavior. The " sine flexible" masculinity, and femininity are represented by "gynemic men" and "masculine women," which "few can measure up to."

Avenues for change are then proposed in discussion. General searches are suggested as routes to let gay people stand up unashamed as a group worthy of respect. Petitioning congressmen and senators for revisions of anti-homosexual laws propose another possibility for change. Although such petitions are often discouraging, said Feis.

Most important of all changes, Feis added, is "to change the attitude of the people and fight their bigotry. We do not want secrecy. We open ourselves to all who need help through personal difficulties and not them in respecting themselves as human beings."
Professor delivers speech on orderly biology systems

By Jim Pahin

In a universe of increasing disorder and depletion of energy, biological systems are exceptional in their ability to function in a highly organized and able to utilize energy efficiently. Harold J. Morowitz, professor of biology in the department of Molecular Biophysics and Biochemistry at Yale University, discussed this phenomenon of biological systems with the laws of physics.

Morowitz pointed out that one of the main characteristics of all biological systems is their tendency to cycle materials and to transfer energy. Also, the probability of a living cell developing under the laws of equilibrium theory is inconceivably small.

"A living cell is unlikely for two reasons," he said. "First, if the cell is spontaneously pumped up above the ground state where energy has ceased to cycle, second, living cells represent a small subset of systems pumped up above the ground state ."

Morowitz explained the need for a new study in physics. "The thing that characterizes the living state is that it is far from equilibrium," he said. "As equilibrium we have thermal agitation of the far-from-equilibrium systems. Hydrodynamics and aerodynamics are the only conceivable efforts in physics on far-from-equilibrium systems. You are dealing with inhomogeneities there."

Morowitz explained that biological systems are not unique in their cycling tendency. "Any system undergoing energy flux that will show chemical cycling, and special organization," he said. "Gradations are special organization in its most basic form ."

Morowitz said that the process of entropy on earth is slowed because this planet is part of an energy source-medium-link system. Energy flows through this system from the sun to the earth and then into outer space. He said that this is a rational phenomenon to physical evolution."

In other words, he said, the chemical components necessary for life could have evolved in only one way. The practical application of the problem is whether or not man can reconstruct the chemical evolution of life in another way, or whether a complete chemical history of the planet must be treated.

Viet center book published

Copies of a new book about the Vietnamese Studies Center at SIU began to arrive on campus.

And if supporters of the book have their way, the book will become a standard edition in most students' libraries.

John F. Kelly, a member of the Southern Illinois Peace Committee, wrote the book. "Center for Vietnamese Studies, Southern Illinois University," to provide a "objective analysis of the conflict from an academic, political institution."

But a matter of course, he said, the book ended up "many per cent against the center because that's the way the center is." A former candidate for a Ph.D. in psychology, Kelly said he analyzed the center from a research point of view.

The book was about a year and a half in the making and took about nine months to write after completing the research. Kelly said.

"I wanted to check exactly how the University is used as a base by the people to be to implement their politics, while at the same time avoiding conflict with the elected representatives of the people through the screen of an academic project," Kelly said.

About 1,200 copies of the book were published by the Rastaud Press, Rantoul, Illinois, and were released locally Monday.

Kelly said an expanded version will be published in about two months to be distributed nationally. Mainly to universities.

This book could be used to guide research concerning other government projects on campuses throughout the country. Kelly said. "It shows how the University can be used for war politics just as much as the straight military can."

Kelly said Tuesday he had already received adverse reaction from persons mentioned in the book as affiliated with the center who consider themselves liberal.

He said many of these people maintain their involvement with the center as small and say they disagree with some aspects of the center.

But these people have been used by the center, and by their silence they are supporting the center," Kelly said.

Retarded children to enter 'Olympics'

SIU will host the Southern Illinois Special Olympics for special education children June 5. The event is sponsored by the Southern Illinois Association for Retarded Children and the SIU Department of Recreation.

Great Meyer, director of the event, said the Special Olympics is planned to give the special education children a chance to participate in physical activities, sports and competitive athletics.

According to Meyer, "It is an area where he can succeed and start building a positive self-image, gaining confidence and self-mastery as well as physical development."

About 40 children from special schools in the 45 counties of Southern Illinois are expected to participate, he said.

Chopper carrying generals downed

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces shot down a helicopter carrying a U.S. general and a South Vietnam general Tuesday and made another attack on troops guarding American helicopter operations near Saigon.

The helicopter with Maj. Gen. John H. Cushman, commander of the Military Assistance Command in the Mekong Delta, and Maj. Gen Nguen Quang Truong, commander of South Vietnamese forces in the region, was shot down over the Long Binh Forest, about 146 miles southeast of Saigon.

The generals were rescued unharmed by a helicopter carrying Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Nha, commander of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, which has been conducting a large sweep operation in the area since Dec. 1.

A military spokesman said the U.S. helicopter's pilot and crew chief were wounded in the crash, but that all passengers escaped unhurt.

The attack on allied troops providing security for American helicopter units operating in the Bu Los Woods 22 miles northwest of Saigon came about 3 a.m. The U.S. Command said helicopter gunsights and grenades broke up the assault which included mortars and rocket grenades.

A spokesman said an American soldier was killed and 18 were wounded in the attack while South Vietnamese casualties were one killed and nine wounded. He said North Vietnamese casualties were 13 killed and one captured.

A North Vietnamese regiment is reported trying to re-establish a base camp in the woods, already pocketed with booby traps and mines. U.S. Army engineers on heavy-duty bulldozers have leveled nearly 10,000 acres since April 1 to dispose of the enemy of hideouts and storage depots.

Spokesman said that two of 11 Americans have been killed and more than 100 wounded since the operation began.

Nixon commends waterway work

BERMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Raising it as a major engineering accomplishment, President Nixon Thursday promised Tennessse-Tombigbee waterway would give the state a chance to show what they can do together on a national basis.

The President came to Alabama on a “non-political” journey and was given a warm welcome in the state dominated politically by Gov. George C. Wallace, who may run next year be Nixon’s third party foe.

At Mobile earlier, Nixon dedicated the proposed 268-mile waterway after solemnly symbolizing the start of construction on the long-debated project.

The President was cheered and applauded several times—once when he referred to Wallace as President—Nixon’s Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Association.

Nixon was on the platform along with the governors of Mississippi, Kentucky, and Florida. Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee was not present, and Nixon said violence in Chattanooga had kept him away.

There’s plenty of credit for everybody and we give credit to everybody on the platform for this project. Nixon declared.

In stressing non-partisan cooperation in the construction of the waterway, Nixon declared. “We’re not Republicans, we’re not Democrats, we’re not Southerners, Easterners or Westerners.”

Illinois leads fight to prevent measles

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois ranks No. 1 among the states in the number of children immunized against smallpox, mumps, or other diseases, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie said Tuesday.

At a ceremony honoring volunteer workers who helped get the drive to protect young children against the disease, Ogilvie put the number vaccinated at 1.2 million.

He called the drive “a major step in preventing the transmission of the disease.”

“While the disease may be mild in children, it can cause crippling of the adults, causing deafness, retardation, impaired sight, heart defects and other birth defects,” the governor said. Although Illinois is first in the number of immunizations, it rates fourth in the percentage of 4- or 5-year-olds getting free protection, he said.

Certificates in honor of 400,000 hours of voluntary labor in the immunization drive went to L. T. Fink, president of the Illinois State Medical Society.

Head Start helps children

By Sue R. Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Poverty has many effects. Perhaps the saddest are the limited opportunities and the poor health outcomes on the children of poor families.

Head Start is a program designed to ease the effects of poverty on children by giving them the opportunity for the early educational and attention they need in preschool years, according to Jennie Jones, regional director for Head Start.

Through Head Start, a government-funded program, children are given health care and social and educational attention that is often absent in poverty backgrounds, Mrs. Jones said.

The first Head Start program in Southern Illinois began in 1966 with 25 children in a summer Head Start program.

Right from the start we realized that eight weeks was too short a time to change poor learning patterns, and decided to offer children more help in the form of a year-round program, Mrs. Jones explained.

The Head Start program in Southern Illinois is based at SIU.

A Women's Festival will be sponsored by the local chapter of Women's Liberation on Wednesday and Thursday. The events will feature workshops, films and a women's job exhibit and sale.

Special speaker for the festival will be Pauline Morgan, editor of "Sisterhood is Powerful," a collection of articles and essays on women's liberation, she will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Lawlor 143.

Barbara Fort, a member of Women's Liberation and one of the festival organizers, said the workshops and films will be open to the public.

"The films chosen represent a wide range of themes," Mrs. Fort said.

Films to be shown include "Up Against the Wall," "Bessie" and "A Day of Plane Hunter." The films will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the University Center River Rooms.

The workshops will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the Rogers Center Auditorium. They will be open to the public and will look at such subjects as: "Women in the Christian Religion," "Women and Children," "Women and the Media," "Women in Science," and "Women and the Law." The workshops will be led by Q. H. Bond, director of the Center of Human Relations and Policy Studies; Bernice A. Wolf, associate professor and extension specialist in home economics; and Charles R. Darrow, professor of English.

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — The University of Illinois has said corn leaf blight has been confirmed in two more samples of volunteer corn submitted to plant pathologists. The blight, which damaged the 1979 corn crop, severely in some localities, previously had been found in one instance.

Mal Shortle, plant pathologist, said the confirmed cases of blight still do not represent a major menace to the 1980 crop. However, the infected leaves, he said, probably will drop off the plant and will have little adverse effect.

Nevertheless, he urged farmers who find blight in their fields to use a rotary hoe or to handpick the infected plants to destroy them. Shortle said many farmers are concerned with blight damage. "Most of the samples we have seen have been weather damaged," he said. He said farmers should consult county extension advisors whenever they find damaged corn.

He said the last four samples submitted to the university for testing came from volunteer corn — plants that sprang from kernels knocked to the ground in 1979 harvesting. Two of these samples are still being tested for blight, he said.

The samples in which blight was confirmed came from Marion and Champaign counties.

Things that stretch the imagination

—You remember when a social event was called for a blind date at Mom's place, or maybe five dollars.

—You remember when word of an impending demonstration meant that the vacuum cleaner salesman was coming to call.

—You can't help wondering how fellows like Ernest Nevers, Morley Drury and Dutch Clark would stack up against, say, Leroy Kelly, Gaye Sayers and Calvin Hill. And figuring they'd do all right.

—You enjoy the comic pages, but sort of miss Polly and Her Pals, Abe the Aggie and Bringing Up Baby.

—You remember when Life Magazine was a humor book. All of it sensational.

—You remember when sex education consisted of access to a poem entitled, "What a Young Boy Should Know"? Yes, you remember he wasn't supposed to know very much, either.

—You recall when any self-respecting barber shop had shelves for individual shaving mugs. And a backrub in a room in the back.

—Remembering when no movie program was complete without a feature plus newsreel, cartoon and two- reel comedy. That was even before double features.

—Cringing at the sad-looking face on the back of a young staff member when an old-timer says he remembers having seen Babe Ruth hit a home run at Shadyside Park in a 10-foot path.

—If you think you can name all the members of the original "Dead-End Kids," you can't, but they were Leo Gorcey, Bobby Jordan, Billy Halop, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell and Bernard Punsly.

—Talking sports with younger members of the gang and injecting the passing combination of Friedman in Connecticut. And being greeted with, "Who's Friedman?" "Who's Osterman?" and "How big a bonus did they get for signing?"

—Sadly realizing that the old-time minstrel show not only denied a natural death already, it would be scant unencumbered by the civil rights movement.

—And by the same token, being glad for Moran and Black, that they cashed in as "The Two Black Crows" when they did.

—Admiring Ford's new Fquis, but thinking silently that it will never replace the Model T in total sales, that is.

—Finding it difficult to realize that Robert Campaniga is 61 and Ginger Rogers is 60.

—You remember when participants in the women's rights movement were called suffragettes, implying that the girls would be content if they won the right to vote.

—Wishing occasionally that there were comedians around as funny as Charlie Chase, Al St. John, Hattie Langdon and Larry Semon.

—Being asked the question, "Who was the first man to play Tarzan in the movies?" and answering, "Elmo Lincoln." You know because you are young.

—Racy reading (generally available in barber shops) consisted of the Police Gazette.

—Hearing friends exist the virtues of three charger, Javelin or Vega, and realizing the urge to draw comparison with the Apperson Jackrabbit or the Stutz Bearcat.

—Realizing there is nothing new under the sun, since television commercials are today's counterpart of the advertising slides the old-time movie projectionist ran to fill the large reel viewers.

—Looking at the kids dancing today, and recalling, nostalgically, the airy grace of the Charleston and the Black Bottom.

—Feeling hurt when you turn off at the value of your young listeners by the unfortunate gams of "Now when I was your age."

—Recalling that "simples" now means driving with the top down.

—Remembering when a survey of career ambitions among grammar school kids would be topped, handshook down, by railroad engineer.

—If, having read this far, you feel older—oops. More mature.

Women hunting for available men converge on North Dakota town

NEW SALEM, N.D. (AP) — Looking for a husband?

Like to get away from the roar of the city and live in the quiet countryside?

With that in mind, women from far and wide will converge next month on this community in western North Dakota's rough and grain country.

This town of 1,000 is holding its annual Bachelor Days celebration June 11-13. The object: to have brides for the area's handful of bachelor farmers.

About 12-15 couples have been married as a result of the celebration which began in 1967. It all started as a joke, says Ray Guba, director of this year's celebration. "Someone wrote a letter to the women's college in New York saying we had 60 eligible bachelors in town, worth $100,000 apiece."

Other says about 50 women from out of state registered for last year's celebration, and a lot more came who didn't register.

Lee Holtgrieve, active in the program, says the area has about 100 bachelors. Many are married, aged and most are farmers publicity would encourage them to problems left behind when they came to New Salem. Farmer Curt Herke and his 24-year-old wife, Polly, won't have much reason to go to this year's celebration, which is to include a ceremonial, rodeo and appearances by two country Western singing stars.

Two years ago Polly gave up a $15,000-a-year private nursing position in Connecticut and came to New Salem. She says she is now "house trading" her husband's farm into a real moneymaker.

Mikva challenges lake airport idea

CHICAGO (AP) — Rep. Abner J.

Mikva, D-Ill., said he and other congressmen from around Lake Michigan will challenge a move to have the federal government study the feasibility of lake airports.

Mikva revealed that a rider has been attached to an appropriations bill for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration which would close down a $900,000 airport.

He said the results from such a study would be "prejudiced" to favor air terminals in Lake Michigan and in Lake Erie off Cleveland.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, Chicago, has said that a lake airport is one of the goals. There is no environmental debate.

Mikva said he and Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., were organizing opponents to the rider. At a news conference he referred to the lake airport proposal as the Obama version of the superspeed dinner.

The Bursar's Office was unusually busy Tuesday, but it was difficult to determine whether this increased activity was the result of an announcement that 710 student workers have until Friday to pay delinquent University accounts.

The Bursar's Office sent letters to the students last week informing them that their accounts were past due and that delinquent accounts will be forwarded to a collection firm. Students may settle their accounts by paying the full amount due or by setting up a payment plan. Failure to make payment will result in the student's account being sent to a collection agency.

The Bursar's Office also reminded students that their accounts are past due if they have not paid their bills by the due date, which is usually two weeks after the first day of the semester. Students who have not paid their bills by the due date will be considered delinquent and may be subject to disciplinary action, including suspension from the University.

The Bursar's Office is currently processing a large number of payments, and it is expected that the number of delinquent accounts will decrease as students make payments. Students are encouraged to pay their bills promptly to avoid being sent to collection agencies and to ensure that their residence hall contracts are not affected.
Women gymnasts set for Pan-Am trials

By Fred Weidberg

Forty-nine of the nation's best female gymnasts will converge on Carbondale this weekend to compete for the seven slots on the United States Pan American Gymnastics team in the SU Arena in the U.S.-Pan Am trials.

The meet starts at 1 p.m. Friday and continues with a second session at 7 p.m. Friday. Two sessions are scheduled for Saturday at the same time.

No finals will be held in the meet. The top seven all-around scorers will make the team with each girl going twice in each event. All routines will be optional exercises.

Canadians won over

There was a former SU gymnast Mark Davis doing a triple-Gymnastics dismount from the high bar and there were 1,000 mostly French-speaking Canadians grassing at the meet — which only Davis can do.

The process of furthing international relations was in progress at the National Canadian Gymnastics Championships in Arvida, Quebec, Quebec.

These men from SU drew up for the meet and two of them came away with medals. Davis with a silver and second place in the floor event and Homer Harding with a gold (first place) in the floor event.

The other Neil Kropacz, an SU transfer who never completed as a gymnast, went in the all-around competition but did not place.

Davis and Harding impressed the Canadians so much that they were both officially invited back next year.

And while all this was going on, SU's Juliette Mayhew, a native Canadian, was making a spot for herself on her own national Pan American Gymnastics team.

She finished seventh in the all-around standings and will go to a training camp June 14 from which the final team selections will be made from the top 14 finishers.

In addition to her seventh place all-around finish, Juliette took sixth place in the balance beam and seventh place in floor exercise.

And, although the scores didn't reflect it, she performed as well or better than she has this year in the U.S. for SU.

It wouldn't have mattered how well she did, said her provincial coach Irene Lacy, herself a former SU gymnast.

"They just weren't going to let her place any higher than seventh."

It seemed that Miss Mayhew was paying a penalty for going to school in the United States — something which the power structure of Canadian gymnastics is obviously against.

One judge came up to me and told me that she had to calculate Juliette's scores and then knock off 20 percent of each to bring her scores in line with the other judges — said Mrs. Lacy. "She was crying when she told me this."

Each competitor will compete in each of the four events, uneven parallel bars, balance beam, vaulting and floor exercise, twice with all eight scores being added for a final all-around total.

The six girls with the highest totals will be the team, the seventh highest scorer will be the alternate and the eighth girl will be asked to stay through the training camp in case of any injury to anyone else.

The competitors started to filter in Tuesday with the bulk of them scheduled to arrive Thursday.

"I have 40 last right now," said Vogel on the number eligible to compete, "but some of them could still scratch."

Heading the list is 23-year-old University of Illinois student Linda Motenby who won the AAU title and was the first American gymnast to reach the Olympic finals in 20 years during the last Olympics in the balance beam.

no stranger to this meet. Donna Schneider, Kramer's double broadjump title in 1966 with Mrs. Lacy—then competiting as Irene Husted—told the story.

"Even then," she said, "they'd rather give them some kind of an American than to a Canadian who went to school in the United States."

At any rate, Miss Mayhew will definitely have a chance to prove up from seventh place should she do well during the meet.

In the men's competition, Davis, who as reported in no known track than any other high man in the country, captured the crowd with his wide variety of stunts and his clown act on the still rings put them in his hop pocket.

Sardina's flashy trampoline routine—which featured a triple back flip—also caught the crowd's fancy.

Sardina also throws the meet's best floor exercise routine, 9.2.3 in the optional, but did not make the finals because of an 8.875 compulsion. He finished seventh.

That was the first floor act I threw since a year ago at the 1970 nationals WAC meet, said Sandina, who was a member of the first 10 place SIU team.

Favorite New York restaurant of sporting clan closes

NEW YORK AP—Baseball and football people will have to find another watering place for their hus-

"This is the end for me," said Shor. "I'll be back, but not as Toots Shor." Former baseball commissioner Ford Frick usually had his table in the famous 52nd Street eatery every Monday night.

Baseball team begins quest for district crown Thursday

By Errol Schwitt
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

When the SIU baseball team steps on to the mound Thursday at Missouri State's John Cooling Field Thursday it will be the first of what will hopefully be many steps leading to the Collegiate World Series in Omaha in June.

However, before any thoughts of a national title can be entertained, the basseball team must first win District Four. Playoffs, must be attended to.

The Salukis will open the playoffs Thursday against Ohio University, the same team that knocked them out of the same playoffs last year and went on to finish fourth at the World Series.

Completing the playoff field will be Big Ten champion Michigan State and independent Cincinnati.

Southern will enter the series with the best overall mark at the 33-6 and a ninth place national ranking. However, as pitching coach Harry Gueley said, "This is all like a new season. Any records you have can be thrown out the window now."

The Salukis have kept all kinds of records on the baseball field this season. Mike Eden shattered the single season mark and Jim Dwyer is on the verge of breaking the single season hit total mark. Dwyer's total stands at 66, just two short of the mark.

Bill Blankley, who has been out of the lineup for the last three days, is expected to see action in the playoffs. The senior from Springfield has been sidelined with back troubles but according to Gueley, "He got the doctor's OK to play and he will be our starting right fielder."

Blankley's return to action should add some depth to the Salukis' lineup. Blankley has a batting average of .351 with 34 RBI's and 47 hits.

Overall depth can pay an important role in a team's success. It is a factor contrary to some published reports.

Gueley thinks SIU's depth is good. "I think our depth is real good," he said. "We have five nonrooniders and have been able to try various outfielders during the season."

Gueley had praise for the work of freshman shortstop Stan Mann, who is an outstanding ball player, and it's not like he just started either so he won't be as green as grass.

In his limited action, Mann has won eleven hits in 48 at bats with five RBI's. Defensively he has committed eight miscues while handling the ball 66 times.

Gueley indicated that SIU's starting pitcher will be Dick Landes, who is sporting a classy 9-1 mark, with Steve Randall getting the call in the second game. The pair of hurlers plus Jim Fitcher should give the Salukis a strong pitching staff entering the playoff.

Loading the bullpen corps will be Mike Broekking, whom Gueley said "has pitched in his last two or three times out. In fact, right now he is our hot pitcher, he could be the stopper."

Also playing a large part in the Saluki bullpen will be Freshman Scott. Wallenmeyer. "He could be the sleeper," said Gueley. "He has great potential. All he lacks is experience."

How many pitchers does Gueley think it will take to win the playoff?

"It can be done with the good ones, and I think potentially that we have three good ones. Our third has never been as impressive as our first two."

Tennis team prepares for NCAA; Final meet with Murray canceled

By Errol Schwitt
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

With their regular season brought to a sudden end last Thursday by Murray State's upset last dual meet, the SIU tennis team can now look forward to the NCAA championships in Greensboro May 19.

The Salukis were scheduled to take on the Racers in a dual meet Saturday on the SIU courts, but the tender ankle of No. 3 man Mike Witty and a draft call to another Murray State netter prompt. the scruggling of the contest.

Saturday's dual meet is over, except for the NCAA. Coach Dick LeFevere said earlier in the week that he would like to get a record and tipped things off with a convincing Midwestern Conference tennis championship two weekends ago.

That 4-7 mark might be a little deceiv- ing. The Salukis and Madisonville's Mississippi Valley State the defeat all came at the hands of some of the premier tennis teams in the nation.

Early Wynn rejected

Last year, on an NBC-TV taped program, he said, "I'm going to win the ballgame five different speeds, top clocking 104 miles per hour."

Feigner, who pitches one inning from second base and another blindfolded in extra innings, is a special category athlete.

His situation is similar to that of Sad- chel Page, a famous Texas State ex-bartender, ex-major league who was on one 284 mph clock. "I'm sure I'll still get into the Hall of Fame,\n
"Since the World Series, no one except special category players like Feigner, it might be interested in a 4,000-game pitcher."

But the Hall works in funny ways. when it comes to the World Series, the signal turned down Early Wynn, a 380-game winner who pitched more years in the majors than any other player.

The King is coming

Before there was a Yankee right fielder named Mays or a Cub shortstop named Banks, Eddie Stanky was the best softball pitcher in the country.

It seems like just yesterday the M&M boys Moe, Fringer and Walter Maris carried on their race for Babe Ruth's 100-home run record. But that was 1960 years ago.

For the most part, the sixties were a physical and financial struggle for Mantle. He played every game with both legs stuffed. And Mantle kept playing after his body had already given out because he went broke.

banks keeps hanging on, waiting for the pennant his team blew in 1960. It's not pretty to watch, but baseball all-time heroes become a has-been. Banks should have quit two seasons ago when he knew that Mantle was reaching.

That leaves Mays and Feigner. All that remained for Mantle was reaching Ruth's 714 career home run mark and a World Series championship ring, two mighty big goals for the 41-year-old ballplayer.

Mays is 40 years old but has the spirit and body of a man 10 years younger. He's got an outside shot at Ruth's home run mark and if the Giants early rush holds up, he just might get that ring.

57 wins, 41 days

Feigner's first season, this spring, with 4,000 career wins, 78,708 strikeouts, 73 no-hit games, 190 perfect games and 1,290 shutouts.

And they thought Cy Young was great. He only notched 451 wins and 287 majors. That's 500 fewer than Feigner has accomplished since he joined the King and His Court in 1948.

Young was an endurance pitcher, like all the old-timers. He would never consider doing anything other than he doing now. His best performances are in the last 4-7 mark.

But Young never recorded 57 vic- tories in 41 days. Feigner claims he did, with no rest days.

"Feigner's King and His Court, the best four-man softball team ever assembled, will be in Carlisle Borough Wednesday to face the Murdale Minors. Game time is at 7 p.m. at Heyer Field, Carbondale Community High School football field.

These Oiler aren't a bad lot either. Last year's Illinois State Champions. They compiled a 76-12 record. From 1965-1970, the team accumulated 307 wins and 40 losses.

So the local man is more than qualified to take on Feigner and his three team mates in the first game of the doubleheader. But Young never recorded 57 victories in 41 days.
