Senate criticism

Criticism of administration action came Wednesday night during Student Senate deliberation on an ad hoc Appeals Board set up by Chancellor Robert W. Martin.

Chaired by the complaints voiced by various senators was skepticism over the temporary nature of the Appeals Board and fear that it could well become a permanent judicial body.

Re-apportionment of Senate seats also came in for an attack in earlier action and ended up with the Senate voting to remove the power over apportionments from the elections commissioner.

On the issue of the Chancellor's Appeals Board Senate opinion was split, with some senators attacking the administration while others urged caution in accepting the Board.

Paul Wheeler, commuter senator was blunt in his criticism of the administration. He called the Appeals Board a farce and added "any meaningful students' participation would be a farce."

"Things have a way of becoming permanent down here," Dale Boatright, west side dorm senator, told the Senate after submitting a motion which outlined definite limits to the ad hoc Board's power.

Student Body President Sam Panayotovich clarified the status of the ad hoc board and told the senate it was set up solely to hear the cases of four students involved in a demonstration last spring against recruiters in the University Center.

IBM Computer slows queen election returns

Some 6,000 students cast their votes for Homecoming Queen Wednesday in an election that also included a mock presidential race.

Results of the voting will not be tabulated until sometime today, according to Tony Gianelli, Director of Student Activities, who said the turnout was about the same as last year.

In the past, results were made available hours after the polls closed, but a new system inaugurated this year requires tabulation.

The delay in counting returns is caused by the added time needed to send the ballots to Data Processing, according to Gianelli.

A Student Senate election which will involve 15 Senate seats in a run-off race November 13 is also scheduled to employ the IBM system.

Governor to be here

Governor Samuel H. Shapiro will make a special stop in Carbondale Friday, according to his campaign headquarters here.

The Governor will arrive at 4 p.m. and meet with campaign personnel and the public at the Citizens for Shapiro headquarters, 207 W. Main. He is expected to remain 45 minutes before leaving for a rally in Vienna Friday night.

According to Robert J. Freake, co-chairman of the Citizens for Shapiro in Carbondale, the Governor has expressed a special desire to meet with students here.

Gus says he favors making love, not war but his girl has a different slogan.
Parents’ Day advanced

The date for the annual Parents’ Day weekend has been moved up from Nov. 23 to Nov. 9, according to Dana Feen and Janice Seith, co-chairmen of the event.

All living areas and University organizations planning to host a reception for parents at 3 p.m., Nov. 9 should contact the co-chairmen as soon as possible.

Events scheduled for the weekend include registration at 8 a.m., Nov. 9 in Ballroom A of the University Center, followed by coffee and slides at 9 a.m. in the Center. Campus tours will follow.

At 10:30 a.m., the next day George W. Beadle, a Nobel laureate, will address the parents during convocation ceremonies for the Life Science Building addition.

The annual Travelers Quartet versus Missouri football game is set for 1:30 p.m., followed by residential and organizational receptions at 3 p.m.

A letter of invitation to participate in ‘Parents’ Day has been mailed to the parents of SUI students.

Mailing deadlines set

Deadlines for Christmas mailing have been announced by the SUI Post Office.

To insure prompt delivery before Christmas “surface mail,” such as parcel post and packages, should be mailed no later than Nov. 9, 4:30 p.m. “Air mail”—by air if there is room—by Nov. 23, package air lift by Nov. 31; and air mail by Dec. 11.

The post office does not recommend a significant postal increase for Christmas that cannot be compensated for with minimal effort, explained Richard King, mailing service foreman, because most students will not be in Carbondale during the Christmas vacation.

Future gift stamp sales are expected to increase, he said, but this can be provided for by increasing the stamp order-amount and shifting the student workers at the window during the peak hours.

Convo schedule available

A complete schedule of Convocations is available in the Convocation Office in Room 202 of Shryock Auditorium, according to Registrar H.R. Wohlfeld.

Students attending the regular Convocations held at 7 p.m. Thursdays in the Arena are reminded that the doors open at 12:30 p.m. No card will be issued after 1:05 p.m., or collected before 1:45 p.m.

Questions regarding attendance record-keeping for the Convocations and handled by Harral Hall or Pat Tepke in the Registration Area on the second floor of the University Center.

Travelers Quartet to perform

The Travelers Quartet will be featured at the First Church of the Nazarene at 9:30 a.m., Sunday, Dec. 3.

The Carbondale group will sing gospel music as part of a special visitors’ day service.

The service is held in conjunction with ecumenical movement. Free gifts will be awarded to those who have invited and brought people to the church, located at the corner of Main and Madison.

For further information call 457-6777.

Thanksgiving break Nov. 26 - Dec. 3

The SUI Thanksgiving holiday will begin this year at 10 a.m., Tuesday, Nov. 26, and classes will resume at 8 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 1.

Vacation dates previously were reported incorrectly.

State officer to show LSD movie

Clyde Weatherbee, a member of the Division of Narcotic Control in Springfield, will speak and show the film "LSD—A Study of Reality" at 8 a.m. today in Room 123 (Lingle Hall) of the Arena.

The program is sponsored by the Pre-Professional Health Organization; a question and answer session will follow the film.

Coleman given award

David M. Coleman, president of the SUI undergraduate chemistry club, Sigma Xi, has received an undergraduate award in analytical chemistry by the Carlin-Nash Division of the American Chemical Society.

"Definitely, all cases of lung cancer will cause by smoking except one rare type of cancer," Dr. Alton Ochsner, president of the Alton Ochsner Medical Foundation in New Orleans, told an SUI audience Thursday.

Dr. Ochsner spoke at a public lecture sponsored by the SUI chapter of Sigma Xi, professional societies for the encouragement of scientific research.

Dr. Ochsner became interested in the smoking-lung cancer relationship in 1946, when he noticed that "some cases of lung cancer occurring in a six-month period involved miners who smoked heavily."

He has done extensive research and has written three books on the effects of smoking.

"I predict lung cancer to constitute 40 per cent of all cancer by 1975," he said.

"Although many accomplishments toward curing cancer have been made, it is still increasing. Up until the thirties, lung cancer was uncommon. Men only began smoking heavily around 1910. Then 20 years later, the results began to show."

Dr. Ochsner cited a case of 18 years ago. Men between 50-70 were interviewed on questions relating to their smoking habits. The men were again questioned every seven years. When a man died, a report on the cause of his death was obtained. The results showed among those who smoked heavily, lung cancer was the most prevalent cause of death.

"Smoking is just as lethal as putting a gun to your head," Dr. Ochsner said. "Why smoking is so painful, prolonged, and expensive."

He cited numerous statistics to prove that smoking leads to lung cancer and pointed out that recent studies show teenage girls are smoking more than teenage boys.

"In order to stop chances of lung cancer, the smoker must give up cigarettes completely," said Dr. Ochsner.

"It may help to realize that every two minutes someone dies from lung cancer."

"The reason smoking is not completely outlawed," explained Dr. Ochsner, "is because it is a multi-billion dollar business. The federal tax alone from cigarettes is $2 million dollars a day."

Obelisk editor needs Centennial material

The editor of the 1969 Obelisk Centennial supplement has issued a request for mater "Concerning SIU and Carbondale during the past hundred years."

Miss Sandier, a senior from Greenville majoring in journalism, says "the main problem is finding pictures for the supplement. I found some in the museum and archives, and faculty members have given the some pictures."

"Right now all my thoughts are geared to the period from 1869 to 1920," Miss Sandier said. "Information dealing with this period is hard to find."

Miss Sandier especially needs pictures of Carbondale during the late 1800's. She also needs any written material pertinent to Carbondale and SIU during this period.

"Old letters, documents and records of any kind pertaining to SIU and Carbondale would be greatly appreciated," Miss Sandier said. "I'll try to follow every lead that I can find."

Anyone having pictures or information that could be used should contact Miss Sandier at the Obelisk office. Any material submitted would be returned as soon as copies of it could be made.

Back Con Con

For 8 of the 150 years Illinois has been a state, the legislature has been working with the same constitution.

Several attempts to pass a referendum calling for a Constitutional Convention have failed. Unfortunately, the defeat has not come because of organized opposition, but from apathy or voter fatigue. But voters are being given another chance now to call a constitutional convention.

For the convention call to pass, a majority of those voting in the November election must vote favorably for the call. This means that an individual failing to cast a vote on the issue, in effect, votes against it.

It would appear that both parties have agreed on this issue. The vote to place the referendum on the ballot passed the Senate by a margin of 50-0 and the House 150-14.

Both gubernatorial hopefuls, Democrat Samuel Shapiro and Republican Richard Ogilvie, have backed the call. Former governor Otto Kerner was also a strong supporter of the con-con call. He once said, "I have done whatever I have been able to do, but I don't know how much more I can do under the current Constitution."

With members of both parties backing the need for a Constitutional Convention the issue is passed to the vote. The question is one of exercise-exercise of the right to vote.

To the editor:

Recently I took a test. I won't say it was a good or bad test, since the quality of an exam lies in its use as a teaching device, thus the value is measured by the teacher's attitude, and his use and/or abuse of the device. Yet, I can assure you that my atmosphere, in which the exam was given in any case, there is precious little hope for the test having been graded. It was a 90 minute exam, with 40 multiple choice and two essay questions. By the time preliminary disorganization was bridled, it was a 90 minute exam. The rub was, however, that the graduate assistants (or teaching assistants made nuisances of the teachers) during the exam.

One notable soul, who thought he was being helpful, would occasionally interrupt the trends of thought with sinister warnings of the passing of time, and elaborate on how far along we should be at that moment. Rather than providing inspiration or incentive (for that is the art of teaching), his barkings merely produced obstructions.

But the burdens of absurdity were scaled earlier in the session when some timid being appeared to psychologically request that I remove my sunglasses. "No sunglasses allowed during examinations" was his pleading of the day.

Now normally I don't wear shades in the classroom, for they diminish the eye-to-eye contact that is essential to communication. Sometimes, however, for the appearance I am forced to put on, especially in a three hundred student lecture hall, where there is no chance for communication anyway. Only monologue. Besides, what better way to keep from losing an expensive pair of shades than to store them across one's nose.

At the moment of this interruption I was pondering a response to an exam question, and my thought pattern was broken completely by the pettiness of this edict from the ruling powers. What did he think I was up to? Did he credit the possibility that I might have a transmitting recorder in my book bag, and a tiny receiver neatly packed in the glasses? Or was he fearful of my picking up array reflections from other test papers in the hall? I certainly wasn't going to copy from the sole person sitting next to me. I had a tendency to treat my ignorance before that of others.

I do not wish to focus the entire blame on these underpaid, dedicated young people administering the exam. In their quest for survival in our modern academic jungle, they have become carrier-transmitters of the procedures of narrow department heads and useless administrations. But, tragically, in the process they tend to drag the students under the same stupid yoke.

I did not dump 11 years and ten grand per with the world's largest corporation to attendStill for an exercise in bureaucratic pettiness and manipulation. And I have no intention of tolerating the authoritative stratification of the academic community with its programmed pettiness of procedure and its processed production of Ph.D.'s. Eleven years of corporate control and de-personalization were quite enough.

My mind here is awakening rather than utilizing the assistants. I will take some of them some day, for that is why I am on this campus, to learn so that I might teach. I would warn the young teachers that the path they tread may well lead to the quarter of an arm depersonalized, stripped of the sense of self-worth, corrupted by the non-human value orientation of corporate bureaucracy, they will no longer qualify as men, let alone teachers of men. For the Spirit is gone.

I leave you who aspire to teach with these thoughts:

Dispel that arbitrary, classroom wall of authority that you erect between your desk and the first row of seats. It must be physically forced then abdicate the desk/throne and sit among the students. Be one of them, for like it or not, you are.

The university is teachers and students — and no more. Administrators are a figment of the prevailing organized system — they contribute nothing to learning, knowledge, wisdom. The academic community is yours, teachers and students, it belongs to you.

Take it.

Out of touch

To the editor:

As a student, it is easy to see that the Democrats, led by Mayor Daley and Governor Shapiro, are out of touch with new ideas, out of touch with us, and out of touch with the college generations. "Hay and Guns" has come to mean like the status quo.

That's why I support Richard Ogilvie for governor. He has new ideas and new solutions, not the muffins of who have been tried and tried — and failure after failure — for years. He will make state government responsive to the people.

In mourning

To the editor:

In the past few days many people have questioned me as to why I wear a black armband.

I wear a black armband because I am in mourning. Mourning the senseless murders and deaths that have occurred in and around the country of Viet Nam. Also, it is not only the deaths of American men that I wish to mourn and remind people of, but also the deaths of the Vietnamese people.

I mourn all of these people, but not as "our soldiers," "our allies," or "our enemies" but as fellow men in our world.

Czechs to observe 50th anniversary on Oct. 28

By Joseph Kupcek

What has made the Czechs and Slovaks so accident-prone? What is the nature of the national spirit that has enabled them to survive centuries of disasters and will bring them through this latest catastrophe, too?

It was not until 1918, 50 years ago, that most people in the West became conscious of the existence of the Czechs and Slovaks. Then, quite suddenly, among the flurry of new nation-states which sprang from the ruins of the old Eastern empires—Tsarist Russia, Imperial Germany, above all Austria-Hungary—one, Czechoslovakia, surprisingly appeared, as a full-fledged and prosperous country.

It had splendid cities, a mature economy based on rich agriculture and advanced industry, an ancient cultural tradition with a democratic constitution. It had its founder-President, Thomas G. Masaryk, plainly a great man and statesman who, in wisdom, moderation and tenacious adherence to principle, made his contemporaries in other lands look shallow.

The new state was not perfect in all its dealings, but it shone like a beacon of sanity and comparatively decency for 20 years. Romania, Yugoslavia, Hungary, the new Poland, too, unable to sustain the strain of unfamiliar democratic procedures, sooner or later subsided into authoritarianism of a fascist or crypto-fascist kind. Czechoslovakia alone held out protected by its association with France in the Little Entente of small states designed to assist in the containment of Germany. Held out until, in 1938, Hitler broke the bounds and France and Britain threw the Nazi wolves that "far away country of which we know little.

When the war was over and the government-in-exile returned to triumph in Prague, the only Slavs to whom the Czechs and Slovaks, in the days when they were dominated by Austro-Hungary, had always looked as their natural cousins, but Russia was now the Soviet Union, ruled over by a Georgian dictator, Stalin, who did not believe in friendship or the kinship of Slavs, only in power.

He was to be content with nothing less than the incorporation of the country in the Soviet Union, and the liquidation of all non-communist elements. The union of the two Slav peoples was not to be brought about by relaxation or by accommodation, but only by a coup d‘état. 1948 was staged. For the next 20 years Czechoslovakia was to produce not a single dissident. The government, after three years of unremitting pressure, the coup d‘état of 1948 was staged. For the next 20 years Czechoslovakia was to produce not a single dissident. The government, after three years of unremitting pressure, brought about by the great upheaval which followed the liquidation of the Stalin idol until this year’s miracle of resurrection when Czechoslovakia appeared to have its spirit, its character, its ideals intact.

The Czechoslovakia which emerged from the First World War contained basically the old kingdom of Bohemia (which included Moravia) ruled adversely by the Habsburg emperors in Vienna, old Slovaks, which had been incorporated into the Hungarian part of the Empire of Austria-Hungary, the dual monarchy. A glance at the map shows that these small countries, embedded in the very heart of Europe, were unlikely to survive as independent entities in a world of expansive great powers. If the Czechs and Slovaks had not been swallowed up by the Habsburgs, they would have been engulfed by the Huns— translation for the true state. The only other course would have been for the Czechs to turn Bohemia into the headquarters of a Czech empire, itself swallowing up adjacent lands until it was strong enough to stand on its own feet as an imperial power among others.

This, in fact, once nearly happened. After a number of false starts the medieval kingdom of Bohemia achieved great power and extensive territorial gains. There was a moment when Bohemia held sway from the Baltic to the Adriatic—"Shakespeare’s sea coast of Illyria." The Bohemians, then, far from being an ancient people, were themselves the colonisers. The Bohemians kept their independence for long after the defeat of Ostrakar, all they lost then was their chance to impose on Central Europe a Slav Imperialism as opposed to a Germanic one. And, indeed, they stubbornly preserved their identity, under Austrian rule, right through to 1918. But the integration of the first Slav fact was bitter, sustained and frequently bloody in the twenties.

The Slovaks in their Carpathian mountains had a different history. The Great Moravian Empire—of which Slovaks indubitably was the territorial nucleus and whose inhabitants were the forefathers of present-day Slovaks, existed in the ninth century. Early in the 10th century Slovaks were defeated by the Magyars of Hungary. Integrated within the framework of a Slav-East Slav, Slovakia constituted in the 11th and 12th centuries an administrative principality forming the appanage of the heir to the throne. It was called Upper Hungary. Thus, within the framework of Hungary, Slovakia remained more or less an independent administrative unit, with its own administration and military and financial autonomy.

"It is the tragic fate of certain peoples to fight out terrible struggles for the advantage of all mankind, but to the sacrifice of their whole strength and blood.

We begin to see the foundations of the powerful, enduring, undevelopmental culture which was to expand gradually until under the Austro-Hungarian rule, with the rise of the Nationalist spirit in the 19th century and to show up briefly in the open during the short decades of the 20th. The revolution, which it came, was no more than the triumph of some what dated emergence of the older middle class into a storm from which the monarch and his court had been swept away by war. It was the intellectuals who took over. Most of them had been educated in Vienna. For nationalism, even the modest, quiet, enduring Czech kind, nationalism, has its stormy side. One of the_failures of the Republic of Czechoslovakia was embodied in the attitude of the Czechs to their brothers, the slovaks, who, engulved by the Hungarians, did not share in the glory of the new industrial standards of the Czechs under Austrians. Prague looked down on Bratislava, provincial Slovaks; Otto and Hitler knew how to exploit this weakness. So, later, did Stalin. One of the most heartening aspects of the Czechoslovak revolt against the invasion of Russia and Warsaw pact members was the fact that it was fomented in the first place by Slovak intellectuals and led to its climax by the Slovak politicians, Dubcek, speaking for the country as a whole. Thus, in the midst of hard times, one more necessary step forward has been taken. Czechs and Slovaks are united as never before.

On October 28, 1968, the 50th anniversary of the formation of Czechoslovakia, the occasion will be marked by the proclamation of the country as "Federal Republic of Czechs and Slovaks.

The Czechoslovaks will come through. They are not brittle. They are never extravagant in their demands. They have lessons for us all. It is only the brutal harshness of Mr. Brezhnev and his friends that has driven the Czechoslovakia to the end. They know they had to use the Suk, the Union and be very clever. They asked only to be allowed to organize their own lives. Czechoslovakia may be the only country to show the world how small nations can live with large, without losing their independence. But they cannot do this welfare state strike out lightly at the socialist idea of the powerful nations and they are not about to doing it.
Buyer education

cited as necessity

By Carole L. Roberts

Those who attended a consumer's conference at SIU on Wednesday were told that both legislation and education must be used to help the buyer make more intelligent choices.

David Schoenfeld, of the President's Committee on Consumer Affairs, keynote speaker for the Consumer Problems Conference, said legislation deals with the surface problems at the time, but education is more permanent and practical.

Schoenfeld outlined the basic elements influencing the market-place. The economic aspect deals with the buyer-seller relationship. Individual taste and necessity are seen in the psychological elements. The third aspect, sociological, deals with patterns of environment and the family.

Schoenfeld also said the drive for status is very basic for "fulfillment in life." People tend to buy national brands rather than individual store brands because of what it will look to others. They fear looking cheap to their friends.

"It is necessary to expose to the individual the opportunity available to him," he stated. It is important to know how to make rational choices.

Schoenfeld added that there are two main ingredients for education. First, adequately trained educators and second the development of guides in programs telling what the basic needs are.

As an example of consumer education, Schoenfeld cited a phase of "Operation Headstart" programs. Children one to three are taken on a tour through the supermarket. They try to relate the items to themselves as consumers.

New stenographic system

SIU service provides 'quick copy'

By Larry Haley

Quick, easy and inexpensive describes a new "quick copy" system of the Stenographic Service.

The quick copy service is a duplicating system which is easier and less expensive than other copying methods, according to Mrs. Lotty Metcalf, supervisor of the Stenographic Service.

The system saves time because the master copy is prepared by a photographic process, she said. In the new system, the master copy can be made directly from the original typewritten paper, which is easier than the old method of making a direct technique master into a stencil for offset printing, Mrs. Metcalf explained.

The Stenographic Service considers the maximum quick copy order as 500 or less total copies which can be finished in four hours. Orders over 500 copies are on a first come-first serve basis, she said, and usually require a day or two.

A quick copy order is for 8 1/2 x 11-inch paper duplicated on one side only. Mrs. Metcalf said, The quick copy system, which was installed the first of May, has a 75-cent minimum for each original page and the average cost is less than 1-cent per page.

Quick copy orders can be brought to Stenographic Service according to the following schedule: in at 10 a.m., ready by 2 p.m.; in at 2 p.m., ready by 4 p.m.; and in at 4 p.m., ready by 10 a.m.

The Stenographic Service comes under the jurisdiction of Auxiliary Enterprises, Business Affairs Services. Mrs. Metcalf said there are 40 part-time student workers under the supervision of seven full-time civil service staff members.

No peace in Paris negotiations

U.S. and North Vietnamese envoy’s claimed Wednesday on the key peaking issue of who has the right to speak for the South Vietnamese people at the negotiating table. Speculation about an agreement on a bombing halt remained speculation.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman challenged Hanoi’s claim that the National Liberation Front (NLF) was anything more than North Vietnam’s ‘agent in the south.’ Ambassador Xuan Thuy asserted the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu as “U.S. paid,” and said it had been installed by “fraud and force.”

Though the two sides urgently argued for a move to pierce the deadlock at the 27th session of the Paris peace talks, they appeared without making any visible advance toward a solution. The fact that both Harriman and Thuy concentrated their arguments on the legality of U.S. allies in the South seemed to confirm that this issue is a stumbling block in secret exchanges between Hanoi and Washington.

A recent U.S. peace initiative linked a total halt in American air attacks on North Vietnam to an agreement on how South Vietnam should be restructured and Washington and Moscow.

U.S. officials were reported still awaiting Hanoi’s reply to bombing halt proposal.

President Johnson, White House press secretary George Christian reiterated a statement of Oct. 16 that there has been no basic change in the Vietnam situation.

But Secretary of State Dean Rusk met in Washington with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin amid speculation that the Vietnamese Union is actively involved in the peace-making activities.

A State Department spokesman said that Dobrynin conveyed with Rusk last Saturday and again Monday night, about a bombing halt offer.

There have been reports the Soviet Union was using its influence in Hanoi in an effort to bring about a deal.

Cardinal denied advice to halt Kennedy union

Richard Cardinal Cushing says he has rejected requests from persons identified with the late President Kennedy’s administration and others intimately related to the Kennedy family to try to stop the marriage of Jacqueline Kennedy and Aristotle Onassis.

“I would have no part” of the requests, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston and close friend of the Kennedy family said in urging that “caritas, charity” be shown toward the late president’s widow.

Apollo crew returns home

Apollo 8’s smiling astronauts flew back to this spaceport Wednesday, thumbed their launch crew for the “great send-off” and retired to seclusion to report to engineers and doctors on the fine details of their eleven day space mission.

They tell the experts in three days of debriefings here and another week at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston will have a bearing on whether the three-man Apollo 8 crew will make a trip around the moon in December.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration expects to make a decision on Apollo 8 by mid-November. Looking relaxed after a night aboard the aircraft carrier Essex, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Don F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham lighted from two planes that ferried them from the carrier.

Eisele learned Wednesday that President Johnson had approved his promotion to lieutenant colonel. The Air Force had submitted it before the flight.

A State Department spokesman said that Dobrynin conveyed with Rusk last Saturday and again Monday night, about a bombing halt offer.

“I would have no part” of the requests, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston and close friend of the Kennedy family said in urging that “caritas, charity” be shown toward the late president’s widow.

Apollo crew returns home

Apollo 8’s smiling astronauts flew back to this spaceport Wednesday, thumbed their launch crew for the “great send-off” and retired to seclusion to report to engineers and doctors on the fine details of their eleven day space mission.

They tell the experts in three days of debriefings here and another week at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston will have a bearing on whether the three-man Apollo 8 crew will make a trip around the moon in December.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration expects to make a decision on Apollo 8 by mid-November. Looking relaxed after a night aboard the aircraft carrier Essex, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Don F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham lighted from two planes that ferried them from the carrier.

Eisele learned Wednesday that President Johnson had approved his promotion to lieutenant colonel. The Air Force had submitted it before the flight.

Payoff attempts unproved in Mexican Olympic games

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An investigation by the United States Olympic Committee has not turned up any confirmation that American athletes are taking certain brands of athletic equipment, a USOC spokesman said Wednesday.

Everett Barnes, acting executive director for the USOC, said in a statement that "at this time we have nothing to substantiate the rumors with respect to athletes subject to our jurisdiction." However, famed track and field expert Dan Ferris of New York said earlier that virtually every country—and not just the United States—is involved in the equipment scandal, with payoffs ranging from $500 to $6,000.

The investigation centers around those athletes who did not see fit to notify their superiors of the payments. Ferris said he understood the matter first was brought to light with an athlete who officials of a payday-by-company, and turned the money back.

The acting executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Everett Barnes, said his executive board was investigating the reports. No particular athlete has been named in the reports circulating at the Olympics site.

If a medal-winning athlete were found to have accepted money, his name could be deleted from the record books and his medals taken away. Such was the case with Jim Thorpe, America's famed decathlon winner in 1912. Thorpe was stripped of his medals because he was reported to have played semi-professional baseball before his participation in the Olympics.

A similar stir over equipment arose at the winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, when skiers appeared with skin bearing brand names. The athletes were ordered to have all brand names painted over on the threat of disqualification.

The reports of the equipment scandal came at the heels of the black power demonstrations that previously rocked the Olympics.

Two U.S. track stars, Tommie Smith and John Carlos, were suspended and sent home after a demonstration on the victory stand.

Cancer Society plans attack on advertising

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Cancer Society is planning what it called an "unprecedented" advertising campaign to fight smoking and reduce advertising. Wednesday it will try to ban the nation's smoking habits.

The society's national board, assembled from 50 states, adopted a nine-point plan that will stress "giving up cigarette smoking is immediately rewarding and offers a more pleasurable and longer life.

Two key aspects of the program are:

"We should strive to secure the elimination of cigarette advertising in all media. It is hoped that this can be achieved by voluntary self-regulation and that governmental action will not be necessary."

NLRB rules on McDonnell election votes

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board ruled Wednesday a labor representation election at the giant McDonnell Douglas Corp. aerospace plant this month was a tie. The company and the two unions involved agreed to a new election Oct. 31.

The International Association of Machinists (IAM), apparently had won the first election by a single vote of the nearly 18,000 cast but two ballots were challenged. The IAM selected a regional NLRB representative, said none of the two contested votes was ruled invalid and the other was awarded to Technical Employment and Aircraft Manufacturing (TEAM).

International foresters attend tree conference at Southern Approximately 60 foresters from as far away as British Columbia and Germany attended the Sixth Central States Forest Tree Conference at SIU last week.

David Funk, conference chairman, said the conference was designed "to acquaint foresters with new techniques on improved tree growth and to encourage more research and field work on decorative trees."

Following discussion sessions, many of the conference members visited the Missouri Botanical Gardens in St. Louis.

The SIU Department of Forestry, a co-sponsor of the conference, currently "one of the fastest growing schools in the country," Funk said. "The landscape program at SIU is one of the best in the nation," and the program, with approximately 275 students, offers both a four-year curriculum and a graduate school.

Convocation audience to hear Schoenbrun

David Schoenbrun, senior lecturer in the Columbia University Graduate School of International Affairs, will address the Convocation at 1 p.m. today in the Arena. He will discuss his experience as an international correspondent.

Schoenbrun, considered one of America's most distinguished journalist-historians, utilized every modern means of communication—radio, television, newspapers, magazines, books and classrooms. He has interviewed leaders of 15 countries and has covered some of the most important and dramatic events of modern history, including the Indo-China and Korean wars, the Atlantic Alliance, the return to power of Charles de Gaulle and the Kennedy assassination.

In the summer of 1967 Schoenbrun obtained a visa to Hanoi. His reports from there appeared in 150 newspapers around the world. Currently, he is teaching the first one-year course on the History of Vietnam offered at Columbia University.

A coffee from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the main lounge of the Communication Building will follow convocation.

Pay $600 and get three hours' credit. Outrageous?
Now you can get airplane training for their airplane pilot's license at the Southern Illinois Airport.

This is a very reasonable price as compared with various other airports throughout the state, according to Mrs. Vida Parchill, secretary at the Air Traffic and Service Department.

"Our particular program is open to anyone interested in learning to fly," Mrs. Parchill said.

Bureau conducts voting research

By Linda Reimers

A group of SIU researchers wants to know more about voting than just who won. Members of the SIU Public Affairs Research Bureau are doing research on past voter performances, behavior and attitudes as well as legislation involving the election process.

This is just one activity of the bureau which does a wide search in various aspects of public affairs, particularly government, politics and legislation, according to David F. Kenney, director of the bureau.

Kenney expressed much interest in the state legislative convention. "Illinois has great need of a new constitution," he said. "The present one is full of junk and is practically unamendable. It's defective in matters of revenue and the executive and legislative branches."

No one in the bureau does official work or research concerning SIU or Carbondale governments. "We are too involved with Carbondale to be objective," Kenney explained. "We are often asked by the campus or city officials to give advice informally, which we are happy to do."

The bureau is composed of five professionals from the Department of Government, three research assistants, and a student worker. A grant from the State Board of Higher Education has provided an additional full-time staff member, one research assistant and two student workers.

The two student workers are typos. "The other is a collector of data for the IBM machines," Kenney said.

The bureau, which is affiliated with the Inter-University Consortium for Political Research, publishes the bi-monthly bulletin series "Public Affairs Bulletin." They are available at the price of $1.50 per number. Copies of these publications are available in Room 307 of the General Classroom Building.

The research findings are also reported to the law bodies concerned. The bureau is now reporting to the state legislature on legislative procedures.

Research reports are also given in speeches by the bureau members and in articles for scholarly journals. Kenney is presently working on a book on basic Illinois government.

Flight training at SIU relatively inexpensive

The person who desires flight training gets a selection card at the Air Technology office, brings the card to the Air Institute and Service office for scheduling. Then it goes through the regular sectioning center at the university campus," she said.

The first program offered is the private pilot's course. A student learns to fly in one of the Cessna 150 airplanes, she said. To obtain a private pilot's license, a person needs 40 hours of flying time, 20 of them solo. The first 8 to 10 hours of flying time will be done with the instructor. He will teach the student the basics of the airplane, and the aero-dynamics of how and why the plane flies.

After various other phases of training and taking the FAA flight tests, the student, if he has passed everything successfully, is granted his private pilot's license.

"But your training doesn't stop here," she said. "Most students go on and take our commercial pilot's course. For this course you need 160 minimum hours of flight training. This advanced training makes a person qualified to operate an air taxi service." she said, "where the pilot can fly passengers and people to various places and charge a fee for his services."

There are other flight ratings one can add if he wants, she said, such as the instrument rating which allows the pilot to fly in any type of weather, or the multi-engine course which allows the pilot to fly a plane with more than one engine.

Finally there is the flight instructor program which most of the students take. After completing this program, some of the students are hired as flight instructors, work the student work program. "The pay isn't much," she said, "but the experience and the logging of flying time is the important thing for these student pilots, since most of the major airlines require both commercial and instrument rating courses besides 500 to 1,600 hours of flying time."

When a person finishes his courses, which can take anywhere from one to two years, he is equivalent to a professional pilot.

"We have had many comments from various airlines throughout the state complimenting us on the fine pilots we turn out," she concluded.

College Master Policyholder of the week

John Mosher Jr., a P.R. Consultant

There may still be another month left of the college football season after this Saturday, but the possibility of bowl-bids and conference titles is already putting the pressure on many top teams. Ten games in particular this week have direct bearing on the leaders in six conference races.

Surprisingly, there are just three undefeated teams left in Big Ten conference play, 2nd-ranked Ohio State, 18th-rated Michigan, and Minnesota. The Buckeyes are heavy favorites to remain undefeated, whipping Illinois by 38 points. The Wolverines, however, might find trouble in their annual Little Brown Jug battle with Minnesota. Either one will be cloaked by Michigan by three.

In the Southeastern Conference, Georgia, #7, and Florida appear to be the only leaders meeting conference opposition. The Bulldogs, having just upset Tennessee on their record, meet Kentucky, and Florida plays Vanderbilt. Neither top dog has a push-over...Georgia is favored by sixteen. Florida by 9.

Undefeated Kansas, ranked number one in the nation this week, takes on Iowa State in the Big Eight Conference. 17th-ranked Missouri meets Kansas State, and Oklahoma tangles with Colorado. The high-scorers Jayhawks will ride over the Cyclones from Ames by 30 points, and the Mizzou Tigers should top Kansas State by 17. The Sooners, with a tougher assignmnet, are favored over Colorado by eleven points.

The feature attraction in the Southwest Conference matches the two teams tied for the lead, 19th-ranked S.M.U., and Texas Tech. The air-minded Mustangs will barely fly by the Red Raiders Southern Methodist by two.
Salukis bruised but ready for Drake
By Dave Cooper

Although the Salukis sport no major injuries as they travel to Des Moines, Iowa, Saturday for a meeting with Drake, the Saluki players are aware of the black and blue badge of courage.

"We have a lot of bump and bruises, and have had to alter the workout sessions, but everyone should be ready to play Saturday," Coach John Towsend said.

Both SIU and Drake will be struggling to rise above the .500 mark with this game on Drake's Homecoming field as the first of the 16th consecutive Homecoming win for Drake.

Drake is 3-3, having defeated Northern Arizona 30-14, Wichita State 26-23 and the University of Nebraska 32-14 in last week's game. Bulldog losses have been to Arkansas State 46-14, Quinto Marines 33-31 and Northern Iowa 21-19.

The Saluki offense could benefit from a win over Dayton last week 18-17, have placed Bob Hedrich in position on the Goro on the casualty list, and will have the offensive skill of fresh stitches in his arm and an aggravated ligament injury, a twisted ankle, and Goro has knee trouble and reinjured his neck and shoulder.

"How we perform Saturday is going to depend on how ready we are physically," Towsend said.

"The boys who are fit could very easily be put out of the lineup," said Coach Towsend.

Last week Southern picked two offensive and two defensive players of the week. Doug Hollinger and Earl Collins were the offensive standouts, while Earl Marquardt and Charles Canali were the defensive players.

Hollinger made the game breaking play on his 87-yard punt return for SU's final touchdown, a 5-yard run for the second touchdown and was perfect on 7 of 9 passes for 82 yards. Hollinger has been averaging 16 yards on each return and kicked 23 yards against Idaho.

Doug Hollinger has been averaging 18 yards on each return and kicked 23 yards against Idaho.

The scoring leader is Bradly who has tallied 13 points on four field goals and 14 touchdowns, and he is followed by Hollinger who has galloped in for twice as a point leaders.

New Ferrari races

MODENA, Italy (AP) - The Italian Ferrari racing team announced Wednesday it has signed a contact sport car model in the two last races of the Can-Am auto competition.

Ferrari said the new 620-cc, two-seater car would be driven in Riverside, Calif.

Jim McKay, the Saluki pivot quarterback, threw for 250 yards, completing 20 of 34 passes, SU has chalked up 548 yards, compared to 856 yards for the Salukis.

between innings at baseball crashes, according to Joe

Lutz, SIU basketball coach.

"Now that we know the spirit is there, we are happy to find so many girls interested,"

Lutz said. More than 120

girls are already signed up for the tryouts.

Interested girls are encouraged to participate, and no experience is necessary. All required dance steps will be taught at the time of tryouts

by Elleva Davidson, adviser of the group. Leotarda or similar clothing should be worn at that time.

Sailing Club wins over weekend

The SIU Sailing Club made it look easy Saturday as it captured top honors in the third SIU Invitational Regatta held at Crab Orchard Lake.

SIU's two-boat entry captured first and second place enabling Southern to best second-place Northwestern University in the team competition.

Guiding the first-place boat to victory in all five of the day's races was George Be-kema, Carbondale, who also captured the trophy for the top skipper of the day. Serving as crew for Beukema was Steven Ellis, Carbondale.

Robin Webb of Carbondale

skipped the second-place

boat, with Kathleen Boyerman of Elmhurst serving as crew.
