Brandt praises SIU in first official visit

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Calling SIU's faculty "well prepared" and its students "enthusiastic," Warren W. Brandt said Tuesday he would dedicate his administration to regional services, research and changing student needs.

Brandt and his wife Esther, were introduced to the University community by Board of Trustees Chairman Ivan A. Elliott, Jr. Tuesday morning in the Student Center Ballroom C.

Brandt said he was "impressed from the start" with SIU after search committee chairman Willis E. Malone first contacted him in March with the news that his name had been submitted as a candidate.

He said the University catalogue shows that "the faculty brings a wealth of experience" to the school, and the students he has met show enthusiasm.

"Put it all together, and it makes for a unique opportunity for moving ahead," Brandt said.

Elliott disclosed that Brandt refused an offer of tenure or shadow salary from the board, and Brandt explained the refusal by saying he came to SIU "to be president.

He said he had no intentions of returning to the classroom, and said his first duty and only responsibility was to be president.

A dispute over shadow salary is what led to termination of negotiations between Albert Somit, the board's first choice for president, and Elliott last Friday morning.

 Asked if rumored difficulties at Virginia Commonwealth University over the medical school budget had anything to do with his resignation there Oct. 1, Brandt said, "I think that's reaching pretty far.

"As I sat and looked at my career and the time I have ahead of me, I found I really would prefer a different type of environment," Brandt said.

He added that dealings with the Virginia medical school took up more than half of his time, and added, "I was missing my contacts with faculty. I was missing my contacts with students." He said when Malone first contacted him last spring, "it looked like a good time to make a change."

Brandt said he has no plans to bring any VCU administrators in to fill vice president posts at SIU because that "certainly isn't a good approach."

He said he saw good opportunity for research here, and added, "I am looking forward particularly to working with the Southern Illinois region."

"The area of Southern Illinois is obviously a major public for SIU," Brandt said.

While he is not seeking a tenure provision for himself, "(I sort of feel your talent should take you, marketwise)." Brandt said, "a good modern tenure program can be highly beneficial," and he said he supports such a program.

Brandt will assume his duties Dec. 1, but Elliott said Brandt will make several trips to Carbondale before them to orient himself to SIU.

The Brandts stayed in University House over night and will occupy the million-dollar house during their stay at SIU.

Elliott said he stayed with the Brandts last night, "because there might be some ghosts." The house was the center of some controversy when it was built in 1970, but Elliott told a chuckling audience, "we exercised the ghosts."

About 75 persons, including the press and top SIU-C administrators, attended the 10 a.m. press conference.

Trustee Willis Moore said he hopes SIU can move ahead with Brandt as president. He said he hopes suits against SIU from two former teachers, Douglas M. Allen and Harvey Gardner, can be settled before Dec. 1 so Brandt "can begin fresh."

Student Trustee Matthew Rich said Brandt was his first choice for president since the board interviewed all candidates in Chicago Sept. 20 and 21. Rich said he was impressed by Brandt's "great personal integrity."

Oil company wants to lease SIU land

By Jim Murphy
Student Writer

The outline of a plan that would permit drilling for oil on SIU owned property was presented to the Student Senate Wednesday night.

Student body president Dennis Sullivan gave the details of the plan that a Houston-based oil company, APCO, will present to Board of Trustees approval in November. Under the proposed arrangement, SIU would agree to negotiate and enter into oil and gas leases with APCO.

The oil company proposes to lease 900 acres near University Farms for $3 an acre. Because only 65 per cent of the total land area is privately owned, the University would make a profit of $47,000 in the first year, according to Sullivan.

Sullivan added that since the chances for finding oil in the area are slight, "The possible benefits to the University outweigh any risk," he said the greatest danger lies in escape of salt water from the drill sites.

Sen. Richard Lange recommended to Sullivan that he take the plan to the School of Agriculture, "to see what their reaction is." The University farms operate in conjunction with the agriculture school.

On a matter related to the Student Senate itself, senators voted to approve a resolution to put two of its members on a joint Executive-Senate Constitutional Review Committee. The six-member committee was formed by student government to research and review the Senate's constitution and come up with solutions to the documents many contradictions. Sens. Jim Wire and Leonard Swanson were chosen to serve on the committee.

The address to the Senate by Sullivan also included recommendations for the implementation of a student-to-student scholarship program. Under such a program, funds appropriated from student fees would be matched by an equal amount from the Illinois State Scholarship Commission.

Speaking on behalf of the program, executive assistant John Hardi said similar programs are already in effect at several state universities in Illinois. Hardi said grants of up to $100 per year would be awarded to needy SIU students. He added that the maximum assessment per year to students volunteering for the program would be $9.

Sullivan also recommended a study be undertaken by the senate to look into the possibility of keeping Morris Library open extra hours.
The Homecoming theme "Fads and Follies of the '40s" will come to life as the 1974 Homecoming activities begin with the SIU Dance Band on Friday. Students popular steps of the '40s at 7 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom B.

The workshop could be a valuable lesson for the little bug contest from 10 to 10:30 p.m. in Room B. Students were asked to dance in the Big Muddy Room from 8 to 10 p.m. on Thursday.

The winners of the poster coloring contest will be announced at a roller skating party held in Room B at 11 p.m. Skates may be rented in Ballroom B for 25 cents.

For movie buffs, Humphrey Bogart will return to the screen at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center Roman Rooms, starring in "African Queen." Homecoming activities will continue Friday with more '40s fare. As usual, Sadie will have the east side of campus.

The weather

Thursday: Partly sunny and comfortable with the possibility of showers and higos in the low 70s.

Friday: Mostly cloudy and continued rain with a chance of showers and higos.

City's experimental bus project gets more riders after slow start

By Dave Isbata
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale's one-man bus project may have puttered off to a jeryk start last week, but public use of the experimental line is increasing, according to a city official.

Herbert Walker, director of the Euruma C. Hayes Center, said Wednesday that one to two more persons ride the Model Cities bus service daily.

The bus, a nine-passenger van, makes four morning and two afternoon runs, stopping at the Euruma C. Hayes Center, the Carbondale Clinic, Doctors Hospital, Murd Hale Shopping Center, City Hall, Tatsum Heights, the New Haven Nursing Home and Brookside Manor, Walker said.

Low income, elderly and ambulatory handicapped persons may use the free bus service, Walker said. Persons may contact the Euruma C. Hayes Center, 149-9711, for registration information, he added.

"I can envision anywhere from 35 to 30 people using these services daily, if they become knowledgeable of these services," Walker said. "We've signed up as many as possible, theoretically we can sign up as many as we want.

The bus ran empty during the first three days of service, but five persons took advantage of the line Wednesday-Walker said. Most eligible persons remain ignorant of the bus line, he explained.

Many persons do not read newspapers or listen to radios. Walker continued, 'and it takes a while for things to travel by word of mouth.' Low income persons have made greatest use of the bus line, he said.

Each six-mile run costs Model Cities about 50 cents a mile at 1973 rates, Walker said. The project is funded until Jan. 1, and will probably receive additional money for 1975, Walker said.

"I'm a little bit more optimistic now than I was a couple of days ago," Walker said.

City planning employs will study the bus experiment and recommend whether to keep or discontinue the service.

Commission head charged

Mental patient placement neglected

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Community placement of discharged Illinois mental health patients has been neglected by an information gathering commission aimed at revising the mental health code, the head of the commission said Wednesday.

Patrick Murphy, executive director of the Governor's Commission for the Revision of the Mental Health Code in Illinois said the matter was first brought to the attention of the commission at a hearing in Carbondale Wednesday.

Murphy was one of the commission's hearing suggestions from residents of Southern Illinois about what should be included in the new code.

The hearing in University City was the last of four held throughout the state. Murphy said the commission "realized that residents of Southern Illinois as well as those on Chicago's Lake Shore Drive have opinions on the change. About 40 persons attended the hearing.

Murphy said the code is being revised because the state is "institutional," explaining that it provides only for the admission and discharge of patients. The new code will provide specific guidelines for treatment of the mentally ill and disabled.

Even though the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities (formerly Department of Mental Health) has a budget of $350 million, only $60 million is spent in the area of shelter care, yet half the patients are in shelter care facilities, Murphy said.

John Deichman, chairman of the Citizens' Review Team and assistant professor of guidance and psychology at SIU testified at the hearing saying there is an "inappropriate ratio of staff to clients in the (Southern Illinois) area, and the ability to monitor their treatment is insufficient."

Deichman also cited the problem of mixing the mentally ill and the mentally retarded in shelter care homes. The two are types of patients who are distinctly different.

Also discussed was the condition of shelter care facilities in Southern Illinois, which Murphy said are generally thought to be better than those in the northern part of the state. Handicapped persons may use the free bus service, Walker said. Persons may contact the Euruma C. Hayes Center, 149-9711, for registration information, he added.

"I can envision anywhere from 35 to 30 people using these services daily, if they become knowledgeable of these services," Walker said. "We've signed up as many as possible, theoretically we can sign up as many as we want.

Board of Trustees Chairman Ivan A. Elliott, Jr. made an interesting comment Tuesday in introducing Warren W. Brandt as SIU's next president.

Elliott said the terms of the agreement between Brandt and the board "hark back to the tradition of former SIU President Delyte W. Morris." The remark highlights the kind of dynamic leadership needed to tackle SIU's problems. While Brandt stands on the threshold preparing for his presidency, we believe he can do it because he has the experience needed to move SIU in a positive direction.

Both the Presidential Search Committee and the Board of Trustees are to be commended for finding qualified candidates and settling on one. The presidential selection process unfolded under some sharp criticism and intense pressure. Perhaps some of the criticism was a bit shrill, and the reactions to those criticisms silly; but, hopefully, we have learned from this experience and can grow with it.

Brandt's record as president of Virginia Commonwealth University is a strong one. As VCU's first chief executive, Brandt set that school on a course which should enable it to continue evolving as an important educational institution because of his experience at VCU. Brandt has the necessary contacts with federal granting agencies to put SIU in a unique position for expanding vital programs. Brandt said he is dedicated to area and regional services concepts of the University, and he has pledged himself to cooperation with faculty, staff and students.

Brandt's refusal of a tenure or shadow salary offer demonstrates his commitment to the SIU presidency. We recognize this as a total and concentrated commitment on his part to the job and all that it entails.

Brandt said one of his most important functions as president will be "to listen. I happen to believe in the shared responsibility concept. It usually results in the best possible decisions. " We are encouraged by this. SIU is faced with problems that can only be resolved by a strong leader, not an institutionalized bureaucracy. That leader must have the advice of the entire university community before making lastiing decisions. Brandt shows the ability, background and commitment to make them.

Many will complain that Brandt is SIU's second choice, that Albert Somit was the man most desired. We cannot accept this as valid. All the recommended candidates had the ability to be president, and Somit and Brandt had superior administrative backgrounds. But, in retrospect, we see that Brandt alone had the commitment. A man who fears the insecurity of his tenure as president is not the kind of man SIU needs. SIU needs a man with enough self confidence in his own abilities that he can dedicate himself wholly to being president, not the option of resigning with a safe future.

If the quality of leadership under Brandt's administration harks back to the tradition of Delyte Morris, with a greater voice given to faculty and student needs, this University can only get better.

License landlords: Yes

Listing tenants: No

By Dave Ibals
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale's city fathers remind one of the moon. They go through phases of activity matched by the high and low tides of citizen sentiment.

Occasionally the mayor, city manager and city council consider a controverisal ordinance. Their opinions wander far and wide over the media and ride the hairs on citizen's backs. Indignant persons scurry down to City Hall like groupies to a Leon Russell concert.

Students themselves have great noise-making potential. They make less use of it now than several years ago, but the city still sends a sympathetic ear. And after patient listening, the city often goes ahead and does what it originally intended to do.

This puts students on equal footing with most minority interest groups in Carbondale. That 9,000 adults in a city of 28,000 remain a minority is a topic in itself.

The latent barb to prick the skin of the local body politic concerns licensing again. The tune's been played before for dogs, bicyclists, bars and signs, but this time the piper dances to a different harmony. The city proposes to license rental units to hold landlords responsible for their properties.

Nothing earthly is perfect, and this ordinance is no exception. It requires that landlords submit complete, up-to-date lists of tenants.

Students occupy most of the 250 apartment units and 900 single-family houses in Carbondale. Many of these dwellings are run-down, or in City Hall vernacular, "substandard." And, many landlords give little more than a penny's worth of consideration for their tenants, be they transient students or low-income families.

Poor housing tarnishes Carbondale's image as the "All-America City." City officials have summarily moved to eliminate the blight through licensing and have run into a stonewall of landlord opposition. Amazingly enough, an issue wherein student interests are directly involved has failed to attract the attention of official student organizations. We've heard the pros from the city, and the cons from the landlords. How do the students feel?

Monday, several weeks after rental licensing came to the floor of the city council, the Student Tenant Union (STU) had yet to take a stand. Considering the fine work the STU has previously undertaken for students, this is surprising.

When contacted, an STU spokesperson lamented, "If I could convince some of the people from the STU to go to the city council meetings, we could probably come up with a position."

And four years ago Carbondale townspeople feared SIU students would turn the city into another St. Petersburg.

The STU should shoot from the rooftops: Yes, pass rental licensing, if ensuing inspections will force slum landlords to upgrade their property; but eliminate a stipulation in the ordinance requiring complete lists of tenants.

To keep tabs on individual tenants violates privacy. If students should find this time, raucous protests combined with present misgivings among city councilmen may kill this section of the ordinance.

What matters is that the city's thumb will press upon the slam landlord's jugular.
Pardon me, Mr. President

Letters

- Disclose names of all applicants
  - To the Daily Egyptian:
    - The admissions policies of our state supported professional schools is a major concern. The time has come for these schools to make a full disclosure of admissions procedures. This disclosure should include an explicit statement of the criteria by which applicants are selected and a listing of the credentials of both students who are accepted and those who are rejected. Two main reasons show why disclosure is necessary.
    - The first concern is that minority members and women are given preference over "others" who are better qualified. Equally important is the concern over political considerations as a factor in the selection process.
    - The Bar Association has clamored long and hard for candor on the part of public officials. Public Law schools should demonstrate their commitment to candor and assure the public of their integrity by making a disclosure as stated above.
  - A rumor exists that there are students attending SIU School Medicine who received less than a C average. I am sure the medical school wants the general public to know that only the best prepared students are selected to Study Medicine; disclosure would be an excellent way to assure them this is the case.
  - I believe the general public agrees with me. Percentages for the professions should be disclosed totally on the basis of objective criteria such as standardized tests and grades, without regard to race, sex, or political influence. It is shameful that the measures of competence are biased against minority members. When the majority members receive an inherently inferior education. This may be a sign due to the lack of drive, however, I am sure the members of the faculty would be aaa.

Letters to the Daily Egyptian

The Daily Egyptian receives reports of admissions from all members of the University community. We feel reports of these reports should be made available to the public. However, we must also consider the protection of the privacy of students who do not wish to be publicized.

But, if you consistently apply this line of reasoning you will find that all applicants for athletic scholarships are selected on the basis of something other than demonstrated superior to their competitors is an apolitical policy.

I was prompted to write this letter by the discovery that both the governor's daughter and son-in-law are attending SIU School of Law. It may well be that they were both better qualified than any rejected applicant. Whatever the truth of the matter is, it deserves to be documented.

The public should insist that it play an important part in the selection of people for the professions. A society that thinks of the ambition for the sake of social justice or because of politics does so at its own expense.

Reporting unfair to women

Doesn't the media appeal to its readers by writing about that in which the public takes interest? Believe it or not, the majority of our world consists of women. And we want to read about what's going on with the world. We want to know not the women of SIU flourished through the newspapers. We want to know not the hidden hidden. And let's not lose the dailiness of the news because we don't think the individual female to her own sports article of interest.

I am not asking for the reversal of the established fact. I am simply asking for equality in statement and placement.

Pardon me, Mr. President

Miraculously, thank God, Ford escaped drowning in the committee's flood of teardrops. And when he went outside, he found the sky still intact. Nary a cloud was crying.

Meanwhile, back at the House, Ford was explaining how he and Alexander Haig, former White House chief of staff, had decided that objective was not a problem.

But it was Vice President at the time—about a week before Nixon packed his bags.

Suggestions ran the gamut from just letting the impeachment process run its course, to having Nixon resign and, yes, to eventually offering him a pardon if he did resign.

Although Ford had already stated, publicly, he favored impeachment of Nixon, he was also said to have favored a pardon as possible subject.

So Ford did the only honorable thing he could. He assumed the fact that objective was non-loyal as possible to Nixon—as a Vice President should.

I now know he was the day after his rendezvous with Haig. That was the day he learned from Nixon's lawyer that it contained the contents of the new tapes were "no damaging that impeachment in the House. Ford had to defend and conviction in the Senate a high probability."

But, if you consistently apply this line of reasoning you will find that all applicants for athletic scholarships are selected on the basis of something other than demonstrated superiority to their competitors is an apolitical policy.

Biased views

To the Daily Egyptian:

The news conference in a Journalism class early Monday morning featuring Mrs. Oshel gave thousands a chance to see the public side of our beautiful town. The answer to the age-old question, "What is my personal experience?" was a deep abiding faith in God. I believe that Jesus Christ is my personal savior."

What annoyed me was the obtrude of laughter by fellow members of my class when Mrs. Oshel said, "I'm not the one who needs to be forgiven or need a deep abiding faith in God. I believe that Jesus Christ is my personal savior."

On "Tommy Allen"

To the Daily Egyptian:

In response to Mark Mitchem's letter on October 18, concerning the Southern Players' production of "The Tommy Allen Show."

Little arouses my ire as quickly as an ignorant and pompous individual who, by means of his intelligence, can denigrate any artistic endeavor. Mitchem is such an individual. I suspect his scope of acceptability is so limited that he cannot even comprehend the words of Simon or Rogers and Hammelstein. However, his letter was so obviously biased and convicted that I doubt anyone gave it any credence.

What irks me is not so much that he does not believe in Megan Terry's play, it's the fact that he can wholeheartedly smear the play and, therefore, automatically be invited to the Studio Dram. Mistakenly. Back at the House, Ford was acknowledging that the contents of the new tapes were "no damaging that impeachment in the House. Ford had to defend and conviction in the Senate a high probability."

Red tape stalls radio units

By Scott Burmaside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Governmental red tape is holding up installation of new SIU police radio equipment.

According to Security Officer Virgil F. Trummer, 15 hand radio sets and 15 mobile units were purchased in 1973.

Trummer said the new units are Motorola ultra-light hand sets with UHF capacity. He said these new units are 25 to 25 per cent more effective than the current units.

"We will probably be the first police unit in this area to have UHF capability. We have low band units in the cops now," Trummer said.

Chief Trummer said the low band range had too much radio overlap from other systems.

"We're waiting on licensing now from the Federal Communications Commission. We've had our application in for about a year now."

Community Relations Officer Mike Norringta said the new hand units will be more efficient. "Every new and then a guy on foot patrol in the basement of the Communications Building will lose contact. This new frequency has the power to penetrate in these situations."

The hand units are supposed to double the range of the old walkie talkies.

"This new system will come in Big time baby."

The most bouncy baby on record is Elias Daou, of Suniani, Ghana, on Oct. 31, 1999. At age 22 months, Elias weighed 60 pounds and his circumference was 35 inches.

All Illinois university police departments will have this UHF radio hand unit. Eventually Trummer said some of the departments have the capability now.

The old radio equipment will be given back to the state government, Trummer said.

Illinois non-smokers seek to outlaw smoke-filled rooms

CHICAGO (AP) — A group of nonsmokers has petitioned the Illinois Republican-controlled Board to outlaw smoke-filled rooms.

The petitioners, mostly members of the Environmental Lawyers Clinic, contend the board has the power to regulate indoor as well as outdoor environment.

They asked for a ban against smoking in bars, restaurants, theaters, libraries, museums, hospitals, government buildings, public elevators, and all public transportation throughout Illinois.

Previous legislative attempts for a nonsmokers’ bill of rights in Illinois have failed.

Steve Klein, director of the volunteer group of lawyers, said the proposed bill would permit the designation of certain smoking areas where tobacco smoke “would not affect the health of nonsmokers.”

He said similar antismoking regulations have been enacted in Arizona, Oregon and Nebraska.

Many airlines have nonsmoking areas on their commercial planes. Klein said less comprehensive measures have been adopted in Maine, Hawaii, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Washington and New York but in Illinois the state law only forbids smoking in gasp coal mines and in the vicinity of explosives and fireworks.

He said the asbestos control regulations already adopted by the board set a precedent for a nonsmoker’s bill of rights.

Library class popular

By Scott G. Randle

A new General Studies course, which is offered by the Undergraduate Library at the University of Illinois, has been popular with students. "Library Instruction" is a 3-credit hour course which is open to students majoring in any field. The course is taught by Robert Richardson, who is chairman of the Undergraduate Library.

The course is designed to help students become familiar with the library and its resources. Students will learn how to use the library catalog and reference books, how to find secondary sources, and how to conduct research in a systematic manner.

The course is divided into two parts: the first part is taught by Richardson, and the second part is taught by librarians from the Undergraduate Library.

Teachers authoring books illustrated region's flowers

By Calvin Dreger

Robert Mohlenbrock, Botany Department chairman, and John Richardson of Research and Projects, are working on two books about wild flowers of the Southern Illinois region for the St. Louis Army Corps of Engineers.

Mohlenbrock said the first book will cover common wild flowers of spring and early summer. The second book will cover common wild flowers of late summer and autumn. The books are slated for release in mid-summer, 1975.

The books, according to Mohlenbrock, will be accompanied by "color photographs along with a summary of the description of the plant, its abundance, habitat, and the exact time of flowering."

Richardson explained that the books are part of a public service project by the Corps of Engineers which is publishing material on the natural history of the Southern Illinois area.

He said the project will center around the three lakes region comprising of lakes Shoalville, Carlyle, and Rend.

Richardson, working out of the scientific photography illustration facility of Research and Projects, explained that he and several students will be responsible for all the photography for the two booklets, and Mohlenbrock is responsible for all the written material.

The students, all botany majors, are Carl Taylor, Keith Wilson, Donald Kurz, and Jon Nickels.

PBS to feature singer

Cathy Berberian, called "the high priestess of contemporary music," and "the Martha Callas of the avant garde," performed her unique style of singing on Vibrations Encore, Thursday at 9 p.m. on WSIU-TV Channel 8, over PBS. The show also features an interview with Berberian by Robert Sherman.

"The high priestess of contemporary music," as she is called, has been performing for over 20 years. Berberian is known for her unique style of singing, which is a combination of classical and contemporary music.

Berberian performs "Stripesody," which she defines as a "collage of onomatopoeia" taken from Sunday comic strips. Berberian will appear on the PBS musical series Vibrations Encore Thursday at 9 p.m. on channel 8.

Carbondale alcohol center provides individual treatment

By Bruce Hackel
Student Writer

"The best way to solve the alcohol problem is to treat it," said Lawrence, co-coordinator of the Carbondale Alcohol Information Center. "More people die from withdrawal from alcohol each year than from heroin," he said.

Lawson said it doesn't work to design a treatment program and then try to fit the patient into the individual's needs. This is what we are in Carbondale doing now, he said. "We need to design a program which is flexible enough to adapt to the individual's needs. This is what we are in Carbondale doing now, he said.

According to Lawson, the detoxification program provides an alternative for those picked up by the police for intoxication.

Lawson said he is expected to handle about 10 to 12 patients a week, most of whom will be treated on an individual basis. "A lot of guys will want to continue working and living at home," Lawson said.

The alcohol rehabilitation program is structured around five separate steps, Lawson explained.

"When somebody comes to us for help, if he is drunk, we first place him in a comfortable room and provide general care until he is sobered up," Lawson said.

"This could take anywhere from 12 to 48 hours, depending on the individual," he said.

Next, the individual goes through an evaluation process by the staff, where his strengths and weaknesses are pointed out to him, Lawson said.

"We outline the whole picture at this point, including emotional and physical strengths or weaknesses which might apply to the individual," Lawson said.

The resident is asked to write an autobiography to further his understanding of himself during this stage.

Following completion of the second stage, the resident is ready to begin a program of individual treatment.

"This includes physical exercise, individual counseling, group therapy, and personal hygiene," Lawson said.

"The resident draws up a contract with himself, stating what he intends to accomplish and how he will assist his personal program will consist of," Lawson said.

"The contract is subject to change and the resident feels free to alter it," Lawson said. "Maybe after a while the resident will decide he made his contract too rigid, or maybe he'll want to add something to it."

Each participant evaluates his progress on a daily basis. "The entire program at the Carbondale Alcohol Rehabilitation Center is based on what the resident feels he should last about six weeks, and conclude with a final evaluation," Lawson said.

Residents are free to leave the program at any time. When they feel they can handle things by themselves they are encouraged to do so, he said.

"Currently we have the facilities to handle a maximum of 12 residents at a time," Lawson said. "However, if the program enjoys a lot of success, the possibility of expanding to the floor above us will be explored.

Lawson said he is expected to handle about 10 to 12 patients a week, most of whom will be treated on an individual basis. "A lot of guys will want to continue working and living at home," Lawson said.

The program will operate with five paid staff people, a nurse who will work one day a week, and a doctor on retainer.

"The doctor will supervise the training of people involved in the detoxification program, and write prescriptions for medication for any resident who might require it," Lawson said.

Lawson said two full-time interns will probably be added in the future. There will be an open house for the entire Jackson County Mental Health Center Monday from 1 to 4 p.m. "Anyone interested or who feels he might have a problem with alcohol is invited to come and see what we have to offer," Lawson said.
Sonic waves detect broken bones healing

By C.G. McDaniel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sonic waves moving through bones may not be as harmful to the patients' aura, but they might make them jump for joy—or at least thrill them.

A数组 sound waves may indicate that a broken bone can be repaired with a fractured leg as much as a month earlier than X-rays reveal. When fractures are healing,...

University of Wisconsin doctors have found that a sonic device developed there by Dr. John M. Jurist is more accurate than X-rays in showing when fractures are being repaired.

Jurist, a physicist on the faculty of the university's medical school, pointed out in an interview, "Anybody in a cast doesn't want to spend one more day than absolutely necessary in it." Very often, on the other hand, may also indicate that the cast should stay on a while longer for more complete healing.

A fractured rib—shinbones—usually takes four to five months to heal, if the break is severe. During this time, the leg joints become stiff and muscles lose tone. Early removal of a cast reduces these problems.

The device developed by Jurist,...

In the case of a fractured tibia, for example, insensitive sound waves are transmitted as the bone at the point of the fracture.

It works this way.

In the case of a fractured tibia, for example, insensitive sound waves are transmitted as the bone at the point of the fracture. These waves travel through the bone and are measured through an attached receiver at the ankle.

The resonance, or vibrations, feed into a computer and is compared to the resonance of the healthy tibia in the opposite leg.

If the affected bone does not transmit sound waves because they are stopped at the point of the break, the bone heals, more and more waves are transmitted.

The sonic measurements are made when the cast is being changed or through a bone cut in the leg so the transmitting instrument can be placed directly on the leg.

Jurist pointed out that the appearance of healing on a X-ray picture can be misleading because a cast sometimes forms at the point of the fracture. Such a cast does not have the density of healed bone.

While the amount of radiation received by a patient from modern X-rays is considered negligible, use of the sonic device could reduce the total lifetime amount a patient receives, thereby reducing the health hazards attributed to too much radiation.

The sound waves are harmless.

So far, the device has been tested on 40 patients, most of them college students who have suffered ski injuries. The others have been in automobile or motorcycle accidents.

Jurist said further tests will be conducted with the device using dogs and rabbits to study the rate of bone growth.

It is possible, too, he said, that studies might be done on how different types of fracture treatment, such as drugs and electrical stimulation, affect bone growth.

Widespread availability of the sonic test appears to be near—what in the future.

Ford's 'honeymoon' over, Demo head says

CHICAGO (AP)—The marriage between President Ford and Congress may not be over but the honeymoon has surely come to an end in the eyes of many members of the Democratic Party, said Wednesday.

Srauss spoke at a news conference prompted by President Ford Tuesday afternoon that the Democratic Party, which next month might threaten war.

He labeled Ford's remarks "divisive, irresponsible, hateful and calculated to do irreparable damage to a time when we ought to be trying to pull together.

Srauss said, "I was saddened, horrified, appalled, appalled, appalled and at an utter loss to understand how so quickly, showing such poor judgment, this President could move from what he called a desired honeymoon, what we've been afraid of as a bipartisan approach, to rhetoric similar to the old Nixon-Agnew rhetorical of the 1970 congressional campaigns."

The American people reported that as they will in general to be expected to assert.

Srauss said further that the marriage between the President and Congress is over.

Srauss replied, "The marriage may not be over but the honeymoon has sure come to an end."

President Ford's remarks about Democrats and world peace were said to have been prompted by congressional votes to cut aid to the Turks.

Srauss pointed out that this was a bipartisan vote and represented a compromise which is in the best interest of the country.

In response to a question about whether President Ford might be concerned about the possibility that Democrats would get the message into war, Srauss said, "I don't know what he was worried about. He was damn sure implying it and that's the thing I resent."

The President's remarks Tuesday and his garden of former President Nixon, the chairman said, raise a great question in the mind of the public about his judgment.

Srauss stopped in Chicago between campaign visits in Indiana and South Dakota in behalf of Democratic candidates. He paid what he termed a social call on Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Dairy farm milked dry, inflation causes profit cut

NASHVILLE (AP)—As dairy farmers did it was round the clock, but Casimir Kozuszek tended it 50 cows a day. But his son would take it over. Now his boys don't have it. Inflation milked it dry.

Half the nation's family dairy farms, traditionally one of the milk industry's backbone, will vanish by the end of the year, agricultural officials predict—farms like Kozuszek's where inflation eroded profit.

"The feed is too high and milk wasn't high enough," Kozuszek says. "I sold out because my boys wasn't making enough. They didn't make enough钱 and I'm getting old."

A few weeks ago his 40 cows went to another farmer. It was something they wanted to do. Only three of his children were old enough to help him, because they aren't old enough to leave and one because he has a job on the local machine parts factory.

Kozuszek had to hire him to his 100 acre, planning to plant them in flax instead of corn. "I'm tired of operations, hoping somebody his boys can come back."

His son Clarence, 21, would have taken it.

"Yes, I would, if it would have been available. We weren't coming out ahead you know. We were just paying for the bills and that's it."

His father says, with a tinge of his inherited Polish inflection, "Sometimes have to borrow money to pay the bills. You work 14 hours a day, seven days a week, no vacations and your pockets empty. There wasn't enough money to feed around with the bills."

Kozuszek knows the price of nearly everything he needs to produce milk has at least doubled in the past 20 years—feed corn is nearly five times as high, and the price he's paid for milk increased less than a nickel.

Just before he quit, it was $5.90 a hundredweight. The milk should have been at least $2.50, he says.

"Everything else was too high."

Clarence is now working for the factory. His union guarantees $3.82 an hour on the night shift and a nickel raise every 90 days.

"It's a lot easier," Clarence says. "There you work for what you get. On a dairy farm he'd have to work all days and then you have nothing to show for it. You don't know what's going to happen from day to day. If you can't make a living on the farm you have to do something else.

Both men think the future of family farmers is dim unless they join forces. "They are going to have to organize like everybody else, like union labor," Kozuszek says. "If they can't they are going to go broke."

Two vie for U.S. House seat

Simon seeks comeback to political life

By Edward Husar
Student Writer

On Nov. 5, the man with the ever-present bow tie will anxiously be sitting in government, watching the election which could spur his comeback into the world of politics.

Paul Simon, the Democratic candidate for U.S. Congressman for the 24th District, has been a legislator for one semester at the J.F. Kennedy Institute of Politics at Harvard University.

Simon was elected to the Illinois House of Representatives in 1964 at the age of 25, which made him the youngest lawmaker in the House at the time. He served in the House for eight years, then was elected to the state Senate in 1966, where he presently holds an honorary "Best Legislator" award each session.

In 1968, he was elected Lieutenant Governor, the first in Illinois history to be governor-elect as a governor from another party. Simon unsuccessfully ran for governor in 1972, losing out in the primary to Dan Walker.

In 1972, he ran against the Congress against Republican candidate Val Oshel, a resident and former mayor of Carbondale.

During an interview in his home on W. Washington Street, Simon talked about the major issue in this election is inflation and the general state of the economy. He said in order to combat inflation, "people need to be more productive."

A second major issue, where Simon says "the differences are clear and soberly stated," relates to confidence in government officials.

"Each year that I have held office," he said, "I have tried to fill the seats of the first-state official in the nation to represent the public interest, from Bob Kerrey also charged with raising their yearly incomes. If elected to Congress," he said, "I'll probably again do something along that line."

Simon said the future of the Illinois coal industry was "one of concern," "we don't foul up massively." He said, "simply put, our commitment to investment in nuclear energy rather than coal energy, further oil exploration and solar energy." Nuclear energy is dangerous and it is dramatic, he said, "but let's look to the book elsewhere."

"I have in mind the hostility in the district toward gun control, Simon said, "my opponent says he is opposed to any gun control. I believe every person has constitutional right. First of all," he said, "I have some qualifications. Every court has ruled to the contrary."

"There has to be some controls," he said. "I am not going to walk down any street with a machine gun. We do not need gun control. We need the most responsible people to do the job."

He has recognized that urban areas, like East St. Louis and Chicago, have to be watched for blight, "especially over local control legislation they need."

"When you look at (Southern Illinois), I don't see this as a problem," he said, "it's a different situation than the urban areas."

Simon said he felt the government experiment with guaranteeing jobs to all Americans. He said that on unemployment compensation will be increased by one percent and unemployment compensation will be supplemented by $400 a month.

Simon pointed out that there are two counties in the district with at least 27 percent of the population is on public assistance.

"The private sector and the government have had to work hand in hand to build a better future," he said.

Oshel rates his chances in race 'good'

By Gary Delesho
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Val Oshel intends to campaign up until the last minute. There is a lot of ground to cover and a lot of voters to meet.

Oshel, R-Harrisburg, is running against Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, for the Congressional seat from district 24, geographically, the second largest in the country. The seat became vacant in January when Kenneth Gray's, D-West Frankfort, retirement goes into effect.

Gray announced his resignation last November for reasons of poor health after having served 20 years.

Oshel believes his chances against Simon are good, especially since he is a native of the area. "I think I'm the person that can do more for Southern Illinois because I've lived here all my life."

Oshel has served Harrisburg native as mayor of his home town from (1967 to 1969). He was then appointed by former Governor Ogilvy to the Illinois Civil Defense Agency.

Oshel was in Carbondale last week as part of his constant campaign effort. He and Simon spoke at the Golden Goose Senior Citizens Club and had a back and forth campaign door to door on Carbondale's southeast side.

"This isn't the best way to meet voters," Oshel said, as two of his knockers on a potential voter's door went unanswered. He left one of his campaign leaflets in the voter's house.

In the leaflet, Oshel's basic platforms are outlined. First on the list is inflation. Oshel believes, as most everyone else, that inflation is the No. 1 issue before the voter at the polls.

According to Oshel the government's past policy of "free and liberal spending" has resulted in the present economic crisis. "The first thing we must do is cut back federal spending where we can. This is where all started. We (the federal government) haven't had a balanced budget in 21 years," he said.

Oshel said he would like to see a "cut-back in the size of the bureaucracy." In '72, he explained, "500,000 federal employees left due to retirement or death, and they are replaced with another 500,000. None of these jobs could be eliminated."

Oshel also said he felt a per cent decrease in congressional salaries. They currently earn $42,500 and Oshel said "that's a good place to start to bring wages down."

Oshel, who thus far raised $28,000 in campaign revenues, said he favors disclosure of campaign sources but is strongly opposed to public campaign financing.

Oshel said public financing favors the incumbent and a taxpayer's money is not going toward electing someone who does not support those programs. Oshel has disclosed his campaign sources. Of the $28,000 he listed in an Aug. 31 report, $10,000 came from purchases of his campaign record.

Oshel, who, according to a press release, has contributed $1,000 to President Ford, has cut a long playing record to help finance his campaign. The remainder of his funds have come from citizen contributions and national Republican committees.

Oshel also said "not a nickel of it is in special interest money and 98-99 per cent has come from people in this district."

Oshel, who recently met with President Ford in Washington, said, the first thing we can do to offset many of the economic tills that plague us in Southern Illinois would be to establish a coal in gas plant here."

He said Ford was receptive to the possibility.

Another point that Oshel concerns himself with and one he thinks his opponent has slighted, is tourism. The main obstacle to increased tourism in Southern Illinois is improved transportation, he said.

He favors road renovation, new freeways and other efforts "that will bring the people in. We have to get them here before they can enjoy what we have."

Oshel also said while he was in Carbondale, he favors a relaxation of environmental protection laws. He said current "environmental rulers" are "burning high sulphur Illinois coal." He said they should be relaxed, he explained, "because I don't feel this one generation should be penalized because of the environmental problems of the nation. This is something that is going to take years."

In an interview last week with the Daily Egyptian, Oshel enumerated many of his ideas. On cutting military aid to Turkey, Oshel said he would vote to cut a large amount if it "keeps our noses out of other country's affairs, they keep us into conflict of our own."

The bill to cut off aid to Turkey was passed by Congress but vetoed by Ford.

Asked about Nelson Rockefeller's sustainability act Oshel said, "I think he'd be an asset." He should "adds, that "a warm baritone voice," but "there is a chance he won't get confirmed."

Oshel also explained his views on gun control. He is opposed to it and doesn't think the state of Illinois should penalize the sportsman. Registering guns won't make the murders stop. "It would have been been busy from the start of his campaign and each day puts in a full day on the campaign trail. He is presently on leave of absence from A. Lee Oshel Chemicals for the campaign."

He said that while he met with Ford in Washington, the President expressed the belief that the "best is yet to come" for Oshel but he is very happy with the "there are some problems."

Springer says opponent doesn’t represent people

Kenneth Buzbee

Even voluntary labor, given in lieu of cash, must be listed according to its monetary worth, he said, in answer to a student’s question.

In the case, he agrees with the principle of a shield law “wholeheartedly,” but with as the ERA ratification is the law, he said, opposed this year’s conservative proposals this year depends on who is elected.

“I’m for a strong environment, but I also believe in the free market system,” he said.

Stripping reclamation is expensive, which is in turn costs less than the cost of the state’s higher office. Buzbee said.

The decision voters Nov. 5 to 3 in favor of the coalition in the campaign said that the House of Representatives is 1 million.

In addition, he has called for a “demented” vote to historic changing technical concerns, but not the substance of bills will not lose the ERA if the free market is again.

With the result and use does not lead to harder drugs. “I hear conflicting reports all the time,” he said.

Buzbee was elected to the Senate in November, after a previously unsuccessful campaign in 1970. He has worked full-time, living on the $5,000 legislator’s salary. His wife, Betty, is a teacher at the Carlisle Community High School. The couple and their two children live in the city.

“I’ve voted against Walker’s proposals more often than not and the record will prove this,” he said.

Ralph Dunn, incumbent Republican candidate for state representative from the 58th District, sees inflation as an energy crisis, and tax reform as the main issues facing state-wide candidates in the 1974 elections.

On inflation, Dunn says, “There is real debate here about what is being called inflation on a state level. The only thing a state can do is to try to hold down spending as much as possible.” Dunn added that inflation is a matter of degree and what situation the states must wait to see what action the Federal Government is going to take to solve and the problem, he said.

The energy crisis, according to Dunn, is another major issue facing state-wide candidates in the future. He believes that the people of Southern Illinois are worried, and rightly so, about this issue.

Dunn said it is up to the state legislators to do everything they can to solve the problem, he said.

The only Coal Conference recently held in Carbondale, Dunn said, was a “little discussion group” on the subject. He believes most of the emphasis was placed on the energy problems of the state as a whole, and not even a word was placed on the energy problems of the regions within the state. Dunn added that by solving the energy problems of the state, we will solve the energy problems of the state as a whole. Dunn in currently on the 11-member Energy Resources Commission designed to study ways to make energy viable.

The third key issue, according to Dunn, is tax reform. Dunn says there are three main taxes in Illinois, real estate, sales, and income tax. On tax reform Dunn says, “The trick is to balance the three so no one feels that he is being taken advantage of.” Dunn added that in 1973, while he was state representative, a tax reform bill was passed into law that gave help to people over age 65. The bill stated that if you were over 65, earned $15,000 per year, and your taxes were in excess of four percent of your income, they will reimburse you the amount over four percent.

Another issue to be faced by state-wide candidates, although not as the ones previously mentioned by Dunn, is the concern of the people of the state in regard to safety of their money and their state spending. Dunn said that as of June 30th, the state of Illinois has $404 million surplus in the Treasury. At the present rate of spending Dunn said it will take another year to build an increase in the treasury in the next year. The reason for the increased spending, according to Dunn, is that people will have more money to spend. Another reason will be the Illinois State Senate, Dunn says that the state will have “about $60 million for the state per year.” Dunn said that the rate of inflation is about 2.5 percent. According to Dunn, Dunn said, “It is a cheap, easy, and effective way to get everyones’ attention of someone that really can’t afford it.”

Buzbee faces strong Springer in reelection bid

By Mary Gabel

I will be a full-time representative, Springer believes that the people of Southern Illinois are worried and rightly so, about this issue.

Dunn said it is up to the state legislators to do everything they can to solve the problem, he said.

The only Coal Conference recently held in Carbondale, Dunn said, was a “little discussion group” on the subject. He believes most of the emphasis was placed on the energy problems of the state as a whole, and not even a word was placed on the energy problems of the regions within the state. Dunn added that by solving the energy problems of the state, we will solve the energy problems of the state as a whole. Dunn in currently on the 11-member Energy Resources Commission designed to study ways to make energy viable.

Educational opportunities, jobs Birchler’s main theme

Birchler said the development of the Kaskaskia Canal along with the development of the coal deposits in Southern Illinois would encourage heavy industry to locate there. “That would mean jobs,” he said.

Birchler said the Southern Illinois economy needs stimulation. He states that in the last 12 years, the state’s population in the region of Randolph County has declined by 200. "If you have a healthy work program, you have a good economy," Birchler said.

Voters want honesty, Williams says

By Jeff Joett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Noting that voters are running for office today must convince the people he’s an honest man,” Williams also calls honesty the biggest issue in 1974. His campaign literature outlines his accomplishments as a state representative.

Richmond shakes off ‘ridiculous’ charges

By Bill Layne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

During the course of the campaign for state representative in the 58th District, charges of conflict of interest, poor attendance at city council meetings and using non-official businessman newspaper ads paid for by Williams, have been hurled at both candidates.

Richmond, Democrat candidate for one of the three seats from the district, said that he has been disappointed that his opponent, Republican Gale Williams of Murphysboro, has accused him of a negative campaign. “He said that he had hoped the campaign would be more issue-directed.

School’s head unopposed, outspoken

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Moore Deming has some very strong ideas about the way school should be run. Deming was interviewed on the last day of school for a recent interview.

The issue of the day in Jackson County is the Hussar School District. “I think the Hussars should have a new board of education,” Deming said.

Moore Deming is the head of the public school system in the region. He is registered with the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI), serving as testing officer for the General Educational Development (GED) program for high school dropouts who want to get their GED.

Deming predicts that more school boards will merge in the future because of the low population. “Basically, schools have to have students to support the programs,” he said. In today’s society, businesses have to cut size to operate. “I explained to them with the requirements regarding subjects to be taught, the high cost, so schools simply are not big enough to facilitate the learning process.”

Although he is against teachers unions, Deming emphasized that he believes teachers are important. “I think teachers organizations are an asset to the school district. A teacher was regarded as a second class citizen; when he was hired, he was expected to have one or two board members didn’t like him. He said that the salary of the teacher until a few years ago was a ‘disgrace.’ "I’m being told I’m not the members of the district. The problem is I’m not the only kind of teacher organization,” he said.
Burdit, Stevenson locked in senate battle

By Gary Deluca
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

George Burditt is fighting hard in his bid to unseat Adlai Stevenson III as U.S. Senator from Illinois.

Stevenson, whose father ran unsuccessfully for the Senate in 1958 and whose brother, again in 1966, has name recognition. Burditt's image as an aggressive campaigner remains virtually a stranger to Illinois voters.

While both candidates have had financial problems in their campaigns, Burditt is at a disadvantage there also. At last count, Stevenson held $300,000, while Burditt had raised $255,000.

Burditt has taken as the major thrust of his campaign the fact that "philosophically," he and Stevenson disagree on many things. "Stevenson's unaccessibility to the voters of Illinois," is another Burditt gripe.

Burditt has called Stevenson an "abusive landlord," whose "global tinkering explains his lack of contact with the reality of living in this state.

He has also called Stevenson "one of the biggest spenders in Congress" and he sees the senator's expenditure of that money as the major cause of inflation. Burditt favors an amendment creating a "balanced federal budget." A two-thirds vote by Congress could prevent federal spending in these situations, such as wartime production.

Stevenson said Burditt's criticism of his spending is "not relevant." He said "I always have voted against waste and for cuts in the budget while favoring spending in common sense areas. I voted against the SST (aircraft) and subsidies to Lockheed," Stevenson said.

Stevenson disagrees further with Burditt by claiming "wearing fuel prices" are the main reason for the current economic problems.

According to Stevenson, food prices are up, not because of increased demand in the United States, but because of higher wages, higher energy costs, farm exports, foreign cuts, high energy prices and an exploding world demand.

As a participant in a "mini-economic summit" Sept. 13 in Chicago with Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, Stevenson called for lower interest rates, fertilizer allocation, cuts in ammuniition spent on wastes and strict anti-trust enforcement.

He also said the United States "must get tough with the Arabs" on increased oil prices if the nation is to beat inflation. He has called for "economies and retaliation."

Stevenson said an even bigger problem that is inflation is the worldwide proliferation of enriched uranium and plutonium. "The threat of the world to total destruction."

The United States is exporting nuclear energy at an "alarming rate" and foreign governments are using the energy to make bombs, Stevenson said.

He calls for cooperation between the United States and Canada, along with other nuclear powers, to develop "safeguards and sanctions" against the misuse of such power.

Both candidates feel there is a need for a new reason for the road maintenance program. Burditt differs on particulars.

Burditt said, "We all need protection from road maintenance, but there is no way a government isn't responsible." He has called for increased cooperation from private industry in the effort.

Stevenson disagrees with Burditt by claiming "wearing fuel prices" are the main reason for the current economic problems.

Stevenson said he favors a federal plan, but on a "limited basis." The nation "can't afford broad cuts like the present.

Stevenson said he is opposed to amnesty for draft evaders and former President Nixon, but he said Burditt was not favored. Ford's amnesty program for draft evaders in 1974 is a past action, however, regret that the judicial process was cut short by Ford's controversial action.

It was well established from the start that Stevenson would be a tough man to beat. It has been reported that such Illinois notables as Attorney General John D. O'Connell, Senator Scott and Governor Ogilvie both turned down offers to run against the governor with the famous name. Burditt, however, said he felt it hard to refuse when top Republicans urged him to enter the race.

County voters to decide road maintenance issue

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jackson County voters will decide on the road maintenance system or switch to a county-wide road-care program.

Under the present system the county is responsible for 166 miles of roads and highways, while the individual township is responsible for 567 miles.

Funds for road improvement come from state motor fuel tax rebates and property taxes levied by the board of supervision.

A new bridge and equipment levy is presently optional for any of the townships.

Each township has a road commission and road repair equipment. The commission is elected. He must reside in the township that he will work in his need have not road work experience.

In the proposed system, the county highway superintendent will be in charge of all road work in the county and one road crew would be doing all the work. But the budget for the county highways and for the unit road district will be kept separate. Work done by the road crew would be charged to the appropriate budget.

The county highway superintendent is hired by the county board of supervisors and, according to state law, must be a professional engineer.

The proposed system would be a large improvement.\n
The money not used in the county highways under the present system would be used to improve roads and bridges upkeep. Fifty-seven township bridges would be repaired, according to a last safety inspection made by the county department.\n
Referendum opponents say road maintenance centralization will cause many roads to be neglected. People in the city areas feel all the money will be spent on roads and bridges built out in the rural areas. People in the rural areas fear all the road money will be spent funding road work near towns.

State law requires road repair be done on an equal basis in all parts of a county unit road district except for special traffic and safety.

Consultation backers claim many people are not sure whether a bad road falls under county township jurisdiction and cannot direct a complaint to the proper jurisdiction. In the new system, all complaints go to the county highway superintendent. The sheriff's office handles mail calls.

People opposing the unit district fear a loss of personal interest in road problems by a centralized highway superintendent.

Minority parties to be on ballot in state elections

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Both the Communist and the Socialist parties are contesting the ballot running in major state races in Illinois.

This is the first year the Communists have been allowed on the Illinois' ballot, in races in which barred Communists from the ballot was overturned in a federal court ruling.

Communist Party candidates are Ithel Florence, U.S. Senator; Lorraine M. Addby, state treasurer; John R. Lumpkin, John L. Schaffner and Valerie Witkowsky, University of Illinois Trustees.

Socialist Worker Party candidates are Edward Thomas Heister, U.S. Senator; Suzanne Hag, state treasurer; Antonio De Leon, Mary R. Wismer and Brian Williams, the University of Illinois Trustees.

Among the issues the Communist candidates have campaigned on is the complete nationalization of all corporations. To fight inflation, they purpose to roll back prices but not wages to 1970 and make large military budget cuts.

The Communists have suggested a youth bill of rights guaranteeing a job and a free education to every youth. The last candidate have campaigned for a tuition cut for the U of I as well as other state-funded schools.

Minority candidates have campaigned on a 30-hour work week, with pay cuts reductions as an end to unemployment.

Referendum opponents say road maintenance centralization will cause many roads to be neglected. People in the city areas feel all the money will be spent on roads and bridges built out in the county. People in the rural areas fear all the road money will be spent funding road work near towns.

Myth shattered

7 killed in school bus accident

ROCKMART, Ga. (AP)—Seven school children were killed and about 20 injured Wednesday when a work train backed into a school bus and dragged it hundreds of feet before coming to a stop with the children resting on top of the crushed bus.

I looked up, I saw the train coming, then I heard a thump when it hit and everybody started yelling. Everybody was screaming and crying," said Bobby Ransdell, Jr., 15, one of the youngsters on the bus. He was not seriously hurt. About 30 children, between 10 and 15 years old, were on the bus. Some of the injured were in serious condition.

The 11-car train was in the area clearing up an earlier derailment along the Southern Railway tracks when it backed through the crossing. There were warning signs but no flashing signals.

Darrell Smith, who works at a general store near the rural crossing in northwest Georgia, said he saw the bodies of several children strewn along the tracks as he raced to the crash site. "It was pretty horrible," Smith said. "The kids were bleeding, trying to get out. One was half hanging out."

Smith said the bus stopped for the crossing, then "started on across. The train was backing up. It seemed like it speeded up and hit the bus."

State Trooper Charles Sanders said a brakeman was in the caboose as the train backed south at the crossing but he did not see the bus. "The engineer said he was sounding the whistle on the train as approximately eight cars up," said Sanders.

He said the brakeman had called to the engineer. "The crossing is clear. Come on back."

"The engineer said somebody, who was knocked to the floor by the impact, told him he didn't know that the train hit the bus until the train came to a halt."

Authorities said Kellett, 56, driver of the bus, had been driving the route for several years and was well acquainted with the crossing. Kellett was injured.

The bus was headed for Aragon Elementary School where some of the children attended.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco has produced a new type of local-plantanners. Police say these people have taken to roving everything from 10-feet palms to finger-size succulents.

Plantanners are apparently folks of all ages who are caught up in the enormous gardening fad. They fill their cars with collections of plants stolen from local gardens, corner parks, highway medians and even bars.
City makes regulation changes

By Edward Hasar

Student Writer

Should an earthquake occur in the Carbondale area in years to come, the residents of the city's future one- and two-family dwellings may be grateful to the City Council for the new ordinance it took Monday.

The council approved an ordinance which amended the city's One and Two-Family Dwelling Code to make the design criteria of future buildings more resistant to seismic damage.

The ordinance will comply with a U.S. Geological Survey classification of Carbondale as being located in one of the nation's most potentially dangerous zones for earthquakes.

The ordinance's effect is to change the seismic conditions of the building code from a zone two rating to a zone three rating. A zone three rating is classified nationwide as being an area of potential major damage—the highest rating possible.

A zone two rating is considered to have potential for only moderate damage should an earthquake occur.

The specifications of the ordinance concern only one and two-family dwellings, while the design criteria of other structures in the city are regulated under the National Building Code, according to John Yow, Carbondale's director of Code Enforcement.

Yow said the ordinance would affect only those one and two-family dwellings built in the future.

William Hart, SIU architect, said reinforcements that will need to be installed will depend on the materials used in construction.

Hart said the university for about four years has constructed new buildings according to zone three specifications. He said the city, by its action Monday, is attempting to adjust to the Geological Survey's recommendations.

Numerous tremors have been felt in the Southern Illinois area over the years, according to Jay Zimmerman, associate professor of geology.

He said Carbondale is located eight to ten miles south of the Rough Creek-Cottage Grove fault zone. Another prominent fault system in the area, Zimmerman said, is the Wabash Valley system located about 50 miles east of Carbondale and running north-south.

"As far as potential for major damage," Zimmerman said, "Southern Illinois ranks among the more seismic areas in the United States."

Zimmerman said a mild tremor was felt in the Carbondale area last spring, although no damage was reported. Other tremors fell in recent years came in July, 1967, and in Oct., 1967.

Hart said the 1967 tremor rated 5½ on the Richter scale, a logarithmic programme which is based on the amount of energy released by a tremor, with a ten rating being the highest. He said minor damage was done to a building of Southern Aire. The tremor caused several cracks in the walls of the Necker building.

The Southern Illinois area was hit by the most severe earthquake ever to occur in North America when a series of tremors took place during a three month period in New Madrid, Mo., in 1811. The tremors from that quake were felt in an area of some two million square miles.

An area of 20 to 50,000 square miles of land was seriously disturbed by the 1811 quakes. However, the area was sparsely populated at that time, so casualties were few and little damage to buildings slight.

Demo's plan Mondale visit

U.S. Senator Walter Mondale, D-Minnesota, a possible contender for the 1976 Democratic Presidential nomination, will be in Carbondale Sunday to campaign for Democratic Congressional candidate Paul Simon.

Mondale and Simon will attend a public reception from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Gallery Lounge of the Student Center. The reception will be preceded by a press conference.

The 68-year-old Minnesota native was appointed to the Senate to fill the vacancy created when Robert Humphrey was elected vice president in 1964. He was elected to a full term in 1966 and was re-elected in 1972.

Mondale has been listed by the press as a top contender for the Democratic nomination, especially since Edward Kennedy withdrew from the running.

Mondale, who has been receiving considerable national publicity recently, serves on the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, the Finance Committee, and the Budget Committee. He also sponsored the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

Mondale will be the fourth mem-

"LET'S WALK THE HIGH ROAD"

An Invitation from Bruce Richmond

During the past several weeks, the readers of this newspaper have had an opportunity to witness two very different approaches to campaigning for public oflice. One of my opponents has made a series of strong charges against me,
-ranging from charges of criminality to attacks on my personal integrity. If these charges were accurate, neither you nor I would have any grounds for complain, but such is not the case.

In response to the charge that I am being under-assessed and under-taxed on my home in Murphysboro, the Jackson County Board of Tax Review investigated and concluded that I have paid and am paying my fair share of Real Estate Taxes.

In response to the charge that I, as Mayor of Murphysboro, have an "approximately 25% attendance record" at City Council meetings, the City Council, after consulting their of-official minutes, unanimously concluded that my attendance record was better than 94%.

In response to the charge that I am a criminal, guilty of violating the Conflict of Interest Statute, the City Council, the State's Attorney, and the Southern Illinoisan investigated and found the charge to be wholly without basis in fact.

My personal response to these, and other unsubstantiated attacks, has been to say nothing. Instead of responding in kind, I have chosen to speak to the issues.

I realize fully the need for better roads in Southern Illinois, and I would do my best as a legislator to see that we get them.

I have made a personal financial disclosure statement and have disclosed all campaign contributions and expenditures.

My opponent has done neither.

The Southern Illinois coal industry needs state and federal help if it is to mine the vast deposits of coal which lie under our soil in a manner consistent with the preservation of our clean air and water, and the natural beauty of our countryside.

The state must meet fully its obligations to Southern Illinois University, to Senior Citizens, and to Consumers, while being responsible and efficient in the expenditure of state funds. I am very proud of the fact that in Murphysboro we have retained city services of high quality while reducing the city tax levy this year by 18%.

By refusing to be drawn into a mud-slinging match and by continuing to discuss the issues, I have tried to travel the "high road." After 18 years in public life, it is too late to change my style, even if I wanted to. If you elect me to the legislature, I will continue to concentrate my energies on important matters of public policy. Join me. Let's walk the high road...together.

Kissinger to talk on arms in USSR

MOSCOW (AP) - Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in the Soviet Union Wednesday to try to settle on guidelines for a new treaty limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

If Kissinger succeeds in his mission, the guidelines would be ratified by President Ford and Leonid I. Brezhnev at a short summit next month, probably in the Soviet port of Voskod. A second major topic on Kissinger's agenda is the Arabs.

Finance Minister advises U.S. to reduce oil use

BONN, Germany (AP) — Finance Minister Hans Apel says the United States must set an effective example to its Western allies and start cutting back on petroleum use as a 'means of stabilizing oil prices.'

He suggested that Western industrial countries form a solid bloc to deal with the price crisis.

Otherwise, Apel said in an interview with the Associated Press, prices could continue rising to a point of economic catastrophe and this could lead to military conflict.

"When nations are hopeless, everything might happen..." he said. "But we have not yet reached that stage, nor do we have to worry about far away from there.

"We should much rather use normal weapons. That means reduce oil consumption, help each other, and demonstrate to the world that we are a club. My big question is whether American and West European industrialized states will be ready to create this club," Apel continued.

"If the United States sets an example in reducing oil consumption, an effective example, then I'm sure that everybody will follow and even this country will be ready to follow..."

Aped said even West Germany, with its booming exports and success in fighting inflation fueled by chronic oil price hikes, could not digest any significant new oil price hike and would be plunged into "a strong deficit."

In the same interview, Apel expressed a belief that it was in the interests of oil producers themselves to stabilize their prices and recycle their vast oil profits as loans or investments to consumer nations, requiring funds to plug payments deficits.

Recycling of profits alone, under which debtor countries merely postpone their debts by borrowing from rich oil producers, cannot solve the balance of payments and inflation problems facing many consumer nations, he said.

The system could bring "insufferable results" after a few years, he said. He suggested a dialogue with oil producers to convince them that the "disastrous effects" of further price rises can only harm them by raising their debts and so losing their money.

Ford may seek limit on oil import quota

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief White House spokesman said Wednesday President Ford will seek tougher measures if voluntary oil import controls don't succeed, and raised the possibility of imposing a dollar limit on oil imports.

Press Secretary Ron Ney said Ford remains opposed to a gasoline excise tax increase and to mandatory gasoline rationing.

But, responding to questions, Ney said, "You could limit oil imports." When reporters asked whether he was raising the possibility of repealing the oil import quota system, Ney said there could be other approaches.

One possibility, he said, is a government declaration that it "will import no oil from a certain dollar amount of oil."

Asked whether the President supports John C. Swallow, the federal energy administrator, and wants him to stay, Neyen said, "I don't know anything that would indicate that Mr. Swallow's status has changed in any way..."

Asked if the President wanted Swallow to remain in the job, Nen said, "As far as I know..."

Swallow told television Wednesday that some in the administration considered him too outspoken in advocating tough oil price-cutting measures.

He talked about the prospects for a broad agreement instead of concentrating on restricting the deployment of missiles with multiple warheads.

The Soviets are said to have taken a conciliatory stand in lower-level talks that ended in Geneva last month. The idea of a Ford-Brezhnev meeting in advance of next summer's summit in Washington was broached by Moscow.

Officials said there were no official functions on Kissinger's program Wednesday night, and indicated he would begin talks with Brezhnev Thursday morning.

Thieves escape with $4 million, leave $21 million more behind

CHICAGO (AP) - Burglars who got away with $4 million in cash from an armored car company left more than $21 million because they didn't have time or the manpower to carry off 10 tons of vaults, an operation, a police commander said Wednesday.

Omlt. Victor Vrdolyak said the total loss from the weekend heist at the Armored Express Corp. was $23,507,432 in hard-to-trace bills and vaults, but the figure was put at $3.8 million. It is the largest cash heist, he said.

"They got away with as much as they could because they didn't have much time," said Vrdolyak at a news conference.

Chicago police called the news conference after questioning three persons for several hours after authorities recovered an empty van they said may have been used in the theft, which is now has apparently baffled investigators. Some have opened an inquiry into its precise execution.

One of those questioned was an unidentified security guard on duty at the time of the robbery, who had failed a pre-employment fingerprint test.

Authorities also questioned Peter J. Guzio, 47 and James Manassess, 58, both of the Chicago area. The U.S. office's guard was convicted about 10 years ago on a charge of theft from an interstate shipment. Manassess has no police record, Vrdolyak said.

Vrdolyak said the three men were questioned for lack of evidence in the weekend job.

Vrdolyak said the $25 million was lost in $21, $10, $5, $5, $20 and $50 bills. The cash was stored in the vault within an unspecified number of steel containers. The money taken was from four of the containers, said Vrdolyak.

He didn't give any further details. He said he would have taken at least five or six persons to successfully pull off the job because of the amount of money and the work involved in transferring it from the vault to a vehicle and from the vehicle to another vehicle.

The van was found early Wednesday in the Chicago area and was dusted for fingerprints. Federal agents would not say if it produced any leads.

The thieves attached a delaying fuse to bags of gasoline in the vault to try to cover traces, but the fuse never got a good start because of lack of oxygen.

"They goofed, because if the fire had really got started there would have been a lot of damage to the vault and the plant and we may never have known what really happened," said Joseph J. Woods, former Cook County Chicago sheriff and senior vice president of Proctor and Gamble Inc., parent company of Armored Express.

Woods said the burglar alarm was not continuously in operation and entry could have been made during one of those periods. He said the theft had inside help.

State's attorney's investigators were tipped more than a month ago that a big heist was planned for Chicago, a spokesman said. Several persons supposedly involved were under surveillance for about 10 days before the watch was abandoned.

"When the big heist came, it was most superibly planned and successfully executed robbery that I ever have seen," said Walter Kauffman, chief of investigators.

"The Purloiner building rates very high in security devices and methods. Obviously, by the very nature of the plant, there would have to be some element of internal collusion.

The theft of cash is the second biggest on record, topped being only by the $7.6 million haul in the Great Britain train robbery on Aug. 8, 1963.

The previously biggest in the United States were the $1,521,277 robbery of a postal truck near Plymouth, Mass., in 1962, and the $1,202,008 holdup of a British Express garage in Boston in 1959.

Catholic leaders appeal for help

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope Paul VI and the heads of World Bishops declared Wednesday that "millions today face starvation." The Roman Catholic leaders throw their weight behind next month's United Nations food conference to find ways to feed them.

"The right to eat is directly linked to the right to life," the bishops said in the first document approved by the month-long synod that ends Saturday.

It said: "Millions today face starvation. The nations and the peoples of the world must make a concerted act of solidarity in the U.N. food conference.

"It is up to all governments to change their attitude toward the victims of hunger, to respond to the needs of justice, and to discover and establish especially to find the means of feeding those who are without food." The U.N. food conference convenes in Rome on Nov. 5 under auspices of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization.

John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia read the synod document on "Human Rights and Reconciliation." He said the bishops that Pope Paul enthusiastically endorsed and asked that it become a joint appeal from the Roman Church.

The synod approved the document overwhelmingly by a show of hands.

Ford will expand campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford announced more campaign appearances today and was described as surprised by a Democratic accu­ sation that some of his campaign spending was illegal.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen was asked about a statement by Democratic National Chairman Robert C. Smith that Ford's statement Tuesday that a Democratic victory could jeopardize world peace was "sleazy.

"The President has not made any such statement," Nessen said. "What the President said was that he was a tough guy and would not be intimidated by any Democratic campaign." Ford announced an expansion of plans for pre-election campaign travel.

After appearances Thursday in Des Moines, Iowa; Moline, Ill., and Chicago, Nessen said the President will go to his home town of Grand Rapids, Mich., on Friday and embark Oct. 21 on a three-day cam­ paign trip to Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Ford will fly to Los Angeles Oct. 21, then travel to Seattle the following day, and attend a GOP fundraising affair Oct. 23 in Portland, Ore., spending the weekend in California.

The President will return to Washington Nov. 2 via Salt Lake City, Denver, Chicago, and Wichita, Kan.

"I'm probably the only guy in the President's campaign who is going to admit it," Nessen said.

Ford made his warning that a Democratic victory could rupture the world peace at a GOP rally in Illinois.

Rist wins pigskin title 24-0, completes undefeated season

By Dave Weyeorek

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Dark clouds loomed to fill the sky and dusk was settling in quickly on what could have been the championship game of Women's Intramural flag football. Had Rist lost Wednesday night's game, the Bears would have been tied with two other teams and a playoff may have been necessary.

The setting was perfect because Rist announced Kistler like a mass of ominous clouds, winning the championship 24-0. For Rist it was the end of an undefeated season winning six straight. Kistler finished the season with a 1-4 record.

Kistler was never in the game as Rist scored early. Captain Nancy Rist started the scoring on a 15 yard punt to make the score 6-0. The captain was in on defense also and she picked off a Kistler pass and raced 30 yards to run the score to 12-0.

Rist was modest about her performance but her teammates were calling her the "star of the team" when the game was over. The third touchdown came with eight minutes remaining in the game. It was Kathy Andrews turn in score and she scrambled around end for 45 yards. The last score came on Jackie Cresso's 60 yard kickoff return. Rist attributed the team's success to team work and good defense. Rist said Kay Anderson and Kathy "Stretch" Vondrasek played outstanding defense throughout the game. "Both of them were getting in at the other quarterback a lot which put pressure on Kistler." She added that kicker Cynthia Lisy did a "real good job."

The team operated smoothly and surprisingly they never practiced. "We never practiced because all the girls are physical education majors and we all play other volleyball or field hockey till 5:30 in the evening so there was no time for practice."
Some football players go years without laying their hands on the football, however SIU's Bruce Puhr has managed to touch the pigskin in every game he has participated in during the last seven years.

Puhr, a senior split end from Chicago, has caught at least one pass in each of the past 20 games he has played as a Saluki. Ever since his elevation to the Varsity in 1972, Puhr has caught at least one pass in every game he has been in. He missed two games last season after suffering a broken leg and he missed one of his sophomore year with six stitches in his chin.

As a freshman Saluki, Puhr caught several passes during junior varsity games. During his high school years at St. Laurence, Puhr caught a pass in every game.

"I know it sounds pretty corny, but you practice like you play," the 6-0, 186-pound split end remarked when asked about his seven year record.

Ohio State to win again

By Fred Ratheberg
Sports Writer Associated Press

NEW YORK: (AP) — This space is normally filled with the educated guesses of Mr. Will Grimslay. However, for the next two weeks Mr. Grimslay will be hunting bigger game in Africa.

While George Foreman and Muhammad Ali beat each other up for $5 million, the football heroes on campus still go on doing the same thing for love of college coaches and an occasional cheerleader.

Mr. Grimslay's shoes are big—a size 304—with a season's mark of 372-100. So there's not much margin for error.

With that in mind, we're picking Ohio State and Oklahoma.

The editors around here say two picks won't fill a page. They prefer prediction to perfection. So here goes.

Ohio State 49, Northwestern 0: And when the second quarter starts, it'll get worse.

Oklahoma 45, Kansas State 10: The Sooners are undefeated, untied, and because of recruiting violations, they'll be uninvited to a post-season bowl. So their bowling will be restricted to the regular season. This Saturday, Kansas State's Williams will be the pick.

Michigan 38, Minnesota 7: The Wolverines have had a close call against Wisconsin last weekend, don't start their regular season until Nov. 23 in Columbus, Ohio. But they still want to go through their pre-season unscathed.

Alabama 21, Kansas 13: There are a lot of good teams in Texas this year. The Longhorns, however, aren't one of them.

Auburn 28, Florida State 7: The Seminoles gave Alabama a scare earlier, but an undefeated Auburn team is unafraid of a team that hasn't had a victory celebration since 1972.

Southern California 26, Oregon State 21: Oregon State can put points on the scoreboard, but not enough to beat USC.

The National Collegiate Sports Services located in New York said that they haven't kept any records dealing with Bruce's feat. Henry explained.

"They said that Howard Twelley was the only one they could think of who had the same type of consecutive streak as Puhr."

Twelley, a top pass catcher for the world champion Miami Dolphins, was a top receiver during his collegiate days at Tulsa.

"Bruce is getting much better as a downfield blocker," Weaver said. "This is important, particularly in our offense, when we have many pitch outs we throw to our tailbacks."

But Puhr is one of only six players from the Chicago area. "I came to SIU because they were the only people who offered me a scholarship," Puhr joked.

"I think now that the new stadium is finally getting built and SIU is a member of the Missouri Valley, SIU will have a better chance of recruiting in the Chicago area."

Even though the Salukis have not been as successful during Puhr's years at SIU, he is still looking forward to the rest of the season. "I hope they can play as well as it can during the last five games," Puhr remarked. "There's nothing that can go wrong this year."

Puhr will graduate in May with a major in business recreation.

"I really respect Bruce as a competitor," Weaver said. "The catches he has caught have taught us a lot. We have to go to him in the clutch situations."

When SIU takes on the Indians from Arkadelphia this Saturday, it's a good bet number 45, Bruce Puhr, will be on the receiving end of a Saluki aerial.

Ohio State will run into problems with Nebraska this Saturday, according to Mr. Grimslay.

Sooner's offensive line is strong, and their defense is good, and they are a formidable team. But they are not as strong as Nebraska, who will be the pick this week.

But the Sooners are better than Nebraska, and they have a better chance of winning.

So the pick is:

Oklahoma 35, Nebraska 14.
