Center Plans Presentation Set Tonight

Clarence G. Dougherty, director of the University Center, will present three sets of plans for the completion of the center to the Campus Senate at its meeting tonight. All three plans propose the erection of an addition to the center that will triple the present cafeteria space.

The plans will provide for the completion of ballroom space on the second floor of the center. Another renovation, similar to the Magnolia Lounge now in use on the first floor, is also planned for the second floor, Paluch said. According to the new plans the Student Activities Office and Student Government Office will be relocated on the second floor.

Meeting and general purpose rooms are planned for the third floor. One of the biggest changes that Dougherty will present, Paluch said, will be the moving of the bookstore into the area that is now known as the Olympic Room.

"Actually the bookstore will take up the entire area from the Olympic Room to the Magnolia Lounge," Paluch said. Also to be discussed at tonight’s meeting will be the outcome of the questionnaire poll of students concerning the proposed University seal.

"An official tally of the questionnaires has not been made yet," Paluch said last Wednesday, “but it looks like the student reaction was generally unfavorable.”

Lt. Governor to Speak Here Friday

Samuel H. Shapiro, Illinois lieutenant governor, will speak at a public meeting of the Southern Illinois Chapter, American Society for Public Administration, Friday afternoon at SIU.

The meeting is set for 4:30 p.m. in the Seminar Room of the Agriculture Building. Shapiro will speak on the role of an Acting Chief Executive.

Jack F. Iaszkoff, professor of government and president of the Southern Illinois Chapter, is directing a on-campus sweet-heart dance to be held Thursday night in the River Rooms of the University Center, Carbondale.

The dance is open to the public and tickets are on sale, for $1 a couple, at the Information Desk. The theme for the dance is “A Wider War.”

The answer—again—is No. We are using that force—and only that force—necessary to stop the aggression.

"But this is not," he said, "a wild escalataion. There is no war on foreign bases; it is not domination."

In short, he went on, “It is to prevent the forceful conquest of the South Vietnamese by the North Vietnamese.”

Then, with these words, he dealt with the question of escalation: “Second, some ask if we are caught up in a blind escalation. First, is it a war for unlimited objectives. The answer—again—is No. We are using that force—and only that force—necessary to stop the aggression.

Interviewee Ropes Persistent Pollster
By Arthur Hoppe

Q: Good morning, sir. I'm from Opinion Research Analysis, Inc. I wonder if you'd mind answering a few questions?
A: Good sakes, a poll taker! All my life, I've read the polls. But I've never met anyone whose poll's been taken. How old should you choose me?
Q: Would you mind if I came in, sir? I'll only take about half an hour of your time.
A: Heck, no. Come right in.

Publications Still Emerge
Despite the staff difficulties threatening such University of Southern Illinois student paper The Messenger and Guidy—difficulties which could help determine whether these publications will continue to exist—two new magazines staffs are planning their first issues.

Editorial: The Academy, a journal of scholarly research, short stories and essays, was at last year's business organization so it can make a bigger profit. Q: Well, let's move on to the basketball game, where is the green? A: By the secret ballot. Q: Well, I'll just put you down as undecided. And I want to ask you about the question of Ohio State. A: Hold on. Fair is fair. I'm only your messenger. Q: First, I want to know your salary, your religious beliefs, your sexual practices, if any. Do you think there's a large invasion of privacy with disastrous effects on the American political system?

Writer Green With Envy Over Aces 'Red' Backing

Over Aces 'Red' Backing

Dear Editor:

Last year, SIU chose a color to combat with Evansville's "red." Here it is, 1966, and we have our "green" for "go." But when one goes to a basketball game, where is the green? One occasionally finds a few faithful with the green hats. There is also one student and his girl who wear their Kelly green canvas sweaters. You also see a handful of adults with green on. I would like to know what's the matter with the students and the people. If you have gone to Evansville, you can't help but recognize the fact that they have red for their color. You see students, along with adults, wearing red socks, red shirts, red sweaters, red blouses, red skirts, red dresses and red shoes (flannels). Do you see this at SIU, that is, with our green? My answer is no. I realize that the color of green was only established a year ago, but we might as well get the wheels turning sometime.

Can your students buy bright green colors if there are none to be found in the store? It is a known fact that the merchants in town could obtain such articles as clothing, such as sweaters, and sell them at a reasonable price. You can't find bright green sweaters in these stores at the University Center.

Really, it's a shame to claim green as our go-color and then to turn around and not support them. That's showing spirit. Here it is, almost Feb. 26. I'd bet money you will see more red in the stadium then green. Why? Because Evansville supports its color. I believe the students should be informed about this. Also, I believe the merchants of Carbondale should be informed.

If we keep up the "nagging," maybe students will have available merchandise to buy. Something should be done. Even if SIU is just a close contest or behind the game at the point the students send up a roar of "go! go! go!"

You hardly ever hear the students do any yells with the cheerleaders.

We, I hope this letter will start something rolling. Thank you for your patience in reading it. I only hope you canstras something up, which I believe to be an adequate improvement.

Respectfully,

Tom Coleman

SiU Campus Already Has Coffee House

To the editor:

In regard to Tim Ayer's editorial about the "Coffee House," perhaps Mr. Ayer doesn't know it, but there is already a coffee house on the campus.

Granted, it lacks many of Mr. Ayer's great hopes, but it does have the bare essentials. It does have a few chairs and facilities for showing movies, and the campus atmosphere provided by art, folk music, drama and sculpture, when presented by interested students.

There is great variety in the amount of material presented to stimulate conversation. The kitchen is operated and managed by experienced student help and serves various types of coffee and teas.

However, due to the large amount of our involvement in the operation and management of the coffee house, it is open only on Friday and Saturday evenings. Also, coffee house lacks many of the fancy trifles that a high-society place has, but it does provide an atmosphere for communication of ideas, art, music, and literature.

The "Well," at 816 S. Illinois Ave., should be a combination of the "Coffee House" and the "Well." I have often there, I have exchanged ideas. I strongly urge Mr. Ayer and other interested students to stop by and try it out.

Seal Is Good—A-'Maze'-ingly

To the editor:

Despite initial adverse opinion, may I offer my whole­hearted support to the proposal of Mr. Mifflin's effort in creating a most symbolic seal for Southern.

It is difficult to believe it today but there was a time when one could capture with one iconic puzzle the representation of the symbol that has slowly grown, along with the red tape, an administration, acrott, and back to advisers.

I admire, too, the maze-like qualities of the "Maze" which the "rocky road of General Studies" may represent that one must travel to reach his major.

Yet I must be barely scratching its symbolic surface.

Robert E. Strell: Mr. Strell, you would have admired the levels of meaning suggested in the void of the center or core of the symbol. (And he spent 20 years on one poem like wasn't nearly as symmetrical).

Tulips: Why do we, why don't we make the council endorse razing that Old Main eyesore and doing it all over. It shouldn't last another century. That building could have surely outlived their usefulness.

Why, you still have a Maid in the House of Representatives. Who needs irvy when we have HIHs, HIJIs and other teaching machines somehow took out of place.

In a word, sir, I'm 100 cent in favor of updating the University and making it become to mean. And if a gray-haired alumnus should return to Southern and learn that Old Main and the seal, we'll say that it's "a step of progress," old man. Geometric sunbursts are really much better and obviously represents two camps?"

Languages Come First For U. N. Kids

School Molds Internationalists

It was 9:30 in the morning inside the assembly room of the United Nations, with representatives of the United States, Russia, Great Britain, China, India, Israel, and Ghana. Several hands were raised for the first time, and from time to time a few words were exchanged in English or Russian. The meeting had not come to recognition of either a question or an answer. Although it might seem like this, it is not a description of one of the 13 international schools in New York City. But that isn’t far off. It’s a scene from Miss Quinlan’s first-grade class at the Manhattan International School, the school whose character is as international as the United Nations.

According to the director of the international school, Demond Cole, the purpose behind that character is “a school aimed at training international citizens.”

The international citizens who are being educated at the school are primarily the children of those connected with the United Nations, the children of the secretariat members, the clerks, and various other U. S. international civil servants.

“Officially,” Cole pointed out, “though 30 per cent of the school’s enrollment is made up of children whose parents are connected with the U. N., and though half of the membership of the Board of Trustees is selected through the United Nations, the U. N. contributes to the financing of the school.”

The financing, and the development of the school, is the responsibility of the Board of Directors and Trustees, and the administration of the school is the responsibility of the director.

Established in September of 1958 as a “nursery school garden” by tenants of a private school, the international school has grown since then, and now provides the opportunity for an education that extends from primary school through high school, and to the children of the city. The school is open to all students, and to the children of the city. The school is now a permanent site.

There is a continuous debate over whether that new school should be built. The new school will be part of a proposed 13-building development project. The city will lease the site from the International School for $4.95 per year for 99 years.

The 25th Street site emerged as the place where the school would be built. The new building will allow the school to increase its enrollment by two-thirds, from 205 to 1,000 students. This will bring changes, and better facilities, even in some cases the multicultural character of the school will remain the same.

The intention of the school is to be a place where children of those connected with the U. N. can be educated, and will be educated. Although about 28 per cent of the school’s enrollment is from Manhattan neighborhoods, the school has been hard-pressed to find placed for the children of those officially connected with the United Nations who want their children to attend school. Increased accommodation will therefore provide a solution to this.

The Great majority of these U. N. children, according to Cole, “are going to be private, and parochial schools.”

The educational received at the International School is different from that received at the city, private or parochial schools. The program is one “that cultivates an open-ended attitude,” according to Cole. “The children here,” said Cole “pay little attention to prejudices. They’re tolerant of each other and each other’s differences.”

Racial conflict and uninhibited sex provide the formula for much of today’s fiction by the current crop of Negro writers. James Baldwin is an example and this first novel by Rosa Guy follows the same pattern of sex and cartoon phrasing.

Violence, his photons of poverty, discouragement and hate, is the basis of this story. As it has been one of the recent novels by Negro authors. Through the eyes, dreams and frustrations of Wade, Williams, the author, seeks to make the reader understand the kind of a world that Wade grew up in and the hopeless life for those who long to escape.

It is in vivid, unemotional writing. The reader almost feels the heat of the tones, the smell, the drums and the poverty.

Readers by Charles C. Clayton

Department of Journalism

Mrs. Guy’s protagonist was born son of a half-white father and a mother who was forced to her knees in the cotton fields and never succeeded in getting off them. Wade’s sister, Faith, whom he admired and trusted, his scheming brother, Willie Earl, and the others in the story are flesh and blood reality, as is the tragedy of Wade’s own life, twisted not only by poverty but by the violence of his service in World War II.

It is not a book for the squeamish. The four-letter word is used frequently, even in the age when the use of the word is looked upon the idea of realism. This way, it will be the way the people of the story talk and act, the suspension remains that the average reader will not find whatever sympathy might be engendered for those doomed to live and die in Harlem.

The author came to New York City, not directly from Trinidad when she was forced to grow up in Harlem, amid what she calls the "dicing up of big city life." Went to night school after her marriage, later studied at New York University and helped write stories for the Harlem Writers Guild.

She displays an undeniable talent for writing, but in this reviewer’s opinion, at least, she, like other writers of the Harlem scene, needs to learn that restraint that is essential in an ingredient of realism.

SIU, British Students' Debate Labeled Comedy Hit of Year

By Tim Ayers

The debate between SIU and British students Tuesday night was a big joke.

For what developed was a comedy hour of the first order. And the audience loved it. John Hartley-Brewer and Richard Fang, both distinguished debaters, found a eager and enthusiastic audience and took full advantage of it.

The question debated was "America Has Moved From Barbarism to Decadence Without Passing Through Civilization." Presenting the negative side were SIU debaters Ronald J. Hrebena and John W. Patterson.

Fang Mckeen introduced the members and explained that the debate would be conducted according to parliamentary rules rather than those normally used in American debates.

He explained that parliamentary debate allowed for a certain degree of harassment, both verbal and formal.

Hartley-Brewer began by presenting the grievances of Queen Elizabeth to her subjects in Illinois.

He said that he was glad to be visiting Egypt and spoke by phone to Renay Miller. He said that American decadence was both sexual and material.

But he then spent a great deal of time on the former, which seemed to be a favorite topic of conversation.

To better demonstrate how decadent America was, he gave his impersonation of a presidential press conference.

In the spirit the president solved the problem of poverty in the Appalachia coal mining areas.

The government had decided to replace the nuclear submarines with coal-burning submarines. These would be sold to the British, he said.

Patterson got an ovation from the audience for his representation of the secret services of the British government.

He then spent a great deal of time on the former, on envy.

The insults, jokes and puns flew back and forth for about an hour. After the debate there was a reception in the Seminar Room of the Agriculture Building.

It was evident from the applause and laughter that the audience had almost as much fun as the debaters.
British, North Vietnamese Hold Meeting in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government made direct contact Wednesday with Communist North Viet Nam after Soviet leaders refused to join Britain in promising a peace.

On Wilson's orders, Lord Chalfont called on Lee Changh, acting head of Hanoi's diplomatic mission here, for a talk on possible moves to end the Viet Nam war. Chalfont is Britain's disarmament minister. He accompanied Wilson on his trip to Moscow, British sources reported.

Chalfont and Lee spent much of the afternoon together. It was the first time a British minister had engaged in direct exchanges with an accredited representative of President Ho Chi Minh's government since large-scale fighting flared in Viet Nam a year ago.

Few details emerged beyond the fact that both Lee and Chalfont described at length the conflicting East-West approaches to peacemaking.

Wilson was portrayed as detecting a glimmer of light in the situation. He was encouraged that Lee had been authorized by Hanoi to meet Chalfont at all.

He had hope the meeting, which had the foreknowledge of Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, may be the start of a dialogue that could lead to better things.

Wilson feels the British public, and left wingers within his own Labor party, will appreciate his quest for peace.

To some extent, Lee's reception of Chalfont was a welcome development for Wilson, for he had got just about nowhere in his attempts to persuade Kosygin and his top colleagues to join Britain in reconvening parties to the Geneva conference of 1954 to act as a forum for peace.

Kosygin, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev have neither a direct interest in a disengagement free zone where even conventional arms should be controlled. This, if accepted, would bar the region to Britain's Cyprus-based bombers, U.S. Strategic Air Command planes in Libya and any Polaris submarines the Allies may choose to deploy in the Mediterranean.

Wilson affirmed British interest in a disengagement of East-West ground forces on both sides of the Iron Curtain and an area of arms control in middle Europe. But the pre-condition would have to be that the existing balance of power would have to remain unchanged. He also talked of ridding part of Europe of nuclear weapons.

Teenagers Deny Dynamite Prank

CHRISTOPHER (AP)—Two Christopher High School students were held today for questioning about a prank involving dynamite. Police said two other youths were to be Queried.

Police Chief Herbert Silkwood declined to identify teenagers who he said denied having placed seven sticks of dynamite in a school superintendents car Tuesday.

The explosives were found with a note telling of a bomb in the school. Silkwood said there was no bomb, and that the stunt evidently was a prank.

In Washington, White House press spokesman Bill D. Moyers said, "I think the President and Mr. Meany get along very well together," and, "I'm sure the President will meet again with Meany at the first opportunity."

Tuesday's squabble was over how much of a minimum wage increase Johnson will propose to Congress.

Maritime union leaders conferred with Wirtz privately after serving notice that their threatened boycott which could affect hundreds of foreign ships entering U.S. ports might begin at any moment.

"We wouldn't want to telegraph our punches," said President Joseph Curran of the National Maritime Union. Earlier, President and Chairman of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department had said the boycott would not come for another three weeks.

But Wednesday, "We agreed with Curran, who said, "We might not give any notice." Wirtz declined to comment on the boycott threat, which raised serious diplomatic problems for the Johnson administration. On the political front, indications were that the Johnson administration on Tuesday's sharp exchange between Wirtz and Meany had cleared the air and alleviated any threat of any imminent rupture between labor and the White House.

FLOOD AT ROCK ISLAND—The Mississippi River, backed up by a 10-mile-long ice jam, is shown spreading over a riverfront park at the edge of the business district in Davenport, Iowa. The river level reached 18.63 feet Tuesday afternoon, the third highest level on record.

Boycott of Allies' Ships Threatened by Unions
Senator Happy Over Decision

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. Otto Kerner’s chief legislative critic expressed pleasure Wednesday that Kerner was not calling a special legislative session and said their differences have decreased.

Sen. W. Russell Arrington, Republican majority leader, contends the state’s budget is balanced. Kerner at a Monday news conference said it has a $68.8 million deficit. The special session would have dealt with bolstering finances.

Heretofore, Kerner and Arrington disagreed not only on whether the budget was balanced but also on a number of factors involved in figuring the budget. It was in the latter area that Arrington said Kerner’s latest figures showed the Democrat and Republican camps to be in less disagreement.

Arrington said the Republican position was bolstered by Kerner statements Monday that:

"The general revenue fund balance at the start of the 1967-68 biennium was $79 million. Republicans have said it was $100 million. However, Arrington said Kerner’s latest figures show the state’s budget although it has shifted, has been interpreted by Republicans to be $76.2 million, and this is what they use in budget computations."

The state will have about $82 million in unexpended appropriations on hand at the end of the biennium July 30, 1967. "He agreed with us and gave us better," Arrington commented. "We estimated that at $74 million."

Tax Boost Is Aimed At Inflation and War

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed by a 146 to 140 Wednesday a $5 billion tax boost bill sought by President Johnson to fight inflation and help finance military operations in Viet Nam. The bill, which passed the House last week, was designed to increase corporate income tax collections current, raise $1.5 billion; and charge $3.5 billion to the national debt for two years.

Senators approved the bill to meet a deadline for a Friday deadline when the Senate was to adjourn until January.

Arrington said the Senate bill would be on hand at the end of the biennium July 30, 1967.

"He agreed with us and gave us better," Arrington commented. "We estimated that at $74 million."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. W. Russell Arrington, R-Ill., proposed Wednesday that political campaign contributors be given tax breaks to encourage more small donations to candidates and parties.

About 800 students, including 200 at the Edwardsville campus, are working under the program, designed primarily to provide financial assistance to students from low-income families. Regional Tournament Invitation
Will Be Given Indiana State

By Bob Reinecke

One of the three vacancies for the Great Lakes Regional to be played at SIU may be filled today when a formal invitation is extended to Indiana State.

The announcement was made by David Price, an NCAA official, in a telephone interview. Price said Indiana State would be invited and would play in either the regional here or the Midwest Regional at Grand Forks, N.D.

Price also said he would not rule out the possibility that the Great Lakes regional, set for March 4 and 5, could include both Indiana State and Evansville even if it were to happen, the Great Lakes Regional council will certainly be the top two teams in the country since SIU, Indiana State and Evansville are ranked in the top 10 by both wire services.

Indiana State, which was beaten 98-89 by Evansville Tuesday night, tied the Aces in the NCAA tourney with the Salukis, has a 15-12 record. Indiana State and Evansville are ranked in the top 10 by both wire services.

Price said the regional field would definitely be filled no later than Friday. The three teams yet to be named will be selected by the Regional Invitation Committee, Price said.

The three teams will be named by a selection committee headed by Edward S. Steitz, athletics director at Springfield (Ill.) College. The field for each of the nine regionals is chosen by a separate committee.

Speculation earlier in the week was that Kentucky Wesleyan and Southwestern Oklahoma, which were also invited, would be included in the regional here. Price, however, said two of the three vacancies were still remaining.

Price said that only seven teams will play in the regional here, with ISU as the host team. Three of these are in the regional at SIU while two are from the Midwest Regional and one each from the Southwest and Pacific Coast Regionals.

Bar Athlete Can Run Rings Around 'em

By Joe Cook

Fred Dennis is a loyal football player. His basketball isn't much, neither and baseball offers little hope.

But today Dennis is on the way to becoming a sports star in gymnastics.

"I was unbelievably bad in most sports, but I think I look a little like gymnastics, or maybe it took to me," Dennis said.

As proof that he has finally found his sport, Dennis, only in high school, already taken over the top spot for SIU in gymnastics.

He is also coming along in high bar and in Southern's sec-cord best team, behind Rick Tucker.

His coach, Bill Meade, doesn't mind going out on the limb by forecasting a place

Dennis started gymnastics while a sophomore in high school in Waukegan.

Although he started on rings, Dennis took more of liking to high bar. However, his situation was soon changed, after Dennis started turning winning performances on rings. He was the Illinois All-School high school champion on rings his senior year.

Good ring men are always in demand and Dennis was flooded with tempting offers from such gymnastics powerhouses as Michigan, Michigan State, Iowa and Washington.

But he chose Southern, largely because he felt it was just a little better than the others.

A freshman Dennis competed periodically, but he topped off last season by winning the Class A title in rings at the United States Gynnastics Federation Meet in Nashville, Tenn., in April.

Dennis is still not quite satisfied with his role on Southern's team. He now has aspirations of becoming an all-around star, but he admits he still has a lot of hard work ahead.

"My free exercise routine is atrious and I'm not much better in long horse," said Dennis.

There are his two weak events, largely because Dennis has neglected them.

Still, in his first all-around assignment against Mankato State three weeks ago Dennis scored 6.6 in free exercise and 4.6 in long horse.

He admits he had little experience at both events.

Goals for this year? Well, Dennis first of all would like to top off the season performing for a championship team.

FRED DENNIS
for him on the 1968 Olympic Team.

"Fred has come a long way," said Meade, "and if he keeps improving, he should have no trouble making the next Olympics.'

There is also ample evidence that his recent successes on rings are responsible for his newfound self-confidence.

Once quiet and reserve,
Dennis has turned a complete about face, and is now acting like a gymnast.

"Gymnastics tends to draw out the personality of an individual," Dennis said. Joining Phi Sigma Kappa social fraternity may have helped too.

Woman Gymnast's Picture Prompts Proposal

By Joe Cook

Miss Dunham, a member of Southern women gymnastics team, has just declined an offer that will probably come her way again.

One of Miss Dunham's admirers in Brighton, a town just north of Alton, sent her a marriage proposal, via the mail.

He said he was "impressed with her beauty" in a picture with the rest of her teammates on the parallel bars. The picture recently appeared in several dailies throughout Illinois.

All Miss Dunham knows about her admirer is that he's a 5-foot-8 school teacher with a house and 30 acres of land.

"Letters like that are not uncommon," said the pretty 5-foot-4 brunette, "Many of my teammates get them quite often." Miss Dunham has thought over the proposal and once again the sport of gymnastics has prevailed over man.

... Johnson Replies To Policy Critics

there will not be a mindless escalation.”

Another question which some ask, is whether the United States is risking a wider war - perhaps with Communist China.

"And again the answer is "No," "he said, "never by any act of ours--and not if there is any reason left behind the wild words from Peking." Apparently directing his words to Peking, Johnson said the United States has threatened "no one, has sought the end of no regime--and will not in the future."

Johnson discussed, too, the much-debated question of the kind of government South Viet Nam will have in the future. "Washington will not impose upon the people of South Viet Nam a government not of their choice. Hanoi shall not impose upon the people of South Viet Nam a government not of their choice," he said.

"We will insist for ourselves on what we requested from Hanoi: respect for the principle of government by consent of the governed. We stand for self-determination - for free elections - and we will honor their result."

Johnson said also the United States is not neglecting "any hopeful chance of peace." He said American peace-seekers will continue their efforts undiscouraged.

He said he could not answer another question--"How long we must bear this burden."
