Chancellor's Sign Taken, Spirited To Edwardsville

By Dean Rebuffon

It's enough to baffle Sherlock Holmes. A classic case of "theft" by persons unknown: The Case of the Displaced Chancellor's Sign.

First, the mysterious phone call: John Rendleman, chancellor of SIU's Edwardsville campus, heard the whispered words:

"Perhaps you should thank Chancellor MacVicar for his sign."

And outside Rendleman's office, nearly hung on the wall, the sign: "Office of the Chancellor"-- only now Rendleman has two such signs, because the new one is from the SIU Carbondale campus.

Rendleman said nothing-- which had formerly graced the lawn outside of Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar's Carbondale office-- was placed on his wall "about 4 p.m." Monday. He telephoned MacVicar to inform him of his new possession and to offer "like a civilized man would"--its swift return.

MacVicar, who was unaware of the sign's disappearance until his Edwardsville equal phone, said the sign must have been "removed" sometime over the past weekend.

"I'm pleased that Chancellor Rendleman is offering--as a civilized man would--the return of the sign," MacVicar said. "If he doesn't return it, then I'll simply have to initiate the appropriate action to get it back."

MacVicar said that "some-one is carrying things too far. To have removed the sign, to spiral, for office decor--the University of Illinois would have done it, I'm sure. Perhaps--but to Edwardsville--never!"

He committed the daftly deed didn't even give the sign an opportunity to become fully acquainted with its Carbondale surroundings: it was placed in front of MacVicar's office on July 1, when the new chancellor assumed his present position.

Gus Bode

Gus says: any-way clever enough to steal the chancellor's sign and get away with it doesn't need a college education to be successful.

Campus Housing Units Filled for September

By Nick Hurd

All SIU on-campus approved housing for fall quarter has been filled, according to the University housing office.

The 6,000 spaces for men and women were reportedly filled sometime last week. A housing office spokesman said that all further on-campus housing applications are being referred to the Housing Information Center (HIC).

Students who renewed their contracts late or applied after the units had been filled are sent a notice by the HIC relating the inability of the University to provide on-campus living areas for them. The HIC also sends the students lists of approved off-campus housing and any other requested information on living areas.

This is the earliest date on which on-campus housing has been filled, according to Samuel L. Rimella, coordinator of housing and business services.

A check of off-campus, University-approved living centers showed that only a small portion of the contracts offered have been signed and returned for fall quarter occupancy.

Plains Leasing Co., which handles off-campus approved living centers, said that of its 991 individual spaces, 343 contracts have been signed for the fall quarter, leaving 650 beds to be filled.

Residence halls owned by the Plains Co. include the Pyramids, coed, 448 spaces; 600 West Freeman, 236 girls; Forest Hall, 160 men, and Egyptian residence hall, 147.

University City residence halls reported that of 960 living spaces, approximately 900 remain to be filled.

Wilson Hall officials were not available for comment.

During the 1967-68 academic year, the off-campus approved living centers received almost 700 applications for the "terrible year." Spokesmen for the centers expressed hope that the new school year will be more prosperous for them, but found it almost impossible to gauge.

Some of the changes in the on-campus residence capability included the addition of Brush Towers which hold approximately 1,700 men and women and the loss of Woody Hall for women, which is being remodeled.

The increased enrollment and the early filling of the campus living centers could signal increased off-campus occupancy or at least a percentage similar to last year's occupancy.

According to the SIU Catalogue, the present rules allow students to live in the state that all single male and female undergraduate students who have not reached the age of 25 years may apply for off-campus residence at any time of the year, subject to the approval of the Director of Housing and Residence Life. For the living space program, the administrator.

Gov. Shapiro Signs 'Emergency' Revenue Bill

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)--Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro signed into law Monday the bill permitting the state to borrow up to $40 million from the motor fuel tax funds to meet the state's impending financial crisis.

The measure, which provides that the general revenue fund pay back the funds by June 1, 1970, resulted from a series of meetings between the governor and legislative leaders of both parties prior to the recent General Assembly emergency session.

Shapiro told newsmen he considered the recent legislative session "neither a success nor a failure." He said he was "very disappointed" in his proposal to double the state police force to 3,000 men was not acted on but pleased that the emergency revenue measure and riot insurance bill passed.

He said he has signed the only two bills thus far certified by President Pro Tempore of the Senate, W. Russell Armstrong of Evanston and House Speaker Ralph T. Smith, Kewanee.
Cavalcade of Fun
To Attend Meeting

Eighteen students of the Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education with the "Cavalcade of Fun" will leave Carbondale Wednesday morning for the regional meeting of the Illinois Association of Park Districts at Niles.

Park superintendents and commissioners will attend the meeting.

The SIU students were invited to participate in this meeting to demonstrate and program their existing, mobile recreational facilities. Through demonstration and exhibition, the group hopes to encourage the park commissioners to adopt recreational wagons to use in their respective park districts.

"We hope to help them (park commissioners) to help themselves," said John Murphy, graduate student in the Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education and coordinator of summer activities.

The five wagons were designed and built by students as part of a class requirement although the idea of educational recreational wagons is not new.

Little party dance wagon, arts and crafts wagon, puppet and marionette wagon and a nature wagon. These mobile facilities have been in use at the summer Lincoln Recreational Park program sponsored by the Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education.

They may also be used in an educational environment as well as parks districts.

The group will also present a workshop seminar with lectures and slides demonstrating the facilities and programs of the wagons.

Last year, slides of the wagons were presented at the national convention of the Association of Park Districts at Washington, D.C. More recently, the wagons were exhibited at the National Camper and Hiker Association convention at DuQuoin, Ill.

High-Perched SIU Students Suspended by Administrators

Two students were suspended from school after they were discovered studying on top of the Schalles Hall, one of the two new high-rise dormitories in the Brush Tower complex.

Assistant Dean of Students Joseph Zalecki said the students had recently entered SUU on probation and were taking only eight hours. He said...

Bulla is hoping to explore with Yugoslavia participants in possible areas for cooperative research in the broad area of rural education.

Gary's Mayor Sets Curev

Gary, Ind. (AP) -- Mayor Richard G. Hacker reformed curfew as a precautionary measure in this predominantly Negro city beat by two series of sporadic, violent clashes.

The curfew will be in effect Tuesday from 9 p.m. to 9 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

The curfew takes place in connection with the outbreak of rioting in Chicago between the extremes on agricultural policy, foreign policy, and social welfare.
Home Ec Opportunity Available to SIU Men

Men at SIU continue to invade the field of home economics.

According to Miss Phyllis Bubnas, assistant dean of the School of Home Economics, "men are graduating in fields where women used to be the only ones."

The Department of Home Economics has a summer enrollment of about one-third of what it is during other quarters of the year. Presently there are 11 undergraduate male students, and three graduate male students enrolled.

In addition to the requirement for specialization, the men must take the same core of home economics courses as the women. These areas include family living, child development, management of family resources, and consumer problems. These courses are designed to meet the objectives of the School of Home Economics—personal development of each student, and preparation for home and family life.

Of the 58 seniors graduating in June, 1968, eight were men. Seven of these students specialized in interior decorating, the other one in merchandising. Men may also go into dietetics or institutional management.

According to Miss Bubnas, of the eight spring graduates, one is in merchandising, one is managing a flower shop in Carbondale, one is an interior designer with Illinois Bank Building Corporation, one is a display assistant, two are teaching, and one is in graduate training.

The occupations these men go into vary. Some of the fields graduates have entered are food and nutrition, clinical and industrial research, commercial restaurants, hotels, food services, public health and welfare departments, hospitals, retail store merchandising, interior decorating, free lance designing, display consultants and architects, building manufacturers and magazines.

Miss Bubnas noted that some firms which have offered jobs to graduates in the past often leave standing offers for future graduates. Firms also offer present students summer jobs in their related fields. This field experience is required by the department and enables the student to spend hours of credit toward his degree.

Arbitrary Act 'Disturbing'

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is directed to Vice-President Ruffner and Chancellor MacVicar.

The Saturday (20 July 1968) Daily Egyptian contained a front-page story concerning you gentlemen and your handling of a situation arising from a demonstration held in the University Center on 2 May 1968. It seems to me that the course of action that you intend to pursue is a disturbing one and one that should concern all people connected with this potentially great University. To begin with, if the Illinois Criminal Code has been violated, and the Jackson County State's Attorney is aware of that fact, then I do not believe that it is necessary for anyone to "initiate" a "complaint" for law-enforcement officials can act. If a law is broken, the law-breakers are arrested. Secondly, how did you determine which of the 30 or so participating faculty and student members were to be disciplined? Was the selection as completely arbitrary as is implied?

Surely you have some ideas on who the other participants were and hadn't action been taken against them, also? Or do you feel that eleven "examples" (guilty) will purdue others to stay "in line"? In an institution as large as this one, some allowance has to be made for differences of opinion. And those who choose to break the rules must expect to be punished, to be sure. But this punishment, or the decision to punish, cannot be arbitrary—as it seems to be the case. Every decision must realize the possible consequences of his decision—and that they cannot be arbitrary. People are to respect and adhere to them.

W. D. Baum

Reprisal Like 'Big Brother' and '1984'

To the Daily Egyptian:

The situation is ridiculous, frightening and smacks of "Big Brother" and "1984." I am referring to the actions taken against students involved in the May 2 demonstration in the Student Center.

1. Why the inordinate delay in taking action on the part of the administration? Why a two-month investigation period when Dean of Student Affairs Moulton was present during the demonstration? Didn't Dean Moulton see and hear enough to make some sort of verbal or written report which could have been acted upon sooner?

2. Is there any substance to the idea the action was deliberately not taken until the Summer Quarter?

3. Was the photograph published in the Daily Egyptian used to determine which of the demonstrators were charged? Why some and not others charged?

4. Were the students involved more "wrong" than the involved faculty members? If so, weren't any faculty members publicly charged with some action?

5. Is the administration afraid of justifying the actions? If not, why won't anyone publicly state some basis for the actions? Why are the people who might answer the questions either away on vacation or noncommunicative?

The whole drama seems to stack up in this manner: A demonstration witnessed by one of the top administrative officials...a published picture...a run for the magazine glass...a list of names...a decision about the reaction of the students and faculty...filling the list of names...activity on campus and time to make a point...pulling out the list...typing some letters...and, like the proverbial Araba, slipping away in the night.

Rick Houlberg

Machiavelli's Prince at SIU

To the Daily Egyptian:

It remains to be seen what are the methods and rules for a prince as regards his subjects and friends. And as I said, that many have written of this, I know that my writing alone may be deemed presumptuous, differing as I do, especially in this, from the opinions of others...Therefore it is necessary to the Prince, who wishes to sustain himself, to learn how to be good, and to use this knowledge and make use of it according to the necessity of the case.

And the prince, therefore, must not mind incurring the charge of cruelty for the purpose of keeping his subjects united and faithful. With a very few exceptions, he will be more merciful than those who, from excess of tenderness, allow disorders to arise, from whence spring bloodshed and rapine; for these, as a rule injure the whole community. It is also very profitable for a prince to give some outstanding example of his greatness in the internal administration...When it happens that some one does something extraordinary, either good or evil, in civil life, he must find such means of rewarding or punishing him which will be much talked about. A prince must also show himself a lover of merit, give preeminence to the able, and honour those who excel in every art. Moreover he must encourage his citizens to follow their calling quietly, whether in commerce, or agriculture, or any other trade that men follow...Besides this, he ought, at convenient seasons of the year, to keep the people occupied with festivals and shows...be ought to pay attention to all groups, mingle with them from time to time, and give them an example of his humanity and munificence, always upholding, however, the majesty of his dignity, which must never be allowed to fall in anything whatever.

(From "The Prince" (1513), by Niccolo Machiavelli)

Robert Shelton
Study and Internship

17 End Agriculture Course

Seventeen southern Illinois high school and junior college agriculture teachers will start their duties this fall with some new ideas about vocational agriculture education after completing a four-week summer agriculture industries course at SIU.

The program, called Agricultural Industries 512, combined two weeks of on-campus study with another two weeks of off-the-job internship work in agricultural occupations related to their anticipated teaching fields. The project, directed by Thomas R. Stitt, assistant professor of agricultural industries, was supported in part by a $20,150 grant from the Research Coordinating Unit of the Illinois Board of Vocational Education and Rehabilitation.

The aim was to try to answer the growing need for farm persons who are to go into agricultural occupations other than farming. Stitt said reports on 1968 agricultural occupations manpower requirements in Illinois show need for 16,737 persons, but only 2,200 of the jobs are in production type agriculture. The remaining 60 per cent is in fields of agriculture other than livestock and crops.

The growing opportunities in nonproduction agriculture has led to expansion in high school vocational programs and to including agricultural occupations programs in the increasing number of junior colleges being formed in the state. These newer courses of study include such areas as agricultural supply and business, agricultural mechanization, agricultural reclamation, agricultural production, ornamental horticulture and forestry.

Stitt said the expansion presents a two-fold instructional problem: lack of teacher experience in the occupational fields, and failure of teachers with past experience to keep up with the rapid changes occurring in agricultural occupations.

Leaving by doing always has been an integral part of vocational agriculture instruction in schools, hence teachers need a practical working knowledge of the occupational area they are serving. The summer internship project was set up to help these vocational agriculture teachers to better step into the latest agricultural occupations training program.

More Comedy; Simon Style

By Dean Rebuffon

We're in for another taste of "Comedy, Neil Simon Style" here at SIU. We had a sample of the popular playwright's work recently with the Summer Music Theatre Company's production of Simon's "Sweet Charity"—now we have his "Barfoot in the Park."

"Barfoot in the Park," the final production of the Department of Theater for the 1968 Summer Playbill, will be presented in the Southern Playhouse of the Communications Building, Thursday-Saturday, Aug. 1-3, with curtain call at 8 p.m.

The play, directed by Sherwin Abrams, associate director of the Department of Theater, will feature a fresh, new cast. Of the six cast members, only two have been seen in minor acting roles here at SIU. But as Abrams says: "The cast is new, but it's a talented one. We had tryouts for 'Barfoot' in July, and 50 people showed up. I had 13 different auditions before I decided on six cast members, and the six I have are very good."

The six, Faith Mellen, Fro­ stie Lathbury, William Ham­ mack, Donald Ludwig, Ter­ ence Lamute, and Robert Jacobson are involved in what parking lot shut for Construction

Mantle Leave Yanks? It's Sacrilege!

By Bob Orman

Copley News Service

It was news to warm the cockles of the heart, like July in Yankee Stadium: a deal that might quite possibly keep baseball's most beloved hero and the New York Yankees together for years to come.

"We'd never let Mickey go to another club," declared team president Paul Burke the other day, as if reassuring that the Yankees would never allow a wave of the hand, a gust of wind, or the bobble of the head to part them from their beloved hero who togs.

An impudent reporter had wondered if the Yankees intended to pay the $500,000 contract arbitration fee. From Burke's outraged reaction, you would have thought the K-Girl had attacked motherhood.

"He'll finish his playing career with the Yankees, and when that time comes, he'll continue to be a beneficial member of the family in one capacity or another," stated Burke. "It's unthinkable for Mickey to be anything else but a Yankee.

Music, maestro—a chorus of Yankee Doodle Dandy, please.

Sentence isn't a dead word in the Yankee lexicon as the heart transplant.

It's tremendously difficult, though, to convince the cynics that club owners might be motivated by more than profit and a loss state of mind.

The skepticism delight in dragging the Babe Ruth skeleton out of the closet for the joke. The Bambino, recalled Barry, propelled the Yankees to seven pennants and four world titles in 15 years while in Boston. The triumphs did not show up in the batting average, but the heart, the bravery.

They also try to make something out of the facts that Joe DiMaggio, when interrogated about why he didn't take a job as coach of the Yankees, replied, "I never was asked.

The question came up when DiMaggio accepted a position with the World League as vice president, and coach, but the critics forget that Joe continues to be paid $50,000 for 15 years after he turned in his uniform, with no concrete duties at all. The Yankees probably just didn't have the jobs to offer.

But the cavaler way in which the Boston Patriots created a couple of their characters, Tom Athol, and Babe Parrilli, was the most damaging blow to the DiMag, because from Scoopeng put the knock out.

Linebacker Athol, who under the knee surgery during the off-season, patterned away all spring for the arrival of his contract match, but the malman never rang. Finally, Tom was to management to point out the over sight, only to learn that he never had been forgotten—he just didn't fit into their plans anymore.

It's pure coincidence, I'm sure, that Athol was founder and first president of the American Football League Player Association.

Back to DiMag. He's earned run average in 21 career innings. He has now beaten every team in the league at least once. In his fourth year he has accomplished the rare.

The year Dean won his 30 games he didn't collect his 10-year contract Aug. 7. Lefty Grove had a 31-4 record with the Philadelphia Athletics 1931 to become the latest American League to post 30 victories.

Everyone, including quarter back Parilli, has assumed that he would eventually join Mike Holovak's staff as back field coach. After all, Holovak several times had testified for the public record that the Kentucky Babe had a lifetime job with the Pats. It came as no less a mild surprise, then, when Holovak swapped Babe the New York Jets for Mike Taliaferro.

Burke's promise to provide forMike's old age could be a small gesture that he already has arrived at that plane.

I should imagine Burke considers a $100,000 salary too low. He and Mike's agent, and a slow but a natural as a Bandit, will decide the eight-place team can ill afford.

If and when New York hopes to escape the second division, it ultimately must turn to youth, so why not now?

Following the All-Star game, in which he struck out five men in one inning, Athol was quoted as saying he felt "tired" and "defeated" and might retire unless his play improved.

Later he reconsidered: "It's too soon to tell.

Mantle has been declining for several seasons (he hasn't hit .300 since 1944), and it is a sad commentary on the state of the game today that some consider his current .237 average as respectable.

You can say the same about Mantle, who once was as feared as a Sandy Koufax curve, doesn't really surprise.

For him, the game isn't fun anymore.
Two Clear First Barrier
To Olympic Team Berth

By Barb Leebens
Two LSU male gymnasts hurled a major obstacle in their path to a berth on the U.S. Olympic team this past weekend when they finished among the top 10 competitors at Natchitoches, La.

The Salukis are Fred Den- nis and Mark Meade, who placed ninth and 12th respectively. Dennis received a score of 103.20 in the all-around competition, only two-tenths of a point from a sixth place finish, necessary for a spot in final competition for an Olympic berth.

Fourteen men chosen in "Lousiana will then advance to pre-Olympic trials at Penn- sylvania State University on Aug. 9-10. The top six finishers at the Louisiana meet will go directly to the finals in Los Angeles on Aug. 28-30. Among the 14 semi-finalists at Penn State, Dennis and Tucker will have to finish in the top six to go on to Los Angeles. Both groups of six will then compete in the finals in Los Angeles. Only eight men will be se- lected to represent the U.S. in Mexico City.

"I think that both of the boys could make the finals with a little more work," said Bill Meade, LSU gymnastic coach and manager of the U.S.Olympic team. Dennis was only two-tenths of a point out of sixth place, and with 12 exercises necessary for qualifying, the scores are bound to change."

Intramural Office Lists
Latest Team Standings

For Softball Program

Standings for the teams participating in the intramural softball program have been announced by the SIU Intramural Office. The first round of the A division and the A division leagues is nearly complete while the 16-inch division, which does not play a second round, has concluded.

Forest Hall (4-1) has clinched the top spot in the A division, while The Probables are 3-2 and 2-3, respectively. The teams will advance to the runner-up spots.

In the B division of the 12-inch leagues, Microbiology and Psychology are tied for first with the top two or three teams to tie for the lead. There are no games remaining.

With three games to be played in the first round, Politicos leads the C division with a perfect 4-0 record. Ka- line Commons must win the final game of the round and Poli ticos drop their final game in order to share a spot of the league lead.
