Ogilvie responds favorably

Students should have voice in budget

By Chuck Hatchcraft
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD — Governor Richard B. Ogilvie was said to have responded very favorably to the suggestion that students, either directly or in an advisory capacity, have a voice in higher budgetary matters. During a meeting Thursday with members of the Illinois Board of Higher Education's Student Advisory Committee.

Tom Busch, SIU representative on the Student Advisory Committee, said the governor also reiterated his earlier statement that members of the press would not accompany Mitchell Ware, superintendent of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, on any raids such as the one conducted in Southern Illinois last month.

Busch said the committee members told Ogilvie it was "advantageous" to allow students to either advise or serve on a committee "on matters of scholarship, grants-in-aid, loans and work study programs."

The committee referred to by Busch will be created primarily with regards to bill HR-1761 pending in the Illinois House. The bill requires graduates from state universities earning $7,000 or more to pay $500 within 15 years after they graduate. This amount is to be added to tuition and fees.

Busch said the committee would study ways of financing higher education rather than by tuition and fees and perhaps lighten the financial burden on students.

Ogilvie, Busch said, commented that Ware "has been advised that the press not accompany the Bureau on any raids of that sort in the future."

Busch further said the governor asked to meet with the Student Advisory Committee members again in a month. Ogilvie felt that such meetings were helpful in measuring student attitudes, Busch said.

Busch said this month's meeting accomplished a little more than the meeting a month ago, which the governor held to discuss tuition hikes and budget matters.

Bernard Jackson, chairman of the Student Advisory Committee, Ted Downey, Sangamon State representative to the committee, and Ken Mushaff, Eastern Illinois University representative, were the other committee members along with Busch who met with Ogilvie. The University of Illinois representative, Bob Winters, was not present.

The SIU Board of Trustees is aiming for a target date in late August to complete procedures to find a new chancellor for the Carbondale campus. The new procedures, with or without a confidential document, will almost totally eliminate student participation in the search.

According to the document, prepared by a member-board committee, students will not be specifically involved in the process until the date the Board has already established for making the final decision.

James Illinois is chairman of the Board committee, revealed Thursday that the chancellor search has been worked out, but that he hoped to have a policy within two weeks. He said the board should like to see it work out.

Efforts to find a new chancellor, which have been going on for over a year, broke down last month. The Board could not find acceptable candidates, but wanted to continue the search.

Busch said the Board has received several excellent recommendations. He added that the Board will welcome all responses. He said that no cut off date has been established.

An earlier campus committee, which did have student representation, presented a list of candidates for the job.

Some sources have said that many of the persons recommended for the job asked to be withdrawn from consideration. Several candidates have withdrawn because of uncertainty over the function of the chancellor's position in any new administrative organization.

Elliott said recently that since the search began, the job description has changed considerably. He said the chancellor originally worked under the president. Now the chancellor is a member of the University Administration Council, a six-man group responsible for University operations.

The council's structure is scheduled to be reviewed in June by the Board for further possible change.

The Board's quest for a new chancellor began in January, 1970. Original efforts to secure a replacement for Robert W. MacVean, now president of Oregon State University, began under the direction of President Emeritus Delyte W. Morris.

Morris traveled extensively last spring interviewing candidates, but apparently turned up no acceptable choices.

The closing of the University in May and the subsequent administrative shakeup skewed the selection process considerably.

When the announcement came early in May that the Board was again seeking candidates, Board members said a new procedure for involving the campus would be announced. No formal Board statement was ever made.

Elliott and Board member Martin Van Horn met with the original campus committee in what apparently was to be a secret meeting. The Board timetable stated that "a press release should be prepared on the meeting because the news will probably leak.

Word did leak and the Board released a statement. The University News Service also released an announcement of the meeting.

Apparently the Board's procedure, which Elliott claimed had not been determined, was decided well in advance of the initial Board announcement.

According to the timetable, which has not been publicly discussed or released by the Board, a screening committee will be formed on June 10. The committee will consist of representatives of the Faculty Council, student body, administrators, department chairs, deans and faculty. No graduate or undergraduate students were specifically named to have representatives on this committee. It is possible that a student could be chosen to serve as the representative for a group.

The timetable states that during July, the chairman of the Board committee will meet with the chairman of the screening committee to review all information that has been forwarded by applicants. At this time all candidates who do not meet the "mandatory standards" will be eliminated. The so-called mandatory standards have never been made public.

Orchards attract pair

Indian officials come to SIU

By Teresa Haus

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Southern Illinois apple orchards have attracted Y. S. Parmar, chief minister of the state of Himachal Pradesh, North India, and Mrs. Satyavee Dang, a member of Parliament, to visit SIU and Southern Illinois for three days during their trip to the United States.

Mrs. Dang's father, an American, was the first to introduce the apple to the Himalayas. The apple is now the greatest economic product of Himachal Pradesh.

Parmar said the apple is the "golden trust" of India. He said the red and yellow delicious apples they grow have helped to change the economic condition of India.

Apples, the most expensive fruit in India, can only be raised in limited areas between 5,000 and 6,000 feet high in the Himalayas. Parmar said apple orchards cover 800,000 acres of land in India.

Mrs. Parmar and Parmar are very interested in plant and fruit breeding.

Fuller key to success: do your own thinking

By Darrell Aheria

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Take one small, mild-mannered "genius" and one large, attentive SIU audience, add an un-acquainted session with R. Buckminster Fuller.

And you've got a convoluted session that Fuller thanked everyone for inviting him to his "face area" since he never prepares a lecture.

Fuller holds the honor of being a SIU distinguished speaker this year.

Fuller, who made history by explaining how he acquired some of the ideas that have earned him national prominence, once said "I used to have trouble because I listened vigorously to what others thought I should do, which Fuller said "Sometimes I didn't feel comfortable with what I was being told."

Then he realized what might be considered the key to his success. Fuller said he decided to do his own thinking.

"If there are no boundaries or limits to one man's thinking, he is not taught," Fuller said. "He doesn't make you a hero or especially unique, but it is something big corporations can't do alone, he said.

Fuller said his first successful work was his brainchild theory of "doing more with much less."

Another concept lead to the geodesic dome which has been built in 50,000 locations in 50 countries. Fuller said some of the dome he is proud of is how he said he himself, are adapted to hold large snow loads, withstand tornadoes.

Fuller said the Arena weighs 30 tons too big and took too much time to build. "But society is preoccupied with conventional building ideas and legislation don't take into account the need for new notions," Fuller said:

"And I'm not the only one," Fuller said. "In a family of children, I'm the only brainiac breaking out."

Fuller said people consider Fuller an optimist, but "I believe that what we have today is an unbalance in one way or another."

But I am convinced that the earth can accumulate a large number of people with a high standard of living and I'm convinced when Fuller said.

Fuller admitted that some of his "design revolutions" won't spread too fast. He said he is equitably on the negative aspect of the new ideas and can see why they are not all accepted.

He said his career brushed into his own life. "I never talked unless I was asked and I only say what I'm convinced must be said."

The audience promisised that I would never use blasphemy or be obscene Fuller said. But when the talk was over and the audience was asked if they wanted more say, Fuller said.

"Our senses are not set in tune with our sciences."

After the question and answer session Fuller grabbed the microphone again and thanked the audience. Your concern is what really counts. Only can we bring us love and life, he said.

Extension of draft law to spell political trouble

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Tuesday voted to extend the one-year draft law to June 30, 1972, leaving the Army Secretary open to the very beginning of a national election campaign.

But the chief sponsor of the one-year draft law, Sen. John F. Kennedy Jr., D-Mass., who voted for a vote June 4, said that the way it is used. "It should be part of the dialogue in an election year," said Sen. Richard G. Schweiker, R-Pa. "That's why the democratic process is to work."

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, raised the question that would have the draft law to expire in a campaign year would be better handled between what is called the "a red hot issue."

It would be the more so since Congress has tried to extend the right to vote to Americans 18 and older. That makes the average age of voting age for House, Senate and presidential elections.

Now in the process of being ratified by the states, it would make an estimated 8 million young citizens eligible to vote.

Senators James Eagle, D-Mo., who has already proposed an amendment to extend the voting age to 18 for Congress, said Wednesday they would register for the draft.

"It is the only way to help 18-year-olds to register to vote at the same time they register to fight," Eagle said.

The House has passed a two-year draft law extension to that period.

Later the Board committee will interview the remaining candidates and reduce that list to between 10 and 15 persons.

Beginning in August, the Board committee and the screening committee will make their first interviews. After this process the list will be cut to between one and 10 persons by the entire Board, which will then be turned over to the screening committee. The screening committee will interview the remaining candidates and decide if those remaining candidates receive no further consideration.

The Board committee will interview the final group.

Board seeks August date to select new chancellor

According to the Board outline, the negotiations with those interested groups, will be made on the same day.

Board members are also scheduled to make Final decision on that day.

The Board committee will meet at 10 a.m. in Chicago Friday. Announcement of the meeting was made through the University News Service.

The purpose of the meeting is to hear the candidates pertaining to the purpose of a chancellor for the Board.

According to the news release.

It is expected that the Board may interview a candidate not easy for a coming.

According to the news release, the Board will be closed to the public.

Board seeks August date to select new chancellor

"You will have an election in terms of form and the way it is said," he said in an interview "I think the volunteer Army has the best chance of being born next year."

Schweiker said if an all-volunteer force is proven impossible, and advocates of the draft prove the need for another extension, he believes Congress would enact whatever the political climate.

"If they show the need, the members will rise to national security needs," he said.

Schweiker said the 1972 elections should be no liability in considering the draft.

He said Congress doesn't hesitate to deal with some affecting other groups of Americans during election years, acting, for example, on medical care and other measures affecting the elderly.

Schweiker said it should be the same with the draft.

"What's immoral about making it part of the political dialogue? he asked.

While the Senate overwhelmingly rejected Domineck's 18-month extension, that could be the ultimate result of a House-Senate compromise. That prospect would arise if the Senate voted the one-year extension, then split the difference with the two-year House bill.

Stineman said an 18-month measure would be the worst possible. It would make the draft due to expire Dec. 31, 1972, when it should be easy to act on such a difficult issue before election day.

The final 18-month certainly means a last-ditch session of Congress to act on draft legislation next year.
Successor needed

Morrison wants two-campus administrator

Editor's note: This is the second of two stories about former SIU President Dwight W. Morriss, in this issue. The first story, "Morriss: the impact on the campus," ran in the Reporter on Wednesday, March 4, 1969. The second story contains information not previously published, particularly in connection with Morriss' appointment as chancellor of Illinois State University Normal.

By Darrell Ahern
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

President Emeritus Deytie W. Morriss has not been invited to have a successor—one administrator in charge of both campuses.

"I think the force of the University in educational and legislative circles alike will prevent a successor from being named if it ceases to be a unity. If striving develops between the two major campuses, I think it will inevitably weaken the institution," he said.

This is a personal judgement, Morriss said. Since taking the president emeritus post Sept. 1, Morriss has remained completely away from administrative duties.

Morriss said he has not attempted to follow the operating aspects of SIU at the administrative level, "To do so would take my time and it would appear to observers that I was stepping up and still trying to hang on."

Morriss said he believes the present administration is doing a "very good job," but he thinks the University should take some time on how it will be set up and "get out of the ad hoc kind of business."

"How soon this can be done depends on those closely following the situation," he said, "and that's the Board of Trustees."

Morriss said there are several reasons why SIU has not named a permanent chancellor. One is "considerable study and personnel of the University" and another is the recent change in composition of the Board of Trustees.

Once the new Board members become acquainted with the University and its problems, they will be more at ease in selecting a new chancellor, Morriss said.

The new Board members seem to be well prepared, he said. "I feel a very fine Board will emerge from the presentation meeting."

"But important decisions must be thoroughly considered before any commitments are made," he added.

The University House, a critical issue during the last year of Morriss' presidency, is not set for anything but a "wild card" decision, Morriss said. "I think it would be a very sad thing to build it into some inefficient, or even an inefficient operation in view of the fact that it was deliberately designed to be a special task."

Morriss said if SIU does not have a president again, then the two campuses will operate independently and a systems president could occupy the following position.

He said any city-SIU campus an- nexation agreement should contain "separate clauses" to assure the campus to Monticello to break

136 year tradition

GODFREY, Ill. (AP) — Monticello College's outdoor auditorium opened yesterday with a 1969-70 opening day with the graduation of 136 young women.

The 230-acre campus is being taken over by the Lewis and Clark Community College, a two-year institution, to begin this fall. The college will move its main campus to the old Monticello campus next year.

"And this is not to say it's bad. It's simply to say that it's there," Morriss said. He added that a university is a place for debating, pursuing and influencing for change.

"But when there's resort to violence, interfering with the right of other people by any kind of force—moral or physical—then it doesn't make sense any more. It's just antiethical to all that a university stands for."

"When we politicize a university and have segments of the university engaging in strong arm techniques of one kind or another, it becomes just exactly comparable to gangster days. You get what you want done by making people do it. And that's the law of the jungle," Morriss said.

He said many demonstrators would be aghast if they would stop and objectively look at their actions. "Just how do they jive with persuasion in individual rights and freedoms?"

Morriss said.

Bakalis: Illinois faces challenge

By Elliot Tempkin

Habakaiid's Illinois faces a great challenge in the '79; to help improve the quality of education in the schools, according to Michael J. Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction.

Speaking Wednesday night in a program sponsored by the Rehabilitation Institute with the cooperation of the College of Education, Bakalis said, "We face the problem of renewing institutions.'

Bakalis said, "We are attempting to look at something elusive." Bakalis said
"We lack understanding of what institutions are all about." Institutions include such things as the family, school and church.

The new Illinois State Constitution has a new potential for new changes dealing with education, according to Bakalis. It states, "We will educate people to the limits of their capabilities." It goes on, "The primary responsibility for financing education is a state responsibility.
Bakalis said that was a very important addition.

Many people, Bakalis said, have the wrong attitude about what education should be. "We know that every person can go on in other places aside from the public school," he said.

Learning can take place in the job training. Vocational and career opportunities must be given to young people, he said.

Bakalis explained Senate Bill 1018 which asks for extra money for state schools to be distributed in an equitable way.

Poor areas, such as Caro, would receive quite a bit of aid. While wealthier areas would get less.
Bakalis said that all school districts should get at least a 5 per cent increase in funds.

Some programs which Bakalis said he was optimistic about are experimental schools, programs of educational TV programs and the formation of a state board of education.

A task force was appointed Wednesday to recommend ways to prepare teachers for these jobs.

"Institutions need renewing" is the title of a new book which explores what Bakalis described as the changes in housing, business and general studies requirements. The six-page letter is sent to parents of S.U. undergraduate students who are single and under 21 years of age, but other parents can receive the letter if their names are put on the mailing list, Miss Hunter said.

This can be done by contacting the dean of student services office at Building 'A', Washington Square.

The first newsletter was put out at the end of fall quarter with graduation and winter and spring quarter newsletters were mailed during the middle of the quarter.

Response so far has been very favorable to the newsletter, Miss Hunter said. She indicated that numerous other universities mail similar newsletters to parents of their students.

Bakalis said that aid should be given to parochial schools for the widening of quality instruction in public schools.

"If one child isn't allowed to reach his capacity, we are all losers," Bakalis said. "There is a presently a revision of the school code in process. We are engaged in an ever-growing, vigorous effort to bring about equal educational opportunities to the state of Illinois.

Carbondale, Illinois 62903
May 1971

Dear Student:

Congratulations to you who are completing your education. Your achievement exemplifies sacrifice and determination and the wisdom of a favorable decision. As you weight your future and new career, one of your major decisions will be transportable and economical transportation.

We at Epps would like to be a part of your future. Arrangements have been made with a local bank to provide a new Volkswagen for you for a modest down payment. We believe we can obtain financing for any graduate who has a firm job offer or a signed contract. Also, this may include a 60 day deferred first payment thus permitting you to drive all your income starts.

What are the benefits? As a graduate your funds will be needed for transition. Your plan will help meet your needs by providing the transportable transportation in the interim. This is particularly beneficial to new teachers who do not start on the job until September.

Also, Volkswagen still has the two year, 24,000 mile warranty.

For complete details, visit us. Ask for one of our salesmen. Dick Boyer, Lee Jones or Sam Rich.

In closing, we would appreciate the opportunity to serve you. We offer our congratulations and our best wishes for continued success in your future endeavors.

Cordially and sincerely,
Opinion

No more cars, please!

The Parking and Traffic Advisory Committee's new recommendations may look good in blueprint, but they don't have a very realistic foundation.

The committee's report to the chancellor suggests allowing sophomores to register and drive cars on campus. An earlier recommendation was to lower the price of parking decals. These are democratic and high-minded ideals. But how practical are they?

This year the University sold 12,466 decals for 7,885 parking spaces. Since a great number of these spaces are in the Arena lots and few drivers want to park so far away, the battle for parking spaces close to campus raged all year. Rush hour traffic clogged the city daily. The situation does not promise to improve next year, even without the new proposals.

The committee says it wants to see what effect allowing sophomores to have cars and lowering the decal prices will have on the campus and the city. The effect can only be disastrous. Liberalized restrictions and lower prices will encourage more students to drive cars on campus. Not only will the approximately 5,300 sophomores be free to have cars, but upperclass students who in the past declined to buy the high priced decals will be tempted by the lower prices.

More cars will mean more traffic congestion, more accidents, more fights for parking spaces, more tension and more pollution in the air.

With a comprehensive bus system now operating in Carbondale, the committee cannot even argue the necessity of driving cars to reach classes.

The report will go to Chancellor Robert G. Layor as soon as it is completed. He can approve, change or reject it. If he views the traffic picture realistically he will surely choose to reject it completely.

Africa Day Celebration was a separate event

To the Daily Egyptian

As an executive member of the African Student Association at SIU, and one who participated in arranging the recent Africa Day Celebration program, I would like to correct errors that have been consistently committed by one of your special writers.

The Africa Day Celebration was not part of the Black Unity Festival that was taking place over the weekend and thus did not "climax" the latter occasion. The Africa Day program started on Sunday, May 23 and ended on Monday, May 24, independent of the other festivities that were going on.

The consistent misreporting of the Africa Day program into the Black Unity Festival is erroneous. The Africa Day program was co-sponsored by the African Student Association and the Black Student Union. The Black Unity Festival on the other hand, was sponsored by the Black American Studies, and there were no plans agreed upon to incorporate the Africa Day program into the former program.

Student offers his name for new football stadium

To the Daily Egyptian

With talk for a new football stadium at SIU, it is about time somebody comes up with a name for it. And since I have contributed $30 for a stadium fund through the payment of an athletic fee, I think I have the right to submit a name. The name I then submit happens to be my own. Robert A. Friedlander of course with the word "stadium" after it.

Almost all of the buildings on this campus have been named after University presidents (yours), parkinson or faculty members (Wham, Lawson). It seems silly that these buildings are named after people who are or were employed by the University. Why not name some buildings after the paying customers, namely the students? A building could be named after the student who has been here the longest trying to get a bachelor's degree. Or a building could be named after the person who has set a record for attending the most University Convocations. The least the University could have done was name the new journalism wing after Gus Bode.

Faculty names used for buildings are dull. A building with Delvyt W. Morris name on it doesn't prompt me to recall any fond memories of him. But a Waid Frazer building — now that would bring back quite a few memories.

Finally, this letter was prompted by the $17 graduation fee I have just paid. I had to pay to get into this University and now I have to pay to get out. It may be true that I have received an education (some people are apt to question that) but what else? In four years I haven't even gotten a rubber basketball or football at the Sahab games.

Now that I have officially submitted my name to be used as a title for this new football stadium, all the University has to do is build one. I'm 23 years old now, but by the time this stadium is built they'll probably have to name it "Robert A. Friedlander Memorial Stadium.

Anyway, if the University refuses the suggestion I have made, maybe the SIU athletic department can send me a little rubber basketball along with my diploma this June.

Unreported cases help VD spread

By Mike Collins
Student Writer

A former venereal disease investigator for the Jackson County Health Department says that a possible epidemic in Jackson County is due mainly to doctors failing to report cases in the health department.

Lynn Berry, the area's first VD investigator since the health department was established 25 years ago, said in an interview that the male's "irresponsible nature" in reporting cases is another prime cause in the spread of the disease.

"Many doctors in this area think they're punishing their patients by reporting them to the investigator," Berry said.

Doctors fail at reporting

Doctors are reluctant, he said, to report cases involving other adults and high school students. Cases involving low-income people or "happy types" are more likely to be reported because "they most likely won't pay the bill."

"Actually they're doing more harm to their patients than good," he said.

Berry also said that doctors, "being in curative medicine, are sort of anti-public health because that is preventative medicine."

The doctors don't want the state telling them what to do. They're afraid the state will lead them into socialized medicine, another name for preventative medicine.

Conflicts help disease spread

"Because of this there is a big conflict in the United States today between private (curable) medicine and preventative medicine."

Berry said that if there were 100 per cent cooperation between the doctors and the VD investigator, the disease wouldn't be anywhere near the problem it is today.

However, there are bad investigators who don't do what they should—keep everything in strict confidence and not get "involved" in the cases.

Berry said that doctors are supposed to report not only cases of VD, but of all communicable disease such as influenza or diabetics. These diseases, Berry said, can spread to epidemic proportions if not reported to the health department.

Doctors, males are prime culprits

Berry also criticized doctors' ignorance of VD, contending that a lot of doctors don't have any follow-up procedure for VD cases.

"A patient can be treated with penicillin and not come back to the doctor at all," said Berry. "Well, how do you know if that damage was enough?"

Males have a lot to do with the spread of VD, Berry said. If a male has a girl friend but contracts VD from sexual contact with another girl, he usually won't report the disease for fear his girl friend will find out that he had sexual contact with another girl.

"Males are very irresponsible individuals when it comes to VD," Berry said. "Many times, when a male has wasted possibly a year to have sexual relations with a girl and he gives her VD, he won't report the girl and will probably not see her anymore."

Names cause another problem

Reporting rates of VD cases to the state health department is another barrier in stopping the spread of the disease, the former investigator said. If names were kept "in strict confidence" between the doctor, patients and investigator, the spread of the disease could be checked.

Berry said the state health department uses the reported cases for statistics only. He said names are not needed in the reports filed in Springfield.

"Don't wait for lab results"

When an individual suspects he has VD, Berry advised that he see a doctor right away. He should not wait for lab results.

"This goes back to the doctors again. Most doctors will not treat a patient who suspects VD until the lab tests are back. They are mostly afraid of a malpractice suit being slapped against them."

Berry said that this is bad because, particularly with females, the disease will not always be detected in the lab tests.

In most cases the females involved are not promiscuous, Berry said.

"Many girls will come to college and have their first sexual contact," said Berry. "In many cases girls will contact VD from this first contact."

Prostitution, on the other hand, is only about 5 per cent of the problem in VD, Berry said.

"If you're a guy, I would rather see you go into a bar of prostitution because at least those houses are legitimate owned. These people have access to drugs and have their own doctors. Consequently, the girls are in top physical shape."

Schools, doctors seldom receptive

Berry said the best way to stop the spread of venereal disease is through education. However, he said that while working as a VD investigator, he had trouble in schools and doctors.

"I had asked many schools to let me talk to students," he said. "But many education administrators wouldn't let me because they were afraid the parents would get mad at them."

Berry said he was able to talk to only two school organizations in an investigator's role.

"I also had trouble talking to doctors as a group," he said. "I asked the director of the county medical society if I could talk to the doctors at one of their meetings. We did turn out that their meetings are nothing but social hours."

Of 328 cases that Berry handled while working as a VD investigator in Jackson County, four involved syphilis. He said his job would have been twice as hard if more people had had syphilis because the disease has a latent period when there are no outward signs of the disease. This "quiet stage" can last for 20 years or more.

"However," said Berry, "more people have the disease than statistics show mainly because of this latent period."

Syphilis makes job harder

Berry said 80 girls died last year from gonorrhea, the number one venereal disease in the United States.

Gonorrhea is a painful disease that, like syphilis, is spread through sexual contact. It causes pain and discharge in both sexes, and can be caught from toilet seats, towels or drinking glasses. Its symptoms include itching and burning of the sex organs and a discharge of pus. The disease usually goes unnoticed in women. Berry explained.

If gonorrhea is not treated, it can cause sterility in damaging the sex glands and can lead to arthritis, heart disease and death.

Penicillin sometimes fail

As in treating syphilis, one penicillin shot is not enough for effective treatment of gonorrhea, according to Berry. Many strains of the disease are resistant to the medication.

There is another factor involved with the penicillin cure problem. Effects of the medication can be counteracted if the patient drinks alcohol, a carbonated beverage such as a cola or beer, within 48 hours after receiving the shot. The same is true of smoking tobacco or even marijuana. Medications that the patient is already taking can also cancel the penicillin's effect.

Unfortunately, Berry said, many patients don't take their penicillin and use their own oral antibiotics.

"Because the symptoms quickly disappear after the first few treatments," he said, "the patient may think he's cured of the disease before he really is. In a lot of cases the patient will give the medication to the person he or she has had contact with. But usually, that medication isn't enough and the patients still have the disease."

When gonorrhea was confirmed in a case, Berry said he attempted to contact the patients concerned. Berry said every case involves at least three persons—a first source, a second person infected and a new patient infected by the second.

Illinois holds dubious honor

Berry said that in 1970 Illinois was second in the nation in reported gonorrhea cases. The average in Illinois is 412.2 per 100,000. Berry estimated there were 792 cases of gonorrhea in Jackson County in 1970. This was projected from the 328 actual cases that he investigated in the eight months he worked for the health department.

According to Berry, only one of every eight cases of gonorrhea is reported to public health authorities. He added that any doctor who thinks he may have the disease should report it to the University Hospital Service for diagnosis. Some patients may go to local doctors, but sometimes the private treatment may cost close to $50 and what's unsatisfactory.

In January Berry's case load was unreported.

Since Berry's termination May 1, William Ross has taken over as Jackson County's VD investigator. Berry said he quit the position to work on his master's thesis on VD investigation. Ross called a scheduled interview to see if he could work on a survey for the Jackson County Health Department.

Only 85 cases were reported.
‘Secret lobby’ hits military spending

By Ray McLaugh
Chief, Washington Bureau
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON--Congress has a "secret" lobby within its own ranks that is beginning to deal punishing blows to the defense budget.

Most of those in "Members of Congress for Peace Through Law" have identified themselves one way or another, but the organization itself refuses to make public its roster.

"Members agreed not to publish any lists," says Ronald Tannen, a staff consultant, "because it makes them outside pressure and makes it more comfortable for men in both parties to work together.

But most members have identified themselves and we may decide to publish a list later this year.

Primarily composed of liberals, the MCPL is currently concentrating in six major policy areas, but it is alerting activity concerns military spending and the U.S. commitment in Vietnam.

It originated the stop the war amendments designed to force President Nixon to withdraw all American forces from Vietnam by the end of 1971.

Although the small Massachusetts Avenue office declines to give its membership a precise membership figure, it did tell one Democratic congressman that it has 47 in the House and 29 in the Senate. These include at least four would-be presidential candidates: Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, and Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif.

A 1976 Congressional Quarterly poll turned up 46 members.

AFROTC to canvas area; Proceeds go to Free Clinic

Members of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) and its Angel Flight will be canvassing the Carbondale area throughout the day Saturday for the Carbondale Free Clinic.

The drive is sponsored by the Ar- male Air Society, an honorary organization of ROTC cadets. The students will be collecting pop bottles and donations with all proceeds from the drive going to the clinic.

The clinic is a nonprofit organization staffed by professional medical personnel who provide free medical service to needy Carbon-dale area residents.

The clinic currently operates on Monday and Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., with the estimated cost for medical treatment at $2.80 a person.

Any persons wishing to help in the drive are asked to call 626-5500.

S. Vietnamese forces repel enemy attack in Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — A surge of heavy fighting in southern Cambodia was reported Thursday and South Viet- namese forces said they repelled a North Vietnamese invasion of the town of Smoal and four atttacks in two areas.

A Saigon military spokesman con- cluded that small pockets of North Vietnamese troops may still be in- side Smoal after savage fighting Wednesday and Thursday, but ad- ded that the battle for control of the rubber plantation town was ended.

Even as major ground fighting shifted to eastern Cambodia—the heaviest there in three months—U.S. warplanes dealt new air blows to the North Vietnamese just below the demilitarized zone on the north- eastern sector of South Vietnam. U.S. and South Vietnamese forces also reported killing 40 enemy troops in four clashes in the north- eastern quarter of South Vietnam on Wednesday. U.S. casualties were not given, but field reports said five South Vietnamese troops were killed and 23 wounded in the fighting.

In two raids Thursday, giant B-52 Stratofortress bombers hit North Viet- namese positions only a mile southeast of the DMZ, hitting at

Official charged with defrauding of government

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal warrant was issued Thursday charging a Negro alderman, who directs a plan to bring more minority group workers into con- struction fields, with defrauding the U.S. government.

Ald. Fred D. Hubbard, 41, has been missing since May 20 when it was discovered that more than $80,000 was gone from the bank ac- count of the Chicago Plan for Equal Opportunity that he headed.

Alleged shortages in the account also were investigated by the Cook County Chicago state’s attorney’s office.

Jack Schneiter, a first assistant state’s attorney, said results of the inquiry will be presented to the grand jury Friday in a complaint filed with U.S. Magistrate John J. Jarveo, a govern- ment attorney said that Hubbard supposedly forged a check on the Chicago Plan account in the amount of $30,000.

He said it was dated May 4 and was made payable to Hubbard, and deposited in the Amalgamated Trust and Savings Bank to Hubbard’s personal checking account.

The magistrate issued a warrant for Hubbard’s arrest.

Richard A. Makszak, an assistant U.S. district attorney, said the $30,000 check was one of 12 totaling $80,000 cashed by Hubbard between Dec. 14 and May 4.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, asked whether he had contacted Hubbard since discovery of the missing funds, told newsmen, “No, but I have an- swered my requests that he call.”

Fifteenth victim found in Yuba City slayings

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — The death toll rose to 15 today in the mass slaying at a migrant farm workers' housing project, pushing the total number of victims' bodies found in a prairie orchard.

Deputies continued to hunt for two possible victims.

In Ingham County Jail without bail was Juan V. Corona, 27, a farm laborer from Mexico who used to be a farm laborer in northern California growing region. He is charged with 10 of the murders.

Sheriff Roy D. Whistler reported he was at a loss to give a motive for the murders.

All the victims were white men aged 17 to 70 and their heads were chopped off in the orchard with a machete or heavy knife. Some were stabbed in the chest or cut behind the ear. All apparently were transients since only one had been reported as a missing person.

The bodies were found in three graves 5 to 6 feet deep, most of them scattered along a tree-lined path in the Feather River Special, including the 15th were found in orchards a mile east of the river.

Roy J. Van den Heuvel, the Butte County public defender, took Corona's case after he was formally charged Wednesday afternoon.

Later the lawyer said he is convinced Corona is innocent. Arraignment was continued until next Wednesday.

Officers arrested Corona at his $2,200 home in Yuba City early Wednesday without explaining what led them to him. He is a hunky man.

5 foot 11, the father of four young daughters. He speaks little English. Nearly all the graves were found on the 800-acre Jack Sullivan ranch where Corona had worked during harvest seasons as a farm laborer.

There is no record that Corona ever was convicted of a crime, but he was named in an $800,000 suit a year ago brought by Jose Romero Ray. He claimed Corona and his brother, Natividad Corona, severely beat him.

Science dilemmas plague consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — An advisory committee of university scientists said Thursday the Food and Drug Administration is beset by serious scientific problems that undermine effective consumer protection.

"There is no doubt that the agency is currently burdened with managerial and communication problems which are longstanding and widespread," the five-man panel concluded after a one-year investigation of the FDA. The study was commissioned by the agency's chief, Dr. Charles C. Edwards.

It currently faces enormous responsibilities for consumer protection and the public health but with limited resources, constrained perspective and little solid consistency in the public or medical and scientific establishments," the committee, headed by Dr. Roy E. Rettie, a professor of microbiology and animal pathology at the University of Minnesota and the Mayo Foundation.

It reported finding instances of demoralized and disinterested scientists, ill-equipped and overworked laboratories, lack of long-range planning and political interference in scientific activities stagnant middle-level scientific managers, serious deficiencies in outside research contracts and "serious lapses of discipline" among FDA scientists and their violation of the non-disclosure scientific community.

But the committee said that FDA scientists do an "extraordinary job in many ways" and the agency is moving to correct some scientific deficiencies.

FDA Commissioner Edwards describes the report as a "sound and helpful blueprint for changes he has made or intends to make.

Hefner 'gets out' on TV

By Don Freeman

CHICAGO — Hugh Hefner, the Playboy of the Middle-Western World, has been tagged the London Times as one of the 1,000 most important people of the 20th Century. "Hefner," the Times noted, "struck an answering chord in the American male...his fantasies became their fantasies."

Hefner credits this success to his genuinely American success story by Howard Alpert with a twist of Freud, in turn became reality. Here was Hugh Marston Hefner in the vast drawing room of his 44-room mansion—Windsor, the Los Angeles girl with excellent confirmation, an Playboy of the Year. She was talked by the 11 Playmates of the Month. They were Hot Pants. It was not.

Eunice and Emmanuel filled the air Hefner beamed. Newsweek lauded amply, for his fantasies were now, of course, our fantasies.

He is surprisingly shy, candied his different, a curiously private man who has become a public figure as a purveyor of pop seduction. And a many-sided figure, too. There is Hef, the magazine publisher. Hef, the publishing prophet of Flapper Clubs and resort hotels, producer of movies and there is also Hef the host on his "silly" syndicated "Playboy After Dark" series.

"Playboy After Dark"—also known as FAD—is the show where Hef and 10 close friends (10 girls and 10 guys) assemble closely for a supposedly impromptu party. The girls, incidentally, introduced the notion of Tex, a Hefnerian touch which just possibly does no harm to the ratings. There are those who contend that Hefner, facing the camera, is almost—but not quite—removed from the early Ed Sullivan. But Hef, after all, has to earn his money. He's going to tell Hugh Hefner how to relax? Why, I asked Hefner, as we repaired to the library, did he ever tire of television? But first there was his pipe to light—and to keep thinking. "The pipe," Hefner explained, "gives me something to do with my hands. It's a good prop. I guess I'm the best-known pipe smoker in America."

SIU student leads varied, busy lifestyle

By University News Service

Not yet 21, J. Steven Hayden already has had a varied career in the field of music, earning a master of fine arts degree in music at SIU Carbondale.

Since starting out as a preteen paper boy, he has painted houses, worked in the plumbing and heating business, and also worked as a sectioner in SIU’s registration center and as a student assistant in music and acted as assistant director for the University’s summer high school art workshops.

Currently, a graduate assistant at the School of Music, Hayden wears a variety of hats: he is a computer student, writes news releases on concerts and other activities, designs posters, brochures and flyers, maintains alumni files and helps prepare an alumni newsletter, escorts VIP visitors, designed and operates an internal placement service for graduate studies.

Meanwhile, in his graduate studies, Hayden played the 3.5 hour role, and participate in a number of the School of Music’s performing groups. In his spare time, Hayden Accordi

"Student Tones" – played in the marching band, symphonic band and stage band, acted as band librarian and stage manager for all the high school musical shows. But he said he’s never thought about it – he didn’t feel it was a creative outlet for his spring musical. Yet, he still enjoys the role – he enjoyed the role of the student in the student orchestra, where he directed the junior high orchestra and the senior high orchestra, and worked in other school activities. He was a 2nd violist for nine years.

He made the Indiana All-State Band two years and the All-State Choral two. He attended five summer music camps, two in Indiana and three sessions of SIU’s Music and Youth at Southern for high school students.

What did he value high school and qualified for the Little Orchestra for SIU’s Summer Music Theater two seasons, and continued for three more as percussionist.

As an undergraduate, Hayden played in the Marching Band and arranged music for the field band, and performed with the percussion ensemble, the brass and percussion ensemble, the symphonic band, and the wind ensemble. He also found time to serve as Student Union Activity Leader and on the Student Activities Programming Board.

But while still in SIU’s "student" role, he has had a few hobbies too—cooking, tropical fish, cooking carpentry, animals. And he travelled through much of the 50’s the East Coast, New England, South and Southeast as the Midwest.

Small wonder Meirvis’ former assistant director of the School of Music, calls him his "right hand man" and "very" able. "He’s had to replace to when he finishes his master’s and leaves the campus." Meirvis commented.

As for Hayden’s future, he is prepared to teach music, "but I’d rather go into music administration or some kind," he says. "I like the variety and the activities of administration.

Ogilvie thinks Senate stalling on major bills

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) - Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie said Thursday he suspects the Democratic-controlled Illinois Senate is deliberately playing action on major legislation in hopes it can be used for political bargaining as the General Assembly enters its closing weeks.

At a news conference, Ogilvie assessed the progress of the legislature and indicated a slight loosening in his stand on transportation, the issue some observers have seen as a potentially major sticking block.

Ogilvie said that in the early months of the session, the governor complained about the slowness of the General Assembly and, he added, "I’m now getting quite concerned.

“I have a concern, in fact I’ll say a suspicion, that some of these bills are not being given the political reasons in the Senate, perhaps for bargaining," Ogilvie said.

Police captain sees serious traffic problem

If sophomores are given permission to operate motor vehicles on campus, a bad situation will result, according to Robert L. Presley, chairman of the traffic committee.

Presley said an increase in accidents ranging from 1,500 to 2,000 would create "a very bad situation on and near campus traffic." A proposal has been sent to Chancellor Robert G. Layser that would allow students with 45 or more hours to operate motor vehicles on campus.

According to August LeMarchal, supervisor of motor vehicles there are now 13,326 registered vehicles, according to parking service. LeMarchal said there are many parking difficulties in Carbondale, and allowing sophomores to drive cars would not add a substantial amount to the problem.

Presley, however, said that with reduced fines, more sophomore drivers would be on campus "without adding to the sophomores' vehicles." Presley said more accidents would result from more cars and that traffic jams could occur during peak times.

Presley also said that security was opposed to an increase in vehicles, because of added parking and traffic problems. "If anyone thinks that more cars won't cause problems, they should drive on campus or South Illinois Avenue between four and five any afternoon," he said.

Moral, crime research called for by professor

By Gwendolyn Thomas Student Writer

Leslie T. Wilkson, professor at the State University of Albany, N.Y., said that hard sound research into the moral system is needed in a recent speech about linguistic ecology in Morvin Library Auditorium.

Wilkson said, "We should, as quickly as we can, stop saying a case is solved because we find someone to blame. We should be able to hear a case where society has found guilty and not the person found guilty who committed the act or crime.

According to Wilkson, "All current theories of crime agree that a criminal is an act not only committing an act, but also society. He said that people are still looking to concepts like blame and morals rather than looking for new concepts. Solving crime by blaming somebody is not the solution, he said. Society can judge that an individual is guilty only if society can find itself guilty, he add.

Kudrka tried to defect last Nov. by jumping from a Soviet fishing trawler to the U.S. vessel that had pulled alongside off Martha's Vineyard, Mass. In a decision that drew heated criticism and was condemned by President Nixon, Kudrka was found guilty and was returned to the Soviet ship by Russian seamen.

Mills rips revenue sharing

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — According to Chairman Wilber D. McDonald of the Committee on the concept of federal revenue sharing legislation, "the concept of revenue sharing and the other aspects of the plan which would help break down government against the independence of state and local government." The Arizona Democrat, in a major attack on the revenue sharing programs before a joint session of the Illinois House and Senate, attacked the plan for what he described as a Madison Avenue style Publicity campaign.

"I've never in the past found it necessary to turn in Madison Avenue techniques to give away something," Mills snapped. Mills' talk came in the form of a reply to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who pointed a glowing portrait of revenue sharing before the same assembly two weeks ago.

Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie, an early champion of revenue sharing under which portions of federal revenue tax revenue would be returned to state and local governments, sat placidly by as Mills tore into the plan in principle and capricious in its results.

Mills communicated on revenue sharing with a week a few days after a joint session in which the chairman, now the No. 1 Congressional foe of the plan has kept the legislation from the House floor.

Mills said he welcomes the hearings which he added would make certain revenue-sharing "many flaws and fallacies are exposed, and an enormous potential for destruction of local government is responsibly laid bare.

Mills said there is an "essential difference" in American government which critics who speak revenues and power of the government are the responsibility of the state.

Picking up on a phrase sounded by President Nixon in his state of the Union message, Mills said, "I am not yet ready for a new American revolution that would remove this discipline from those who spend the revenue."

Men and women equal in home ec courses

By Keith Rappaport
Student Writer

There is more to the School of Home Economics than boiling cookies and mending clothes. Courses are geared to both men and women. In the Food and Nutrition Department the ratio is five to one in favor of the former sex, yet the opportunities available in institutional management are unlimited for men.

Frank Koontz, chairman of the Food and Nutrition Department, said, "The idea that home economics immediately turns the men off but there is nothing feminine about making big money and serving in a supervisory capacity in institutional management or dietetics." He went on to say that the problem of male participation stems from a lack of awareness.

Henrietta Becker, lecturer in the Food and Nutrition Department, sees the lack of male participation as a great misfortune. She said, "The field of mass feeding is a relatively new field and there are many positions that must be filled all around the nation. SIU is one of the few schools that offer a four-year program in this. Yet very few men are taking advantage of it."

Mrs. Shirley Rogers, chief academic advisor for the School of Home Economics, said, "Those who have left SIU with the proper training have secured well-paying jobs."

She also said that complaints are common for a woman in her position yet there have been no complaints from men in the Food and Nutrition Department. Mrs. Rogers said, "They seem to like the courses and the social atmosphere."

A student in the Food and Nutrition Department, Keith Lake, said he left a well paying job at the space center in Houston, Tex., to return to school and take advantage of the opportunities available in the mass feeding field. Lake said, "People are always going to eat so the field of mass feeding can only get better as time goes by."

Lake also said that the men in the department seem to get special consideration from the faculty because there are so few men and that only a lack of knowledge and misinformation are keeping them away.

SIU film places second in national film festival

By University News Service

Another national award has been won by the Film Production Unit at SIU this time for the color film 'The Birch Canoe Builder.' The production received a Red Ribbon award for second place in the annual American Film Festival, held in New York City. It was entered in the recreation, hobbies and crafts category, one of 40 categories at the festival in which more than 700 films competed for prizes.

Earlier efforts of the SIU film makers have taken top awards in a number of American European competitions, including several Golden Eagle first place prizes from the Council on Nontheatrical Events, which selects the best American films each year for showing in foreign countries.

The 'Birch Canoe Builder' was photographed, directed and edited by W. Craig Hinde on location in Big Fork, Mont. It is a documentary on the unusual hobby of outdoor sleeping and naturalist Bill Hafeman. The art of birch canoe building once flourished among the Indians of the north country but now is so rare that Hafeman often is called upon to teach the skill to young descendents of the Iroquois.

The narrative of the film is by Hafeman himself as he demonstrates his art step by step and tells stories about the 'great wilderness' in which he has spent his entire life. "The Birch Canoe Builder" is of special interest to all wood crafters, as well as groups such as boy and girl scouts and organizations concerned with ecology. Prints of the 25 minute feature are available for a nominal rental fee from the SIU Learning Resources Service.

Consumers sue National Tea

CHICAGO (AP)—A consumers' organization filed suit in Circuit Court today to force National Tea Co. to make available corporate records it says the food chain has refused to release to shareholders.

In the suit, the National Consumer Union, NCU, said it and two of its directors own a total of three shares in National Tea and that shareholders are entitled to inspect the company's books and records of accounts, to attend shareholders meetings and to vote as stockholders. The NCU said the food chain refused access to this information and gave no explanation for the decision.

A spokesman for National Tea said he had not seen the suit and declined to comment on its charges.

The suit asks the Circuit Court of Cook County to order National of selling outdated food and inequitable pricing structures, and it wants to examine company records to pursue proposals they plan to present at the company's annual meeting next month.

It may be no exaggeration, after three hours' eveni ng parade, to con- tact you that if you take David Leans' last few feature-length films and stretch them out, the celluloid would stretch from the moon to Mars.

The man's stuff just keeps getting longer and longer. Although his budgets are supposed to be getting smaller and smaller.

"Bridge On the River Kwai," "Lawrence of Arabia," "Dr. Zhivago," the bibliography is impres sive. It is also massive. But now comes "Ryan's Daughter," as perhaps (and hopefully) the coup de Grace of the Lean Legend. No more lasting three hours and 36 minutes including intermission (though the version you will pay to see at the State has been shortened by half an hour) in those days. And "Ryan's Daughter" is a good place as any to call an end to the whole phenomenon in one sentence.

In actual fact, "Dr. Zhivago" would have been a better place, but like many, Lean just keeps rolling along.

He is in a comfortable position. For past favors, and epic box office success, he has come to be regarded as a critic and a dreamer, as the Man Who Can Do No Wrong. He needs only to put camera to subject to have someone out there im mediately recognize him as the Master of the Year, superlatives included.

The world has already gotten that for Ryan's Daughter, although the only reason the world now talks to Lean and Lean's particular trademark for epicism is that he has made a picture into a colorful, cinematic, already choreographed vision of a history of one kind or another.

Awards honored

Memorial award fund set up

By University News Services

A memorial award fund in tribute to the late Sherman F. Abrams, associate professor of theater at SIU for 36 years, has been established by the theater department and the SIU Foundation. Kenneth E. Miller, foundation executive director, has announced.

A $5 award and certificate will go to the outstanding student direc tor in the theater department, selec ted by both students and faculty. The first award, in the amount of $250, will be presented in ceremonies June 6, according to Wally Moneypenny, head of the theater department. Donations to the fund should be sent to the Abrams Memorial and Scholarship Fund, and marked for the Abrams Memorial Scholarship fund.

Abrams, 47, died last August 27, after a five-year illness during which he continued to be active in the theater department.

A native of Milwaukee, Wis., he had received the bachelor's degree in 1946 and the Ph.D. degree from the University of Wisconsin and had taught at SIU for some years at that institution's Madison and Milwaukee campuses.

He was also a frequent guest speaker and consultant for the Wisconsin State Garda Network and a director of the LaSalleville Little Theater.

Nuiis exactly how "Ryan's Daughter" would be better shortened.

The problem is, that by spreading-up things so far and wide, "Ryan's Daughter" makes it easy for us to realize that neither of these men is worth of his girl's affections. Neither marry modestly through it all, steadily, with Presence has only virility. And, apart from being a dreadful and shame in the throne of shrubbery. James is about as emotional as a block of wood.

In the end, everybody merely moves in, does not well, but worse. And if, in itself, that human drama really works. From Miss Miles, director Lean can draw a wonderful performance of sights and darks, of grunted hopelessness and womanly wise. And in this bleak and compromising village of Kerry on the Irish west coast, set on a rock above the wild sea, he has gathered up a collection of types, and cachet, and patrons that really are the whole guts of the thing.

As the village priest, with his nose and his heart in everyone else's business, Trevor Howard is heart rending in his humanity. As Rose's father, the fellow who cannot help himself has welding collaboration with lean. McKeown stands as an one of the indelible moments of this particular time and place. And at a few of his, as the English officer with the Welsh, a pathetic nobody, withering away at the thought of his own death. Gerald Six is masterful.

Two have left, that Lean had to overtake the cake. If there is some weakness of the overdrawn tragedy, it is in the occasional excess of horror he portrays. So, the world of this movie, Howard Gerald, Miles. A twisted mouth and nose, Miles makes the gentleman a superb patch of theater, technique, and for which he won an Academy Award for best supporting actor. Not as a symbol of worrying crack-wise through the drama, he is ridiculous.

Two scenes, though, underline Lean's mastery with epic choreography. When the townsfolk help Irish rebels to recover arms and ammunition from the sea in a roaring storm, the tension, the smashing surf, and the building patriotism of the drenched souls taking these lives, is sheer beauty and power. And when the same townsfolk brutally turn against Ryan's daughter amid adoration and wrongly as an informer, showing off her hair and tearing off her clothes. The moment is shocking in its intensity.

Mostly, though, "Ryan's Daughter" should be recalled for the people that inhabit this miserable little village, depicted as they are by the overreaching tenons of the times. When Ryan, and her husband go off to Dublin, driven off, the touch that Howard in particular gives to the farewell scene (and Ryan's goodbyes to her father too) is a very sad and grotesque, of respect, and hopelessness, and tender regard.

These two small moments are worth more than all the big moments Lean has determined to add to his panoply. A pity that this takes so long to get there.

Pan Am trials held today

A finish in the top 15 will put a girl in consideration for the touring team and does not make the Pan Am team.

There are 49 girls who have qualified for the most including five from Brownnam: Suzanne Hackett, Carol Donnelly, Claudia Cohen and Sarah Rossa will be representing the Saxhocks in the meet.

Vogel has hopes of placing all five of the two teams but is confident in the two girls that he thinks his girls are "as ready as they'll ever get for this meet."

After the Pan American team is selected, coach Doug Rose will conduct a three-day training session in the area.

The girls will be given two weeks to get ready to start at eight in the morning and work at 9 a.m. twice a week. "I think they're going to love it," said Vogel.

Although there will be no competition, Rose plans to have them on the track, the rules say that any time during the day they can practice and must be demonstrated knowledge of the course.

The coaches also adopted this procedure for their team selection, held in June, to force the more interesting for the coaches to make their cuts accordingly.

Each girl will have to go through each event twice, two events of each in some cases and not to run at any given time during the summer.

Students wishing to attend any or all of the training sessions to attend the group's are reserved exclusively for the coach and his family.

Official mum on new SID

SIU Athletic Director Donald Bostincik refused to confirm or deny a public report Thursday that the department has hired 27-year-old Glenn Lease of Oklahoma as sports information director.

Southern Illinois University sports editor Mike Shoff said in his Thursday column that Bostincik has given the assistant SID "a lot of respect" for his work Tuesday.

Report said there had been no official release yet on the subject and the school was "on the ball" when it came to "a release.

Vogel is an assistant at Oklahoma for the past eight years and played quarterback earlier in the quarter.

Having another two-month search for a successor to Fred Holm who resigned April 1.

Cincinnati trips Spartans
Southern stops Ohio U., 5-4

EAST LANSING, Mich. — The SUU
baseball team got its quest for the Dist:
trict Four baseball crown off on the right foot yesterday. Starting five run ners and adding five in the third inning to take a 5-4 vic tor over the University of Michigan, played out at John Kno.
bfield.

The midseason spring day, Cap cinnati came up five runs in the last of the ninth to erase a Michigan State 7-3 lead. The SUU batsmen totalled eight at bat.

The key hit of that game was Temper dor's one out single that scored for the second run of the day. Schmidt and Lentz also had two base bats against the tough tanding winning runs.

Cincinnati will meet StU at 1 p.m.
Saturday while the two losers will meet t at 10 a.m. The winner of the morning game will meet the loser of the SUU cincinnati game at 4 p.m. with the loser of that game being eliminated and the other two teams advancing to the next round.

Dick Langton went the distance for the Buckeyes, walking up his tenth vici of the season against one loss. The native of Carbondale scattered 10 hits on the way to the win.

Langton had a rough first two innings, giving up two runs in the first frame and one in the second before settling down to fan seven Ohio batters and throwing five hitless innings. Langton was so effective after the rocky beginning he only gave up four hits and one run the rest of the inning.

The SUU's opened their big third in ning against catcher Bob Sodik getting a single. Jack Liggett then followed with another single advancing Sodik to third.
With runners on first and third and none out, pitcher Langton grounded out the shortstop Mike Schmidt. Inning ending going for the force at second. Schmidt fired the ball home but failed to catch base for the out.

Mike Eden then followed with a single to center sending Langton to third and scoring Liggert.

The parade continued when Center fielder Jim Dwyer got one of his four hits of the afternoon, a single to right scoring Langton for the third run of the inning.

Dwyer was then forced at second by Bob Blackley who was serving action for the first time since SUU's three game sweep of Northern Illinois University.

The SUU right fielder went hitless in four at bats.

First baseman Danny Thomas forced Blackley, stole second, went third to on a bad throw by the catcher and eventually scored on Radisson's field hit.

Sandy Kipper kept the inning going when he was hit by a pitch but Radisson just got pushed out second base to end the frame.

Second Thoughts

NIU to Mid-American?

The Midwestern Conference is thinking expansion. True, it's a rather weak thought, but nevertheless present. A six-team conference baseball tournament has been planned for 1972-73, with a similar spring tournament ap proved for the following season.

That means three more league schools by 1974 or inviting outside universities to complete the field.

But league members believe more potential members, if it came to that, want to determine how long the present five schools will stay in the conference.

An article in Thursday's Chicago Daily News listed Northern Illinois as a possible future member of the Mid American Conference, perhaps by July 1.
