New Senators Attend Council

The Student Council was to have met at a regular meeting on Thursday night, according to president to represent the School of Fine Arts.

The last Thursday's run-off election Fred Rauch announced a three-way tie for fine arts senator and said another election would have to be held.

By default, however, one became the winner and was to have been seated with the rest. He is Claude Steterna, a senior.

Rauch said of the other two tied in the tie, "Larry Peters," a write-in name, named the registrar's office according to the Registrar's Office.

Margaret Barrels, who like Steterna said "Peters" received one vote, does not want the job, Rauch said.

Library Handles One Million Books

Circulation of Morris Library here passed the one-million mark for the first time which ended June 30, according to Elinore Stone, associate director.

A total of 1,048,819 books were charged out on an average of 13.4 per cent over 1961-62. Just 10 years ago, the library's circulation total was only 66,300, thus has multiplied more than 15 times.

The University library at the close of the 1962-63 fiscal year was totaled 77,725 volumes, including 55,892 here at the Carbondale Campus, 21,929 in the Edwardsville Campus.

The library officials are seeking a cooperative approach to the problem and added that Student Affairs officials, Security Office.

An advance registration is necessary, but students must bring their I.D. cards in order to take the test.

The Testing Center also announced that a Graduate English Examination, which is for all graduate students, will be given Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. in Furr Auditorium.

Text Rental To Graduate Students Ending

Graduate students were issued a reminder Thursday by Director of Libraries Ralph E. McCoy that in the longer will be able to rent textbooks beginning with the winter quarter.

Instead, they will be expected to purchase such books as are not for sale. Based on a recommendation by evaluators from the North Central Association, the decision was made in August by the members of the SIU Board of Trustees.

At the meeting of the Board, Charles D. Tennyson, vice president for administration, told trustees that many graduate students prefer to buy and keep the books required for their courses.

McCoy said in his announcement that the Textbook Service will continue to stock graduate textbooks, but that only Undergraduate textbooks also will be available to graduates on the same basis.

With the winter quarter, sale of textbooks to graduate students will be conducted on the campus of Morris Library, where textbooks will be returned at the end of this quarter.

McCoy said that within a year textbooks will be moved to larger quarters in the southwest corner of the basement of Morris Library. Access will be between the floor outside entrance to the building.

He also reminded faculty members that the deadline is Nov. 8 for notifying Textbook Service of the titles and number of volumes required for graduate courses to be bought during the winter.

2,500 Area Educators Expected For Conference

Approximately 2,500 visiting educators are expected this fall at the annual conference of the Southern Division of the Illinois Education Association, which meets at the Shryock Auditorium.

Last year’s representatives to the same organization numbered an estimated 2,600, many found it difficult to park.

John F. Dapore, vice president for operations at SIU, issued a request earlier that Carbondale staff and faculty members leave their cars at home and walk, thus easing the parking problem.

President Delwyte W. Morris will welcome the teachers when the meeting is called to order by the Southern Division president, Mrs. Grace Lingle of Anna.

A Vandalia attorney, Joe Dees, will follow President Morris’ welcoming remarks with an inspirational talk.

An Australian speaker, Malcolm Watt, will give a general sessions address, "Background to the Late News."

GREEK DIPLOMATS Poetry Wins Nobel Prize For Literature

STOCKHOLM

Giorgos Seferiadis, 65, a Greek diplomat, won the 1963 Nobel Prize for Literature for his lyrical, timeless poetry about his native Greece.

Seferiadis, whose pen name is Seferis, was the first Greek to win the award this year. The award is worth $51,158.

The B-member Royal Swedish Literary Academy noted that his poetic production was monumental but selected him for "his eminent lyrical writing inspired by a deep feeling for the Hellenic world of culture."

President Ahmed Ben Bella announced Thursday the Berbers rebel in the Kabylie Mountains, who have supported the Algerian government forces with the Algerian government in fighting the Moroccans.

In a radio address, Ben Bella said the agreement was reached in secret contacts with the rebel chief of the rebel forces, Col. Mohand Ou El Jad.

The government declared Monday that its forces were in flight before a powerful Algerian offensive in the Hassi Rubaid oil fields.

Ben Bella said the Berbers, who rebelled against his regime last month, will start taking stations Friday in the Hassi Rubaid oil fields, about 900 miles southwest of Algiers.

PILLS FATAL To Daughter Of Churchill

Sir Winston Churchill’s oldest daughter, who spent the last 18 months of her life working as an organist who brought 19th-century music to the despairing from committing suicide, has an honor for suicide in the House of Commons in the House of Commons on Thursday to have taken her own life.

A coroner’s inquest held that Diana Churchill, 54, ended her life with a heavy dose of sleeping pills last Wednesday.

Her nude body was found on the bathroom floor of her fashionable flat, where police also found empty pill bottles and a partly empty bottle of whisky.

The tragedy laid new grief on the shoulders of Sir Winston, who will be 89 in November, and on those of his recently ailing wife.

Lady Churchill, 76, only Wednesday returned home from eight days in a hospital for treatment of her cancer.

They have seen much unhappiness come to several of their children, including broken marriages and other tribulations.

Among those who testified at the inquest were Diana’s son and daughter by her marriage to Duncan Sandys, Britain’s colonial secretary, from whom she was divorced in 1960. They are Julian Sandys, 27, a lawyer; Edwina Dixon, 24.
More Teacher Training Scholarships Available

Several important changes in scholarships resulted from action of the 1963 session of the General Assembly, according to R. A. McGrath, SIU's registrar.

"The major effects of these amendments are to increase the number of teacher training scholarships available, to provide for uniform usage of the scholarships in the six state universities, and to restrict their usage in the type of educational training being taken," McGrath said.

The changes were by amendment to the article pertaining to scholarships, McGrath outlined them as follows:

The number of teacher training scholarships for high school graduates was increased, and two-year scholarships were provided for graduates of junior colleges. In addition, 15 per year may be issued to persons receiving high school equivalency certificates.

Teacher training scholarships may now be used at the University of Illinois as well as at the other five state universities.

County scholarships, previously limited to use at the U of I, may now be used at any of the six universities.

Teacher training, county and General Assembly scholarships are restricted to use only in the taking of residence work, Eliminated is the permission to use them in extension or adult education work.

Illinois military scholarships are now restricted to residence credit work or extension courses. Eliminated is the permission to use them in non-credit adult education work.

Essayist Says America Must Experience A Great Awakening

Reprinted From The American Scholar

By Robert L. Heilbroner

In an age when men have invented atom bomas and cities, an age in which war has become the norm and in which no one knows how or why it should be stopped, the talk of the seriousness of the future, I do not believe that most of us take the future very seriously. This is an age in which it has become a commonplace to say that we face "unprecedented challenges," as we describe them, are not really very impressive. We tell ourselves how grave the problems are and we go on to announce that in the end we will surely master them. It is only talk, an attempt at honest measuring-up. It is mainly talk, not action.

Not the Russians

As such it is trivial and dangerous talk, diverting our attention from the real problems. The truth is, Russia in the mid-twentieth century is in a sense no more a threat than any of the serious problems we actually face. Russia is very likely to exceed its ability to cope with them. And in any case, a system whose forces are such a defeat by the forces of Communism, it would seem, stands little chance, for its forces much more formidable than any the Russians can muster--the forces of two revolutions that are fundamentally altering the nature of the world in which we live.

One of these revolutions, so it is said, is occurring under our very noses and is only now beginning to be noticed. The other, whose repercussions may well affect us so little, is taking place in Asia. We are not aware of one to which we will ever return, in Continents and Countries, the characteristics of remote-place-names to modern awareness of an ancient modernity.

Self-Discovery

Nothing so gradate--and nothing so disruptive--has ever occurred in the Western world. The discovery of political identity and the generation of economic aspiration among people who have largely been passive members of a society that was for centuries Biblical times have literally opened a new era of history, the age of discovery.

Harshly, whatever, the outcome of the cold war--and certainly in the advent of a hot war--that critical period in the history of civilization in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries must increasingly reflect the emerging nations and societies of the hitherto quiescent "under-developed" world. We Americans tend to look upon this Great Awakening--one that we have been horrified to discover is lived by three human beings out of four--to learn from the more recent experiences of the children of the Near East and South Asia. We talk about the horses for undegraded grasses of oats that they can eat.

Pains Of Birth

It is only natural for us to wish for an end to such misery, and it seems likely that as misery ends, enlightened governments and ideas will begin to prevail. In the long run we can hope that the ambitions and political endeavors of a revolutionary Great Awakening will be justified. But in the meantime, it is my feeling that its prognosis has a very important fact about it--that it is revolutionary.

We forget that the long historic transformation to which we refer as "economic development" is a process of political and cultural climb. On the contrary, it is a wringing, destructive and bankrupt process. Every modernized society suffers death agonies and new societies the burdens of the old. This is not the case with our own industrial and primitive agricultural ways.

In Africa we see them as tribal societies seek to free themselves from entrenched white domination -- and even harder, from the stamping in of their own pre-industrial and primitive agricultural ways.

In Asia we witness the ordeal as the forces of the future fight against the old formations, of which 90 per cent of the population are involved in laborers and peasants, and in which only 10 per cent of the population are involved in laborers and peasants, and in which only 10 per cent of the population are involved in an unemployment.

Untapped Energy

In Asia we find the revolution pitted against poverty, illiteracy and population growth, all on a enormous scale.

In India, for example, some 300 million people are currently without jobs. India's present. Five-Year Plan is a plan that stretches her development abilities to the limit and, for all 10 million of them, by that time there will be 15 million additional Indians.

To bring economic development to India's societies in any very much a question of throwing the old, stodgy, intransigent agriculture out as to release untapped energy. The energies themselves must be released from the bonds that bear them steeped in age-old tradition must be made into productive social forces. If we allow unbiased labor forces to work in the factories, in the taxing of industrial tasks, in the corporate sector, we can make the Indian economy.

Bazaar-minded merchants and manufacturers, including engineers and entrepreneurs, must be made into productive social forces. If we allow unbiased labor forces to work in the factories, in the taxing of industrial tasks, in the corporate sector, we can make the Indian economy.

U.S. Not Untouched

The old orders, the landlords, the remaining imperialism, the aristocrats and petty nobility, the huge, evasive, insidious poisons, uncomprehending city workers, the so-called "intellectuals" and the power officials.

Science Prevails

Yet another symptom is the terrifying incursion of science and technology into our daily lives, carelessly rearranging our relationships of privacy and public, of the personal and the public, with nature, our security at work, and our leisure.

Still another symptom is the continuing malfunction of our social institutions. We are not yet Americans cannot find jobs. And perhaps most important of all, the same symptoms of serious ignorance and of our civic virtues, the same symptoms of fads and forms from dope peddling to income tax evasion is prevalent in our schools, the "missionaries" of the most striking sort, the reading of what is not only repeatedly revealed by the press. It is known that for the first time we find ourselves in an unaccustomed defensive position in the world.

Neither are we the leaders of a new world politics and economics, and yet the unaccustomed defensive position.

Socialism Rules

As the examples of Egypt, Ghana, Indonesia, Guinea--all show--not to mention Cuba or China--or democracy but socialism has been imposed by the world revolution, a world revolution, a revolution that has been imposed by the world.

Herein lies one of the great points of the power of the United States. For this revolutionary tendency of world history means that the first time we find ourselves in an unaccustomed defensive position in the world.

No longer are we the leaders of our world politics and economics, and yet the unaccustomed defensive position.

And this defensive position is complicated by a further development. The banning of the development revolution not only by doing political but also economic slogans, and they are painted in disturbing colors, not only by the colors of the men and women who paint them, but by the colors of the men and women who paint them, but by the colors of the men and women who paint them.

Not to put too fine a point on it, a new and a very serious development in a color revolution is a cold war. It will not be easy for a nation to discover the often subtle sensibilities of the colored world and the sense of self, which must be carried out by our numerous troops.

Rich Weber Sends 170 Pounds Scooting Through Enemy Lines

There's an old phrase that goes something like "dynamite comes in small packages..." and many accounts have been written which appear to bear out whatever truth there may be in those five words.

One of the players on SIU's football squad is doing his utmost to demonstrate the truth thereof, with a piece of pigskin and a few cleats as his only props.

Richard Weber weighs 170 pounds wringing wet, and at that weight is one of the two lightest men on the Saluki team. At 5-4, he is, by one inch, the shortest man on the squad.

These figures fade into obscurity just as soon as Weber gets his hands on a football and is told to run through the Giants with open arms as the line of scrimmage.

Weber certainly has shown that his talents on a football field are of the explosive variety. In five games this season, the Mattoon senior has blasted his way to the leading role in the East of Saluki ball carriers.

His five-game totals stand at 222 yards gained rushing in 33 carries, cope in both departments for Southern. His resulting average of 6.7 yards per carry is exceeded only by the 7.4 posted by Monty Riffen in 10 carries.

Weber, 21, is actually a stranger to SIU fans despite the fact that he hails from central Illinois. He did most of his high school work at Miami, Fla.

Weber narrowly missed scoring a 95-yard touchdown in the Northern Michigan game. He took a handoff on his own five, headed straight into the middle of the Wildcat line and a second later came scurrying out of the pack and through a startled Northern backfield.

He danced from left to right and shifted into high gear at the SIU 40, where the last northern defender took a shot at tackling him. Weber slipped by, but in doing so lost his balance and skidded to a halt on the Northern 42.

Four Home Meets On Varsity Swim Schedule

Officials of the SIU Athletic Department have released a 12-meet swimming schedule for Southern's varsity swimming team during the 1963-64 intercollegiate season.

Included on the schedule are four home meets, with the SIU Open contests kicking off the local season on Dec. 7.

The Salukis will open on the road, however, as they get underway in a dual meet at St. Louis on Nov. 16. The Michigan State Relays, National AAU meet and NCAA meet highlights the remainder of the traveling schedule: Nov. 16, St. Louis, away; Dec. 7, SIU Open, home, Jan. 4, Michigan State Relays, away; Jan. 11, North Central College, away, Jan. 18, Cin-gami; Jan. 25, Nebraska, away; Feb. 1, Evansville, away; Feb. 8, Oklahoma, home; Feb. 15, Iowa State, away; Feb. 22, Indiana, home; March 2-4, National AAU meet; March 28-30, NCAA meet at New Haven, Conn.

There will be little room for improvement as far as the Salukis are concerned this season, they do not expect only three meets a year, and therefore, a trio of top-notch national swimming powers -- Indiana, Minnesota and Northwestern.

Southern will get the opportunity to avenue the Indiana and Cincinnati-led assault as the

SIU Wrestlers Will Be Matched Against Some Of Nation’s Best

SIU Athletic Department officials have announced the Southern wrestling schedule for the approaching season, with five home meets listed.

The schedule includes seven dual meets and three tournaments, which results in a total of 10 different meets this year. The five home meets will be the first held at Southern in the last two seasons; there were no home meets a year ago.

Some of the nation’s top wrestling schools are listed as opponents of the Saluki grapplers this year, with the Oklahoma State match being the Feb. 7 topping the home slate. Southern will take on some of the country’s perennial powerhouses, Iowa State, in a road date on March 2.

SIU Wrestling Coach Jim Wilkinson expects to build a team around National AUA champion Larry Kristoff, Carbondale, Bill Hartstall, Don Millard, Terry Finn, Dave Holian, Dan DeVito and several promising sophomore candidates.

Kristoff will be looked to as the anchor man in Southern’s matches this year, after finishing second in the NCAA finals, winning the AAU heavy-weight title and then capturing a gold medal in competition in Japan as a pre-Olympic meet entry a short time ago.

Library Acquires Piano Roll Music With New Sound

Shades of the old player piano. Two of the long-player records acquired this summer by the Southern Illinois University library are recordings of player piano rolls.

But they are not the familiar mechanical sounds that used to emanate from the old family player piano. Instead, they are high-fidelity recordings of music played a half-century ago by some of the world’s most famous pianists, reproduced by a new German process and re-issued as collectors’ items.

Two valuable are the recordings of piano rolls made by distinguished composers of some of their own musical compositions, according to Alan Cohn, humanities librarian.
