Illinois House subcommittee to investigate Morris mansion

By Wayne Markham
Staff Writer

As appropriations subcommittee chairman, Representative Spearman is scheduled to join an investigation already begun by the Illinois Board of Higher Education into SB 15, a new home for the state's Department of Natural Resources.

Word of the legislative committee's impending investigation was learned Monday from Rep. Anthony Scarrano, Dal Park Forest, who said a Senate subcommittee may enter the investigation at a later date.

Scarrano, who has threatened an investigation of informal meetings held by the SIU Board of Trustees, said he is currently drawing up a letter to be sent to Morris.

"I want to ask him some pointed questions about that so-called mansion now in progress," Scarrano said. He added that he will tell the House subcommittee head, Rep. Phillip Collins, R-Chicago, what he has already learned.

According to the Park Forest Democrat, the House subcommittee is scheduled to begin its investigation Nov. 15.

Fiscals experts from the office of the Board of Higher Education will complete their studies of the new home, which has been estimated to come in at more than $900,000.

They are expected to be in the process of preparing a report on their findings, but release date for the study is not known.

Scarrano also attacked "the practice of unlawful meetings" in a letter to Morris early this month, in which he said he does not understand how Morris came to the conclusion that "since no formal action is taken, informal board meetings may be held by you and the trustees. It would be interesting to learn from you or your attorney how you derive that interpretation of the Open Meetings Act." Scarrano sponsored the Illinois Open Meetings Law which requires that all meetings of public bodies "be kept in whole or in part by tax revenue or which expended.

Controversy replaces tradition in Homecoming memories

By Ingrid Tver
Staff Writer

SIU's Homecoming 1969 is over, but memories still linger.

The 10th Homecoming stressed much from tradition and controversy was caused that will go down in history. Disaffection concerning the Donovan show and ticket sales for it, 2: dispute over the Homecoming election, the elimination of King Menea and his Egyptian caravan from the coronation, an outdoor coronation rather than an indoor formal one, last year's queen not crowning her successor, a divorcee elected queen, a student senator, administration controversy, (Continued on page 3)

Elements of the controversial Homecoming came to light with expressed disaffection at the selection of Donovan as the star of the Homecoming show. Black students and alumni and other members of the University community voiced their disapproval.

Many complaints arose about individual ticket sales for the show and the availability of choice seats during the first hour of individual sales.

Then came the Homecoming Queen and attendant election. Leslie Trotter, student government elections commissioner, reported he had received many complaints that supporters of eight of the 11 queen candidates and the 15 or 16 attendant candidates had violated election rules last Tuesday, election day. Trotter reported last Tuesday that "because of the high number of violations of election rules, all of the girls may be disqualified."

At Wednesday night's Student Senate meeting, attended by a standing room only crowd, Trotter requested his election commissioner's report that the election results

The Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation of the Department of Public Safety wanted to set up satellite crime laboratories in the state and our commission asked to have one established in Southern Illinois near the Carbondale area,” Moreno said.

The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission has been granted approximately $100,000.

The Greater Egremont area includes Franklin, Jackson, Jefferson, Perry and Williamson Counties.

The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission also approved a $24,400 grant to the Greater Egremont Commission for preparation of a Comprehensive Regional Law Enforcement Plan.

The Greater Egremont Commission has been carrying out law enforcement planning for the five-county region since March, 1969, in cooperation with the Greater Egremont Commission.

The success of the Daily Egyptian Fierce on Law Enforcement Planning, the task force is composed of representatives from the region’s law enforcement agencies.

The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission also approved a $31,700 program for a Regional Community Team Development Program.

The program will bring law enforcement personnel from the region together in order to further community cooperation.

A specific request for state-funded police management studies in Carbondale and Mt. Vernon has not been approved by the director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission as yet.

Carbondale City Manager C. William Norman has informed the City Council in a letter that the city does not have to accept the study and could choose its own consultant, however, the delay could cost the loss of the grant.

Cross to sing in SIU Arena

Richard Cross, American bass-baritone, will sing in Prospect Hall on Thursday night, under the auspices of the SIU Community Concert Association.

Cross has been a leading member of the Frankfurt Operetta Company in Germany since 1965. The season he is scheduled for a cross-country tour doing solo recitals and operatic engagements.

Cross made his debut with the NBC touring Opera Company by singing a series of support roles. Later he was signed for the male lead in “Release the Beast” in the World premiere at the Brussels World Fair. He also sang Rossini’s “Semiramide” with the American Opera Society in the New York’s Carnegie Hall.

Cross is from Fairbanks, Minn. He attended Cornell College in Mount Vernon, Iowa, where he studied voice with Ruth Prinsenlake.

Admission to Community Concerts is by membership card. SIU students are admitted on presentation of their active tickets.

Two more concerts will be heard this year — the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra and Israeli pianist David Bar-Ilman in May.

What some did Oct. 15

While thousands were out protesting the war, some people of a different nature were also taking place.

"It's a noisy and sad war, but I guess there's not much we can do about it," an SIU student was overheard telling his friend Wednesday evening. If Oct. 15 while clinking his beer at a local Carbondale night spot.

Sitting there and noise aside the tavern, and the two students ran to the door to see what all the commotion was about.

"It's just those damned trouble-making from home town marching," the first one said. "They've been at it all day with their protest."

"I know," replied his friend, "I cut all my classes today. I'm going to tell my instructors that I was observing Moratorium Day."

"That's just what I'm going to tell my instructor," his said friend. "I really needed that extra sleep."

"Just look at all those people—and they're all carrying candles—but that's 'cause they're just cold on the OUT OF HERE...LOVE AMERICA OR LEAVE IT! DO YOU GO TO VIETNAM AND SEE IF YOU LIKE IT THERE...

"That should let them know how I feel about their protest," said the first student.

"All they want on the campus is to provoke any crisis of racial prejudice, I am proposing a more demonstrable alternative rather than for an outright resignation.

In order to circumvent the possibility of developing a confrontation of colors I submit that the future of Campbell's term in office be decided through the expression of a campus wide referendum. In this way the only risk on Campbell's part would be in regard to his action being condemned and not his color."

I feel that this alternative would exclude the possibility of any racial indignation being shown due to the fact that the majority of voters would come from the same student body that was present at SIU when Campbell was voted in.

The greater majority of Campbell's actions to date have been to the benefit of the student body. No less a bigot, racist and incompetent than some of those which preceded him.

The perception of the University being oriented toward the community is commendable. Campbell is a tool, not a cause trouble—and that's exactly what they're going to get.

In fact, I heard a rumor that some kids had bought nine dozen eggs right before the start of the march.

"I hope all those cowards protesting out there get what's coming to them," he said, laughing and spilling his beer on the sidewalk.

"Yeah, the world sure is a mess," his friend added, "but let's go back inside where it's warm and talk about over another beer."

Fruits of labor said to be rotten

To the Daily Egyptian:

I for one would like to voice my support of Dr. James Erickson's proposal, Oct. 23 letter to the Daily Egyptian, that Dr. Campbell submit his resignation. However, I do not believe this can be used to indulge any cries of racial prejudice, I am proposing a more demonstrable alternative rather than for an outright resignation.

In order to circumvent the possibility of developing a confrontation of colors I submit that the future of Campbell's term in office be decided through the expression of a campus wide referendum. State money used

To the Daily Egyptian:

Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar and President DeLyte W. Morris have assured us that no state tax money is being used to build the president's mansion. They say overhead from grant money has been used. This money, however, is given to the University as part of the grant to help pay for the maintenance and administration of the grant, e.g., equipment maintenance, janitors, office help, publicity fees, library costs, etc.

If this money is instead used to build a house for President Morris, then state tax funds must be used for these other items. Thus, indirectly, but no less in reality, state funds are being used to build the house.

Unfortunately, there is not one to one correspondence between overhead money being shellfished off and the state money the administration supplies in its stead.

It is said ironic that the very person who did so much to raise SIU from a small normal college to a large University is now short-changing that same University to build his house.

Good job

To the Daily Egyptian:

Every paper that picked up any more has some article on President DeLyte W. Morris' house. I believe this is a step in the right direction. The campaign for this campus was 400 feet wide and had four rooms.

Then along came Dr. Morris, and now it is the biggest and bestest house in the country. Each one of us, students, workers and all the tamale were there in all the countries and employed hundreds. Who knows, maybe in my life time one man do so much for so many to have to be really appreciated by so few.

If the lot of you will get your noses out of Dr. Morris' business and clean out from under your own doors, the University will be a lot better off.

Dr. Morris was running this college a long time before some of you people were born and doing a good job. If his new home costs two million dollars, it would not be anymore than he and Mrs. Morris deserve. So when you go home and go to bed to indicate that you should thank the Lord that He put a man like Dr. Morris in charge of the University we have a lot of people at home in the midst of our short time on earth.

Forgotten men

To the Daily Egyptian:

With the nationwide moratorium for peace over Vietnam scheduled for Oct. 15, various actions may be subjected to some critical analysis. The moratorium was to manifest the American people's cry and desire for cessation of American military involvement in Vietnam. It was to establish world-wide peace. Principally, its object was an observance to those fighting in Vietnam, but we must remember that there are other areas in the world where men are fighting their lives for the sake of national obligation.

Certainly, the administration is either procrastinating in the search for peace or working frantically towards this obligatory goal. I do not feel the rampou curelly the administration can feazibly judge where between these two extremes the administration's heart lies. The fact is that there are still active parties in Berlin, Laos and many other areas where our foreign policy dictates our presence militarily. In the light of the moratorium's objectives, it is the reversal of this dictation that we must work for, the reestablishment of the Monroe Doctrine where the military is concerned.

The two most prevalent events throughout the nation were speeches in the sake of peace over Vietnam and a TV special to memorialize the war dead in one form or another. On this campus in particular, there were numerous speeches decrying the war and a reading of the war dead. Another tribute was presented in the candlelight parade to Galen's Cemetery where a prayer was said.

If during this time there had not been a such a nation-wide protest in foreign areas and mourning the war dead, a revelation far stronger than that which we might have come upon us. This was that there are men and women fighting for us away from home, following the dictates of a policy that they had no part in making.

Consequently, Dr. Charles is the people that we should be concerned about. The fact that there are millions of Americans seems to be shamefully forgotten. True, the critics will say that they are working as fast as possible but until then all finally come back who cares?

Who gives a damn about being pulled down with the administration which you represent. It is in this lack of consideration which occurred during the moratorium which I would like to vociferously denounce. Everyone spoke, yet nobody took the time to consider the administration from the men who serve it.

It is now incumbent upon us to show support to Dr. Charles. Support not just in the fact we are working to bring them home, but to the point that they are there and representing us. Here are our brothers and friends far away, and do we show them that we care about them, that we realize that they are over there, that we support them in their performance of duty, NO! I propose that another moratorium be held in support of not just our foreign policy, but of Americans who are away from home serving national obligations. During this time a day that the moratorium would be appreciated by the men might be taken up. Money for the USA might be collected and perhaps a portion of support be circulated and then sent to these areas.

Is this lack of consideration that I hope the American people will abandon and wake up to the fact that our are indeed there.

Story denied

To the Daily Egyptian:

On page 10, issue of Oct. 7, 1969, issue of the Daily Egyptian an article states that I said the African American Progress was almost in a neutral status this year. I did not say this, and no such plans have ever been considered.

James E. Redden

Commandment

The eleventh commandment would probably read like this: "Thou shalt not judge academic worth by the yardstick of political associations and present political beliefs." It is universally acknowledged that the world can not afford more conflicts of the nature of Vietnam. A study of Vietnam-the most that we could do-would lead to greater understanding of that area and avoid future mishaps.

Who is more qualified to assess the events leading to a power-vacuum in Vietnam than Dr. Flach? Why should we be organizing a C.L.A. here. Who would Professor Kairadines have objected to Hardison Saliwary who presented the North Vietnamese view of the matter and added to the divisive bitterness of the American body-politic?

Simple hagiology is an opiate and drugs one into aloof slumber. It createsnaeity heroes out of charlatans and leads to simple demodology which spurs committed men into acts of reckless vandalism. It blinds the heart deceny of honorable men. The abysmal ignorance of the peace marchers with regard to the ontology of Vietnam Conflict is frightenig. Their commitment is admirable but misplaced and misapplied idealism is more dangerous than cynicism.

With the war slowly fading out, a debate instead of beaded denunciations are called for, and who is qualified to present the "thesis" than Dr. Flach so that a meaningful synthesis can be arrived at.

The champions of academic freedom were strangely and almost unanimously quiet when Walt Rusorow was pilloried. Would this emerging University emulate the regents of UCLA and enact a "Letter Agena Davia Davis in reverse?

Night isn't heard

To the Daily Egyptian:

Deep from within a pepsi bottle as I held hands with my favorite past, I finally had time to watch the night.

The night—a lonely bird of peace as it naley a thought—lingers only to be chased away by a burning sun.

Supplemented by neon lights, beer and all night colored television, the night has never had a chance to tell its many treasures of knowledge.

It remains silent, recognized by man when he wants to evade passion, anger or lust.

Never seen as a possible source of endless essay. It may be dead extra.

Of course, I do the same. Maybe we both live in a black ghetto.

Writer criticizes language of record

To the Daily Egyptian:

During the afternoon of Oct. 15, groups of black students and others who support the Black Studies Center gathered in the Union to build a record over a loud speaker system. Quite often, the discussion was used in his opinion of white people.

I'm quite sure that no one disagrees with the fact that black students do have the right to gather in front of this building, but I believe their criteria should be less hostile. I'm quite sure that if white groups gathered in front of University buildings and played white racist material over a loud speaker system there would be a negative reaction by the University.

My question is: Why is it any different for the playing of black racist material than that of white racist material?

I'm quite sure that most of the white students of this University do not like to be referred to as "white mother------" or do most of the white students wish to be associated with the people who were responsible for this incident?

If I feel the University should not condone gatherings such as this in front of the Black Studies Center or any other University building. According to Dwight Campbell, Student body president, "irradiation of racism, both on the left ano on the other side, is our number one priority.

Why not start these black student gatherings such as the one on Oct. 15!

Campbell supported

To the Daily Egyptian:

Dear James H. Erickson, advocate of Campbell's resignation:

Before publicly exploiting your ignorance, you should have considered taking time to distinguish true fact from fancy.

Had you been as aware last spring of a meaningful election, as you are now of idle nonsense, you would have recognized that Dwight Campbell, Student body president, and the present students were not appointed by a minority, but were, in fact, duly elected by a majority of the voting students. Yet you contend that the student government is not representative of the people.

As far as Campbell's immaturity and stupidity are concerned, it is hard to conceive how serving the people of the community in an attempt to curb starratiation and eliminate hazardous and unhealthy living conditions can be considered stupid and immature.

If this is the case, how would you explain a majority of the student body being promoting and actively participating in such foolish programs?

What would you do as president? Raise funds to house a poverty-stricken administration? Abolish freedom of speech to repug "true radicalism"? Encourage anarchy?

It's said to find it necessary to point out to a member of our peer group that youth is the sole instrument and means for any significant change. These all afflicated with the disease of apathetic complacency and nothing but thwart change and endorse stagnation.

Why refuse to acknowledge the fact that we have finally united thusly and acquired the strength necessary to eliminate the evils initiated by our predecessors?

It was not given to us—we have this unifying strength.

Three states still lead out-of-state enrollment

More than a third of SIU's out-of-state students on the Carbondale Campus this fall come from Missouri, New York and New Jersey, according to an unofficial enrollment survey. Of 1,679 students listed from other states, 908 live residences in Missouri, 213 in New York and 112 in New Jersey, a preliminary computer count revealed.

Those three states have been the top contributors of non-Illinois students for the past several years.

The survey shows students from 47 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone registered at SIU-Carbondale this fall. States missing are Alaska, Maine and Nevada.

In addition, an estimated 50 foreign students are attending classes at Carbondale. The big three international students are Hong Kong (80), Iran (71) and Formosa (67). Other states in the top 10 at SIU-Carbondale are Indiana (99), Pennsylvania (89), Ohio (72), Massachusetts (52), Wisconsin (50), Kentucky (49) and Michigan (44).

Total enrollment at the Carbondale Campus this fall is 3,554. Over-all enrollment in the SIU system (including the Edwardsville Campus) is 35,854.

Students vital in all stages of SIU Theater productions

The SIU Theater is a student production, from rehearsal and acting, make-up and lighting, right down to building the scenery.

Theater 111A stagecrafting students, under the supervision of SIU scene designer Scott Heise, have been doing it for the past several years.

Phil Hendren, build, paint and set up the "Flame" used in University theater productions. Students in the class must put in over 100 hours working on scenery during the quarter. Ciles Dunn, construction crew chief for "Oh What a Lovely War," said he already put in over 100 hours in that production alone. Hendren and his graduate assistant, Don Davis, supervise and assist the construction students, but their main job is the designing of the scenery and props to be built. The responsibility for getting the job done calls on the construction crew chief who is picked for every production.

Money and good experience are the reasons the theater builds its own props and scenery. The labor is free and the students learn the fine points of stagecrafting.

Daily Egyptian gets to root of story

One department has found a new use for the Daily Egyptian. The Department of Botany, which maintains a herbarium in the basement of the Communications Building, uses the paper as a medium for absorbing moisture from the plants. The Egyptian is exactly the size of the wooden plant presses used in drying plants before they are stored. The herbarium is a museum of dry-pressed mounted plant specimens. According to Professor Donald Ugent, curator of the herbarium, over 80,000 plant specimens are currently stored. Approximately 6,000 to 7,000 plans are added each year. Plant specimens from all over the world are kept there. Students bring in plants from the surrounding area and exchanges of plant specimens are made with other herbariums from countries around the world.

The herbarium began when the first SIU biologist, George H. French, started a collection in the 1870's. He was the first curator of the SIU herbarium and his original collection is still maintained and is considered historically valuable.

Donovan concert a peaceful, natural high

By Lotus Samoka

Peaceful—that's the word for Saturday night's homecoming show. The stage setting, atmosphere, songs, and especially the performer, Donovan, were uniquely refreshing.

Except for the exploding flashbulbs, the show was a masterly of relaxing entertainment as colored lights were played on the white-clad figure.

Seated on a small red-covered platform, the silk is the symbol of the poet—Donovan sang, philosophized and satirized to a full house in the SIU Arena.

The first half of the show featured Donovan with his satiric sad cross-legged and singing a number of his hits like "Jennifer Juniper", "Catch the Wind" and "Hurdy Gurdy Man". The second half of the show was Donovan the entertainer. He joked with the audience and ended with "If Love Is a Precious Glass..."

Immediately after intermission, a fluent accompanied Donovan for several longer songs. The combination of these songs and the flute halved the audience back into a quiet, receptive mood. Then, Donovan was ready to really perform. This was the best part of his show—when he recognized and played to an audience that he had already charmed.

One minor incident occurred during intermission when about 150 people left their seats and ran across the stage. An announcement that the show would not begin until they had resumed their seats sent all but two back into the audience. After several words with two SIU Security Policemen, one-hardly moved was mugged away.

During the show's second half, however, several popular polkas acquired an extra get onto the stage to pay floral tribute to Donovan.

The stage crew deserves a word of praise for its cooperation. For once the microphones did not go out during the concert, and the lights were white but necessary addition—there affected was not overdone and it was beneficial.

Having Donovan as homecoming entertainer is a real change for SIU. He is not a typical performer who plays well to "universalized" audiences. Donovan is unique: young adults are most receptive to his revue. What he has to say is means for persons of all ages.

Although the arena audience was diverse, Donovan's show was a success. Future show committees may note that even non-conformist, non-visual performers have a large and very receptive audience at SIU.

Perhaps one reason for the success is that Donovan is an artist who can look at a problem and put it in the proper perspective. Then he joked about SIU's homecoming queen campaign. "I'm not making a joke about the. Queen. I don't care if she's yellow, orange or red, but I'm just trying to make people laugh.

For future, Donovan wants some of the tranquility of past eras—"Will our visions of life be more peace and mirth in the future?"

His words "Natural life in the best in the beauty of the world" are the key to revolution is the revolting. These things we will take will not be taken away. For many peace of mind, its more important than the revolting.

Cheerfully with this peace, a gentle man softly spoke these words on a bare stage that should be a stage. Many people heard and understood what he had to say.

Sad comedy

Satire portrays horrors of war

By Dean Redbluff

There was nothing—absolutely nothing—funny about World War I, but "Oh, What a Lovely War" was hilarious.

If you can laugh at war in any form, that play, performed Friday and Saturday at SIU in the University Theater of the Communications Building, is the first production of the Southern Players' "1914-18" play. The "melodramatic" play will also be performed at 8 p.m. this coming Friday and Saturday.

"Oh, What a Lovely War" is, of course, the very popular spoof on "The war to end wars." It laughs along through 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918 and in the final toll, 10 million dead, 21 million wounded and 7 million missing. Funny, all that.

But the play has two sides. Satirical stage comedy is an excellent art form by which to reveal to an audience 'true horrors of war,' and "Oh, What a Lovely War" does just that.

The musical's message is obvious: war is hell, but only the most calloused—or unthinking—member of the audience would fail to see that it is the true intent of the production. The entertainment is not meant to distract from the message—you can laugh, but you should certainly realize that your laughter at death is ridiculous. No war has a "Humor side"; it only has a compromising side. You laugh because it's the only way to maintain precious sanity. One can't remain objective about war.

The play also has a distinct parallel with author John Dos Passos' great World War I trilogy: while Dos Passos used such literary devices as "the camera eye" and "the ear of war" to render the very World War I era, the play uses a "newwayed" with short news items issued on the screen behind the stage.

News item: Menin Road, British Loss 22,000 Men.

Gin 100 Yards, News item: 800,000 Germans Starve To Death Through British Blockade.

And so on. It's an extremely effective theater device, this combining slides with music and stage performances. And the horror of the 1914-1918 war comes home to you—fifty years later.

"Oh, What a Lovely War" is, in fact, a sort of "catch-up" about World War I. It's the writer's novel of the insanity of World War II (with Major Malice). The writer portrays the idea that is actually a second-best effort; Heller's war was brutal, certainly, but it lacked the sheer stupidit which characterized the earlier war.

Director W. Grant Gray, assistant professor of the theater, produced a show that ended with "Oh, What a Lovely War" Gray, who directs SIU's Southern Dancers, has taken off the stage the old "melodramatic" and plays to the mood of the audience. His 19-member cast performed admirably. But, despite the mood, the show isn't for "ere because we're ere, because we're ere, because we're ere..." the dancing, the excellent lighting and sound effects, the plot itself was suddenly by all.

Fun was had of the Somme and Verdun, Ypres and the Marne, the Chemin Des Dames and Loos—and the very best of these was when a man reflected on the idea of a British General Staff more concerned with a few square yards of muddy Flanders' fields than the lives of millions of British "bommes"—it's appalling.

And from Pflanders' fields, 1918, one's mind immoderately goes to Vietnam, 1967—and "Oh, What a Lovely War" suddenly isn't funny any more,

GSC 205 has popular reputation

By Mark Weinschenk

A General Studies course without exam? A course with bi-weekly possible for everyone to get an A? A course so popular that it has been taught to over 7,000 students in four years?

There are just some of the characteristics of GSC 205, "Man's Contemporary Environment," commonly referred to as "Design."

"The course is structured so as to examine various aspects which contribute to increase the creative problem solving of the individual and the group," Harold Grassoway, instructor of GSC 205, said.

Why has GSC 205 become so popular with the students? "Reputation," says Grassoway. "GSC 205 has generally been associated with success; if they take it, they will succeed in achieving the grade they are interested in. Because of the success expectancy, students start out thinking it is an easy course."

The different teaching procedures employed have also given the course popularity among students. GSC 205 uses psychologically oriented terminology such as "terminal behavior" and "test" instead of "test" and "quiz," He was asked the basis for this procedure.

"The goals are different than in other General Studies courses," said the bespectacled, bearded Grassoway. GSC 205 is based upon motivational behavior learning, where continued periodic reinforcement is given to correct responses.
North Vietnam to name POWs - E Wellinger

CHICAGO (AP) — An anti-war leader Monday said that North Vietnam plans to release 507 American prisoners of war and open the negotiations for the release of additional prisoners in the coming year.

The statement was made in advance of a news conference at which he will announce his intention to initiate negotiations for the release of the prisoners in the coming year.

David A. Dellinger, an organizer of the National Mobilization Committee to End the Vietnam War, spoke at a news conference in which he announced that negotiations for the release of 507 American prisoners have been scheduled for the coming year.

Dellinger did not say how many more prisoners would be released or how many would remain in North Vietnam.

In his statement, Dellinger said that negotiations for the release of the prisoners have been scheduled for the coming year.

1969 SIU Homecoming

Southern’s Homecomings have always had tradition, but this year’s Homecoming had a little of the untraditional. Along with the usual sights of pretty girls, winning floats and the Marching Salukis, this Homecoming also had skydivers, Donovan and some controversy.

Daily Egyptian photographers Nelson Brooks, Ken Garen, Jeff Lighburn and John Lopton have captured some of the highlights of this year’s Homecoming in these pictures.

Skydivers provided an unusual highlight to half-time activities at McAndrew Stadium.

The report was accepted by the members of the A&I.A. Trotter's report said student government had taken full responsibility for the election with the consent of the SIU Student Government Activities Council.

Many opinions for and against voicing the election were voiced by senators and students, all senior from meeting.

Clem Bland, who was a candidate for queen, said the election controversy was "a race thing."

"I wouldn't want to be queen of a racist school," she said. Joan Agn, who also attended the meeting and was one of the candidates accused of violating election rules, said the rules were not explicit, but not some to plan her.

Sheilah Goldsmith, 1969 Homecoming queen told the group at that meeting that she had not been informed of her role in the Homecoming activities.

"I'm a pitiful state of affairs," she said, "I don't want any part of those dealing.

The Senate passed a resolution to abolish the title and position of Homecoming queen/rein. The resolution will be studied further and action will be taken later.

Thursday night Miss Agin, a senior from Fairlaid, was crowned Homecoming queen. Earlier that day Anthony Giamelli, coordinator of Student Activities, issued a statement saying the Student Senate had exceeded its powers in voiding the Homecoming election.

Giamelli said the Senate does not have the power to void an election. That decision is left to the campus judicial board.

No judicial board has been appointed this year by the Student Senate president, Dwight Campbell.

Friday afternoon, a meeting was attended by members of the Visitor's Corporation to sponsor Miss Agin, members of the Afro-American Student Union, who sponsored Miss Bland, members of the Women's Liberation Front, and the Alpha Eta Rho fraternity.

WASHINGTON (AP)--Dr. Margaret Mead, dean of American anthropologists, told a Senate panel Monday that marijuana is less dangerous than alcohol, should be legalized, and should be made available to students for use.

"It does not lead to the excesses of behavior that alcohol does," she said. "And it does not have the toxic effects of cigarettes.

Greater Egypt Tenants' Union needs more help

By Darrel Alberio Staff Writer

"Power in numbers" is the unofficial slogan of the recently established Greater Egypt Tenants' Union (GETU). According to Nick Fera, a senior majoring in government and student government housing commissioner, the union has been very well accepted since its beginning a few weeks ago.

"Now the union is recruiting new members because we can be more effective if we have a large enough group," Fera said.

"Winnie Tranquilla, a graduate student, came up with the idea of starting a union here and at the first meeting over 60 people attended. We had a very diversified cross-section of people," Fera said.

The union is working toward a double goal. First, the union wants to provide a workable system of living for tenants and residents of Carbondale.

Secondly, the union wants to carry out collective bargaining with landlords. At present, students have no control over rent, maintenance of facilities or contract negotiations, Fera said.

According to present plans, the union will not only deal with private landlords but also with the University. Fera said that some University housing is inadequate and not serviced properly.

The union is also working to prevent certain unfair practices such as drawing interest on damage deposits and not returning it to the tenant, Fera said.

Many landlords collect damage deposits or collect the rent for the final month of occupancy when the contract is signed, Fera said.

"This money that landlords collect simply draws interest and students are given any of that interest back," Fera said.

"Students could have quite a lot of power if only we could provide a workable system. All interested students and Carbondale residents are asked to attend.

Third debate trophy won by SIU seniors

Two SIU seniors won their third consecutive second place debate trophy at the University of Detroit Invitational Debate Tournament held Friday, Saturday and Sunday. They are Lynda Kaid, from Eldorado who is majoring in German and Cynthia Saako, from La Grange, who is majoring in speech.

Over 70 teams took part in the competition. Six preliminary rounds were held with the top eight teams competing for the championship. In the preliminary rounds Miss Kaid and Miss Saako had five wins and one loss. In the quarterfinals and semifinals, they defeated Boston College and Ohio Northern. In the final round they lost to Oberlin College.

Miss Kaid received an award for best speaker in the debate and Miss Saako a fifth place in the speaking category.

Two SIU sophomores also participated in the tournament, Fred Johnson from Inkster, Mich., who is majoring in pre-law, and Rick Delsman from Dearborn Heights, Mich., who is majoring in government, scored three wins and three losses in the preliminary rounds and didn't advance to the final rounds.

Miss Kaid and Miss Saako will compete again this weekend in a tournament at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

Tryouts for plays begin today

A role for a male student from India is available in a play to be cast by the Southern Playhouse today and Wednesday, the Department of Theater has announced.

The play, one of two Israeli Hebrew one-act plays scheduled for production Dec. 5, 6, 12 and 13, is "The Indian Wants the Radio." One of the three characters speaks in the Indian language, so natives from that country are invited to tryout, regardless of whether they have had acting experience or not.

The second play, "It's the Sugar Plum," requires one female actor.

Mrs. Lela Stewart Harrison will direct the Hebrew plays. Copies of scripts may be obtained at the theater department office by those wishing to tryout. Tryouts will be held in the University Theater in the Communications Building starting at 7 p.m.

Braille map to be distributed

A braille map of campus to blind students should be ready for distribution by the end of fall quarter, said its creator, James Rhodes. This 3x12-inch plastic map will enable the new blind student to learn the layout of the campus before coming to SIU, said Rhodes.

In addition to showing the relation of campus buildings to each other, hopefully the map will also alert the student to the many safety hazards on campus, he added.

Mrs. Edith Spees, coordinator of the Handicapped Student Services, and sponsor of the project, invites any help or advice.

Handicapped Fijian student wheels toward doctorate

He came a long way in his wheelchair from the Fiji Islands in the Pacific to the United States.

Being physically handicapped, yet strongly determined to pursue advanced study, Silas P. Singh has completed bachelor's and master's programs in this country. Now he is putting the finishing touches on a doctoral degree in education at SUI, while teaching at University School as a graduate assistant.

He plans to go home in the summer of 1970 to collect material for a comparative study of systems of education in the British South Pacific and in the United States.

Silas is the youngest son of a retired school teacher. At the age of 11 in 1952 he was paralyzed by polio. It was the first case of polio on the island, he recalled.

Doctors told him that he was doomed to be totally paralyzed for the rest of his life. It was "the hope of life," however, that encouraged him to weather the dark days, he said. With the aid of one of his brothers, Singh started to learn the use of his arms again and borrowed books from friends to study at home. Within five months, he completed four years of high school work and passed an examination for a high school diploma.

While teaching at Lelemb Memorial School at Nasori, Singh corresponded with doctors in a hospital in Auckland, New Zealand, hoping that they could free him from the wheelchair. After months of treatment in the hospital, although he had not been made, he remained in his wheelchair.

Singh returned to teach in Fiji until 1962, when he was granted a U.S. government scholarship to study at the East-West Center, University of Hawaii.

The scholarship was canceled by the Center, after noticing his physical handicap, for the buildings on the campus had no facilities for wheel chair students. He was advised to transfer to some institution on the mainland.

Ignoring the suggestion, Singh went to the Center and became the first handicapped student on the campus. He soon became one of the favorite students in the Center.

"Students from other Asian countries always were ready to help me," he said. "They carried me from floor to floor to attend classes."

In the summer of 1965, the East-West Center sent him to study at SUI, Singh liked the special facilities for handicapped students at SUI, and returned here after graduating from Hawaii in June, 1966.

Last year he was married, in a Baptist Church in Carbondale, to the former Joanna Evelyn Farrar of Santa Anna, the daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Robert Farrar. Singh, a former student of Prof. Farrar, met his wife on the big island of Hawaii while on an educational research project for the University of Hawaii. Mrs. Singh teaches at an elementary school near Carbondale.

To gain teaching experience in this country, Singh assisted Mrs. Mona Marcey, fourth grade teacher in the University School, in teaching social studies and science.

"The students love him and respond very well to him," Mrs. Marcey said.

Most wanted graduate

Chemical engineers with a bachelor's degree are the most sought-after candidates at the SUI Placement Office, particularly in history. The History Club, along with preparations for a national meeting, has released figures that surprised them. They show there are only about 15 minutes of actual time for interviews.

For the remainder of the meeting, the Pam-a-rama football game, there are huddles, time-outs, penalties being broken or walked off, players unpolished and seats coming back after going out for a pass, etc. For only 15 minutes ur, is the ball actually in play.

Did you ever stop to think that even the greatest hitters in baseball fail to get hits more than 6 out of every 10 times they bat, and even the greatest passers in football fail to complete almost half the passes they throw?

Do you know what athletes in history hold the record for winning the most gold medals for first place finishes in the Olympics? An American set the record back in 1900-1908. He was Pay Ewy, who won eight gold medals, and no one has ever been able to top that before or since.

I bet you didn't know that college graduates have a longer life expectancy — lower death rate and are living five years longer than the non-college graduate. The lower death rate of the college graduate comes about partly because of their greater cash values in College Life Insurance. This certainty makes good sense, doesn't it?

Touring Theatre books
additional engagements

Nine additional bookings have been made for the coming season of engagements for SU's Touring Theater to 35, the largest number of engagements thus far, beginning October 12. Networking of engagements has been the key to undertaking such a broad schedule, according to Dr. Charles E. Wright, director of SUA's Theatre Department.

First stop on the schedule is a two-week run at the University Theatre at Texas A&M University, College Station, from Oct. 11 to 21. The play is "The Great Escape" directed by John S. Lane, for which a 54-member cast has been chosen. This will be followed by a brief run at the West Virginia State College, Beckley, Oct. 24 to 26. Then the company will make one more stop in the South, at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, for a run of two weeks beginning Oct. 30. From there the company will travel back to the West, where it will appear at the University of Arizona, Tucson, Nov. 6 to 11.

Other bookings include a five-week run at the University of California at Los Angeles, Oct. 18 to Nov. 11, and at the University of Texas, Austin, Nov. 26 to Dec. 9. The company will also perform at the University of Oklahoma, Norman, Nov. 29 to Dec. 5. The final engagement is at the University of Georgia, Athens, Dec. 1 to 5.

Group from Newman Center visits Anna Mental Hospital

Every Tuesday evening 35 members of the Newman Center go to the Anna State Mental Hospital to spend some time with the patients. The group is led by Father John V. Laramore, O.F.M., who serves as director of the Newman Center. The group goes to the Anna State Mental Hospital every Tuesday evening for about two hours each visit and play cards, pool, have dinner, and just visit with the patients.

"The mentally retarded patients here at the Anna State Mental Hospital are so grateful for the help we give them," said Father Laramore. "They love to meet new people and we are able to help them develop their social skills."

The volunteers work in conjunction with supervision by the hospital, and the work done at the Anna State Mental Hospital is a great service to both the patients and the community."

The 1913 Liberty Head nickel is in good condition because they have never been circulated.

According to Purdy, the value of a coin is determined by its rarity and its condition. Thus, the 1913 Liberty Head nickel is worth $50,000.

Art students enrolled in a jewelry class might be interested in Purdy's story about the 1914D penny. Uncirculated, the 1914D penny is worth approximately $560. Uncirculated, the 1940D penny is worth $35. A very good numismatist can remove the extra bars on the first four in 1944, making it 1914.

There are over 430 million 1940D's just waiting for some enterprising student to change them to 1914's.

The 1883 V nickel, the V standing for the Roman numeral five, is the same size as a five-dollar gold piece. According to Purdy, some of the nickels were gold-plated or powdered and passed for five-dollar gold pieces. Later, in the year the word CENTS was added under the V, stopping the "few" gold pieces. The 1898S, U.D.D. is another well known coin, Purdy said. The S stands for the San Francisco mint, and the designer's initials V.D.B. for Victor D. Brenner, appear on a limited quantity of 1909 pennies. This penny, issued to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, is valued at approximately $100.

"One would think," Purdy said, "that a 2000-year-old coin would be very valuable, but Roman Empire coins are worth very little." Too many of these silver and bronze coins have been found for them to be considered rare. Purdy said, "You can dig a little, and find a wheelbarrow full in Europe."

For many persons coin collecting is more than a hobby; it is a profitable business, Purdy said. Coin collectors use two books which they refer to as the red and blue books. The coin dealer buys from the blue book and sells from the red book--as a profit, naturally. These books list the coins according to their condition and quantity minted.

Mrs. H. B. Vaugh, a coin collector from Carmel, told of an unusual coin, a two-headed nickel. She said someone had cut two nickels in half and put the pieces together. Mrs. Vaugh said, "The nickel itself isn't valuable, unless you want to win a bet."

Comedy tours
lives of people in Welsh town

The Interpreters Theater of the Department of Speech will present "Under the Milk Wood" on Nov. 14, 15, 20 and 21.

Mrs. Marion Kleneu, associate professor of speech, is the coordinator of the program. Mrs. Kleneu said that the play, written by Dylan Thomas, has a cast of 36 actors. The play is a type of "multiple character sketch," she said.

The story, described by Thomas as a play for voices, opens in the morning in the Welsh community of Milk Wood. From there the narration takes the audience on a segmented tour into the various lives of the people of the town.

Mrs. Kleneu said this enables the show, which is a comedy, to be nostalgic and beautiful. "It's the kind of show you can do with 6 or 36 people."

"Under Milk Wood" opens at 8 p.m. at the Calypso Stage, on the second floor of the Communications Building. Admission price is one-dollar for all performances.

Senate passes veterans' bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate passed Thursday a bill to raise veterans' educational benefits by 40 percent, despite hints that President Nixon might veto it as inflationary.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-NY, supporting the bill, mentioned the possibility of a veto, and warned that Nixon will have to cut federal spending elsewhere to balance the added expense of the veterans bill. House and Senate conferences now will work on a compromise version of the bill.

THE SONS OF CHAMPLIN HAVE CHANGED THEIR NAME TO THE SONS.
are your contact lenses more work than they're worth?

If you're tired of using two or more separate solutions to take care of your contact lenses, we have the solution. It's Lensine the all-purpose lens solution for complete contact lens care. Cleaning, washing, daily soaking, just a drop or two of Lensine before you put your contact lenses in and before you remove them, and Lensine retards the bacteria that cause eye infections. Lensine is not just water or saline. It contains enzymes that break down the protein deposits on the lenses, that help to keep your lenses clean.

Lenses exclusive for can be worn for extended periods of time. Bacteria cannot grow in the Lensine solution, so your lenses stay clean and safe. Contact lenses can be worn continuously for long periods of time, as long as they are washed and cleansed with Lensine. This makes it easier to wear contact lenses for extended periods of time, as you don't need to worry about the bacteria on the lenses.

How does Lensine work? Lensine contains a series of enzymes that work to break down the protein deposits on the lenses. These enzymes are specifically designed to target the proteins that build up on the lenses over time, making it easier for you to clean and maintain your lenses and reduce the risk of bacterial growth. The enzymes in Lensine work to keep your lenses clean and clear, reducing the risk of infection and improving the overall comfort of wearing contact lenses.
Hasberry, Salukis outgain ECU by 178 yards

Bob Hasberry is hit by a host of Eastern Carolina tacklers in first quarter action during last Saturday's Homecoming game. Hasberry tied his own rushing attempts record, 32, which he set against Indiana State University. His 138 yards give him a season total of 853. At his current pace he will far surpass Amos Buford who set the SIU season record with 998 yards in 1961. Only a sophomore, he should become SIU's greatest rusher and possibly one of the best in the nation, according to Coach Clarence Stankevich of ECU.

Final Score, ECU 17, SIU 3

Lionel Antoine, SIU's giant sophomore tight end, hauls in a Jim McKay pass at the Eastern Carolina 34-yard line. Antoine caught three of McKey's complete passes and this one went for a 17-yard gain at Southern which is one part of comeback from a 10-3 deficit late in the fourth quarter. Notice that the closest defender is holding on to Antoine's right arm.

East Carolina dampsen SIU Homecoming

By Mike Klein
Staff Writer

There's a very simple explanation for the coming loss to East Carolina last Saturday, despite Southern Illinois' strong showing.

East Carolina took advantage of Southern Illinois' mistakes and turned them into points.

Southern's last scoring threat came late in the fourth quarter when they took the ball on the East Carolina 42-yard line after Bob Gibb missed a pass and completed one to Habeary before Rusty Scales intercepted a fourth-down pass at the 52 and ran it back to the SIU 23.

Another personal foul call on the Salukis put the ball on the 31-yard line. Johnson scored around right end from eight yards out.

Penalties and four Pirate interceptions played a bigger part than the vast SIU substitutions in the outcome of the game.

Southern's defense held the Pirates and forced them to punt midway through the fourth quarter.

The Salukis got the ball at their 27 and appeared to be headed for the game tying and possibly winning points when a penalty interrupted the drive.

Outstanding running by Habeary and a pass to Lionel Antoine had brought the ball down to the East Carolina 17 when another personal foul foul on the Pirates play the ball to the 30-yard line. Habeary picked up 11 yards, moving the ball to the 19.

Honor tennis in third round

All but 15 of the original 45 contestants have been eliminated in early rounds of the tennis tournament sponsored by Intramural Athletic Office.

Glenn Martin, coordinator of the department, said that the tournament is based on a single-elimination progression. Because no official are present, Martin said the participants are responsible to contact their opponents and set up the match in the allotted time, then call the intramural office to report the results. If no one calls, Under heavy pressure from the Pirate defense, McKinley was intercepted by Habeary on the SIU 10-yard line. Habeary fell short and was intercepted by Rusty Scales.

"In fairness to Sherman, he hasn't had a lot of experience catching a ball and he didn't have the experience many times which he needs to be," Towars said. "But I thought that probably he should have gone through the guy and tough for the big guy to knock it down." Southern was penalized eight times for 85 yards during the game and five of them were personal fouls. Chuck Caran, a junior defensive tackle, was ejected from the game in the first half for committing a personal foul.

Quarterback Jim McKay threw four interceptions and Taverners doesn't place the blame on him. "I think that our offense isn't fair to him. We've thrown over on every down or just passed more often, thinking that Cobb would be greater to complete the pass, but he's throwing in blanks that are, in fact, key to his game." Southern had hoped they wouldn't have to use Collins.

Offensive line replacements Nate Reinhcke and Craig Voorhees "did the best job they could," according to Towars. "I think they played hard. I think they wanted to win and gave a good effort."

Towars went on to say that "East Carolina is a good football team in a real tough conference that so far has played tougher teams than we have played and that's why they're here."

"They're the toughest team we've played so far. Even before the last time we played them they knew they were going to throw and so I think they're back there."

"I don't blame him at all."

Leaves home for Burger Chef.

Escape to hamburgers cooked over an open fire. Run away to thin, crisp, tender french fries. Let yourself go for shakes so thick you can eat them with a spoon. Forget all your cares for fish sandwiches and hot apple turnovers.

Just remember to take the family with you.
