Prof to Describe Visit to Remote Island

Peter A. Munch, professor of sociology who has spent more than 20 years studying the inhabitants of a remote South Atlantic island, will discuss the islanders at a public lecture tonight.

Munch will speak on "Tristan da Cunha Revisited" at 7:30 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium. His talk is part of a series being given in connection with the Summer Institute for Biology Teachers being held on campus.

Munch returned June 15 from a nine-month trip to Tristan da Cunha, where he studied the resettlement of natives to their island life after living in Calabog, England, for two years.

The islanders had to leave their homes in 1961 when a volcanic crater threatened the island. The British government evacuated all 14 of the 270 islanders who went to England, decided not to return. Munch said that a few of them married, and others decided to remain with the families they lived with in England.

The Da Combins are descendants of garrison which first occupied the island in 1836. Their society developed in complete isolation until the time of their evacuation.

Munch said that as a result, their society is "extraordinarily open" and that they are the "friendliest people on earth." On the island there were no jails, government, laws, crime or contagious diseases, he said.

The islanders had no trouble

Reserve Call-Up Is Deferred

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson gravely told the nation Wednesday he is sending 20,000 Americans to South Vietnam to deal with the Communist "tactical and desolation" if that must be the path to a just peace.

Johnson said monthly draft calls will be more than doubled, from 17,000 men to 35,000, to increase 60,000 forces in Vietnam from 75,000 to 125,000 troops.

Johnson said he is sending the new Air Mobile Division, a helicopter-borne force of nearly 16,000 men, to Vietnam. With other forces to be dispatched now, he said, the 300,000-man buildup will come almost immediately.

"Additional forces will be needed later, and they will be seen," said Johnson.

He added, in a news conference statement: "This is the most agonizing and painful decision that I have to make, but I am..."

Johnson said he has told Ambassador Arthur J. Gold-tberg to ask that the United Nations use all its resources against other nations which are not playing by the same rules and helping peace in Vietnam.

"If this does not work, if conditions in Viet Nam that has kery Johnson clustered with his family and guests almost every day for a week.

Johnson covered his decision with a newsmaker's wording statement, addressed not named, and they crowdded the White House East Room, out to "my fellow Americans and to the world, and watched the broadcast.

"This is a different kind of war," he said. There are

Training Extension For Jobless Studied

An examination of $2.2 million federal retraining program for hard-core unemployed may be sought by SIU.

The program began in May and is scheduled to end Sept. 6.

However, William Westberg, director of the project, told the board of directors of Southern Illinois Inc., meeting in Marion Monday that an extension may be sought.

He said approximately 400 unemployed in Franklin and Williamson Counties have been retrained and have found jobs. About $0,000 will have completed training when the project ends.

He said an extension would give more time to find jobs for persons who completed retraining.

Scent on a Fool's Errand

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

All our great moral philosophers keep telling us love is blind. But I don't think so, too. Moreover, it's not the flingish weed ever devised.

Say some dirty guys kick you in the shin in a dark alley? If you don't say "ouch!" in the ear, he may think he's cuttinh you in the nose.

His antenna trembles. His keen eyes. His what-I-can-call-it. The red blood slacks out through his veins. He has struck and slipped and gone dry as sand, in a word, love.

At first he is filled with terror, and runs out to the world, clutching his gympy moth, fluttering haplessly from flower to flower, not a chance in the world. When he senses the upset, "Ah!" he says. "Something lovely just passed by." His hands are too slow, too weak. His human hands.

Think how this makes him feel. Interior, brutish, delusional. It is the only way he can justify having ticked you in the shin.

It was not love, it was a goodly maidenly female breakthrouh: essence of love.

"O.K."

You're not going to keep it up, he tells his hands. He's lost and he knows it. Yes, air, loving these enemy hands to the last, nestiest thing you can imagine.

And if you don't believe that love is the ultimate-libidinal weapon, ask the Department of Agriculture, the gypsy moth.

For years, the Department has been fighting a endless chemical warfare against the gypsy moth with glee, but at last the Department's scientists, caught by the siren song of their research on the nature of their hands with glee, have come up with a smashing technological breakthrough: how to make the inhumaine, brutish hands fall in love.

This essence gives off the same seductive aroma as a maidenly female gypsy moth. Yes, a truth. The Department's Machiavel-like research team, in their hands with glee, have finally hit upon a plan to spray this diabolical weapon on the world. Oh, I shudder to even think of it.

There's the gay bachelor with his passion? Her essence is sure to affect him. His hands will tremble. His once brave wings will droop.

But where is the object of her desire? This is life's dearest puzzle, seeming only all around him, here, there, everywhere. He finds no one. No, up, no, down.

Day after day millions of people pursue the girl of their diabolical visions across the meadows of desire, up the high hills of hope and, at last, down the black sloughs of despair.

A woman about to enjoy her first 20 birthdays. After that, I shudder to think. —Arthur Hoppe

America—the country that has more food to eat than any other country in the world, the country that teaches us that you can't eat a potato unless you first plant it and cultivate it and water it and feed it plain that no Illinoisan since Lincoln, and few Americans, have been so indifferent to the needs of the world.

But at Stevenson's great 573,000 people who signed the petition for political reform, he turned his back on them.

"I confidently predict that the human race will enter a new golden era in which man will love his enemy in a world of peace and plenty."

Mariner IV's first pictures of Mars, to be published in Science magazine, of the death of Albert Einstein in 1955, and the successful test firing of a new weapon love really is.

A woman about to enjoy her first 20 birthdays. After that, I shudder to think. —Arthur Hoppe

Adlai Belongs to the Ages

By Irving Dillidar

The perspective that comes with the few days that have passed since his death makes it possible for me to look at the single-mindedness and the few Americans, have been so widely admired or highly esteemed as Adlai E. Stevenson, the midwest governor who as an internationally respected diplomat, his democracy's most eloquent spokesman of his time.

Second thoughts about Stevenson and his contributions to the world are so much different than what he twice bore the Democratic standard against Eisenhower, the World War II commander, and hence was twice ignored to defeat. Lose the highest prize he did. But men and women, his campaign manager, while we may be sure that Adlai Stevenson's campaigns were the most 'enlightened' in human history, are already an impenetrable part of our political heritage.

Conservatives and some political life have compiled black records that cause people to turn from politics in dismay. What a contrast it was to read the story of Stevenson's campaign.

Stevenson was an inspiration to a whole generation of rising political leaders. Many hundreds of men and women went into political life, inspired by the example of Stevenson. His political career was in the service.

It was on the basis of his outstanding record as governor of one of our most populous states that Stevenson was prevailed on to run for President in 1952. Not many men are the subjects of a genuine draft. Stevenson was.

It was four years more at the desk of Alfgeg and Pifor, Lowden and Quayle, but here his duty, his dedication, his concern for the people as a soldier accepts the assignment, whatever it may be.

But Stevenson did not come even close to his shahs of political war, his political opponents spread the content that his humor was over the heads of the voters. Of course the Jerks was nonsense. Everybody knew he was a good man. He might have been a little cold. His opponents were having trouble standing on their platform because it was "like standing on a bucket." Stevenson's great 573,000 majority in 1948 carried Truman to a great decisive victory in Illinois. That gave Truman Illinois' large bloc of electoral votes and helped mightily to win the case. And for the second time, Stevenson's call for a "change in Washington" after the Great Depression and the Korean War, "it was a classified project, unusually high."

This was the first time in modern history that a major expansion of human technology has been successfully and the public interest.

Thus Dyson finds that the NASA people acted in good faith. So did the Air Force, the Department of Defense and the scientific community.

At least, however, the Air Force's case for budgetary reasons. The "first time in modern history that a major expansion of human technology has been successfully and the public interest, now and for the future, it is to keep it politically popular."

"When a responsible public official thinks of Orion, he inevitably envisions a shipload of atomic bombs all detonating simultaneously and wiping out half of Florida, though it is technically easy to make such an accident impossible, it is not possible to exercise the fear of it. The bases of the NASA know that fear is the most potent force in politics and they have no wish to be feared."

Dyson makes no charges of skullduggery, malfeasance or disregard of the public interest on the part of the men who signed Orion's death warrant. Instead he seems to have decided as a result of the limitations imposed by the objectives of the coal government agencies. In all, about $60 million was spent on Orion. The Air Force sponsored the project after the Advanced Research Projects Agency of the Defense Department discontinue'd it. The Air Force had trouble justifying the project as a military one, but placed the research under security regulations.

Last year the military classification was removed and NASA was urged to take over the entire effort. According to Dyson the decision came so late that the program was burned out and the Air Force. Last January, Orion was dropped. The test ban was a factor. As the last step of the program could not be permitted above ground, there was no chance of a full-scale test using nuclear charges. The only inescapable conclusion is that small-scale ones using chemical explosives.

Commenting on NASA's decision to drop Orion, Dyson says: "When a responsible public official thinks of Orion, he inevitably envisions a ship load of atomic bombs all detonating simultaneously and wiping out half of Florida, though it is technically easy to make such an accident impossible, it is not possible to exercise the fear of it. The bases of the NASA know that fear is the most potent force in politics and they have no wish to be feared."

Thus Dyson finds that the NASA people acted in good faith. So did the Air Force, the Department of Defense and the scientific community.

Goldberg Transmits Johnson Note
Encouraging Thant’s Peace Efforts

UNITED NATIONS N.Y. (AP) - Lewis Arthur J. Goldberg, last U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., Thursday presented a new U.S. note to Thant, the new U.N. Secretary-General, urging that he work for a settlement of the Viet Nam conflict.

Goldberg, the former New York insurance lawyer, is considered a possible candidate for the U.S. ambassadorship to Japan.

The U.S. note is expected to be read as a message of support for Thant's peace efforts.

Negro Says Chicago’s Willis
Is ‘Monument of Segregation’

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Chicago Negro leader said Wednesday the city's superintendent of schools is a monument of segregation, and charged collusion of the school board and real estate interests to gerrymander school districts to preserve segregation.

But another witness, Mrs. Alice Bosky, president of Mothers of Public School, Inc., in the Schools, also said that most Negroes did not want to give up property rights.

The committees were appointed by the city council to study the situation.

Open Fire on Labor

LONDON (AP) — Edward Heath, the new chief of the Conservative party, promised Wednesday night the fight of his political life. A crisis threatened the Labour government.

Heath, 49, a middle-class product of a state—public—school, was formally confirmed as leader of the opposition party. It was a break from Conservative tradition which previously favored birth and background.

Facing his first news conference in his new job, Heath warned Wilson: "We shall fight hard in the House of Commons and in the country and we shall fight on a policy.

Heath accused the Labour government of "muddle and incompetence."

Mizzou Tigers Get Head Shrinker To Sharpen Their Academic Claws

By John Matheson

The problem, as Missouri sees it, is to keep its Tigers in the ranks.

In the ranks, specifically, of the athletic teams of the university.

To achieve this objective, a head-shrinker has been assigned to the Department of Athletics. Columbia has hired Dr. Ernst Hacheneschmid, the import from Vienna.

All of which sets the scene for dialogue like this, between one of the 204-pound "kids" and the team psychologist:

Dr. H.: Kommen Sie hier, mein Kind. Excuse me, please, I slipped back into my native tongue. The sight of a kid does this to me every time, especially a nice, big kid like me.

Left Guard: Doc---by the way, while I tell you my troubles, will you rub my shoulder? Three other kids got this fixation that they want no extra strain on East-West relations, already made taut by the war in Viet Nam.

The 49 men and 21 women who arrived here Tuesday for the Russian meet received a polite but cool reception from the Russians, but there were no demonstrations.

The Yanks spent 21/4 hours at the Moscow Airport clearing red tape. They were bused to the city for dinner and bused to another airport for their flight to Kiev.

The Russians hardly noticed. Oh, if they did, they didn't want anybody to know.

Hmmmms! Sounds like this car has been hired to keep the Tigers' academic claws sharpened.

But the trend is the thing. If it continues, every Stillman's Gym will have its analyst, the scoreboard table will be split between Lefty the Trainer and Dr. Ernst Hacheneschmid, the import from Vienna.

Hmmmms! Sounds like this car has been hired to keep the Tigers' academic claws sharpened.

But the trend is the thing. If it continues, every Stillman's Gym will have its analyst, the scoreboard table will be split between Lefty the Trainer and Dr. Ernst Hacheneschmid, the import from Vienna.

All of which sets the scene for dialogue like this, between one of the 204-pound "kids" and the team psychologist:

Dr. H.: Kommen Sie hier, mein Kind. Excuse me, please, I slipped back into my native tongue. The sight of a kid does this to me every time, especially a nice, big kid like me.

Left Guard: Doc---by the way, while I tell you my troubles, will you rub my shoulder? Three other kids got this fixation that they want no extra strain on East-West relations, already made taut by the war in Viet Nam.

The 49 men and 21 women who arrived here Tuesday for the Russian meet received a polite but cool reception from the Russians, but there were no demonstrations.

The Yanks spent 21/4 hours at the Moscow Airport clearing red tape. They were bused to the city for dinner and bused to another airport for their flight to Kiev.

The Russians hardly noticed. Oh, if they did, they didn't want anybody to know.

Doug Mougey is Quarterback's Backstop

A second-string quarterback in football is like a spare tire on a football and for this reason team's most valuable player on Mougey's part because his used unless an emergency de-Mougey threw for over playing 8-2, coaches consider it important for the second year in a row. In the opening game Mougey played quarterback Mougey, who is starting his med school and it was close however, the only another change Mougey played most of and Guthman indicated that he hit in last season, St. Louis games. Mougey played quarterback in last spring's interquad game that he will be ready to take over the reins if and when Shroyer decides. Mougey passed and ran the B team to a surprising victory over the A team. Hart was hobbled by a shoulder injury and when he had to leave the game at half-time, Mougey quarterbacked both teams. With the likes of Hart and Mougey at quarterback, this is one position that Shroyer is not worried much about.

Florida State U. Professor to Give Education Course

Edward K. Hankin, professor of education at Florida State University, will teach a two-week class on "New Concepts in Area School," at SIU beginning Monday, July 22.

The class is the fourth in a series of special sections in area schools containing developments in technological education. Offered through the School of Technology, it gives graduate credit.

John Erickson, chairman of the Department of Industrial Education, said the final session is especially well suited to area teachers. It meets from 9:50 to 10:50 a.m. and 1:20 to 2:20 p.m., Monday through Friday. Students may register at the first class meeting.

Hankin is the fourth nationally known educator brought to SIU this summer to teach a section of the new developments course.

Library Seeks to Increase Its Latin American Holdings

To increase its already substantial holdings in Latin American research, the SIU library has added a Latin American bibliographer to its staff.

Ralph E. McCoy, director of libraries, said Hersley C. Woodbridge, an experienced librarian and Spanish linguist, will have the responsibility of expanding the research materials.

SIU is among some two dozen universities in the country with specialized Latin American collections, Woodbridge said. He recently attended a Detroit meeting of librarians of such collections.

Officials of SIU's Latin American Institute, which offers the master's degree in Latin American studies, hailed Woodbridge's appointment as a step forward in solidifying SIU's position in this field of research and graduate study.

Latest acquisition in the Latin American field is a collection of some 7,000 journals and periodicals concerning various South American and Central American countries. Other significant acquisitions in recent years include the Manoel Gutierrez Najera archives, the collection of the late Arthur E. Hoakins, St. Louis advertising executive, and the fine private library of Dr. Jose Miguez Cari- rion of Ecuador, some 7,000 volumes.

Woodbridge, who has lived and studied in Mexico, is a graduate of William and Mary College, and obtained the master's degree at Harvard University and the Ph. D. in Spanish and the master's degree in library science from the University of Illinois. He is the author of a book, "Jesse Stuart," a bibliography of the Kentucky novelist and poet.

Since 1933 Woodbridge has been librarian at Murray State College, Murray, Ky. He is married to the former Annie Smith and has a 10-year-old daughter, Ruby Susan.

Woodbridge will also serve part-time on the faculty of the Department of Foreign Languages as an associate professor.

Munch Studied Native Culture

29 Years, Reveals Findings

(Continued from Page 1) at all readjusting to their quiet life after their stay in England, according to Munch. "They just picked up where they left off," he said. There was some damage to their animals during the time they were left on the island alone, and their houses had been ravaged, but other than that, everything was the same.

Munch's trip was co-sponsored by the National Science Foundation in New York and the Medical Research Council in London. Getting to the island itself is one of the more trying parts of doing research there. Often there is a long wait before a boat leaving Cape Town, South Africa goes by the island.

On this trip, however, Munch went to the island on a research ship belonging to the government of South Africa. The same ship picked him up from Tristan da Cunha in May.
