SIU Alumni Contribute To the Arts

SIU alumni, many of whom are back on campus this Homecoming Day, are making significant contributions to the arts. At the same time they are earning national and international notice.

They are actors, painters, stage designers, photographers, opera singers, sculptors and writers of wide repute.

Taylor, a world traveler as well as a widely known writer, has cycled across Europe, visited the Fiji Islands and has lived with a native family in Tahiti. The manuscript of one of his novels, "Journey to Marcumbe," is in the Morris Library.

Others, somewhat more typical of SIU alumni and their successes:

Ed Mitchell, once a stage-struck Carbondale boy, is now senior set designer for CBS television studios in New York City. His current assignments are daytime serials, "The Guiding Light" and "The Secret Storm."

Stage and film actor Calvin Bartlett (George Worrell) has appeared in television episodes of the "Kraft Suspense Theater," "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" and "Perry Mason." He has worked in stage productions of "South Pacific," "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "The Diary of Anne Frank."

Ken Swofford, another former SIU actor, appeared in the motion pictures "Father Goose" and "Captain Newman," and on television in "Surfside Six" and "77 Sunset Strip."

Photographer Frank Salmo, who graduated last winter, worked for United Press International in New York City, then went to Europe where he has been doing free-lance work. Examples of his work are on page 4.

Many other alumni who are not actually working full-time in the arts are teaching the arts.

At least one, sculptor W. Robert Youngman, does both.

He is chairman of the Art Department at Abraham College, and his own work appears regularly in major galleries. He is also represented in collections such as those of Joseph Pulitzer Jr., the St. Louis Museum of Art and the San Francisco Museum of Art.

In addition, Youngman has been a design consultant to numerous business and architectural firms. Currently he is involved in the building of a 100-ton sculpture for an educational complex in Ohio.

Computerized Music Hath Charms, Too

By Thomas B. Sherman

In George Orwell's "1984," a novel that described the complete degradation of fully machine-generated music, all the popular songs were composed by an artificial composer, as well as the singer, had been divorced from all human experiences, and could do nothing. It can solve in a few seconds mathematical problems that would stagger the whole faculty of the Massa­chusetts Institute of Technol­ogy. It can store in its "mem­ory" all the pertinent and im­portant facts of human history.

So it hardly surprising that it can compose music.

Mother Harriet Ann Pad­berg, associate professor of mathematics and music at the Maryville College of the Sac­red Heart, has been chaperoning the musical ex­ercises of a computer for sev­eral years and has induced mathematics and music at the university. At first she used an IBM 7090 made available by R.A. Dammkoehler, Director of Computing Facili­ties at Washington Uni­versity. Any ordinary flesh-and-blood composer is confined to the 12 tones approximately represented by the white and black keys of the piano when it spans an octave. A stringed instrument, such as the violin, or when doing so the director, composed rhythms that were based on the works of the octaves. This thought experiment is as follows: When so controlled, makes a tape of music which is not thinking of audience demand making use of mathe­matical group theory, Rhyth­mic patterns are generated by computer analysis of the data. Again, to put it simply, when given data and a struc­tural pattern it may be said that the computer composes music.

A knowledge of mathe­matics and the processes of a computer are necessary in order to understand how this is done. So I suggest that every non-mathematical reader should accept certain basic assumptions on faith. Mother Padberg can demon­strate the results of her ex­periments and she foresees the computer's utility as an aid to, rather than a substi­tute for, the composer. This is reassuring. The de­vice of a computer on the aid of a composer: or any mechanical device bears a close relation to the emotion­al experience of human beings. Behavioralist Political Writing Helps Re-Tool Traditionalists

A distinguished student of public administration has added material to our ever-lengthening list of publications designed to assist the traditionalists of the discipline. This compact and authoritative effort by Robert Presthus in additional recognition of the increasing recognition now being accorded the new and challenging behavioral dimensions of the subject matter of public administration.

In reporting the fruits of his own research efforts, both here and abroad over the past five years, he concedes both losses and gains, his systematic analysis of the findings derived from the use of "decisional" and "reputational" techniques in ascertaining the status of power in any community structure are most revealing.

This phase of the research reviewed by Max W. Turner, Department of Government.

Reviewers will be of particular interest to his readers reared in small communities dominated by elitist groups whose source of power was based upon economic, technological or intellectual considerations. Each such reader is likely to find it difficult to refrain from making critical appraisals of the "leadership" of his home town using the "yardstick" employed by Presthus in his study of the New York communities of "Edgewood" and "Riverview".

Presthus indicates that we should not regard the recent emergence of behaviorists as a protest against traditionalist approaches to the subject. On the contrary, he feels that any behavioralist writing more than the traditionalist historical political science in his research may find his work devoid of real substance.

The author argues with those who would argue normative issues cannot be studied according to scientific method, he notes that political research on subjects as elitism, pluralism, political tolerance, and administrative behavior actually touches upon some of the most vital political questions confronting today’s students of modern public administration.

Author Presthus is to be commended for taking issue with contemporary writers who select synonmys to maintain literal interest. He, like most students of today’s output, finds that the words and symbols they represent are frequently quite different in their intent. In fact, some of the sophisticated language employed by many contemporary writers may actually border on recklessness when subjected to systematic analysis.

The author’s critical evaluation of the sources of tension between the behavioralists and the professional historians leads him to conclude that some of the conventional approaches has been disciplinary origins. This stress factor is one of the explanations of the conceptualization of disciplines in many universities which he feels reflects professional and organizational imperatives rather than intellectual realities.

Presthus argues that only by increasing the use of behavioralist techniques and theory in contemporary research will political scientists be able to further the intellectual development of public administration as a discipline. Although he notes that a great amount of research has been done to date, most of it is not acceptable. However, the major problem, it is thought, may be the nature of the governmental decision making in which the behavioralist is interested.

It is the author’s contention that if the economy of the future is to be completely developed, it is necessary, and with a continued decline in the size of the U.S. population on the farm and the increased pressure for reducing the size of the power of agriculture will be increased. Therefore, the need for non-farm people to understand the nature of the farm problem is obvious. The need for an understandable goal also is obvious. "If a positive policy to maintain the family farm is formulated and sustained, then the family farm can probably survive," he writes. But even arguing on a definition of a family farm may be difficult.

It can be demonstrated by commercial agriculture that the chief recipients of agricultural research have been consumers. Excess capacity is a major farm problem. This, coupled with inelastic demand, changes diet and creates "sticky" marketing costs, results in farm prices very susceptible to changes in supply. It is the authors contention that farmers do not want a free market and they are opposed to mandatory production controls. Government-fixed prices at recent levels were such as to encourage production above the ability of the domestic market to absorb the production.

Cochrane maintains that the major problem in the future is that the economy will determine the future government policy toward agriculture. His book defines the problem, but many people who consider that his data is not well presented are unimpressed. He recognizes that a "least cost" economic solution may be politically unacceptable. However, the awareness of the factors involved and the problems associated with alternative solutions is evident.

The book is a valuable addition to the literature for the layman. In an effort to be readable, some of the problems are oversimplified. The reader should also refer to a number of publications whose authors have covered much of the same ground, viewpoints and objectives.

In the traditional setting of ancient Egypt, King Menes first arrived on a Thursday night to rule over the annual Homecoming festivities. Legend has it that Menes told the name of the queen directly from the ancient Egyptian god Harmonicus. However, this has not been established as fact.

King Menes first arrived from the Land of the Pharaohs (Egypt) to the land of the Carrrors (Southern Illinois) in 1922.

At that time the Homecoming celebration was held in conjunction with the Carbon-dale Halloween festivities.

No matter who told him, the girl chosen to reign with graciousness and beauty over the Homecoming festivities was Janice K. Ockerby, a junior from Creve Coeur.

Of all the queens chosen since the tradition was begun, Miss Ockerby is only the ninth blonde.

The queen's court is made up of the other candidates for queen. They are Elleen Brockway, a senior from Plainfield; Jacqueline Carlson, a senior from DeKalb; Susan King, a junior from Mount Vernon; and Lynee Shor, a senior from Belleville.

The queen's attendants were Anna Marie Mayeski, sophomore from Plainfield; Kaylene Fahl, a sophomore from West Frankfort.

All were chosen in the Oct. 13 elections. But the identity of the attendants is announced directly after the election.

This year's coronation begins with a retelling of the tale of King Menes and reachs its finale when the new queen is announced.

Jan Sirles, the official court photographer, and Jeff Gilham, court publicist, entertained the king's subjects by royal command.

Michael T. West related the ancient story of the king, and Barry J. Lyrbarer was the court crier.

The king's mascots were salukis who were watched by trainers Andy Bondenbaker and Tom J. Klein.

The royal guards included Brent Williams, Frank K. Schimiz, Thomas C. Seward and Thomas A. Cook. The slave girl was Lynne D. Murdock.

Ninth Blond to Rule

Homecoming Queen Is Crowned In Traditional Egyptian Setting

In the traditional setting of ancient Egypt, King Menes first arrived from the Land of the Pharaohs (Egypt) to the land of the Carrrors (Southern Illinois) in 1922.

At that time the Homecoming celebration was held in conjunction with the Carbon-dale Halloween festivities.

No matter who told him, the girl chosen to reign with graciousness and beauty over the Homecoming festivities was Janice K. Ockerby, a junior from Creve Coeur.

Of all the queens chosen since the tradition was begun, Miss Ockerby is only the ninth blonde.

The queen's court is made up of the other candidates for queen. They are Elleen Brockway, a senior from Plainfield; Jacqueline Carlson, a senior from DeKalb; Susan King, a junior from Mount Vernon; and Lynee Shor, a senior from Belleville.

The queen's attendants were Anna Marie Mayeski, sophomore from Plainfield; Kaylene Fahl, a sophomore from West Frankfort.

All were chosen in the Oct. 13 elections. But the identity of the attendants is announced directly after the election.

This year's coronation begins with a retelling of the tale of King Menes and reachs its finale when the new queen was announced.

Jan Sirles, the official court photographer, and Jeff Gilham, court publicist, entertained the king's subjects by royal command.

Michael T. West related the ancient story of the king, and Barry J. Lyrbarer was the court crier.

The king's mascots were salukis who were watched by trainers Andy Bondenbaker and Tom J. Klein.

The royal guards included Brent Williams, Frank K. Schimiz, Thomas C. Seward and Thomas A. Cook. The slave girl was Lynne D. Murdock.

WHEN IS NATE'S COMING?

They Beat 'Preachers'

'22 Celebration Normal Style... Guys, Dolls Danced at Armory

By Ed Rapetti

In 1922 if you missed the Homecoming game and parade you couldn't watch the video tape replay on WSIU-TV. A thousand miles away in New York, Granfield Rice had recently given play-by-play of the Giant-Yankee World Series on the first live broadcast by "radiophone."

You couldn't buy a pint to keep you warm along the side lines because America was "dry." The Egyptian, Southern Illinois Normal University's student newspaper, was six years old.

The SINU "Maroons" beat "Preachers" 13-7 at the second annual Homecoming game. Football was spelled in two words then and was far behind baseball's popularity. About 2,000 fans saw the 1922 game which was preceded by parade featuring the Homecoming king and queen. The previous Homecoming celebration was not officially Southern's. It was combined with Armistice Day programs and celebrations of the midterm type.

Perhaps some of the older alumni will remember what college life was like in the 20s. Many of the boys had been veterans of the "Big War," and dropped expressions like "parlez-vous franais, mademoiselle" to impress the coeds.

If your papa had some dough you could buy a Chevrolet touring car for about $600 or an Olds for $1,000. You probably smoked Omar, Polo or Lucky Strike cigarettes.

The men bought their shirts collars downtown for 20 cents each. The Carbondale Free Press was a daily six-page newspaper that carried ads for the latest "silents" appearing at Barth's Theater. The Ziegfeld Follies were the featured attraction in New York but in Carbondale you could see Wallace Reid and Elise Ferguson starring in the silent movie entitled, "Forever." In addition to the Miit and Jeff cartoons.

The national scene had Andy Arnickke, movie comedy star, on trial for murder and the nation's morals told Hollywood to clean up its scandalous behavior.

Americans nervously followed the reports from the Near East as Turkey threatened war to annex Thrace in the Balkan peninsula. But the big news in Carbondale concerned a successful Baptist revival meeting and the war on slaying of a local man by two hitch-hikers.

The big event at SINU after the Homecoming game was a dance in the Carbondale Armory. The guys and gals twirled to the music of Pop Meyer's orchestra exulting in the joy of the afternoon victory over the Cape Eleven.

This year the Saluki face a tough opponent and the prospect of victory is questionable. Nevertheless the Homecoming spirit of celebration looks to be as high as any other year--including 1922.

Sweeping Changes Alter Campus
Since First Homecoming in 1922

What was Southern Illinois University like when the first official Homecoming ceremonies took place on campus in 1922?

First of all, SIU was not SIU in 1922. It was Southern Illinois Normal University. The University covered approximately 43 acres compared to the more than 800 acres it covers today. This is exclusive of the University farms.

Also, only 794 students were enrolled at the University. The fall enrollment on the Carbondale campus in 1922. But then, as now, and as it always has been, male students outnumbered girl students.

The students did not yell, "Come on, Salukis," at the sport events, but, "Come on, 'Roo's." The Saluki was not adopted as SIU's sport symbol until 1951.

Basketball and football were the only sports on campus. Today there are 10 sports and 11 coaches.

Old Main, Altgeld Hall, Wheeler, Allyn, Anthony Hall, and Shryock Auditorium were the permanent building on campus in 1922. There are now approximately 76 permanent buildings.

As of December, 1964, Carbondale campus has a full-time faculty and administrative staff of 2,134. This number is twice as large as the number of students attending the University during the fall when the first Homecoming was held.

The state appropriation to SIU for the 1963-65 biennium totaled $103,924,088.10. This included operating funds of $56,400,000 and the balance in capital outlay and reappropriated funds from the 1961-63 biennium.

The appropriation for operating funds for the 1965-67 biennium totals $80,555,000.

Carbondale barbers haven't seen Jim Schubert lately and the way things are going they probably won't for a while longer.

Schubert, a sophomore from Rockford and an avid Saluki sports fan, is literally letting his hair grow out for the Salukis, and promises that he won't get another haircut until they win another football game.

"I was optimistic at the start of the season and figured they would win eight or nine games," said Schubert. "So after the disappointing loss to Tulsa, I decided to let my hair grow until the Salukis won again."

It's now been since Aug. 25 that Schubert, who works as Sports Information Service, has visited a barber shop, and nine weeks without a cut can leave a man with quite a ragged look.

Rumor also has it that the city of Carbondale plans to make him buy a dog's license soon if he doesn't get it cut. "It had no idea it would take this long to win another game" but I'm confident the boys will come through for me," said Schubert.

In an effort to put the whim­my on Tulsa's passing game, Schubert has brought out his "worry beads." These beads, according to Schubert, can only be used as a last resort.

What happens if the Salukis continue their losing ways for the rest of the season? Schubert hasn't decided what action he would take, but he's contemplating giving coach Jack Hartman's basket­ball Salukis a chance to send him to the chair-the barber's, of course.

Support Artillery Kills 6 Americans

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Shells fired by a sup­porting artillery unit killed six paratroopers and wounded three of the U.S. 101st Air­borne Division in a drive Thursday against the Viet Cong, a military spokesman disclosed Friday.

In the air war, American authorities in effect wrote off a Navy F-4 Crusader jet that was blown out of the sky on a bombing mission 60 miles southwest of Nha Rong Wednesday as the sixth U.S. plane to fall victim to Viet Nam's Soviet-supplied missiles.

A strike by B-52 bombers from Guam headed a day of intensive aerial action against the Viet Cong. The target of

Cathedral Décorated With Paint

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — Ancient Canterbury Cathedral was decorated with red and blue paint in fur­tion reaction Friday to the arch­bishop's statement that force might be justifiable in Rhodesia.

"It's like the work of a madman," said one cathedral official.

The word "Peace" was daubed in huge red letters across a tapestry behind the high altar. The Archbishop's chair, on which many of Canterbury's archbishops have been enthroned over the centuries, was reported badly damaged. Legend says this cathedral treasure dates back to the 13th century or more.

Wilson Continues Pressure On Rhodesian Government

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson Thursday said he would go to London's approval.

Wilson is scheduled to leave for home Saturday. The white Rhodesians feared that once he was gone the British would fly in a lot of administra­tors and seek to take control from Smith's government.

The British feared that if all of Wilson's party left, the Smith government would go through its long-standing threat to declare inde­pendence.

Informed sources said Wilson was under heavy pressure on Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia in a last-ditch bid Friday to pre­vent the white Rhodesian gov­ernment from grabbing independ­ence.

Informants said Wilson even in­dicated the British govern­ment might suspend the Smith doc­tor's constitution, putting this central African country under direct British ad­ministration until the racial

Thigh-High Skirts Cause Sensation

LONDON (AP) — The makers of a thigh-high skirt de­scribed as the "shortest possible" produced skirt on the market — said Friday that their brev­ity is meeting with a sensa­tional response.

Said a spokesman for the design firm: "We put this little skirt on sale at a well-known London shop in the morning. It sold out before lunch."

The skirt, a stretchy fabric four to five inches above the knee, its over-all length was 18 inches. Made of corduroy, it retails for $5.33.

Fashion expert Judy Innis commented in the Daily Mail: "This isn't just another piece of London boutique­mania. These skirts, that would make a flapper blush, are selling everywhere."

Lettermen, Sophomores Make Young, Talented Tennis Team

Coach Dick Lefevre, who returns to his duties as tennis coach this year after a two-year stay in South Viet Nam, has assembled a young but talented squad that he thinks "should be as good as the 1964 team that tied for first place in the NCAA college-division tournament."

Three lettermen return, but only one, Thad Ferguson, played on last year's team that won eight and lost three. The other two, Al Pena and Wilson Burge, both played on the championship team.

Sophomores will make up the rest of the team. They include Jose Brandi, the second-ranked Filipino, and Johnny Yang, the fourth-ranked Filipino, and Mike Sprengelmeyer, younger brother of Bob and Ray, who were instrumental in Southern's 1964 championship.

Lefevre made it to the finals of the invitational tournament last weekend at the University of Missouri before he was defeated.

In the doubles competition finals, Sprengelmeyer and Villarette teamed up to defeat their teammates Pena and Burge.

The netmen, as in years past, will open their spring season in Houston, Tex., where they will play in the Rice Invitational tournament.

"We'll continue our policy of playing the best teams throughout the country," said Lefevre. Although the schedule isn't complete, Lefevre expects to have matches with the top teams in the Big 10, Southeast and Southwest Conferences.

SIU Baseball Season Tied To New Coach, Rebuilding

Last year was a good one for the baseball Salukis, who posted a 20-3 record and a second-place finish in the NCAA college-division tournament.

The Salukis will be under a new head coach, Joe Lutz, who takes over for Glenn (Abe) Martin, who retired.

Before coming to Southern, Lutz coached at Parsons College, where his teams won 58 of 90 games and accounted for two of Southern's four losses in the last two seasons.

A rebuilding job will face Lutz, who will have only eight lettermen returning from last year's team.

Gone are Southern’s two top pitchers, Gene Vincent and Jack Holza, along with heavy-hitting outfielders Kent Collins and John Siebel and Al Pena.

The infield suffered the fewest graduation losses, second baseman Larry Schaeke, shortstop Dennis Walter, and third baseman Bob Bernstein are all expected to be at spring practice.

They will form the nucleus of the team along with returning pitchers Wayne Trammell and Ron Guthman and outfielders Rich Collins and Paul Pavesich.

Sophomores will also be relied on, especially in the pitching department, where Don Kirkland, Mike Lyle and George Fes will compete for starting positions along with veterans Sramek and Guthman.

SIU Approved

This new idea in dormitory living is an approved living center by Southern Illinois University for any age student of any class level. Under the supervision and guidance of housing officials of S.I.U., each dormitory will be governed by a Resident Counselor and four Resident Fellows.

Included within the cafeteria is a stage at the north end that will serve for both plays and debates that will be scheduled throughout the year. Also provided is a complete sound system and dressing rooms.

Under the supervision of the Student Councilor, a RATHSKELLER is being constructed below the cafeteria.

This facility will be just the thing for dates, get-togethers, or snacks. The Rathskeller will be decorated in a medieval atmosphere...Complete with coat of arms.

Tulsa”s Howard Twilley

Powerhouse From Tulsa Invades McAndrew

By Bob Reindel

Southern will take the field for the Homecoming game at 1:30 p.m. today armed as the underdog to what is probably the biggest margin in the school’s history.

The reason is simple—the Salukis are playing the pass-crazy Tulsa Hurricane.

Coach Don Shroyer said earlier that he and the team, of course, realize Tulsa’s strength, and added that the Salukis would simply do as well as they can.

And all signs indicate it will take Southern’s best to upset the Hurricane. Tulsa is 4-2 in the season and has left a trail of shattered records behind in its first six games. The Salukis, meanwhile, are 1-5 this year and have lost five in a row and 10 of their last 11 games.

Shroyer is expected to make some changes in his lineup after last week’s disappointing showing against Wichita State.

The probable starting line includes John Fendley at the end and tackles, Linwood Jenkins and Jim Hart, guard Ralph Galbraith and center Joe Ewan. The backfield will probably be the same as last week with Jim Hart at quarterback, Monty Riffer at fullback and halfbacks Hill Williams and Arnold Kee.

The defensive starters are more uncertain, but Shroyer will probably go with Larry Wolfe and Ron Leonard at the ends with John Eliason and Brigham as tackles and middle guard Al Jenkins.

Linebackers will probably be Dave Cronin and Riffer with Gus Heath and Warren Stahlmut at corners and Eddie Richards and Norm Johnson as safeties.

This defensive secondary will have its hands full (and probably its feet, arms and heads, too) with stopping Tulsa’s passing. Quarterback Bill Anderson leads the nation in passing, and end Howard Twilley is the top receiver.

Twilley, who is small for a college end at 5-10 and 180 pounds, now holds or is tied with nearly every receiving record known to college statisticians.

Anderson, a hairy-legged Cinderella who played defensive halfback last year, is keeping alive the Hurricane’s chances at its fourth straight NCAA passing championship.

Tulsa could be especially tough today because of the presence of scouts from two post-season bowl games. The Hurricane’s passing is good enough without having the Tulsa fans flex their muscles in front of the scouts.
Role of Football Host Falls to Southern Staff

Most football teams that come to SIU literally fly in and fly right out after the game. The brevity of the teams’ stay and the self-sufficiency of most teams leaves very little room for playing assistant or professor of physical education and physical therapist at the Clinical Center.

When a team stays overnight, arrangements for hotel accommodations have usually been completed by the visitors before they arrive. Prior to the season the trainers usually write one another to inquire if the host team can be of any help and if anything special will be needed at half time, according to Robert R. Spackman, Saluki trainer and assistant professor of men’s physical education.

The visitors in general are greeted by Green and Craig Anderson, a senior who plays baseball in the New York Mets’ organization.

Anderson sends a “dope sheet” to each team to be completed and returned. The visitors are usually greeted by Green and Craig Anderson, a senior who plays baseball in the New York Mets’ organization.

According to Green, most teams that fly deplane at Marion. If transportation has been arranged for the visitors to their motel and truck to be present when they greet the team, the truck is loaded with the team’s equipment and sent to the stadium. If anything special will be needed for their opponents. Nineteen lettermen were on the squad and seven were given all-state honorable mentions including Martin.

Martin said that when his team held a reunion 10 years ago, they were eager to play the SIU varsity. Now, he said, they might not be so evenly matched.

Another football team is also back on campus for a Homecoming reunion although they’re a little older than Martin’s. Members of the 1915 team at Southern are celebrating their 50th anniversary, and they will be asked to stand for recognition at half time at today’s game. Ralph Hamilton was captain of the team.

Several SIU alumni now play on pro football and basketball teams. Sam Silas, a 1963 graduate, is a defensive tackle for the St. Louis Cardinals. Marion Rushing is also with the Cards. Houston Antwoine is with the Boston Celtics.

Four SIU alumni are playing in the Canadian football leagues. They are Jim Battle, Carver Shannon, Amos Bullock, and Clarence Walker.

Improving on last year's record will be difficult, but Coach Jack Hartman will be hoping to do so with a basketball team built around nine returning lettermen.

"The boys know our schedule is demanding, and they realize it's going to take an extra effort to match last year," Hartman said.

Hartman, who has guided the Salukis to a 56-26 overall record in his three years here, said he has been pleased with the team's performance in practice.

"We have been pleased with the practice sessions so far," he said, "and the boys have been putting forth a fine effort."

Three starters from last year's team, which finished with a 20-6 record and a second-place berth in the NCAA college-division finals, are returning this year to form the nucleus of the nine lettermen.

Both starting guards are back this year, senior One, George McNeil, led the team in scoring, while the other, Dave Lee, was the defensive sparkplug.

The forward starters are also back. Boyd O'Neal, a 6-6 senior, and Ralph Johnson, a 6-7 junior, alternated at the pivot post last season.

Boyd O'Neal

The big gap is at forward where Hartman lost both starters and a top reserve. The only returnee with much experience is Randy Goin, a 6-2 senior. A sophomore and two transfers could, however, give Hartman some relief at the forwards.

Jay Westcott, a 6-4 sophomore, is up for his first year with the varsity after leading the scoring for last year's freshmen. The return of Lloyd Stovall after a year of ineligibility will provide the Salukis with another good reserve, according to Hartman.

George McNeil

There could be four more serious blights of ducks throughout the Midwest, and several smaller ones.

Boyd O'Neal

The Salukis open their season in late March against Tulane University. Other top golf teams appearing on the schedule include Purdue, Ohio State, Wisconsin, Notre Dame and Michigan State universities.

The home meets will once again be played at the Crab Orchard Golf Course. The course has been a lucky one for the Salukis, who have won six of their last seven home meets.

Duplicating last year's 14-5-1 record and second-place finish won't be easy, but Hartman believes that if the boys have the dedication and aptitude to play, the season could be a successful one.

Coach Meade Pins High Hopes
On Improved Gymnastics Team

The problems facing gymnastics Coach Bill Meade this season are very few in number. The condition of his injured all-time record, and deciding what performer works what events, appear to be his two greatest.

As in the past, Meade has been loaded with top-flight gymnasts, and this year is no exception. Although not wanting to go out on a limb and predict a second NCAA gymnastics championship in three years, Meade expects his team to be virtually improved over last year's that tied for third in the final.

Heading the list of newcomers are Fred Dennis, Ron Harstad, Dale Hardt and Paul Mayer. Of the four, Mayer will probably be used in more events and could become the team's all-around performer. Dennis' best event is the rings, although he will probably see action on the high bar and the side horse. Harstad and Hardt will probably work one event, the parallel bars and the last bar and the trampoline.

Other sophomores who also will make their presence felt are Jack Halz and Joe Poliziano, rings; and Allan Alexander, bars, rings and vaults.

Heading the list of returnees from last year's 11-0 team are Frame Williams, Steve Whitehall, and Tom Seward. Going into the season, Southern's gymnastics team will take a string of 37 straight dual-meet victories. The last time a Southern gymnastics team lost a regular-season dual meet was to Michigan State University in the 1960-61 season.

Top dual meets this year are with the University of Arizona, Iowa State University and the Air Force Academy.

Swimmers Face Tough Matches

Coach Ralph Casey's swimmers finished ninth last year in NCAA finals, and this year they will again be up against the Big Ten schools, notably Indiana.

Senior Tom Mccan, who clocked the second-best time in the nation last year in the 200-yard free style, is with the squad again this year. There are a total of 50 members on the squad, with freshmen making up the largest number. Casey said that it was too early to make predictions about the freshman squad, but one high-stroker, Shaun McNally, shows promise.

The freshman team has the most depth, but the members are inexperienced. The sophomores make up the bulk of the varsity and there is only one senior on the team.

An interclass meet is scheduled for two weeks from today at the University Pool.
