Oklahoma, Arkansas Are First to Try

Oklahoma and Arkansas are among the states that are the first to try the new method of making water from air. The method, which is called the "air-sea" method, was invented by a group of scientists at the University of California. The method involves the use of a special type of plant that is able to absorb water from the air and convert it into usable water. The method is expected to be a major breakthrough in the field of water resource management, and it is expected to be used in a number of countries around the world.

Trudy Kulessa, Carol Feirich, James Greenwood and William Murphy were elected to represent the Carbondale campus on the new all-university Student Senate.

Operating Budget:

State Senate Okays $56 Million For SIU;
Another Senate Bill Seeks $15 Million

The State Senate has approved a $56,394,000 operating budget for the University of Illinois, according to the Associated Press. The $56 million is part of $66 million being sought by the Illinois Higher Education Agency for its long-range public building plans throughout the state. The Illinois Building Authority would administer the funds, included in the request for funds for SIU are:

- A $4.1 million physical sciences building on the Carbondale campus.
- An $800,000 power plant addition for the Carbondale campus.
- Some $1.4 million for rehabilitation and modernization of existing buildings.

The bill was introduced by Senator Donald J. O'Brien, D-Chicago, and Edward C. Eberbach, D-Shelbyville. It would raise $66 million for building through bond issues.

The governor, in his original budget message to the state legislature earlier this year, said he wants public buildings paid for on a pay-as-we-go basis, rather than from funds appropriated entirely from current income.

Miss Kulessa, a sophomore art major from Belleville, received the largest number of votes -- 623. She is sophomore class secretary-treasurer and served on the Student Council in place of the class president, who was away from school. She has been active in other school activities and recently was named outstanding sophomore woman of the year.

Other candidates and their votes included Sarah Moore, 453; John Reznick, 439; Bill Frey, 365; Linda Leveson, 315; and Dan Heldman, 166.

The Edwardsville campus also will elect four students to the All-University Student Senate. The new body will serve to coordinate student policy for the two campuses.

One-Act Plays:

Playwrights Show Promise
But Subjects Out Of Reach

High school promiscuity, a back fence romance in Mexico and religious fanaticism are the dominant themes of the three one-act plays written, directed and acted by SIU students at Southern Players' "Fringe Nighters" Tuesday.

The playwrights show their competency, but one wonders perhaps if they didn't tackle subject matter that was too broad and in some cases not within their grasp.

"Too Soon Old," written by Martha Howard Jones and directed by Donald J. Peake needs editing to bring out in cleaner perspective the point of the story. Miss Jones writes beautifully, but there is too much talk and not enough action. The actors have good lines, but few do them justice. Most perform with no more animation than the figures on Mount Rushmore.

William Toliver and directed by David Shafer is a cumbersome and over stylized romance that becomes pro-

Seven Forestry Graduates
To Join US Forest Service

Seven forestry graduates from SIU have received permanent U.S. Forest Service appointments, according to Neil W. Hooley, Forestry Department Chairman. Some will graduate in June and others completed degree requirements previously.

The SIU Forestry Department, established in 1957, now offers both bachelor’s and master’s degree programs. One hundred and twenty-six students were enrolled in the SIU forestry program this year.

Major Goodman
Is Reassigned
To Vietman

Major Joseph N. Goodman is leaving Southern Illinois campus this summer for a year of duty in air transportation with the Second Air Division at Saigon, Vietnam. Major Goodman has been attached to the SIU detachment of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program for five years, coming here after three years of duty in Japan. At Southern he has been instructor in cadets, instructor of junior and senior cadets, officer in charge of cadet flying instruction at the University airport and adviser of Angel Flight, women’s auxiliary to the AFROTC.

A native of Hoopeston, Tenna, Major Goodman has been in the Air Force 20 years. Following a leave at the end of the present school term, he will depart for Saigon in late July.

Seven Music Majors Follow
Family Musical Inheritance

"Like father, like son." No, not this time. At least not in the SIU Music Department. In fact, where the McHaney, Hudson and Aubuchon families are concerned it is "Like mother, like son and daughter."

Jim and Joe McHaney came to SIU from West Frankfurt where their mother teaches music in one of the elementary schools.

Mrs. Marilee McHaney was recently a guest conductor for the Elementary School Chorus in SIU's "Autumn Under the Stars." Her husband began his degree in music, but gave it up after his marriage. He is now principal in one of the grade schools in West Frankfurt.

Jim, a senior majoring in vocal music education, studies under William Taylor, assistant professor in music. McHaney is a member of the Chamber and University Choirs, and is assistant manager of the Glee Club.

Jim has appeared in "Pajama Game," a minor lead; he had the male lead in "Showboat" and "Madame Butterfly." McHaney was also student soloist in Handel's "Messiah."

Brother Joe, a freshman, is majoring in vocal music education, too. Young McHaney studies under Miss Marjorie Lawrence for whom he acts as personal secretary and accompanist.

Joe is drum major for the Saluki Marching Band, and accompanies the AFROTC Singing Squadron. He sings in the Oratorio Choir and has been accepted in the University and Chamber Choirs for next year. McHaney appeared in the Opera Workshop programs and in one of the male leads in "Madame Butterfly."

Both McHaney boys plan to teach vocal and instrumental music on the high school level after graduation.

Children Of Hiroshima
Their Story Of Memorable Day

What happened to the Hiroshima children on August 6th, 1945? What do they remember of that day? What are their thoughts in retrospect?

Dr. Arata Osada, former member of the family of Hiroshima, and a victim of the bomb himself, was able to get over 2,000 children to record their experiences on that day. Currently, the A-Bomb compilation of sixty-seven of those records.

One of the youngest of these children, a fourth grade boy when he wrote his account says, "On that fifth day, 1945, I wasn't going to school yet." He is a nine-year-old who remembers starting to the garden to pick flowers when a big flash and a sound occurred. There was a big flash and I was somewhat frightened to go all the way home. And all of a sudden a lot of noises got into my eyes.

Some of the older children are more able to describe the actual scene of the thousand swollen corpses falling on the ground, the searching for family, the seizure of the sick children from the "poison," as they refer to their children, the simple understatement of the story that follows. The reader must keep reminding himself that these children were told to tell their stories on the sixth anniversary of the bomb, as the survivors, and many of them is worthy of a master writer.

Seventeen Short Stories By Young Writers

The seventeen stories in this volume comprise the best short fiction written by college students. Story magazine for 1949-1950 university writing contest. Six of the seventeen stories are by women, and eleven are by men, and they represent fifteen colleges and universities, including Ohio State University.

The story which took first prize, "The Three so me" by Helen Eyser Ansell of Sarah Lawrence College, took second prize, "Your Back and Over the Bread" by Edward Konecky of Columbia University seems to me distinguished by a strong sense of style, and make a life, one that is evident in her use of language and in her vignette of the University of Oregon won third prize for "The Sunflower Wreath," by a young sixteen-year-old girl's effort to deal with conflicting values.

Saluki Pitchers Are Full Of Surprises For Coach Martin

Starting Hurters Go All The Way In Last 7 Games

"Don't start what you can't finish," in an old proverb which SIU's pitching staff has put into effect in recent weeks. The Salukis have a seven-game baseball winning streak going and all the wins have been complete games by the starting pitcher.

"Frankly, I don't know what has happened," Glenn Martin, baseball coach, said in a pleasing manner. "But I am not about to complain or make any changes.

"Somewhere the pitching has rounded into a top-notch staff," the veteran coach said during a recent practice session. "It happened overnight several times a week is the answer.

"I know from my experience coaching that it takes regular coaching that it takes several times a week to perfect a pitcher," he says. "Hanzog plans to the federation meet."

"Somehow," he says, "we have a seven-game winning streak in relief."

"Don't start what you can't finish," Coach Hanzog plans to the federation meet.

Meet Postponed Until June 7-8

SIU's track team was scheduled to compete this weekend in the Conference intramural outdoor track championship at South Bend, Ind., but the meet was postponed until June 7-8.

In 440-yard hurdles, George Edwards was close behind with the final second in trouble early in the game. His only loss was to Memphis State.

He has beaten Cincinnati, Evansville and St. Louis.

John Hots has won his last two starts with extra inning efforts. He beat Arkansas State 1-0 in eight innings and turned back Southeast Missouri 3-1 in 13 innings last week.

Hott has appeared in 40/2,3 innings and has given up 22 hits. He has struck out 24 enemy batters and walked 25. He has a 2.85 earned run average.

But She Loves It:

Rose Cornell Lives In A World Of Stop Watches And Sports Talk

By Roy Franke

What is it like to be the wife of the runner many consider will be the world’s next sub-four-minute miler?

"It’s wonderful," said Rosemary Cornell, the pretty wife of SIU’s star miler Bill Cornell, in a recent interview.

"He’s perfect," she continued in a tone which resembles that of a girl in love for the first time rather than a wife of more than two years.

An avid sports fan, Mrs. Cornell admits that sports talk, especially track talk, fills their apartment.

Asked if her husband’s training affected her cooking, she smiled. "Not especially, although I try to avoid greasy foods because of Bill’s ulcer."

Mrs. Cornell, who seldom sees her husband run, (Southern’s track team only competed twice this spring at home) says the first she hears of how Bill came out in a race is when he gets home.

This irritates her.

"The radio never has any of the track results," she said testily. "For instance, after the SIU-Western Michigan meet one of my friends listened—until midnight trying to get the results. The radio never had one word about it."

Mrs. Cornell, who did get to go to Chicago on March 8 to see her husband compete in the Daily News Relays, says it is difficult for her to pick out the most outstanding event in Bill’s career.

"It was really thrilled with his half-mile performance in the Drake Relays, (Bill anchored the sprint medley team to first place in a 4:47.1 time) but I’d probably have been more thrilled if I’d been there."

"I just love those mile relays," Mrs. Cornell responded when asked about Bill’s coming from behind to overtake and give Southern the lead and the meet in the Salukis dual meet this season, "Bill was well pleased too, but not satisfied," she continued. "But athletes never are."

The Cornells, who met while working at the Hoffmann Manufacturing Company in their home town of Chelmsford, England, flew to Southern in 1964 when Bill began his track career here.

"Bill runs because he loves it, and thus what would be sacrifices to most aren’t to him," Mrs. Cornell pointed out.

"Since I’m working on a PHT (Put Hubby Through) at the Southern Illinois Information Service (Rose serves as a typist and receptionist), Bill’s three-hours of training a day doesn’t affect me much. He trains the year around, but likes a little break during the off season," the young wife explained.

 Asked what the typical race day is like at the Cornell home, Rose answered:

"We generally get up about 9 a.m. and Bill has a good steak dinner around noon. In the afternoon we sometimes go to a movie to take Bill’s mind off the race."

"About 4:30 p.m. Bill has a light supper of toast and tea and minus the half gallon of milk he usually drinks. Bill sometimes lies down before going to the stadium 45 minutes before me. I usually go later."

"Naturally, I am nervous before he runs, although Bill doesn’t like for me to admit it," Mrs. Cornell said. Asked if Bill was nervous she answered: "Yes, it’s on his mind all the time, both the day of the race and the week before."

Mrs. Cornell lists swimming, walking, and listening to music as her favorite hobbies while she says Bill enjoys bowling, table tennis and basketball.

Asked if she shared Bill’s enthusiasm for bowling she replied with a laugh, "I like it, but I’m not very good."

"After losing a race Bill’s disappointed, of course, but otherwise he’s not too bad," she explained. "He has the outlook that everybody can’t win. He doesn’t throw things or anything like that."

When asked whether Bill could break the four minute mile, she seemed to avoid the question like a cat avoids a dog. "I don’t know," she replied hesitantly. "Bill hasn’t trained for the mile. He’s trained more for the half-mile."

Nevertheless, Bill’s runner-up 4:00.5 time in last year’s NCAA university division mile makes many track experts feel it’s just a matter of time before he breaks the four minute barrier.

What are the junior P.E. major and his wife’s plans after he graduates? "He’d like to compete in the 1965 Olympics and then coach track somewhere here in America," Mrs. Cornell said. "He prefers coaching in the south-west because he doesn’t like cold weather."
