suddenly and unexpectedly, but peacefully and without having gone through the trials of a protracted illness. There is no one who exercised a greater influence upon the building up of his character than his mother, and to her he dedicates the above hymn, knowing that though she died, her soul lives. For, as George Eliot says, she has joined

"...the choir invisible
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence: live
In pulses stir'd to generosity,
In deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn
For miserable aims that end with self,
In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars,
And with their mild persistence urge man's search
To vaster issues.

"This is life to come,
Which martyr'd men have made more glorious
For us who strive to follow."

We conclude with the poet's prayer:

"May I reach
That purest heaven, be to other souls
The cup of strength in some great agony,
Enkindle generous ardor, feed pure love,
Beget the smiles that have no cruelty,
Be the sweet presence of a good diffus'd,
And in diffusion ever more intense
So shall I join the choir invisible
Whose music is the gladness of the world."

NOTES AND BOOK REVIEWS.

Great philosophers have set the example of applying the horded inspiration and culture of philosophic thought to the solution of the practical problems of every-day life, and we have in this line, to mention only a few efforts, the famous Meditations of Descartes, Fichte's Vocation of Man, and his Addresses to the German People. Much commendable activity in the same field has been exhibited, too, by modern professors of philosophy, at least by such as seek to do more than to reproduce mechanically in the brains of the present generation the thoughts which have been handed down to them by the old. We have in mind, here, two instances which have been brought to our notice by recent publications. Prof. Rudolph Eucken of Jena, by his profound and zealous researches into the ways of thought of the great intellectual leaders of mankind, and by his steady insistence upon the points of view which have significance and worth for conduct, has done much towards giving to the people a share of that salvation which springs from living over again the thoughts of the great creative minds of the world. As one of his studies we have to mention his recent earnest and far-seeing judgment upon "Spiritual Man at the Close of the Nineteenth Century," published as a philosophical meditation in the July, 1897, Deutsche Rundschau. It is creditable, too, that the leading magazine of a great nation should in these commercial days find space in its pages for matter which the world needs, not wants. ... There has also recently come to our hands a brochure by Dr. Johannes Rehmke on Present Culture in Its Relation to Philosophy (Heilbronn: E. Salzer, 80 pp.), which is deserving of notice. Professor Rehmke has written an excellent brief history of philosophy and is the author of a large work on formal psychology, so that he has brought a good equipment to his task. Scores of like and equally worthy attempts might be cited. In a popular but still loftier scale should be mentioned Pasteur's famous address on the relations of a nation's science and thought to its worldly power and welfare parts of which have been quoted by Tyndall in a Preface to one of his popular works; and in a higher order, more applicable to thinkers themselves, but from their simplicity intelligible to all, attention should be called to the beautiful remarks of Helmholtz on the method and ways of research which were delivered by him some time before his death at the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of his academic career. They are printed in pamphlet form with other addresses delivered upon the same question, and we hope some time to be able to publish them in The Open Court.

"There are in the English language three elegiac poems," says Mr. Algernon Charles Swinburne, "so great that they eclipse and efface all the elegiac poetry we know." The three are Lycidas, Adonis, and lastly the Thyrsis of Matthew Arnold. The latter, together with the same author's Scholar-Gipsy, is now published in delicate, attractive form in the Bibelot Series of Mr. Thomas B. Mosher, 45 Exchange St., Portland, Maine, for the unconscionable sum of five cents. The Bibelot Series is given to the republication of the scintillant and lustrous gems of literature, and, barring a slight penchant to exoticism and exquisite superlativeness, it is well performing its task and has conferred considerable obligations upon lovers of good literature.

Matthew Arnold, while not affecting the unfathomable profundity in his poems that Browning did, and while keeping his eyes steadily fixed upon the grave central problems of life, still did not scorn at times to use the heavy, albeit beautiful, weapons which the traditional classical ideal of poetry gave into his hands. That he could do so and still be intelligible, not only redounds to his art but also insures his fame. Take this from the Scholar-Gipsy, Glanvil's lonely Oxford student who wandered through eternity waiting for the secret of the world to be revealed to him, to reveal it in turn to men:

"Thou waitest for the spark from heaven! and we,
Light half-believers of our casual creeds,
Who never deeply felt, nor clearly will'd,
Whose insight never has borne fruit in deeds,
Whose vague resolves never have been fulfill'd;
For whom each year we see
Breeds new beginnings, disappointments new;
Who hesitate and falter life away,
And lose to-morrow the ground won to-day—
Ah! do not we, wanderer! await it too?"

And this to Thyrsis:

"Yes, thou art gone! and round me too the night
In ever-nearing circle weaves her shade.
I see her veil draw soft across the day,
I feel her slowly chilling breath invade
The cheek grown thin, the brown hair sprent with grey;
I feel her finger light
Laid pausefully upon life's headlong train,—
The foot less prompt to meet the morning dew,
The heart less bounding at emotion new,
And hope, once crushed, less quick to spring again."

The Bibelot Series is deserving of wide support. The November number is Odysseus in Phaacia, as translated in the beautiful quatrains of J. W. Mackail.
The December number is The Death of Marlowe by R. H. Horne. T. J. McC.

The problem of writing well the Stories of the Sciences for juvenile instruction has long engaged the minds of educators, and some excellent attempts in this direction have already been made. One effort has come to our notice and is called the Storyland of Stars, by Mara L. Pratt (Educational Publishing Co., Boston, pp. 165) which since it was copyrighted in 1892, seems to have met with some favor. The book is simply written. It tells the tale of astronomy by well-chosen specimens of striking research, particularly such in which the human interest is paramount, and it gives in a way which is pretty well adapted to childish comprehension, a good deal of information about the starry heavens. The illustrations represent such scenes as the Observatory of Tycho Brahe, the Accidental Discovery of the Telescope, a Shower of Shooting Stars, etc.; there is a portrait of Tycho Brahe, pictures of the earth of the Vedic priests, resting on columns, of the earth floating on water and held by roots, of the Hindu earth supported by elephants standing on a tortoise, of Plato's cubical earth, etc. There are pictures of the moon and its phases, of the earth and the planets, of the famous egg which was laid in Rome in 1680, bearing upon it the picture of the great comet which then appeared, diagrams of the constellations and pictures from Greek mythology accompanying the stories on which the ancient and arbitrary arrangement of the stars was based. Regarding the configuration of the stars in the firmament, much information can be supplied to children from this book. There is no reason why with a competent teacher and with a pleasant half-hour of consecutive star-gazing for a number of evenings during the different seasons of the year, every child could not be made perfectly acquainted with the chief features of the heavens and thus a great amount of labor saved in future years, apart from the gain of wholesome educational amusement. There are a number of appropriate astronomical poems interspersed throughout the text, and one piece of Sunday-school cosmogony which might better have been omitted.

To the same class of literature belong Murchés's Science Readers, published by Macmillan, New York, a series of lessons in natural science in which the main laws of nature are discussed and experiments related that can easily be repeated by parents and kindergarten teachers. The language is very simple and adapted to children, but the book might have been better if it had not been cast in the form of dialogues. The dialogues, however, are not between the teacher and children, but between children alone, and Mr. Murché has actually succeeded in using the vocabulary of the child. Nevertheless, it appears to the reviewer that direct descriptions of the experiments and statements of facts would be preferable. If the book is intended for kindergarten teachers, they will do the padding as expressed in the dialogues, themselves; and if it is intended as a reader for the children themselves, the directest method of information will always prove most welcome. The series deserves a high recommendation, for there is scarcely anything of the kind in the market that is better.

One of the illustrations belonging to the last paragraph of p. 757 of the article "The Christian Conception of Death" was received too late to be inserted in the last number of The Open Court, and we here reproduce it. It is the tombstone of Eutropus, a Christian sarcophagus-maker. The inscription reads: ATIOΣ ΩΕΟ-
MISCELLANEOUS.

The Tombstone of Eutropus.

The Practical Vegetarian Cookery of the Countess Constance Wachmeister and Kate Buffington Davis (Theosophical Publishing Co., 65 Fifth Avenue, New York, $1.00), contains 175 pages of excellent cooking and two pages of bad, superfluous philosophy. Since the latter, brief as it is, is not likely to be read, we have no hesitation in heartily commending the book to all lovers of wholesome living. It is difficult for anyone not a Theosophic devotee to take the literal significance of the distinction between "astral bodies" and their "physical encasements" seriously, or the gross materialism involved in such statements as that the "astral bodies feed on the subtle emanations of the foods supplying nutriment to the physical encasement." That gluttony and habitual, unceasing saturation of the body with alcohol debases the soul, few doubt. But that the mechanism of the process is a "feeding" of the "astral body," which we must conceive endowed with masticatory and digestive apparatus, upon the gaseous emanations of the physical organism, is unsound physiology—though countenanced by no less eminent a thinker than Falstaff (1355-1415) in his famous apostrophe to sherris-sack. And as to that other thesis of theosophy that the "astral bodies" after death, by a sort of Archimedean principle of buoyancy, take their places in the astral atmosphere according to their specific gravity as induced by the relative density and grossness of the foods engulfed by the "physical encasements" in life, it is unsound mechanics; for many vegetarian dishes, e. g., pie, are heavier than meat. The eating of eggs, too, is another antinomy in the philosophy of theosophic vegetarianism. If the taking and devouring of life per se is bad, the taking and devouring of embryonic life is only quantitatively less bad. The potencies resident in a chicken's egg, which need but a little warmth to blossom forth into a career of glorious splendor, are blighted in their incipiency, with an utter disregard of the ethical possibilities involved. One further slip. In one of the recipes (Chestnut Croquettes) three teaspoonfuls of Maraschino are to be added. Divided among a family of eight physical encasements, each astral body will absorb, by osmosis, three-eighths of a teaspoonful of heavy, gross alcoholic fumes—not much by the current appreciation, but sufficient to make a bubbly, tenuous body such as we conceive the astral body to be, sag like a parachute to infernal depths in the astral planes. We hope this discrepancy will be eliminated in the second edition. As for the rest, we wish the book a wide circulation, which its culinary contents certainly deserve.—T. J. McC.
THE OPEN COURT.

The attention of students of logic is to be called to a brief pamphlet of nineteen pages called the Logical Copula and Quantification of the Predicate, by Edward Adamson. (London: David Nutt.)

Dante's Vision of God is a tastily bound pamphlet of thirty-three pages, written by Caroline K. Sherman. She says of Dante's poem that it is not mere fancy; on the contrary, "it is everlasting truth, proclaiming the reality of justice and righteousness, declaring that the soul can find satisfaction only as it lives, moves, and has its being in the eternal source of all good."

The Freidenker-Almanach for 1898 opens with a poem by Arthur Pfungst and contains a collection of poems in which almost all the names of German-American authors are represented. Of special interest is an article by Hermann Boppe on the Diana Vaughan Comedy, a sensational dénouement of the most barefaced inventions with which M. Leo Taxil excited both the Roman Catholics and the Free Masons, until about a year ago this French buffoon, or fumiste, as he humorously calls himself, openly confessed before the world that the whole story had been a mere joke.

The Proceedings of the Society for Psychical Research for July, 1897, contains a very curious and interesting article by Prof. W. F. Barrett on "The So-called Divining Rod." The data which Professor Barrett introduces are exhaustive and afford a strange insight into popular psychology. One would think the matter hardly deserved serious consideration on any other score, but there are doubtless some people who still do not think the use of the divining rod a survival, and would attempt to penetrate into the mysterious connexion between the Y-shaped branch of a tree and the existence of water and oil in the earth.

A brief manual of the history of Christianity is something that many people are in need of, and Mr. J. H. Crooker of Troy has sought to supply this want in the publication of a little book called The Growth of Christianity (Chicago: Western Unitarian Sunday-School Society, pages 241, price 50 cents). Mr. Crooker intends the book to be used as a Sunday-School manual for older classes, but also commends it to the general reader. It emphasises the main features of the development of Christianity from its origin to the present day. While aiming to be nothing more than a compilation, it bears evidence of trustworthiness.

The Annual Literary Index (New York: Office of the Publishers' Weekly) is of great value to librarians, literary workers, and journalists. As a reference book of the year's literature it contains an index to periodicals, both American and English, an index to general literature, including chapter headings, etc., an author index, a list of American and English bibliographies published during the year, a necrology, and an index to the dates of the principal events of the year. The collaborators who have assisted the editors, Mr. W. J. Fletcher and Mr. R. R. Bowker, in the compilation of the work, represent a large number of our foremost libraries.

ON THE OUTER RIM.
STUDIES IN
WIDER EVOLUTION.
CLOTH, 50 CENTS.

In this book, the author, Mr. George E. Wright, seeks to carry the evolution-theory beyond the point where Darwin rested, tracing the life-principle through all material forms, and dealing with psychic phenomena, which, not being understood generally, are relegated to the border-land between science and occultism.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

1. DAWN.
2. WIDER EVOLUTION.
3. GROWTH OF HUMAN KIND.
4. A CYCLE OF ETERNITY.
5. ORIGIN OF RELIGIONS.
6. THE MAGIC OF NATURE.
7. ILLUSION.
8. REAL OCCULTISM.
9. RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.

The following are brief extracts from a few of the many newspaper reviews of the book:

"In compressing so vast a subject into so small a space the writer has necessarily constructed little more than a skeleton, but the work is an earnest effort to draw attention to what the author esteems must be the line along which the true progress of humanity will be achieved."—Denver (Colo.) News.

"A delightful study in wider evolution is given in a little volume entitled 'On the Outer Rim,' by George E. Wright. This writer attempts to give the theories and advancement of the doctrine of evolution, carrying it into development of the soul, and growth of human kind. There are some nine essays, and in the last the author treats of the religion of the future and takes a very broad view, bringing together all the people of the earth and all the religions and sects, and denounces the narrowness of sectarianism. It is well worth reading."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

"This is a study in the fascinating theory of evolution. It is exceeding well written, and discusses in a pleasant way one of the great problems of the ages."—New Orleans Picayune.

"The students of to-day are inquiring not only the origin and history of life, but are patiently working out the problems of the birth and growth of mind. In this little book many valuable suggestions are given to the student in evolution in regard to the underlying forces of nature."—Baltimore American.

"This book is an effort to condense in popular form some of the results thus obtained, as bearing upon what may be termed the wider evolution; in which is included the mental and psychic, as well as the strictly physical, development of the human race."—Detroit Tribune.

"He (the writer) defines occultism as simply the true study of nature, in which there is no supernaturalism, and which eventually leads man to the goal of wisdom and virtue."—San Jose (Cal.) Herald.

"Of the nine essays which form the chapters of this interesting work, the two 'Origin of Religions,' and 'Religion of the Future,' are most instructive and entertaining. With true and broad-minded eloquence the subject is amplified."—Boston Globe.

"Mr. Wright has made an interesting book, full of suggestive thoughts."—Chicago Tribune.

"Mr. Wright's definition of the occult is different from the idea conveyed by that much-abused word to the popular mind. At the present stage of evolution we have two distinct quantities, the known and the unknown. The known may be considered as contained within the boundaries of what we call science, the unknown may be classed as occultism."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE AMERICAN ANTIQUARIAN AND ORIENTAL JOURNAL.

Published and Edited by STEPHEN D. PEET, Chicago, Ill.

Bi-Monthly. Price, $4.00 Per Year.

This magazine begins its 20th volume with January 1898. The various departments represented by associate editors are as follows:

INDIAN LINGUISTICS, by A. S. Gatschet, Ph. D., Washington, D. C.

MYTHOLOGY and FOLKLORE, by James Deans, of British Columbia.

EUROPEAN ARCHAEOLOGY, by Dr. D. G. Brinton, Philadelphia, Pa.

POLYNESIA and AUSTRALIA, by J. G. Fraser, LL. D., Sidney, Australia.

The department of Comparative Religions and Mythology is very prominent. The Book Reviews embrace nearly all the books that are published on Archaeology and History, including many on Oriental and Classical Antiquities, Mythology, Comparative Religions, and other topics.

The editor is also publishing a series of works on PREHISTORIC AMERICA under the following titles:

No. I. THE MOUND BUILDERS AND THEIR RELICS. No. II. ANIMAL EFFIGIES AND EMBLEMATIC MOUNDS. No. III. MYTHS AND SYMBOLS, OR ABORIGINAL RELIGIONS. No. IV. ARCHAEOLOGICAL RELICS, OR ART IN THE STONE AGE. No. V. CLIFF DWELLINGS AND RUINED CITIES.

Each volume contains about 400 pages and is fully illustrated. Price for each volume, sold separately, $3.50, or $15.00 for the set. Address

THE LIVING AGE. Reproduces without abridgment the ablest articles from the Leading British reviews, magazines and weekly literary and political journals in every department of Literature; also TRANSLATIONS from the French, German, Russian, Spanish, Italian and other Continental Sources.

ENLARGED by the addition of a Monthly Literary Supplement, containing Readings from American Magazines, Readings from New Books, a List of Books of the Month.

"AN EPOCH-MAKING STORY."

"WITH ALL HER HEART." From the French of M. Rene Bazin.

Arrangements have been made for the SERIAL PUBLICATION of a TRANSLATION, made expressly for THE LIVING AGE, of this famous novel. The first instalment appears in the number of Nov. 6, and it will be continued weekly for several months until completed.

This novel, in its recent presentation in the REVUE DES DEUX MONDES, aroused the greatest interest, attracting the attention of litterateurs both in France and England. A vivid portrayal of life in a French industrial town, it is interesting alike as a social study, and as a realistic, yet delicate story of modern life.

Its literary and ethical qualities are so unusual that LES ANNALES LITTERAIRES ET POLITIQUES described it as "An Epoch-Making Story."

THE LONDON ATHENAEUM characterizes it "a work of fine and searching analysis, full of charm, and redolent of a perfume which is exquisite and possesses no disquieting element."

DURING THE YEAR other translations from the best writers will appear from time to time, with serial or short stories by the Leading British Authors.

Free "WITH ALL HER HEART."
To all New Subscribers to The Living Age for 1898, will be sent Free the eight numbers of 1897 containing the first instalments of "WITH ALL HER HEART."

Choicest Literature at Club Prices.
For $8.00 THE LIVING AGE and any $4.00 Magazine (or Harper's Weekly or Bazar) sent for a year; or, for $3.00 THE LIVING AGE and Scribner's magazine.

Published Weekly at 86.00 a Year, postpaid. Single Copies 15 cts.

Philosophical and Psychological Portrait Series

PROSPECTUS.

The Open Court Publishing Company contemplates the publication of a selected series of large-sized portraits of the world's philosophers and of representative psychologists, suitable for framing (11 x 14 in.) and hanging in public and private libraries, laboratories, seminaries, recitation and lecture rooms. The portraits will be taken from the best sources, and will be high-grade photogravures.

As the preparation of so large a number of plates is very expensive, it will be impossible to offer the portraits at the moderate price given below unless a certain number of subscriptions is guaranteed in advance. All who are interested in the proposed series, therefore, are requested to communicate at once with the publishers and after examination of a specimen portrait, invited to subscribe at the earliest moment possible. The terms will be found below. The list which has been divided for convenience into two parts is as follows:

Philosophical:

(Subject to alterations.)

To Subscribers:

The total number of portraits in the above list is 68. Those who wish a special Psychological Series may add to the 31 psychologists enumerated in the second part of the above list any three names from the first part. Those who wish a special Philosophical Series may substitute any of the names in the second list for any names in the first.

TERMS - For both series (68 portraits) on regular paper, $7.50; on heavy, Imperial Japanese paper, $11.00.

For either series alone (i.e., a selection of 34 portraits) on regular paper, $5.00; on heavy, Imperial Japanese paper, $7.00.

Single portraits 25 cents.

For subscribers who may prefer not to frame the portraits, a neat portfolio will be provided at a cost of 50 cents additional.

Send 5c. stamp for specimen portrait.

"We trust that the very reasonable price of the series, and the value of the work already done in this direction by The Open Court Publishing Company, will secure a sufficient number of subscriptions to lead them to publish the series, and to follow it as they suggest with series of mathematicians, physicists, biologists, etc."—Science, N. Y.
